TO THE MOST HIGH AND MIGHTIE PRINCE ELIZABETH, by the grace of GOD, Queene of England, Fraunce, and Ireland, Defender of the faith, &c.

T such time as I publiſhed a defenſe of our Engliſh tranſlations of the holy Scriptures, againſt the malicious cauils of Gregorie Martine, and was bolde to offer the ſame vnto your Maieſties moſt honourable protection (moſt mightie and gratious Soueraigne) I thought my ſelfe diſcharged in duetie, from any further dealing againſt theſe Rhemiſh gloſes. Both for that I was perſwaded, that among ſo many learned Diuines, as doe now flouriſh in the Church of England, a worke of ſuch importance coulde not bee altogether neglected: and eſpecially becauſe it was reported, that by other men of very good gifts, it was already, euen at the firſt vndertaken. But ſo many yeeres hauing paſſed, and the expectation of many godly men not yet being ſatisfied with a full and general anſwere (although their hunger hath bene well ſlaked with ſundry learned diſcourſes, vttered partly by occaſion in other bookes, partly in ſpeciall Treatiſes directed againſt ſome portion of theſe Annotations, beſide often confutations of the ſame in publike Sermons) being ſolicited by men of good iudgement and qualities, I haue attempted to ſet forth by my ſelfe, that which I haue long looked for, and much rather deſired to be performed by others. Not meaning thereby, to preiudice the more learned labours, and longer ſtudied commentaries of them that had taken the matter in hand before me, if they purpoſe at length to bring them to light: but to prouide in the meane time, that by a ſhort and ſufficient reply, the weake might be confirmed, the doubtfull ſatisfied, and especially the insolencie of the aduersaries might be represſed. Who not content to quarrell at the sinceritie and trueth of our translations, and to set out a farre worse themselues: haue also indeuoured to corrupt the sense of the new Testament (howsoeuer translated) with hereticall notes and sophisticall collections. In which lest their scope and purpose might be hidden in any point, they haue not only sought a colour for their vntrue positions in the controuersies of this time, out of the holy Scriptures: but also they haue declared their speciall malice against your Maiesties most lawfull and godly gouernment, not omitting in their traiterous intendement, to vndermine and supplant euen the foundation of your Maiesties most iust title of inheritance vnto the Imperiall crowne of this Realme. Which their most vngodly intent, if it were at the first obscure to any (as to wise men it could neuer be vnknowen) yet it hath since openly discouered it selfe to be the same, that was in sending ouer of so many of their Circumcellion Iesuits and Seminary Priests. Euen to prepare a way to those most detestable practises, that since that time by secret conspiracies haue bene attempted against your Maiesties most sacred life (which by the miraculous prouidence of Almightie God hath hitherto beene preserued:) and lately by open and inuincible force (as they boasted) hath bene assaied, against the life and libertie, not onely of your most excellent Maiestie, but also of all your faithful subiects, & to the vtter subuersion of the happy estate of our most deare countrey for euer. But the Lord of Hostes our mercifull father, in whom your Maiestie hath alwayes trusted, and found helpe and deliuerance out of all your troubles, euen from your youth hitherto: and Iesus Christ our Lord, whose Church vnder your most comfortable protection and gouernment, hath enioyed a long and happy rest, to the saluation of many thousand soules, hath mightily & marueilously defended your Maiestie and his Church. In which most glorious deliuerance, hee hath so manifestly declared his gracious fauour toward vs, (that albeit nothing was omitted that by wise counsell should haue bene appointed, or by a valiant armie bene executed) yet hee hath giuen vs euident occasion to sing with the Prophet: By his owne right hande, and with his holy arme hath hee gotten himselfe the victorie. And all the endes of the world haue seene the saluation of our God. Yea the whole Psalme seemeth so liuely to expresse the Lords mercie toward vs, and our duetie toward him, as if it had bene specially endited for this time and occasion. In which, with gratulatiou of your Maiesties most prosperous successe, wee may bee bold to say, not onely that which is in euery mans mouth and penne, out of the Poet Claudianus: Psal. 98.

O nimium

O nimium dilecta Deo, tibi militat æther;
Et coniurati veniunt ad classica venti.

But also in imitation of an other elder Poet:

--tua carbasa vexit
Oceanus, tumidos satis indignatus Iberos. Valerius Flaccus.

And whereas the aduersaries made no small accompt of that Astrologicall prediction, & perhaps trusted in it no lesse then Cræsus did in the answere of Apollo, we may now safely declare the accomplishment, by adding a Pentameter, and say:

Octogesimus octauus mirabilis annus
Clade Papistarum, faustus vbique pijs.

Thus hath the infinite goodnesse of our Sauiour, not only giuen grace vnto your Maiestie, according to the heauenly oracle, Apoc. 18. 4. to leade the people of God with you out of Babylon: but also sufficient power and iust cause to render vnto her as she hath rendred vnto vs, and to reward her double according to her workes. Which great seueritie the Spirite of God would not so streightly haue inioyned to his faithfull Church, and the chiefe gouernours thereof, but that he foresaw that the wickednesse of Antichrist and his members would throughly deserue it.

A part of whose impietie against the Lorde, his worde, his Church, and your Maiestie his anointed, I haue endeuoured according to my calling and abilitie, to lay open and ouerthrowe, by confuting these annotations: humbly beseeching your Maiestie graciously to accept my duetifull endeuour therein, not so worthy (I confesse) of your royall acceptation, as meet to be published in some respects before mentioned.

The God of heauen who hath hitherto most abundantly garnished your Maiesties raigne, with all princely ornaments, equal to the best, and superior to the most of your noble progenitors, vouchsafe to continue the gracious light of his countenance toward your Maiestie for euer, and so blesse this Autumne of your Maiesties age, with most excellent fruites of godly, prosperous, and victorious gouernment, that his glory may bee aduanced aboue all things, and your honour endure vnto all posteritie.

AMEN.

Your Maiesties most humble subiect,

WILLIAM FVLKE.

THE

THE PREFACE TO THE READER, TREATING OF THESE THREE POINTS: OF the tranſlation of Holy Scriptures into the vulgar tongues, and namely into Engliſh: Of the cauſes why this New Teſtament is tranſlated according to the ancient vulgar Latine text: And of the maner of tranſlating the ſame.

RHEM. 1

THE Holy Bible long ſince tranſlated by vs into Engliſh, and the Olde Teſtament lying by vs for lacke of good meanes to publiſh the whole in ſuch ſort, as a worke of ſo great charge and importance requireth: wee haue yet through Gods goodneſſe as length fullie finiſhed for thee (moſt Chriſtian Reader) all the NEW TESTAMENT, which is the principall, moſt profitable and comfortable piece of holy writ: and, as well for all other inſtitution of life and doctrine, as ſpecially for deciding the doubts of theſe dayes, more proper and pregnant, then the other parts not yet printed.

FVLKE. 1

IF the whole Bible hath beene tranſlated by you, and that long ſince, into the Engliſh tongue, it is marueile, that it hath lien ſo long by you, for lacke of good meanes to publiſh it. You haue publiſhed bookes of as great charge, and much leſſe importance, within theſe eight and twenty yeres: but ſuch in deed, by which you had more hope to win vnto your credit and cauſe, then you haue by the holy Bible, though you peruerted it with neuer ſo partiall tranſlation, and poiſoned it with neuer ſo hereticall and blaſphemous Annotations, as you haue done your edition of the New Teſtament. You were woont to boaſt of the zeale of Popes, Cardinals, and other great Prelates of the Romiſh ſect, for the conuerſion of our Nation vnto their obedience. Were they all ſo ſtraight laced, that none of them can finde in their purſes, to beare the charges of printing a worke ſo neceſſary, or at leaſt wiſe profitable, as you holde the tranſlation of the Scriptures to be, for maintenance of the Catholike religion? Or doe you not rather, as the familie of Loue vſeth to doe, for their works, craftily begge of your fauourers in England, larger exhibition, vpon colour of printing your tranſlation of the Bible? when it is not hard to gather, that if you were purpoſed in deed to ſet it foorth, and would vſe ſuch meanes as you may, in thoſe parts, the forbearing of the money, though your Printer tooke it vpon intereſt, might be payed for in the ſale of one impreſſion, although it ſo might happen, that a number of them were confiſcated, or miſcaried in the wayes, as chanced to ſome of theſe your bookes. But who ſo ſeeth what vnneceſſary charge you haue put your ſelues vnto, in printing this your tranſlation in ſo large a volume: may eaſily perceiue you ſet it not foorth for poore mens profit, and that by ſo exceſſiue price, of ſo ſmall a part of the whole Bible, you meane to diſcourage your friends from waiting for all the reſt: What aduantage you haue in this part, for deciding the doubts of theſe dayes, we ſhall examine in the ſeuerall places, where you pretend to take it.

RHEM. 2

Which tranſlation we doe not for all that publiſh, vpon erroneous opinion of neceſſitie, that the Holy Scriptures ſhould alwayes be in our mother tongue, or that they ought, or were ordeined by God, to be read indifferently of all, or could be eaſily vnderſtood of euery one that readeth or heareth them in a knowen language: or that they were not often through mans malice or infirmitie, pernicious and much hurtfull to many: or that we generally and abſolutely deemed it more conuenient in it ſelfe, and more agreeable to Gods word and honour or edification of the faithfull, to haue them turned into vulgar tongues, then to be kept and ſtudied onely in the eccleſiaſticall learned languages: Not for theſe, nor any ſuch like cauſes doe we tranſlate this ſacred booke, but vpon ſpeciall conſideration of the preſent time, ſtate, and condition of our countrey, vnto which, diuers things are either neceſſarie, or profitable and medicinable now, that otherwiſe in the peace of the Church were neither much requiſite, nor perchance wholly tollerable.

Tranſlation of the Scriptures into the vulgar tongues, not abſolutely neceſſarie or profitable but according to the time.

FVLKE. 2.

You are afrayd, to giue ouer your olde impudent propoſition, that ignorance of the Scriptures, is the mother of Popiſh deuotion. And therefore you holde it an erronious opinion, That the Holy Scriptures ſhould be alway in our mother tongue, or that they ought, or were ordeined by God, to be read indifferently of all. Where as it is certeine, that the Holy Scripture of the Olde Teſtament, was by Gods ordinance, firſt written in the mother tongue of the Iewes, and the New Teſtament in the Greeke tougue, which was the mother tongue to a great part of the world, and that language, which was moſt generally vnderſtood among the Gentiles, vnto whom the Goſpel was preached. Our Sauiour Chriſt commaundeth, not onely a reading (as you your ſelues confeſſe) but alſo a deepe ſearch of the Scriptures, vnto all the Iewes indifferently. Saint Paul commendeth the education of Timothie, in knowledge of the Scriptures from his infancie. Which authorities proue, that the Holy Scriptures were ordeined by God, to be read & knowen indifferently of all, and therefore ought

2. Tim. 3.15.

ought to be translated into the mother tongues of all Nations, that all may reade and know them. Another erronious opinion you account it, to thinke, that the Scriptures can be easily vnderstood of euery one that readeth or heareth them in a knowen language, which if it were admitted, yet it followeth not, that the Scriptures ought not to be in a knowen language, because they cannot be easily vnderstood of euery one that readeth or heareth them, but rather, that euery one that readeth or heareth them, ought more diligently to study and exercise himselfe in them, more often heare and reade them, and more feruently pray to God for aide of his spirit, that he may vnderstand them. And yet it is certeine, that albeit some places of the Scripture are not easie to be vnderstood of all men, yet there are many parts of them, and so many, as are able to instruct vs vnto saluation, so plaine and easie, as they may be vnderstood of euery one that readeth or heareth them. And of this iudgement is S. Augustine, answering this obiection of the obscurity of the Scriptures: Magnificè igitur & salubriter, &c. Therefore hath the holy Ghost magnifically and holesomely so tempered the holy Scriptures, that by plaine and open places, he might preuaile against famine: by darke places, he might wipe away lothsomnesse. For nothing almost, is gathered out of those obscurities, which is not found most plainly vttered in some other place. De doctrina Christ. lib. 2. cap. 6. And in the Chapter immediatly before, hee sheweth, that by reason of the diuersitie of languages, the same sounde of wordes not seruing all Nations, the Scriptures were translated into diuers tongues, that they might be generally knowen, Ex quo factũ est, &c. whereof it is come to passe, that euen the holy Scriptures (by which so great diseases of mens wits are helped) being proceeded frõ one tongue, which might conueniently be spread ouer all the world, through diuers languages of the interpreters, being dispersed farre and wide, might become knowen of the Nations to their saluation: by both of which places, it is euident, that Saint Augustine deemed it more conuenient in it selfe, and more agreeable to Gods word, honour, and edification of the faithfull, to haue the Scriptures turned into vulgar tongues, then to be kept and studied in any learned language whatsoeuer. Now why you should account any one tongue, more then other, to be ecclesiasticall, you are able to giue no sound reason, seeing God hath called his Church of all tongues and Nations, and sanctified them all, to the preaching of the Gospel, and praise of his Name. As for the Latine tongue, which you would most willingly haue to be counted an ecclesiasticall tongue, was for many hundred yeeres after Christ, the common vulgar and popular tongue, in most part of the West churches, of those nations that were subiect to the Romane Empire. And why it is now ecclesiasticall, that then was vulgar, I know no cause, but that Antichrist, whose tongue it is, blasphemously challenging to be the head of the Church, hath chosen and authorized it to be ecclesiasticall, in contumely of all other languages, which the Holy Ghost, descending vpon the Apostles, in clouen tongues, hath consecrated to the preaching of Christ Iesus, and to the magnifying and setting foorth of the great praises of God. That through mans malice, or infirmitie, the Scriptures are often made pernicious and hurtfull to many: it is no greater reason, to keepe them from the knowledge of most men, then it were to depriue all men from meat and drinke, because many doe abuse them, to the destruction both of their bodies and soules. As for the speciall consideration, that procured this edition, when you doe expresse it, we may better iudge of it. In the meane time, we can conceiue none other, but that which is the practise of many heretikes, when you could not altogether suppresse the knowledge of the holy Scriptures, whereby your errours are discouered: you thought it the next way for your purpose, by your partiall translation, as much as you could, to obscure them, and by your heretical Annotations, to peruert them, that the one should make them vnprofitable, the other also hurtfull.

Acts 2.

RHEM. 3 *In this matter, to marke onely the wisedome and moderation of holy Church, and the gouernours thereof on the one side, and the indiscreet zeale of the popular, and their factious leaders, on the other, is a high point of prudence. These latter, partly of simplicitie, partly of curiositie, and specially of pride and disobedience, haue made claime in this case for the common people, with plausible pretences many, but good reasons none at all. The other, * to whom Christ hath giuen charge of our soules, the dispensing of Gods mysteries and treasures (among which holy Scripture is no small store) and the feeding his familie in season with food fit for euery sort, haue neither of olde, nor of late, euer wholly condemned all vulgar versions of Scripture, nor haue at any time generally forbidden the faithfull to reade the same: yet they haue not by publike authority prescribed, commanded, or authentically euer recommended, any such interpretation to be indifferently vsed of all men.*

The Churches wildome & moderation concerning vulgar translation.

FVLKE. 3 The wildome of the Popish Synagogue, and the Gouernours thereof, is the wisedome of the olde serpent, and of the children of this world, which are often times wiser in their kinde, then the children of light, with whom it is an high point of prudence, to prouide for themselues, by what vniust meanes soeuer. So haue the Popish Clergie alwayes indeuoured, by depriuing the common people of the reading of Holy Scriptures, and following their predecessours the Iewish Lawyers, haue taken away the key of knowledge, of the same pollicie, that they did, lest their wickednesse being commonly discouered by the light, they should leese that estimation, which through blinde ignorance they haue commonly obteined. And they which haue made claime, for the common people in this case, whom of your charitie, you call the popular and their seditious leaders, of godly zeale and true simplicitie, not of curiositie, pride, and disobedience, haue both made it, and iustified it, with better reasons then all the proud Papists in the world are able to auoid. † For what greater reasons can be alledged, then the authoritie of God in the Olde Testament, and of Christ our Sauiour and his Apostles in the New, and the practise of the Primitiue church, and the consent of the most ancient and approoued Fathers of the same, which haue beene brought, to proue that the holy Scriptures ought to be knowen of all Christians? But the Gouernours of the Popish Antichristian Church, arrogating to themselues the name and dignitie, of the dispensing of Gods mysteries and treasures, among which the holy Scripture (as you confesse) is no small store, by mainteining, that ignorance is the mother of deuotion, declare that they would willingly (if they could) abolish all knowledge of the holy Scriptures from the common peoples hearts. And whereas you say, That of olde they haue not euer condemned, all vulgar versions of Scripture, nor generally forbidden the faithfull to reade them: Let the registers of Bishops be searched, where it will appeare, that many haue bene accused and condemned as heretikes, for hauing, reading, or hearing the holy Scriptures in the English tongue, without any exception taking against the trueth of the translation. And that the Gouernours of the Popish church, haue not by publike authority prescribed, commanded, or authentically euer recommended any interpretation of Scriptures into the vulgar tongue to be indifferently vsed of all men: They haue declared sufficiently thereby, that they were not the ministers of God and Christ, nor successors of his Apostles, nor of the ancient fathers of the Primitiue Church: all which (as is noted before) haue, by publike and lawful authority, alwayes prescribed, commanded, and authentically recommended (as the holy Bible and the writings of the Fathers

Vulpilas ſurely gaue the Scriptures to the Gothes in their owne tongue, and that before he was an Arrian. It is almoſt three hundred yeeres ſince Iames Archbiſhop of Genua, is ſaid to haue tranſlated the Bible into Italian. More then two hundred yeeres agoe, in the dayes of Charles the fifth, the French King, was it put forth faithfully in French, the ſooner to ſhake out of the deceiued peoples handes, the falſe hereticall tranſlations of a ſect called* Waldenſes. In our countrey, notwithſtanding the Latine tongue was euer (to vſe Venerable Bedes wordes) common to all the Prouinces of the ſame for meditation or ſtudy of Scriptures, and no vulgar tranſlation commonly vſed or occupied of the multitude, yet they were extant in Engliſh euen before the troubles that Wicleffe and his followers rayſed in our Church, as appeareth, as well by ſome peeces yet remayning, as by a prouinciall Conſtitution of Thomas Arundel Archbiſhop of Canturbury, in a Councell holden at Oxford, where ſtraite prouiſion was made, that no hereticall verſion ſet foorth by Wickleffe, or his adherents, ſhould be ſuffered, nor any other in or after his time be publiſhed or permitted to be read, being not approued and allowed by the Dioceſan before: alleadging S. Hierome for the difficultie and danger of interpreting the holy Scripture out of one tongue into an other, though by learned and Catholike men. So alſo it is there inſinuated, that neither the Tranſlations ſet foorth before that Heretikes time, nor other afterward being approued by the lawfull Ordinaries, were euer in our Countrey wholy forbidden, though they were not (to ſay the truth) in quiet and better times (much leſſe when the people were prone to alteration, hereſie, or noueltie) either haſtily admited, or ordinarily read of the vulgar, but vſed onely, or ſpecially, of ſome deuout religious and contemplatiue perſons, in reuerence, ſecrecie, and ſilence, for their ſpirituall comfort.

FVLKE 4. Seeing the Armenians were conuerted to the faith, long before S. Chryſoſtome came amongſt them: it is not to be doubted, but they had the whole Scriptures in their vulgar tongue, long before his time. And their confeſſion lately ſet forth, doeth plainely argue, that they haue the whole Bible in their owne language at this day. To iuſtifie that the Sclauonians ſay, of S. Hieronyms tranſlation, into their tongue, his own words are theſe. Tranſlationem diligentiſſimè emendatam olim meæ linguæ hominibus dederim. I ſay not this that I would bite my predeceſſors, or thinke that any thing is to be detracted from them, whoſe tranſlation, being moſt diligently corrected, I haue giuen long agoe to the men of my language. Nowe the Sclauonians, were the men of Hieronymes language, or mother tongue, as he teſtifieth himſelfe of the place of his natiuitie in Catalogo: for whoſe vſe hee might tranſlate the vulgar Latine Bible, which was according to the Septuagintes, after he had moſt diligently corrected it. But if this place proue it not ſufficiently, at leaſt wiſe he ſaith plainely, that the Scripture was tranſlated into the tongues of many nations, præfat. ad Damaſum in 4. euangelia. Beſides theſe, the Syrians, Arabians, and Æthiopians, had of ancient time the holy Scriptures in their ſeuerall languages, as it is manifeſt by thoſe parts of them, which are at this day brought from them into this part of the worlde. The Spaniards haue the olde Teſtament tranſlated of ancient time, into their mother tongue. Walafridus teſtifieth, that the Dutch tongue, is the ſame which was the language of the Gothes and Gethes, into which ſince the dayes of Vlphilas, by whom they were firſt conuerted, ſome wiſe men of that Nation, haue tranſlated the holy Scripture. De rebus eccle. cap. 7. In our owne countrey, not onely the Saxon tranſlations of diuers parts of the holy Scripture, yet remaining, ſome in print, ſome in Libraries, but euen the teſtimonie of Beda, whom you quote and cite moſt impudently, for the contrary, doeth proue that vulgar tranſlations of the holy Scriptures, in his time were commonly vſed and occupied of the faithfull multitude: his wordes are theſe, Hec in præſenti iuxta numerum librorum quibus lex diuina ſcripta eſt, quinque gentium linguis, vnam eandemque, ſummæ veritatis & veræ ſublimitatis ſcientiam ſcrutatur & confitetur. Anglorum videlicet, Britonum, Scottorum, Pictorum & Latinorum, quæ meditatione ſcripturarum, cæteris omnibus eſt facta communis. This Iſland (ſaith Bede) at this preſent, according to the number of the bookes in which the Law of God is written, doeth ſearch out, and confeſſe, one and the ſelfe ſame knowledge of the Higheſt trueth, and of the true height in fiue tongues, namely of the Angles, of the Britanes, of the Scottes, of the Pictes, and of the Latines, which in meditation of the Scripture, is made common to all the reſt. Hee meaneth that learned men of all the foure Nations, ſtudied the Scriptures by helpe of the Latine tongue, and ſuch Commentaries and Treatiſes of the elder Fathers, as were written therein. But hee ſaith expreſſly, that the knowledge of the Higheſt trueth, which is not to be found but in the holy Scriptures, and according thereunto, was both ſearched out, and confeſſed in the mother tongue of the other foure Nations, by which he meaneth the Chriſtians vnlearned in the Latine tongue. A manifeſt teſtimonie whereof, are many parts of Scripture in the Saxon language, yet remaining to be ſeene and read.

That the Scriptures were extant in Engliſh, both before and after Wickleffes time, and not of his tranſlation, beſide your coniecture out of Lynwod, it is manifeſtly proued, by ſo many ancient written copies of the Engliſh Bible, differing in tranſlation, yet to be ſhewed, of which Wickleffes tranſlation could be but one. Notwithſtanding, that the Phariſaicall Clergie, condemned the reading of them for hereſie, let the acts of publike writings remaining in the Regiſters teſtifie. And of what deuiliſh policie, they kept the Lawes of God in ſecrecie and ſilence, which hee commanded to be vttered in all places and times, to the edifying of all ſorts of Chriſtians, howſoeuer you ſeeke to ſmooth it, Gods children do plainely eſpie it.

RHEM. 5. Now ſince Luthers reuolt alſo, diuers learned Catholikes, for the more ſpeedy aboliſhing of a number of falſe and impious tranſlations put forth by ſundry ſectes, and for the better preſeruation or reclaime of many good ſoules endangered thereby, haue publiſhed the Bible in the ſeuerall languages of almoſt all the principall prouinces of the Latine Church: no other bookes in the world being ſo pernicious as hereticall tranſlations of the Scriptures, poyſoning the people vnder colour of diuine authoritie, and not many other remedies, being more ſoueraigne againſt the ſame (if it be vſed in order, diſcretion, and humilitie) then the true, faithfull, and ſincere interpretation oppoſed thereunto.

The like Catholike and vulgar tranſlations in many countries ſince Luthers time.

FVLKE. 5. How pernitious, hereticall tranſlations of the Scriptures are, which poyſon the people vnder colour of diuine uine authoritie: If wee had not learned ſufficiently by the corruptions of olde Heretikes, this tranſlation of yours, doeth giue plentifull teſtimonie. which being helped forwarde with hereticall Annotations, as it were with ſtings, to make way for the poyſon to enter, hath no ſmall force to deceiue the ſimple. But the beſt is, wee are aſſured, that they ſhall not preuaile finally, but in them whom the Lord acknowledgeth not for his. In the meane time, not onely the remedie of true and ſincere tranſlation, out of the fountaine and originall text, is to bee oppoſed, but alſo the fraude of the aduerſary, as occaſion ſerueth, to bee diſcouered and layd open.

RHEM. 6. Which cauſeth the holy Church not to forbid vtterly any Catholike tranſlation, though ſhee allow not the publiſhing or reading of any abſolutely and without exception, or limitation: knowing by her diuine and moſt ſincere wiſedome, how, where, when, and to whom theſe her Maſters and Spouſes gifts are to bee beſtowed to the moſt good of the faithfull: and therefore neither generally permitteth that which muſt needes doe hurt to the vnworthy, nor abſolutely condemneth that which may doe much good to the worthy. Whereupon, the order which many a wiſe man wiſhed for before, was taken by the Deputies of the late famous Councell of Trent in this behalfe, and confirmed by ſupreme authoritie, that the holy Scriptures, though truely and Catholikely tranſlated into vulgar tongues, yet may not be indifferently read of all men, nor of any other then ſuch as haue expreſſe licenſe thereunto of their lawfull Ordinaries: with good teſtimonie from their Curates or Confeſſors, that they be humble, diſcreete and deuoute perſons, and like to take much good, and no harme thereby. Which preſcript, though in theſe dayes of ours it cannot be ſo preciſely obſerued, as in other times and places, where there is more due reſpect of the Churches authoritie, rule, and diſcipline: yet we truſt all wiſe and godly perſons will vſe the matter in the meane while, with ſuch moderation, meekneſſe, and ſubiection of heart, as the handling of ſo ſacred a booke, the ſincere ſenſes of Gods trueth therein, and the holy Canons, Councels, reaſon, and religion do require.

The Churches order and determination concerning the reading of Catholike tranſlations of the Bible in vulgar tongues.

Ind. li. prohibit. regula 4.

FVLKE, 6. The Popiſh Church, arrogating to her ſelfe diuine wiſedome, in reſtraining that which God hath left to be moſt free and general, declareth, that ſhe is the Babylonicall harlot, the ſpouſe of Antichriſt, who exalteth himſelfe aboue all diuine authoritie, and controlleth the wiſedome of God in euery thing, that is contrary to his deuiliſh preſumption: as in the vſe of images, of the cuppe in the Lords Supper, of mariage in the Church Miniſters, of meates in times made by him more religious, and ſuch other. The true Church of God, teacheth the true vſe of the Scriptures, euen out of the Scriptures themſelues, and diſcourageth not men from reading of them, as it were from a dangerous diſcourſe, whereby they are like to take harme, knowing that none but ſpiders, can ſucke poyſon out of holſome flowres, which poyſon yet is not in the good flowres, but in the euill nature of the ſpider. The holy Scriptures, learned euen from a mans infancie, are able to make him wiſe vnto ſaluation, and being well ſtudied, of the man of God, are able to make him perfect and ready, vnto all good workes, and to execute euery part of his office. 2. Tim. 3. 15. &c.

RHEM. 7. Wherein, though for due preſeruation of this diuine worke from abuſe and prophanation, and for the better brideling of the intollerable inſolencie of proude, curious, and contentious wittes, the Gouernours of the Church guided by Gods Spirite, as euer before, ſo alſo vpon more experience of the maladie of this time then before, haue taken more exact order both for the readers and tranſlatours of theſe later ages, then of olde: yet we muſt not imagine that in the Primitiue Church, either euery one that vnderſtood the learned tongues, wherein the Scriptures were written, or other languages into which they were tranſlated, might without reprehenſion, reade, reaſon, diſpute, turne and toſſe the Scriptures: or that our forefathers ſuffered euery Schoole-maſter, Scholler, or Grammarian that had a little Greeke or Latine, ſtraight to take in hand the holy Teſtament: or that the tranſlated Bibles into the vulgar tongues, were in the handes of euery Husbandman, Artificer, Prentice, Boyes, Girles, Miſtreſſe, Mayde, Man: that they were ſung, played, alleadged, of euery tinker, tauerner, rimer, minſtrell: that they were for table-talke, for alebenches, for boates and barges, and for euery prophane perſon and company. No, in thoſe better times men were neither ſo ill, nor ſo curious of themſelues, ſo to abuſe the bleſſed booke of Chriſt: neither was there any ſuch eaſie meanes before Printing was inuented, to diſperſe the copies into the handes of euery man, as now there is.

The holy Scriptures neuer read of all perſons indifferently, at their pleaſure.

FVLKE, 7. That the Gouernours of the Popiſh Church, haue taken ſtraighter order, for Readers and Tranſlatours of the Scriptures, then the Fathers of the Primitiue Church of Chriſt did: it is not to preſerue the word of God from prophanation, or to bridle the proude curioſitie of the contentious, as it is pretended, but to ſuppreſſe the light of trueth, which diſplayeth their groſſe and palpable abuſes, both in doctrine and conuerſation.

But where you ſay, that the holy Scriptures were neuer read of all perſons indifferently, it is a moſt impudent aſſertion, ſet downe without any ſhewe of proofe, and contrary to moſt manifeſt arguments of antiquitie. Wee acknowledge, the Fathers of the ancient Church, were carefull to keepe the holy treaſure of Gods word from abuſes, but that they did not by prohibiting or reſtrayning the reading of it, but by diligent teaching and exhorting of men, to the right vſe of it. Therefore where you ſay, Wee muſt not imagine that in the Primitiue Church, euery one which vnderſtoode the Scriptures in the learned tongues, wherein they were written, or in other languages into which they were tranſlated, might without reprehenſion reade, reaſon, diſpute, turne and toſſe the Scriptures: it is vtterly falſe, for with reuerence of Gods myſteries, and to the ende they were giuen, euery man might not onely without reprehenſion, but with good liking and commendation of the godly Fathers, reade, reaſon, diſpute, and ſearch, which is to turne and toſſe the bookes of the Scriptures. It is recorded generally of all the faithfull in Berhœa, that they dayly ſearched the Scriptures, euen to examine the doctrine of the Apoſtles, by them, Acts. 17. 11. Irenæus ſaith, That all the Scriptures both of the Prophets, and of the Goſpels, may bee alike heard of all men. Chryſoſtome exhorteth all men indifferently to reade the Scriptures, and to call their neighbours to the hearing of them: In Gen. Hom. 7. Alſo hee taketh away the vaine excuſes of them, which alleaged that they were worldly men, had wife, children, and houſholde to looke vnto, and prayeth, that they would not deceiue themſelues, ſaying, That they which are entangled with ſuch cares, haue more neede, to ſeeke remedie, by reading of the holy Scriptures: in Geneſ. Homel. 21. And Homel. 2. Comment. in Matth. hee ſaith, The reading of the Scripture, is more neceſſary for Laye-men, then for the Monkes. And Hom. 5. he ſaith, The people ought as ſoone as they come at home from the Church, to turne ouer the holy Bookes, and to call their wiues and children together to the conference of thoſe things, which are ſaid. Againe, it is no excuſe (ſayeth hee) to ſay, I haue not read what Paul ſaith, but a fault: in Epiſt. ad Hebr. Hom. 17. Further where you ſay, wee muſt not imagine, that our Forefathers ſuffered euery Schoolemaſter, Scholler, or Grammarian, that had a litle Greeke or Latine, ſtraight to take in hand the holy Teſtament. Saint Auguſtine is plainely againſt you, for hee ſaith,

Lib. 2 cap. 35.

That

That they which turned the Scriptures out of the Hebrewe tongue into the Greeke tongue, may be numbred, but the Latine interpreters cannot be numbred: For in those first times of the faith, as the Greeke booke came into any mans hands, which seemed to himselfe to haue some skill in both the tongues, he was bold to translate it. De doctrin. Christ. lib. 2. cap. 11. That the translated Bibles, were in the hands, and godly vse of all sortes of men, women, children, how base so euer their degree and calling was, is partly shewed already: and more particularly Saint Hieronyme sayth, That in the countrey of Bethlehem, the Husbandman, the Ploughman, the Shepheard, the Reaper, the Vine dresser, did sing the Psalmes of Dauid, and made none other noyse. Paul. & Eustoch. ad Marcel. Chrysostome sayth, the knowledge of the Scripture, is most necessarie for children, Pueris, boyes and girles, because you so terme them, and exhorteth their parents, to cause them from their tender yeeres, to be exercised in the reading of the holy Scriptures: in Epist. ad Ephes. Hom. 20. That the Scriptures may be read at the Table, hee sheweth: in Gene. Hom. 10. And that Players, Rimers and Iesters, in stead of their lewde practises, should be commanded in recompense of their intertainement, to reade the holy Scriptures whereby the seruants, prentises, slaues and drudges of the house may be made equall with Angels: Com. in Matth. Hom. 49. Saint Augustine also exhorteth the people to reade the Scripture at the Table, and meates: de temp. 56. As for botes and barges, which serue for mens trauell, seeing God commanded his Lawes to be spoken of, in iourneys, and Christ himselfe preached out of boates or barges, there is no cause why his holy Scriptures may not be read in them also. Neither did the ancient Fathers, account any true Christian, or companie of Christians, to be a prophane person, or companie, but rather, of a companie of prophane persons, by diligent reading of the Scriptures, to bee made an holy Church of God. Chrysostome in Matth. Hom 49. And although there was not so easie meanes, before printing was inuented, to disperse the copies of the Bible, into euery mans hande, yet by the continuall labour of the Stationers, Notaries, or booke Writers, which in those times supplyed the want of Printers, there was a sufficient number of copies for euery man that would buy them: or elle Chrysostome should in vaine haue exhorted all the Lay men of his time to buy them Bibles, or at least the newe Testament. Audite obsecro saeculares omnes, &c. Heare, I pray you all yee Lay men. Prouide you Bibles which are the medicines of the soule, if you will nothing els, at least wise get the new Testament, the Apostle, the Actes, the Gospels, continuall and diligent Teachers. in Epist. ad Coloss. Hom. 9. It is a friuolous pretence therefore, of the scarsitie of copies, for whatsoeuer will be commonly sold, and well payed for, by diligence of workemen, will soone be made plentifull.

RHEM. 8 They were then in Libraries, Monasteries, Colledges, Churches, in Bishops, Priestes, and some other deuout principall Laye mens houses and handes: who vsed them with feare and reuerence, and specially such partes as perteyned to good life and maners, not medling, but in pulpit and schooles (and that moderately too) with the hard and high misteries and places of greater difficultie. The poore ploughman, could then in labouring the ground, sing the Hymnes and Psalmes either in knowne or vnknowne languages, as they heard them in the holy Church, though they could neither reade nor knowe the sense, meaning, and mysteries of the same. Such holy persons of both sexes, to whom Saint Hierome in diuerse Epistles to them, commendeth the reading and meditation of holy Scriptures, were diligent to search all the godly histories and imitable examples of chastitie, humilitie, obedience, clemencie, pouertie, pennance, renouncing the worlde: they noted specially the places that did breede the hatred of sinne, feare of Gods iudgement, delight in spirituall cogitations: they referred themselues in all hard places, to the iudgement of the auncient Fathers and their maisters in religion, neuer presuming to contend, controule, teach or talke of their owne sence and phantasie, in deepe questions of diuinitie. Then the Virgins, did meditate vpon the places and examples of chastitie, modestie, and demurenesse: the married, on coniugall faith and continencie: the parents, howe to bring vp their children in the faith and feare of God: the Prince, howe to rule: the subiect, howe to obey: the Priest, how to teach: the people, how to learne.

Where and in whose hands the Scriptures were in the primitiue Church.

How the laitie of those dayes did reade them. with what humilitie and religion, and enformation of life and manners.

FVLKE. 8 They were in all mens handes, that were desirous to reade them, and were to be bought of Common Stationers, or Booke-sellers, as it appeareth by the saying of Chrysostome, cited in the section next before: not onely in Libraries, Monasteries, &c. and some deuoute principall Lay mens houses, and handes. And as deuoute Lay men did vse them well then, so doe such men vse them well nowe, learning out of them such things as be necessarie and profitabe for them to knowe, and leauing higher mysteries, and hard places to the discussing of the learned. That the Husbandmen of whom S. Hieronyme speaketh, sang the Psalmes in an vnknowen tongue, which they could neither reade nor know the sense, meaning or mysteries of them, it is boldly affirmed, and vnpossible to be prooued. Such singing of Psalmes with the lips, not vnderstood with the heart, no godly wise man would haue allowed, much lesse commended, as he doeth, calling them their songs of loue, the shepheards whistles, the instruments of tillage. And as those holy persons of both sexes, to whom S. Hieronyme commendeth the reading and meditation of the Scripture vsed them to the glory of God, and the building vp of their soules in faith and godlinesse: So God be thanked at these dayes, many thousands of faithfull Christians, with like zeale, reuerence, humilitie, and all other vertues requisite, doe reade the holy Scriptures in their mother tongue, and by dayly reading, doe greatly profit in pietie and charitie, as well virgins, as maried folke, parents, and children, Princes and subiects, Pastors and people.

RHEM. 9 Then the scholler taught not his master, the sheepe controuled not the Pastor, the young student set not the Doctor to schoole, not reproued their fathers of error and ignorance. Or if any were in those better dayes (as in all times of heresie such must needes be) that had itching eares, tikling tongues and wits, curious and contentious disputers, bearers, and talkers rather then doers of Gods worde: such the Fathers did euer sharpely reprehend, counting them vnworthy and vnprofitable readers of the holy Scriptures. S. Hierom in his Epistle to Paulinus, after declaration that no handie-craft is so base, nor liberall science so easie, that can be had without a master (which S. Augustine also affirmeth, De vtilitate cred. cap. 7.)

The fathers sharply reprehend as an abuse, that all indifferently should reade, expound, and talke of the Scriptures.

Hiero. 103. cap. 6. nor that men presume in any occupation to teach that they neuer learned, Onely (saith he) the arte of Scripture is that which euery man chalengeth: this the chatting olde wife, this the doting olde man, this the brabling sophister, this on euery hand, men presume to teach before they learne it. Againe, Some with poise of lostie wordes deuise of Scripture matters among women: other some (fie vpon it) learne of women, what to teach men, and lest that be not ynough, by facilitie of tongue, or rather audacitie, teach that to others, which they vnderstand neuer a whit themselues, to say nothing of such as be of my facultie: who stepping from secular learning to holy Scriptures, and able to tickle the eares of the multitude with a smooth tale, thinke all they speake, to be the Law of God. This hee wrote then, when this maladie of arrogancie and presumption in diuine matters, was nothing so outragious as now it is.

FVLKE. 9 There were in those times, some arrogant and presumptuous abusers of the holy Scriptures, and will be in all times, as of all other good gifts of God: whose misbehauiour, as it was sharpely and iustly reprehended by the godly fathers (as appeareth by the places by you noted) so was it not thought any cause, to restraine the multitude, from the lawfull and necessarie vse of Gods bookes, as it is now pretended by the Papists. For that as some swelled in pride and vanished in curiositie, so many profited in humilitie, and all other vertues necessarie vnto true Christianitie. And euen so the case standeth at this time, some vnlearned and vngodly, peruert the Scriptures to their owne condemnation: yet many vse them wholsomely, to their comfort and edification.

RHEM. 10 S. Gregorie Nazianzene made an oration of the moderation that was to be vsed in these matters: where he saith, that some in his time thought themselues to haue all the wisedome in the world, when they could once repeat two or three wordes, and them ill couched together, out of Scriptures, but he there diuinely discourseth of the orders and differences of degrees: how in Christes mysticall body, some are ordeined to learne, some to teach: that all are not Apostles, all Doctors, all interpreters, all of tongues and knowledge, not all learned in Scriptures and diuinitie: that the people went not vp to talke with God in the mountaine, but Moyses, Aaron, and Eleazar: nor they neither, but by the difference of their callings. that they that rebell against this ordinance, are guiltie of the conspiracie of Core and his complices: that in Scripture there is both milke for babes, and meate for men, to be dispensed, not according to euery ones greedinesse of appetite, or wilfulnes, but as is most meete for ech ones necessitie and capacitie: that as it is a shame for a Bishop or Priest to be vnlearned in Gods mysteries, so for the common people it is often times profitable to saluation, not to be curious, but to follow their Pastors in sinceritie and simplicitie: whereof excellently saith S. Augustine, Fidei simplicitate & sinceritate lactati, nutriamur in Christo: & cum parui sumus, maiorum cibos non appetamus, *that is, Being fed with the simplicitie and sinceritie of faith, as it were with milke, so let vs be nourished in Christ: and when we are litle ones, let vs not couet the meates of the elder sort. Who * in another place testifieth, that the word of God cannot be preached nor certaine mysteries vttered to all men alike, but are to be deliuered according to the capacitie of the hearers: as he proueth both * by S. Paules example, who gaue not to euery sort strong meate, but milke to many, as being not spirituall, but carnall and not capable: and * by our lordes also, who spake to some plainely, and to others in parables, and affirmed that he had many things to vtter which the hearers were not able to beare.*

FVLKE. 10 Euery word of this section being granted, to be as true as the Gospel, it cannot be inferred, that therefore it is not conuenient, that the holy Scriptures should be in the mother tongue, that they may bee read of all sorts of Christians, without exception of any. For the holy Scriptures teach, that moderation, which Nazianzen requireth, that measure and discretion which Augustine commendeth, and reprehend that arrogancie reproued by Gregorie, and the rashnes and intemperance detested by Augustine. So that by diligent reading of the holy Scriptures, the Christian may learne to embrace the vertues and to abhorre the vices.

RHEM. 11 How much more may we gather, that all things that be written, are not for the capacitie and diet of euery of the simple readers, but that very many mysteries of holy writte, be very farre aboue their reach, and may and ought to be (by as great reason) deliuered them in measure and meane most meete for them? which in deede can hardly be done, when the whole looke of the Bible lieth before euery man in his mother tongue, to make choise of what he list. For which cause the said Gregorie Nazianzen wisheth the Christians had as good a lawe as the Hebrues of olde had who (as S. Hierom also witnesseth) tooke order among themselues that none should read the Cantica Canticorum nor certaine other pieces of hard Scriptures, till they were thirtie yeeres of age.

In orat. de modera. in disp. seru. in fine. Hierom. in procem. Commentar. in Ezechi.

The Iewes law for not reading certaine bookes of holy Scripture vntill a time.

FVLKE. 11 Although there be many things in the Scriptures, vnmeete for all mens capacities, because of the difficultie of them, yet is there nothing vnmeete to be read of any man, neither are there any mysteries of holy writte, vnmeete for Christian men to knowe and vnderstand, as you seeme to insinuate. The Eunuch did reade the propheste of Esay, which he did not vnderstand, yet was he not in danger to take any hurt by it, and God sending him an interpreter, shewed, as Chrysostome sayth, that it is impossible, that he which with great studie and feruent desire, is occupied in the holy Scriptures, should alwayes be neglected, but although the instruction of man be wanting vnto vs, the Lord himselfe entring into our hearts from aboue, doeth lighten our minde, spreadeth his beames into our reason, openeth things hidden, and becommeth teacher of those things which we knowe not, &c. In Gene. Hom. 35. And ex Luc. cap. 16. After most vehement exhortation vnto the people, to reade the Scriptures, which if they neglect, he saith it is not possible for them to atteine to saluation, he addeth. Maxime quidem, &c. Yea specially, although thou doest not vnderstand such things as are hidden in them, yet of the very reading much holinesse groweth. Therefore Gregorie Nazianzen, wisheth not to haue the Iewes tradition, for not reading of the Scriptures, or any part thereof (if you marke him speaking in his owne language) but a like order, to restraine young men from being too bold in exposition, and contentious in disputing of the mysteries of the holy Scriptures. Neuertheless Dauid, wiser then all the auctors of that tradition, asking whereby a young man shall clense his wayes, answereth, By studie, meditation and keeping of the Law of God, Psal. 119. Neither doth Hieronym commend the tradition of the Iewes, which permitteth not the beginning of Genesis, the Canticles of Salomon, and the beginning and end of the Prophet Ezechiel to be read of young men, being vnder thirtie yeeres of age, but onely saith, that the difficultie of the prophecie of Ezechiel is proued by that tradition.

RHEM. 12 *And truely there is no cause why men should be more loth to be ordered and moderated in this point by Gods Church and their Pastors, than they are in the vse of holy Sacraments: for which as Christ hath appointed Priestes and Ministers, at whose handes we must receiue them, and not be our owne caruers: so hath he giuen * vs doctors, prophets, expounders, interpreters, teachers and preachers, to take the lawe and our faith at their mouthes: because our faith and religion commeth not to vs properly or principally by reading of Scriptures, but (as the Apostle sayth) by hearing of the preachers lawfully sent: though reading in order and humilitie, much confirmeth and aduanceth the same. Therefore this holy booke of the Scriptures, is called of S. Ambrose,* Liber sacerdotalis, the booke of priests, at whose hands and disposition we must take and vse it. Lib. 2. ad Grat.

Eph. 4.

Rom. 10, 17.

No true Christian, will bee loth to bee ordered by the Pastors, Doctors, Prophets, Expounders, Teachers, and the Preachers of the Church, which Christ hath giuen vnto vs, that we should take the Lawe and instruction of faith at their mouthes: And although faith come not principally by onely reading of the Scriptures,

Scriptures, but by hearing of the preachers lawfully ſent, yet you muſt giue them leaue, to ſearch the Scriptures dayly, as the Berhæans did to ſee, whether thoſe things which their Paſtors, Preachers and teachers doe deliuer, bee euen ſo. Acts. 17. 11. ſeeing alſo you confeſſe, that reading in order and humilitie (and none other reading doe we allowe) doeth much confirme and aduance our faith. That the booke of Scripture, is called of S. Ambroſe Liber Sacerdotalis, you muſt giue vs a better quotation then Lib. 2. ad Grat. not ſo much for the terme, but for that you inferre thereof, that we muſt take and vſe it at the hands and diſpoſition of Prieſts. Ambroſe wrote fiue bookes de fide ad Gratianum, and three de ſpiritu ſancto, I feare your note booke deceiued you.

RHEM. 13 *The wiſe will not here regarde what ſome wilfull people doe mutter, that the Scriptures are made for all men, and that it is of enuie that the Prieſtes doe keepe the holy booke from them. The popular obiections of withholding the Scriptures from the people, anſwered.

Why the Church permitteth not euery one at their pleaſure to reade the Scripture.

The holy Scriptures to carnall men & heretikes, are as pearles to ſwine.

FVLKE. 13 That the Scriptures were made for all Chriſtian mens inſtruction, when you haue wrangled as much as you can, you are driuen in the end to confeſſe. That Popiſh prieſts, not onely of enuie, but alſo of deuiliſh pollicie, leſt their falſe doctrine, and wicked life might be reproued, haue kept that holy booke from the people, though you will not acknowledge, yet the children of God, whoſe eyes he hath opened, doe plainely ſee and perceiue. Your compariſon vnto the deuils ſuggeſtion, will then ſeeme to be like, when you can ſhewe Gods prohibition from reading the Scripture, as our parents could, for eating of the tree of knowledge. But when Chriſt ſaith expreſſely to all Chriſtians, Search the Scriptures, Your cauilling is like the Serpents ſuggeſtion, which contrary to the expreſſe word of God, ſaid, You ſhall not die, but God knoweth, &c. So you would beare men in hand, that albeit God commaund them to ſearch the Scriptures, yet there is great danger in reading of them, and therefore they were better not to reade them: Yea your predeceſſors haue condemned for Heretikes, ſuch as did reade them, though nowe you goe about to excuſe the matter, and ſay, that you meant nothing, but that the people ſhould beware of blinde preſumption, and learne to be wiſe vnto ſobrietie: as though theſe leſſons are not better learned, by reading them in the booke of God, then by your reſtrayning them, from reading them at all, or not but at your pleaſure. But let vs conſider, why the popiſh Church permitteth not euery one at their pleaſure, to reade the Scripture, She knoweth (ſay you) the Scriptures be ordeined for euery ſtate, as meate, elements, fire, water, candle, kniues, ſword and the like: wee knowe by the Scriptures the word of God to be ordained, as meate and other things moſt neceſſarie and comfortable, but not as fire, water, candles, kniues, ſwords, and like matters of danger, whereof men ſhould be rather afraid to meddle with them, except it were for neceſſitie. And yet there is as great neceſſitie of the holy Scriptures, as of any thing you haue named, and in them (as S. Chryſoſtome ſaith) we may not ſuſpect any danger to be, as is in In Gen. Hom. 9. fire, water, candles, kniues, ſwords and ſuch like. All the danger, is in the affection of him that abuſeth them to his owne condemnation, where as fire, water, ſword, kniues, cannot alwayes be ſo gouerned by the wiſeſt, but that they proue hurtfull ſometimes to the occupiers of them.

Where as you ſay, the Popiſh Church forbiddeth not the reading of the holy Scriptures in any language, it is falſe: For whatſoeuer ſhee doeth now, certaine it is that her Miniſters hath forbidden it in times paſt, and immediatly before, you ſhewe reaſons, why ſhe doeth not permit euery one to reade the Scriptures: So ſoone you haue forgot your ſelfe, Except perhaps you will ſay, ſhe forbiddeth not ſuch as vnderſtand them in Latine, to reade them alſo in Engliſh, which is a poore permiſſion: but if ſhe enuieth no mans commoditie (as you ſay) why doeth ſhe not permit all men, to take that commoditie which they may receiue by reading of them? you anſwere, ſhe giueth order how to doe it to edification, and not to deſtruction, it were well if ſhe did ſo, for that care were ſeemely for the ſpouſe of Chriſt. But as you affirme before in the ſixt Section, ſhe hath taken order, that the holy Scripture though truely tranſlated into vulgar tongues, yet may not bee indifferently reade of all men, nor of any other, then ſuch as haue expreſſe licenſe thereunto, of their lawfull Ordinaries, with good teſtimonie from their Curates or Confeſſors, that they be humble, diſcreet, and deuout perſons, and like to take much good and no harme thereby: by which order it appeareth, that they which haue moſt neede to reade the Scriptures, are vtterly debarred: many other by the difficultie of obteyning licenſe diſcouraged, and eſpecially that none, but ranke and obſtinate Papiſtes, may bee allowed, for thoſe onely of the Popiſh Curates, Confeſſors and Ordinaries, ſhall be counted humble, diſcreete, and deuoute perſons. Let all godly wiſe men iudge, therefore, whether the popiſh Church, although you profeſſe that ſhe enuieth no mans commoditie, yet by this order, hindereth not as much as in her lyeth, the profite of all men. But you anſwere, that carnall men and heretikes, be hogges and dogges, to whom pearles and holy things, ſuch as the Scriptures be, are not to be caſt, which if it were a right interpretation of our Sauiours commandement, it were not lawfull to attempt the conuerſion of Heretikes, by preaching the trueth, nor to procure the repentance of carnall men, by exhorting horting them to the loue of heauenly things. But as by preaching and exhortation, so by diligent reading and meditation of the holy Scriptures, many Heretikes are made Catholikes, many carnall men are made Spirituall. Therefore not all that be carnally minded, or infected with error, but onely desperate, prophane and malicious contemners of the trueth, are those hogges and dogges, to whom the precious holy mysteries of the Gospel, are not to be any more offered, when they haue plainely declared themselues to be such. Chrysostome, whom you cite, speaketh expressely of such, and not of all carnall men. For in the next Section, you describe the people of Constantinople, whom he exhorted to the reading of the Scriptures, to be very carnall men, and so they were in deede, yet he iudged the reading of the Scripture, most necessary for them. And Hom. ex Luc. cap. 16. after a most vehement exhortation, to reade the Scriptures, he addeth, Magna aduersus peccata, &c. The reading of the Scripture, is a great defence against sinne, the ignorance of the Scriptures, is a great downefall and a deepe dongeon, it is a great losse of saluation, to knowe nothing of Gods lawes, this thing hath both bread heresies, and brought in corrupt life, this hath turned all things out of order vpside downe. Thus sayth Chrysostome. But euen that ignorance, which he so detesteth, is of you Papists, counted good Catholike deuotion, or the mother thereof. And what other was the state of the most, in the blinde dayes of Poperie, but euen a grosse ignorance of all the holy Scriptures? Where the people might not knowe what they beleeued, what they prayed, what God commaunded, or any thing pertayning to Christian religion, but either of dumbe images, or of dumbe priests, except once in seuen yeeres perhaps, of some prating Fryer or other Popish preacher, which rather turned them from Christ, then shewed the right way to God by him.

You adde further, that you would haue Heretikes quite discharged, from all occupying and possession of the holy Testament. It must first be proued who be Heretikes, and which be the true Church that hath right and interest in the Scriptures: for neither your challenging of the name of the Church, will be sufficient to proue you so in deede, nor the terming of any other to be Heretikes, except you be able out of the worde of God, to conuince them to be such.

Finally, for the right vse of the holy Scriptures, the Pastors of the true Church of Christ, doe diligently instruct their sheepe, out of the holy Scriptures, with what moderation, humilitie, reuerence, desire to profite by them, and inuocation of Gods Spirit, they ought to reade them, how carefully they must auoyde all presumption, curiositie, rashnesse, prophanenesse, and such like vices, which may not onely hinder their profite in the Scriptures, but also cause all their trauell in them to turne to their vtter destruction.

These things, the true Pastors and Gouernours of the Church can teach, without arrogating vnto themselues any presumptuous authoritie, to restraine or permit according to their iudgement, that which our Sauiour Christ hath left generally to all the members of his mysticall body, which is his holy Church, and to euery one of them.

RHEM. 14 *Wherein, the variety of circumstances causeth them to deale diuersly: as we see by S. Chrysostome people of Constantinople, who were so delicate, dull, worldly, and so much giuen to dice, cardes, specially stage playes or Theaters (as S. Gregorie Nazianzene witnesseth) that the Scriptures, and all holy lections of diuine things were lothsome vnto them: whereby their holy Bishop was forced * in many of his sermons to cry out against their extreme negligence and contempt of Gods word, declaring, that not onely Eremites and Religious (as they alledged for their excuse) but Secular men of all sortes might read the Scriptures, and often haue more neede thereof in respect of themselues, then the other that liue in more puritie and contemplation: further, insinuating, that though diuers things be high and hard therein, yet many godly histories, lawes, examples, and precepts of life and doctrine be plaine: and finally, that when the Gentiles were so cunning and diligent to impugne their faith, it were not good for Christians to be too simple or negligent in the defence thereof. as (in trueth) it is more requisite for a Catholike man in these dayes when our aduersaries be industrious to empeach our beleefe, to be skilfull in Scriptures, then at other times when the Church had no such enemies.*

S. Chrysostomes exhortations to the reading of holy Scriptures, and when the people is so to be exhorted.

In vita Athanasij. * Hom. 2. in Mat. & hom. 3. de Lazaro, & hom. 3. in 2. ad Thess. & alibi sæpe.

FVLKE. 14 Chrysostome not in respect of such varietie of circumstances, as you speake of, but absolutely, and most vehemently, commendeth, not onely the lawfulnesse, but also the necessitie of reading the holy Scriptures by the Lay men, as it appeareth in many places before cited and quoted, out of his Homilies; and many other, which for tediousnesse are omitted, seeing the matter by you is partly confessed. Yet one or two, shall not be amisse, to proue that I haue said: First, he doth not onely exhort the people of Constantinople, which were so worldly minded, as you write, but also the people of Antioch, whom he greatly commendeth for their vertue and godlinesse, he calleth vpon very earnestly, to be diligent in reading of the holy Scriptures. ad Pop. Antioch. Hom. 22. 42 &c. Againe for the necessitie of studying the Scriptures, he sayth, Qui salutem consequi volunt, &c. They that will attaine to saluation, let them exercise themselues in the Scriptures, in epist. ad 1. Cor. Hom. 6. Where you thinke it requisite in these times, for a Popish Catholike, to be skilfull in the Scriptures, I would many of them were of your minde, for then I would not doubt, but some of them, by Gods grace would become Christian Catholikes.

Ad pop. Antioch. Hom. 3.

RHEM. 15. To this sence said S. Chrysostome diuers thinges, not as a teacher in schoole making exact and generall rules to be obserued in all places and times, but as a pulpit man, agreably to that audience and his peoples default: nor making it therefore (as some peruersely gather of his wordes) a thing absolutely needefull for euery poore Artificer to reade or studie Scriptures, nor any wise fauouring the presumptuous, curious, and contentious iangling and searching of Gods secrets, reproued by the foresaid fathers, much lesse approuing the excessiue pride and madnesse of these dayes, when euery man and woman is become not onely a reader, but a teacher, controuler, and iudge of Doctors, Church, Scriptures and all: such as either contemne or easily passe ouer all the morall partes, good examples, and precepts of life (by which as well the simple as learned might be much edified) and onely in a manner, occupie themselues in dogmaticall, mysticall, high, and hidden secrets of Gods counsels, as of Predestination, reprobation, election, prescience, forsaking of the Iewes, vocation of the Gentiles, and other incomprehensible mysteries, Languishing about questions of onely faith, fiduce, newe phrases and figures, euer learning, but neuer comming to knowledge, reading and tossing in pride of wit, conceite of their owne cunning, and vpon presumption of I can tell what spirit, such bookes specially and Epistles, as S. Peter foretolde that the vnlearned and instable would depraue to their owne damnation.

S. Chrysostome maketh nothing for the popular and licentious reading of Scriptures vsed among the Protestants now a dayes. Euery simple artificer among them readeth much more the deepest and hardest questions of holy Scripture, then the morall parts.

1. Tim. 6. 2. Tim. cap. 3. 2. Peter 3.

FVLKE. 15 All that Chrysostome saith, to this purpose, is wiped away with this reprochfull glose, that he spake, not as a teacher in schoole, making exact and generall rules to be obserued in all places and times, but as a pulpit man agreeable to that audience and his peoples default. Belike pulpit men, with you, doe more regarde their credite before a fewe captious schollers in their schoole, then they doe reuerence the presence of Christ, before whom they should prepare to speake, when they preach in the Church of God. And therefore, albeit in figures, and phrases,

He ſpake in the pulpit, that he was able to iuſtifie in the ſcholes.

phraſes, and manner of handling, there is ſome difference, betweene a preacher before the people, and a reader before the learned, yet no learned godly man, ſuch as wee acknowledge S. Chryſoſtome to haue beene, will ſo aduiſedly, ſo vehemently, ſo often times as he did, vtter any thing in the pulpit, before the ignorant, the trueth whereof, he is not able to iuſtifie in the ſchooles before the beſt learned. Beſide that your reſtriction of his rules vnto his audience, and peoples default of Conſtantinople, is before prooued to bee both friuolous, and falſe, ſeeing hee commendeth the ſtudie and reading of the holy Scriptures, no leſſe generally to the people of Antioche, which were not a little more ſpiritually affected, then they of Conſtantinople. And to that you ſay, he maketh it not a thing abſolutely needefull, for euery poore Artificer to reade or ſtudie Scripture, as ſome peruerſely gather of his wordes. Let his owne wordes teſtifie for him, both already cited, and other beſide. Audite quotquot eſtis mundani &c. Heare all ye that be Secular or Lay men, and haue the gouernement of wiues and children, howe the Apoſtle commaundeth you ſpecially, to reade the Scriptures, and that not ſimply, nor as it were by occaſion, but with great diligence. Doth not omnes mundani, all Secular men, include, as well euery poore Artificer, as euery rich merchant, or landed Gentleman? Or is not a thing abſolutely needefull, which the holy Ghoſt commandeth all men to doe? I might adde hereunto, that he ſayth in an other place, It cannot poſſibly be, I ſay, it cannot poſſibly be, that any man can attaine to ſaluation, except he be continually conuerſant in ſpirituall reading. But here you would quarrell, that he maketh no exact rule, becauſe many men attaine to ſaluation, which cannot reade at all. Yet his meaning is plaine, and his wordes agreeable, that none can be ſaued, but by that knowledge, which is gotten by continuall reading of the Scriptures, whether a man reade them himſelfe, or heare other.

That he fauoureth not preſumptuous, curious, and contentious iangling, and ſearching of Gods ſecrets, it is true, no more doe we, and much leſſe the pride and madneſſe of them, that will be teachers, controllers and iudges of Doctors, Church, Scriptures and all.

Cæſarius Arelatenſis, hom. 13. exhorting the ignorant people to repeate among themſelues what they haue learned in the ſermon, ſayth, Alius referat, ego retineo dixiſſe Epiſcopum meum, vt qui nouit literas, Scripturam Diuinam ſtudeat legere: qui verò non nouit, quærat ſibi & roget qui illi debeat præcepta relegere, vt quod legerit, poſſit Deo adiuuante complere.

Neither are you euer able to proue, that euery Artificer among vs, readeth the deepeſt and hardeſt queſtions of holy Scripture, rather then the morall part, albeit that ſeeing whatſoeuer is written, is written for our learning, that through patience and comfort of the holy Scriptures, we might haue hope: no ſimple Artificer amongſt vs, is forbidden reuerently to reade any queſtion of the Scripture, which is either neceſſarie, or profitable for him to knowe. If there were in the Apoſtles time, vaine minded men that languiſhed about queſtions, and peruerted the Scriptures to their owne deſtruction, it is no maruaile though there be ſome ſuch in theſe dayes. But as the Apoſtles neuer reſtrained or forbade the reading of the holy Scriptures, for the misbehauiour of ſuch as abuſed the ſame, no more doe we. And ſurely this argument of yours (though it came from Rhemes) taken of mens abuſe, will carie leſſe waight in the ſchooles, againſt the generall libertie for all men to reade the Scriptures, then the authoritie of Chryſoſtome, though he in your iudgement, were but a pulpit man, for the contrary.

Where you account onely faith, and fiduce to be new phraſes, and figures, the one, faith onely, may be ſhewed by twenty authorities, to haue bene vſed, more then twelue hundreth yeeres agoe, by writers of the Church, both Greekes and Latines: the other, fiduce, is a new phraſe, and for ought I knowe, of your owne framing, and none of ours: as for the Latine word, fiducia, and that which it ſignifieth, truſt and confidence, I doubt not, but they which are meanely read in the Scriptures, doe know them to be both ancient and vſuall.

RHEM. 16 They delight in none more then in the Epiſtle to the Romanes, the Cantica canticorum, *the Apocalyps, which haue in them as many myſteries as wordes, they finde no difficultie in the ſacred booke * claſped with ſeuen ſeales, they aske for no expoſitor * with the holy Eunuch, they feele no ſuch depth of Gods ſcience in the Scriptures, as S. Auguſtine did, when he cried out,* Mira profunditas eloquiorum tuorum, mira profunditas (Deus meus) mira profunditas: horror eſt intendere in eam, horror honoris, & tremor amoris, that is, O wonderfull profoundneſſe of thy words: wonderfull profoundnes, my God, wonderfull profoundneſſe: it maketh a man quake to looke on it: to quake for reuerence, & to tremble for the loue therof.

They preſuppoſe no difficulties, which all the learned fathers felt to be in the Scriptures.

They regard not that which the ſame Doctor affirmeth, that the depth and profunditie of wiſedome, not onely in the wordes of holy Scripture, but alſo in the matter and ſenſe, is ſo wonderfull, that, liue a man neuer ſo long, bee hee of neuer ſo high a wit, neuer ſo ſtudious, neuer ſo feruent to attaine the knowledge thereof, yet when he endeth, he ſhall confeſſe he doth but begin.

Ruff. Ec. hiſt. lib. 2. cap 9.

FVLKE, 16 There hath beene euer ſome Schiſmaticall heads, which haue fantaſied, that they could interprete the Scriptures by their owne wits, without other ordinary meanes of learning, or the grace of Gods holy Spirit: againſt whom this may be applied which you write. But that euery Artificer amongſt vs, that readeth the holy Scriptures, is thus preſumptuouſly affected, it is a moſt impudent ſlander. For many thouſands, with due reuerence of the word of God and true humilitie of heart, do reade to their infinite commoditie, comfort, and increaſe of godlineſſe. Where you ſay, they delight in none more, then in the Epiſtle to the Romanes, I maruaile, why you ſhould miſlike them that doe ſo, ſeeing that the true faith of the Church of Rome, whereof you would ſeeme to be ſo great mainteiners, in no part of Scripture, is more plainely ſet foorth, then in that Epiſtle, which the Doctor and Apoſtle of the Gentiles, did write vnto the Romaines to be read, heard and vnderſtood, of euery ſimple Artificer among them, as well as of the rich and learned, euen all that were in Rome, beloued of God, and called to be Saints.

Rom. 1. 7.

As for the Cantica Canticorum, I thinke all the braſen faces, that conſpired to write this preface, can not name three ſimple Artificers in England, that delight more in that booke, then any other of the Scripture: for my part, I knowe none. Neither is there any treatiſe of the holy Scripture, which is generally leſſe ſtudied, either of the learned, or vnlearned. But becauſe it is a continuall allegorie, the difficultie thereof ſerued well, to make a ſhew of your ſlander, before them whom you haue enchanted to beleeue euery lie, that your impudent mouth is not ashamed to pronounce. The Apocalyps also, though it be hard to vnderstand, and be full of mysteries, yet may it be read as other partes of holy Scriptures, and there are many things in it, that are plaine and easie to be vnderstood of euery Artificer. But perhaps you are more vnwilling, they should reade the Apocalyps, because it doth describe the whore of Babylon, the citie of Rome, so plainely, and the Epistle to the Romanes liketh you not, because it is so plaine for iustification by faith without workes. The rest that you say, of the difficultie of some part of the Scriptures, the simple and godly Artificers among vs, doe acknowledge, and either seeke the interpretation of them at the mouth of their learned Pastor, or else are content to be ignorant in the exposition of them, knowing as they are taught by the learned out of S. Augustine, that in those places which are plainly set downe in the Scripture, are found all those things which concerne faith and good liuing. De doct. Christ. lib. 2. cap. 9. which is as much as is necessarie, for euery Christian man to learne for his saluation.

The example of S. Basil and Gregorie, in studying the Scriptures thirteene yeeres, before they expounded them, pertaineth not to euery simple Artificer, but to the Pastors and Teachers of the Church. And God be thanked, our Church hath many godly learned Teachers, that haue studied more then 14. yeeres before they haue openly expounded the Scriptures, and which followe the vnderstanding of them, not out of their owne presumption, but out of the writings and authoritie of their Ancients or Elders, whom it is knowen to haue receiued the rule of vnderstanding, by succession apostolike, which are the words of Russine, whom you quote, who speaketh not one word of vniforme consent or apostolike tradition. If you alledge, that all our Preachers, are not of so many yeeres studie, I answere, their example maketh no lawe, especially where the necessitie of the Church requireth men of lesse time, yet sufficient to teach the trueth. Neither are the most of your seminarie Priests, whom you sende ouer to disturbe the state of gouernement, as well as the peace of our Church, of thirteene yeeres studie in the Scripture, seeing we knew some of them, but the other day, runnagate vnlearned boyes, from our Vniuersities, but being come to you, they are suddenly become great Clarkes, and profound Teachers, whorish impudence seruing them in stead of all learning.

RHEM. 17 If our newe Ministers had had this cogitation and care that these and all other wise men haue, and euer had, our countrey had neuer fallen to this miserable state in religion, and that vnder pretence, colour, and countenance of Gods word: neither should vertue and good life haue bene so pitifully corrupted in time of such reading, toyling, tumbling and translating the booke of our life and saluation: whereof the more precious the right and reuerent vse is, the more pernicious is the abuse and prophanation of the same: which euery man of experience by these fewe yeeres proofe, and by comparing the former dayes and maners to these of ours, may easily trie.

Maners and life nothing amended, but much worse, since this licencious tossing of holy Scripture.

FVLKE. 17 Gods name be praysed, a great number of our Ministers, haue had as good cogitation, and care, as is meete for that calling, and thereby haue brought our countrey into that flourishing state in religion, that vertue and good life in them that diligently reade the holy Scripture translated into the mother tongue, neuer more shined in any age, then it hath done since the light of the Gospel hath driuen away the cloudes of Popish ignorance, as all that be indifferent, and know the experience of both times, cannot chuse but confesse. Thinke you, the manners of the most perfect in the Popish times, are so forgotten, that you may with honestie, abide the comparison, with the common sort of Christians in this time? But your drift is to deceiue young heads, of whom through your traiterous conspiracies, you haue sent a great number to London Bridge, that neuer knewe the former dayes and manners, and seeth in deede much wickednesse in this time, yet punished where it is detected, in all sorts of men, and not openly permitted, as Stewes be in Poperie.

RHEM. 18. Looke whether your men be more vertuous, your women more chaste, your children more obedient, your seruants more trustie, your maides more modest, your friendes more faithfull, your Laitie more iust in dealing, your Cleargie more deuoute in praying: whether there be more religion, feare of God, faith and conscience in all states nowe, then of old, when there was not so much reading, chatting, and iangling of Gods word, but much more sincere dealing, doing, and keeping the same. Looke whether through this disorder, women teach not their husbands, children their parents, young fooles their olde and wise fashers, the schollers their masters, the sheepe their pastor, and the people the Priest. Looke whether the most chaste and sacred sentences of Gods holy word, be not turned of many, into mirth, mockerie, amorous ballets and detestable letters of loue and leudnesse: their delicate rimes, tunes, and translations much increasing the same.

Scriptures as profanely cited as heathen poetes.

FVLKE. 18 We yeelde humble thankes vnto God, that although the fruites of the Gospel, bee not so plentifull, as it were meete after so long teaching: yet the word of God hath not beene preached and read in vaine, but that great and notable effectes thereof doe appeare, in the life and conuersation of the faithfull. And that all sortes and degrees of men, women, and children, which be diligent in reading, and hearing the word of God, be reformed in all vertue and godly behauiour. And that there is more religion, feare of God, faith, and conscience, in all such persons, then was in any superstitious hypocrite, that liued in the darke dayes of Papistrie. Neither doe women teach their husbands, children their parents, young men the olde, schollers their master, and sheepe their shepheard, except perhaps, where there is greater knowledge in the woman, then in the man, in the childe, then in the parent, in the young, then in the olde, in the scholler, then in the master, in the people then in him that occupieth the place of the Pastor, in which case, it is not against Gods ordinance, that the inferiour should instruct the superiour. The Prophet Dauid sayth, that he had more vnderstanding, then his Elders, because he studied the Law of God, that he became wiser then all his teachers, because his meditation was in the Lords testimonies. But where the husband, parents, old men, masters and pastors, are as they ought to be, better learned in the holy Scriptures, then their inferiours, there is no such disorder amongst vs, as you speake of, if you except a fewe schismatikes departed from vs, and condemned of vs. Neither are the sententes of Gods holy word, by any of vs, abused into mirth, and mockerie, and such other wickednesse, but either by Papists, or prophane vnreligious persons, which haue brought that horrible prophanation of the Scriptures, from the common practise in Poperie. Neither make we or allowe wee any such rimes, tunes, or translations, as may giue iust occasion to increase such impietie.

FVLK. 19. Theſe Papiſts, are able to follow no argument againſt vs, with any apparance of trueth, but that which is grounded on petition or begging of principles. For who will grant them, the fall of good life and prophaning the diuine myſteries, in and by them, which vſe to reade the holy Scriptures amongſt vs, as they are taught by vs to reade them? yet they ſay, euery body ſeeth it. And as for that which they call the great corruption, and decay of faith, indeede, is the true inſtruction, confirmation and increaſe of faith. That Heretikes, which ſeeke nothing in the Scriptures, but the confirmation of their error, muſt needes abuſe them to their damnation, it is confeſſed on our part. But that both Heretikes and euill men, ſeeking to know the will of God in the Scriptures, by the promiſe of Chriſt, are aſſured to finde it. And the ſence of the Church, and of the doctors, if it be the true ſence of the Scriptures, is taken out of the Scriptures themſelues, according to that worthy ſaying of Clemens cited in the decrees diſt. 37 c. relatum. Therefore euen in the Scriptures with the aſſiſtance of Gods ſpirit, may be found that true ſence of the holy Church, and the doctors thereof. But that the ignorant and vnlearned, which know and follow nothing but their priuate fantaſie, may eaſily be deceiued, & that heretikes, wolues, and the deuils themſelues, pretend the holy Scriptures, it needed not ſo many auctorities to prooue, becauſe it is acknowledged of all men that haue but meane knowledge: Yet it followeth not which you conclude, that the vulgar or common people, in theſe dayes of general diſputes, cannot but be in extreme danger of error, by reading the Scriptures truely tranſlated, but rather by reading of them, may be preſerued from dangers of error, if in humbleneſſe of heart, and deſire to know the trueth, they ſeeke, knocke, and pray to him which hath promiſed that they ſhall finde, enter, and receiue.

RHEM. 20. But the caſe now is more lamentable: for the Proteſtants and ſuch as S. Paul calleth ambulantes in aſtutia, walking in deceitfulneſſe, *haue ſo abuſed the people and many other in the world, not vnwiſe, that by their falſe tranſlations they haue inſtead of Gods Law and Teſtament, and for Chriſts written will and word, giuen them their owne wicked writing and phantaſies, moſt ſhamefully in all their verſions Latin, Engliſh, and other tongues, corrupting both the letter and ſenſe by falſe tranſlation, adding, detracting, altering, tranſpoſing, pointing, and all other guileſull meanes: ſpecially where it ſerueth for the aduantage of their priuate opinions. for which, they are hold alſo, partly to diſauthoriſe quite, partly to make doubtfull, diuers whole bookes allowed for Canonicall ſcripture by the vniuerſall Church of God this thouſand yeeres and vpward: to alter all the authenticall and Eccleſiaſticall words vſed ſithence our Chriſtianitie, into new prophane nouelties of ſpeaches agreeable to their doctrine: to change the titles of works, to put out the names of the authors, * to charge the very Euangeliſt with following vntrue tranſlation, to adde whole ſentences proper to their ſect, into their pſalmes in meter, * euen into the very Creede in rime. all which the poore deceiued people ſay and ſing as though they were Gods owne word, being in deede through ſuch ſacrilegious treacherie, made the Diuels word.*

FVLK. 20. You ſlander the Proteſtants, in ſaying they walke in deceitfulnes, and abuſe men by falſe tranſlations, corrupting, adding, detracting, &c. the particulars whereof, as they occurre in theſe annotations, ſhall receiue their anſwere to your ſhame. And as for that booke wherein they are ſet foorth more at large, by which you meane, Martynes diſcouery, the author did well to terme it an handmaid to this great gentlewoman, the gloſſe of your annotations, ſpecially in reſpect of her modeſtie, that being once rebuked of her ſaucines, ſhe holdeth her peace, and doth not replie. So that theſe fiue or ſixe yeeres hauing none amongſt you, that dare ſet pen to paper, to defend her after the death of her father, ſhe hath kept ſilence to the ſhame of all Papiſts. Therefore for a large and particular confutation of all thoſe ſlanders, I referre the Reader to a booke ſet foorth in confutation of that diſcouerie, called A defence of the ſincere & true tranſlation of the holy Scriptures into the Engliſh tongue, &c. And that which you write in the margent, ſpecially againſt Beza, is confuted in the anſwere to Martines preface, Sect. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22.

The laſt quarell againſt our tranſlation, is, for adding whole ſentences to the Pſalmes in meter, and euen to the Crede in rime. By as good reaſon you might haue brought out all bookes that wee write in Engliſh, to prooue that our tranſlations of the Bible are faultie. For all reaſonable men knowe, that the turning of the Pſalmes into meter, is no tranſlation, neither is the Crede any part of the text of the holy Scripture, although good regard ſhould be had aſwell in the one, as in the other, that nothing bee added to the ſenſe (though the number of wordes cannot poſſibly bee kept) as for the moſt part I hope it is. Where you ſay the poore deceiued people ſay and ſing thoſe meters, as though they were Gods owne word, you meaſure their vnderſtanding by the blindneſſe of your ignorant Papiſts. But aſſure your ſelfe, our people are not ſo ignorant, but they can diſtinguiſh the very text of the Scripture tranſlated into Engliſh from the paraphraſe of the Pſalmes brought into meeter, knowing that this later muſt be conſonant in ſenſe vnto the former, or els it is not the diuine Scripture, no not although it be agreeable vnto it. That our tranſlation maketh of Gods word the deuils word, it is a railing ſentence grounded vpon no trueth, nor argument ſounding like trueth, and therefore I paſſe it ouer.

RHEM. 21. *To ſay nothing of their intollerable libertie and licence to change the accuſtomed callings of God, Angel, men, places, and things vſed by the Apoſtles and all antiquitie, in Greeke, Latine, and all other languages of Chriſtian Nations, into newe names, ſometimes falſly, and alwayes ridiculouſly and for oſtentation taken of the Hebrues: to frame and fine the phraſes of holy Scripture after the forme of prophane writers, ſticking not, for the ſame to ſupplie, adde, alter or diminiſh as freely as if they tranſlated Liuie, Virgil, or Terence. Hauing no religious reſpect to keepe either the maieſtie or ſincere ſimplicitie of that venerable ſtyle of Chriſtes ſpirit, as S. Auguſtine ſpeaketh, which kind the holy Ghoſt did chuſe of infinite wiſedome to haue the diuine myſteries rather vttered in then any other more delicate, much leſſe in this meretricious maner of writing that ſundry of theſe newe tranſlators doe vſe: of which ſort * Caluin himſelfe and his pue fellowes ſo much complaine, that they profeſſe Satan to haue gained more by theſe newe interpreters (their number, lewitie of ſpirit, and and acitie increaſing daily) then he did before by keeping the word from the people. And for a patterne of this miſchiefe, they giue Caſtalion, darling all their churches & ſcholles to beware of his tranſlation, as one that hath made a very ſport & mockery of Gods holy worde. ſo they charge him: themſelues (and the Zuinglians of Zuricke, whoſe tranſlations Luther therefore abhorred) handling the matter with no more fidelitie, grauitie, or ſincerite then the others but rather with much more falſification, or (to vſe* vse the Apostles words) cauponation and adulteration of Gods word, then they, besides many wicked gloses, prayers, confessions of faith, conteining both blasphemous errors * and plaine contradictions to themselues and among themselues, all priuiledged and authorised to be ioined to the Bible, and to be sayd and sung of the poore people, and to be beleeued as articles of faith and wholly consonant to Gods word.

2 Cor. 2. 17.

*See the 4. article of their Creede in meeter, where they professe that Christ descended to deliuer the Fathers, and afterward in their confession of their faith, they denie Limbus patrum.

FVLKE. 21 All these quarels, and false accusations, are answered sufficiently in the booke before remembred, and as they shall be touched in these annotations, they shall here also be confuted.

That Caluin, the Church of Zurich, and other, complaine of the licentious and prophane translation of Castalion, it sheweth indeede, that we approue none, but that is sincere and true, although without proofe you accuse ours to be as bad or worse. If Luther in his heate misliked the Tigurine translation, it is not sufficient to discredit it, seeing trueth, and not the opinion or authoritie of men, is to be followed in such matters.

The gloses, prayers, and confessions, though they be printed, and bound in the same volume with the Bible, yet they be not priuiledged and authorised to be so ioyned with the Bible, as part of it, or yet so wholly consonant vnto it, but that they are to be examined according to the text of the Scripture, and not otherwise to bee receiued, then so farre forth, as they are agreeable thereunto. Vnlesse perhaps you thinke, that we vsurpe such lordship ouer mens faith, as you doe practise, which require all these your slanders, conteined in your preface, and all other errors comprehended in your annotations, to be taken for articles of faith, wholly consonant to the Catholike religion. The contradiction that you note in the fourth article of the Creede in meeter, with the confession of our faith denying Limbus patrum, if you were not malitious enemies, might be auoided, either by acknowledging that the author of that meeter is to be vnderstood so, as his words may agree with the article of the confession, or els, that hee vttered his priuate opinion disagreeing from the iudgement of the whole Church.

RHEM. 22. We therefore hauing compassion to see our beloued countrey men, with extreme danger of their soules, to vse onely such prophane translations, and erroneous mens mere phantasies, for the pure and blessed word of trueth, much also moued thereunto by the desires of many deuout persons: haue set foorth, for you (benigne readers) the new Testament to begin withall, trusting that it may giue occasion to you, after diligent perusing thereof, to lay away as lest such their impure versions as hitherto you haue bene forced to occupie. How well we haue done it, we must not be iudges, but referre all to Gods Church and our superiours in the same, to them we submit our selues, and this, and all other our labours, to be in part or in the whole reformed, corrected, altered, or quite abolished: most humbly desiring pardon if through our ignorance, temeritie, or other humane infirmitie, we haue any where mistaken the sense of the holy Ghost. further promising, that if hereafter we espie any of our own errors, or if any other either friend of good will, or aduersarie for desire of reprehension, shall open vnto vs the same: we will not (as Protestants doe) for defence of our estimation, or of pride and contention, by wrangling wordes wilfully persist in them, but be most glad to heare of them, and in the next edition or otherwise to correct them: for it is trueth that we seeke for, and Gods honour: which being had either by good intention, or by occasion, all is well. This we professe onely, that wee haue done our indeuour with prayer, much feare and trembling, lest we should dangerously erre in so sacred, high, and diuine a worke: that we haue done it with all faith, diligence, and sincerity: that we haue vsed no partialitie for the disaduantage of our aduersaries, nor no more licence then is sufferable in translating of holy Scriptures: continually keeping our selues as neere as is possible, to our text and to the very words and phrases which by long vse are made venerable, though to some prophane or delicate eares they may seeme more hard or barbarous, as the whole stile of Scripture doth highly to such as the beginnings acknowledging with S. FVLKE. 22. These fortie or fiftie yeeres, being void of compassion, you haue suffered the people to bee without a Popish translation, while you had any hope to perswade the worlde, that ignorance of the holy Scriptures is more meete for them, then knowledge in the same. But being beaten from that most impudent assertion by shame, and the conscience of all Papists that are of any equitie or indifferent iudgement crying out against it, and seeing that you laboured in vaine to bring in blind ignorance: you haue yeelded by obscure translation, partly to dimme the light of the Scripture, and by heretical annotations, to peruert the sense of the holy Ghost, to the vpholding of the kingdome of Antichrist. That our true and sincere translations, out of the originall tongues (which you say men hitherto haue bene inforced to occupie) being layd aside, your mistes of darke speeches, and wicked obseruations might come in place. What you professe and protest of your care and sincerities, may be credited of them that be deuote vnto you: but all reasonable men may take a taste of your credit by this. In the answere of Martines booke called the discouerie, &c. you were admonished of manifest corruptions, and false translations, euen of your vulgar latine text, but where is the promise of reformation these fiue or sixe yeeres? Your like fidelitie in citing and applying the sayings of the ancient fathers, shall God willing be layed open in this answere to your annotations: but as for the humble acknowledging of your errors, and the correction of the same, we haue small hope to see. For so long as your heads be occupied in contriuing most horrible conspiracies, of treasons and murder of the most honourable Prince in the world, your naturall soueraigne Lady and Queene, and the ouerthrowe of your owne Countrey, which hath bred and nourished you: we cannot be perswaded that any heauenly wisedome can enter into so malicious soules, or that there is any feare of God, regard, honour or loue of his trueth, that moueth you to any thing, whatsoeuer you pretend. But euen as the booke you lately wrote against the murthering of Princes, had no other purpose of the setters forth, but to make our Prince and her Counsel secure of your deuilish practises, while you intended nothing so carefully, as the most cruel and vnnaturall slaughter of her sacred person, and of all her faithfull Counsellers and trustie truſtie ſubiects, by that helliſh and Sathanicall conſpiracie of Sauadge, Ballard, Babington, and the reſt, by Gifford and Allen, principall pillars of that your Seminarie of Rhemes, enchanted and confirmed thereunto, openly teſtified by their owne confeſſions, at their arreignements. That in tranſlation of the ſcriptures, the very words muſt be kept, as neere as it is poſſible, and the phraſe of the tongue into which we tranſlate wil beare, we doe acknowledge with S. Hieronym ad Pammach. That which you cite out of S. Auguſtine, is not to be found in the place by you quoted: but whereſoeuer it is written, it ſeemeth to be intended of termes vſuall in the Church, againſt heretikes, rather then of tranſlation. That the ancient doctors refuſed not the barbariſmes and ſolœciſmes of the vulgar latine tranſlation, which they then had, it was becauſe they did write in Latin, to be vnderſtood of the common people, to whom the Latin tongue was vulgar, and that tranſlation familiar: not that thoſe Barbariſmes and ſolœciſmes by long vſe became venerable, or that it is any example for you, to bring in Latin and Greeke words into the Engliſh text, neither vſed before, nor vnderſtood now of the Engliſh people. Although the place you cite out of S. Ambroſe, is by him defended to be a commendable phraſe, by authoritie of thoſe which made choice of wordes and eloquent ſpeeches, of which one ſayd: loco ædituo ſuam victoriolam decebat. Neither doth S. Hieronym in the Epiſtle to Damaſus, ſay, that he keepeth religiouſly theſe & ſuch like barbarous ſpeeches, although he vſe ſome of them in his Commentaries, for the cauſe before aledged, but rather he ſheweth, that recourſe muſt be had to the original truth of the Greeke text. Neuertheleſſe he ſaith, he hath ſo tempered his pen, that thoſe things only being corrected that might ſeeme to change the ſenſe, he ſuffered the reſt to remaine as they were.

De vitat. lib. 10. cap. 12.

Neither had S. Auguſtine any religion in falſe or barbarous latine, although he did beare with it, and was willing to vſe it where it was beſt vnderſtood, or did beſt expreſſe the originall Greeke. For in the firſt place by you quoted, he would haue the originall tongues, out of which the interpretation is made, to be looked vnto, and that which is barbarous and obſcure, to be corrected by it, as in ſtead of virulamina, he would haue plantationes: that which is commonly vnderſtood, to be borne with, if it cannot be amended, and giueth an example of That, which now (ſayth he) we cannot take away from the mouth of the people that ſing, Vpon him ſhall my ſanctification flouriſh, where the barbarous word floriet, doth nothing hinder the ſenſe: yet a cunning hearer had rather haue it corrected, that it might be ſayd, not floriet, but florebit. And nothing doth hinder the correction, but the cuſtome of the ſingers. But theſe things may be eaſily contemned. Lo this is the moſt religious care, that he hath to keepe Barbariſmes and ſolœciſmes, this is the ſpeciall pride and infirmitie that he counteth in them, that would haue them corrected.

Pſal. 131.

In the ſecond place by you noted, for auoiding of ambiguitie, hee ſaith, hee had rather ſpeake barbarouſly, then purely: as where the text is, Non eſt abſconditum à te oſſum meum, becauſe oſſ ſignifieth a mouth & a bone, the certaintie muſt be learned out of the Greeke tongue, Wherefore many times (ſayth he) the vulgar cuſtome of ſpeaking is more profitable for ſignification of things, then the learned puritie. For I had rather it be ſayd with barbariſme, Non eſt abſconditum à te oſſum meum, then that it ſhould bee therefore leſſe plaine becauſe it is more latine like. His meaning is, he had rather haue a barbarous word vſed (that is vnderſtood of the common people) then a pure latine word, either not vnderſtood, or vncertain how it ſhould be vnderſtood.

Pſal. 138.

In the third place he ſayth, that ſanguines, in the plurall, is no good latine word, yet becauſe it is the plurall number in the Greeke, the interpreter did chuſe rather to expreſſe the trueth according to the ſound of words, though he ſpake not ſo pure latine, according to the Grammarians, for if he had ſpoken in the ſingular number, he had not expreſſed the Apoſtles meaning: Therefore les vs ſpeake (ſaith he) and not be afraid of the Grammarians palmer, ſo that we may come to the ſound and more certaine trueth.

These things I haue examined particularly, though the matter be not weighty, that the reader may ſee how ſoundly and ſincerely, you gather out of the fathers, where no great neede enforceth you, that hee may the rather ſuſpect your dealing with them, in matters of great importance.

RHEM. 23. Now, though the text thus truely tranſlated, might ſufficiently, in the ſight of the learned and all indifferent men, both controule the aduerſaries corruptions, and prooue that the holy Scripture whereof they haue made ſo great vaunts make nothing for their new opinions, but wholy for the Catholike Churches beleefe and doctrine, in all the points of difference betwixt vs: yet knowing that the good and ſimple may eaſily bee ſeduced by ſome few obſtinate perſons of perdition (whom wee ſee

Whatſoeuer in your Annotations you haue obſerued to charge vs with hereticall corruptions or falſe deductions, hath for the one bene ſufficiently confuted already, the other ſhall receiue anſwere now. As for the olde bragge of Apoſtolike tradition, expoſition of fathers, decrees of Church and Councils, ſhall be declared now to bee as vaine as euer it was. And whoſoeuer with diligence, ſincerirtie, and indifferencie will vouchſafe to reade, as well your Annotations, as our anſwere to the ſame, I doubt not but they ſhall acknowledge more to bee performed concerning this matter in the ende, then wee promiſe in the beginning. As for the wilfull blind, that will be led by none other, but by your blind Pharizaicall guides, we muſt let them alone, to fall together with you, into the pit of euerlaſting deſtruction.

RHEM. 24. Which if he doe, we doubt not but he ſhall to his great contentment, finde the holy Scriptures moſt cleerely and inuincibly to proue the articles of Catholike doctrine againſt our aduerſaries, which perhaps hee had thought before this diligent ſearch, either not to be conſonant to Gods word, or at leaſt not conteined in the ſame, and finally he ſhal proue this ſaying of S.

Auguſtine

Auguſtine to be moſt true. Multi ſenſus, &c. Many ſenſes of holy Scriptures lie hidden, and are knowen to ſome few of greater vnderſtanding: neither are they at any time auouched more commodiouſly and acceptably then at ſuch times, when the care to anſwere heretikes doth force men thereunto. For then, euen they that bee negligent in matters of ſtudie and learning, ſhaking off ſluggiſhnes, are ſtirred vp to diligent hearing, that the Aduerſaries may be reſelled. Againe, how many ſenſes of holy Scriptures, concerning Chriſts Godhead, haue bene auouched againſt Photinus: howe many of his Manhod, againſt Manichæus: howe many, of the Trinitie, againſt Sabellius: how many, of the vnitie in Trinitie, againſt the Arrians, Eunomians, Macedonians: howe many of the Catholike Church diſperſed throughout the whole world, and of the mixture of good and bad in the ſame vntill the ende of the world, againſt the Donatiſts and Luciferians and other of the like error: how many againſt all other heretikes, which it were too long to rehearſe? Of which ſenſes and expoſitions of holy Scripture the approoued authors and auouchers, ſhould otherwiſe either not bee knowen at all, or not ſo well knowen, as the contradictions of proud heretikes haue made them.

In Pſal. 67. prope finem.

Hereſies make Catholikes more diligent to ſearch and find the ſenſes of holy Scripture for reſelling of the ſame.

FVLKE. 24. We may ſee, there is no ſmall accompt made of theſe your annotations, that you promiſe the diligent reader, ſuch ſatisfaction and contentment in them, as he could not find in all the Popiſh treatiſes, that haue bene ſet foorth theſe thirtie yeeres. Well, the triall is all. For my part, by the aſſiſtance of Gods grace, I nothing doubt, but as I haue in twentie other of your treatiſes, layd open the weakeneſſe of your part, with the lewde meanes you vſe to vphold it, in ſuch ſort as you haue no liſt to replie: ſo in this worke, I ſhall performe the like, that the ſaying of S. Auguſtine, by you ſet downe, ſhall be found moſt true. That the contradiction of Papiſts (as of all other like heretikes) is the occaſion, that the true meaning of the Scripture by diligent ſearch is better vnderſtood, then it were like to haue bene, if no ſuch hereſie had ariſen, and that the true Catholikes be better diſcerned from the arrogant heretikes, according to the ſaying of the Apoſtle. There muſt be hereſies, that they which are approued may be made manifeſt. So the malice of Sathan the father of lies, is by the inuincible power of God, conuerted to the auouching of the trueth, and to the benefit of the Church, which by hereſies the deuill ſeeketh to ouerthrowe.

1. Cor. 11.

RHEM. 25. Thus he ſayth of ſuch things as not ſeeming to be in holy Scriptures to the ignorant or heretikes, yet in deede be there. But in other points doubted of, that indeede are not decided by Scripture, he giueth vs this godly rule to be folowed in all, as he exemplifieth in one. Then doe we hold (ſayth he) the veritie of the Scriptures, when we doe that which now hath ſeemed good to the Vniuerſall Church, which the authoritie of the Scriptures themſelues doth commend: ſo that, foraſmuch as the holy Scripture cannot deceiue, whoſoeuer is afraid to bee deceiued with the obſcuritie of queſtions, let him therein aske counſel of the ſame CHVRCH, which the holy Scripture moſt certainely and euidently ſheweth and pointeth vnto. Aug. lib. 1. Conf. Creſcon. c. 13.

FVLKE. 25. Your application of S. Auguſtines place, is as true as your quotation: for you quote, cap. 13. in ſtead of the 33. cap. And he ſpeaketh not of points of doctrine, that indeede are not decided by Scripture, for of the point of doctrine in controuerſie betweene him and the Donatiſts, that ſuch as were baptized by heretikes might not be rebaptized, he ſayth in the Chapter going before, Sequimur ſanè nos in hac re etiam Canonicarum auctoritatem certiſſimam ſcripturarum. Truely we folow in this thing alſo, the moſt certaine authoritie of the canonicall Scriptures. And a little before, he had alledged for the ſame queſtion among other authorities of Scriptures, the ſaying of our Sauiour Chriſt to Peter: He that is once waſhed, neede not to bee waſhed againe. But the matter that was not to be found in the Scripture, was an example of one baptized by heretikes, receiued by the Church without rebaptiſme. For he had alſo before alledged the ſame example of the Samaritanes, who being circumciſed in ſchiſme and hereſie, were not circumciſed againe, when they were conuerted to the true religion of the Iewes: which prooueth the point of doctrine inuincibly. But the contentious heretike, would ſtil vrge the like example to be ſhewed of baptiſme, whereupon S. Auguſtine ſaith, Proinde quamuis huius rei certe de Scripturis canonicis, non proferatur exemplum, &c. Therefore although indeed, an example be not brought foorth of this thing, out of the canonicall Scriptures, yet in the ſame thing alſo the trueth of the ſame Scriptures is holden of vs, when we doe that which hath now pleaſed the whole Church, whom the authority of the Scriptures themſelues doth commend, that foraſmuch as the holy Scripture cannot deceiue, whoſoeuer feareth to be deceiued with the obſcurity of this queſtion, let him aske counſell of the ſame Church, which the holy Scripture without all ambiguitie, doeth demonſtrate or ſet out. The obſcuritie of this queſtion, grew by the contrarie iudgement and practiſe of S. Cyprians time, which the whole Church, by authoritie of the Scriptures, had reformed in S. Auguſtines time. He ſaith not therefore, that of points not decided by Scripture, the Church muſt be confuſed, but where queſtion of contrarie iudgement and practiſe doth ariſe, the iudgment of the whole Church muſt be enquired, what is agreeable to the holy Scriptures, and preferred before the particular opinions and practiſes of any other, though otherwiſe godly and learned, as Cyprian was.

Ioan. 13.

The Church therefore hath wiſedome to decide queſtions by Scripture, not authoritie to determine of points of doctrine, not decided by the Scriptures, for there are none ſuch neceſſarie for Gods people, to know or practiſe.

RHEM. 26. NOW to giue thee alſo intelligence in particular, moſt gentle Reader, of ſuch things as it behoueth thee ſpecially to know concerning our Tranſlation: We tranſlate the olde vulgar Latine text, not the common Greeke text, for theſe cauſes.

Many cauſes why this new Teſtament is tranſlated according to the ancient vulgar Latin text.

1. It is ſo ancient, that it was vſed in the Church of God aboue 1300. yeeres agoe, as appeareth by the fathers of thoſe times.

It is moſt ancient.

FVLKE. 26. You tranſlate the vulgar latine text, and not the originall Greeke text, for tenne cauſes The firſt is the antiquitie, that it was in vſe in the Church of God, aboue 1300. yeeres agoe. This is more boldly affirmed, then it can be foundly prooued: for it appeareth not by the fathers of thoſe times, that any one tranſlation was generally generally vſed. S.Auguſtine as we ſhewed before, ſaith, there was an infinite varietie of latine tranſlations. S.Hieronym in effect ſaith as much in præfat. ad Damaſum in 4.Euang. Yea it will be hard for you to name any one father of the latine Church, that vſed it more then 1300 yeeres agoe.

Cont Marc. lib.5 In epi. ad Gal. c. 6. in 1. Cor. 1. c. 1 & Rom. c. 1.

Firſt Tertullian vſed it not, as appeareth by an hundreth textes that he citeth, differing from it: one or two ſhall ſuffice for example. Your vulgar Latine hath Alter alterius onera portate, Tertullian citeth it: Onera veſtra inuicem ſuſtinete. Your text hath, prudentiam prudentium reprobabo, Tertullians text was, irritam faciam. Your text hath, Non enim erubeſco Euangelium, Tertullians text was, Non enim me pudet Euangelij.

S.Cyprian vſed it not, as appeareth by infinite texts which he citeth in his bookes of Teſtimonies ad Quirinum, and throughout his workes, whereof I will ſhew a fewe examples. Your text hath Matth.3. Non ſum dignus calciamenta portare. Cyprians text had, Non ſum idoneus ad Quirinum lib.1.num.12. Againe Luc.1. Your text hath Quia viſitauit & fecit redemptionem plebis ſuæ. Cyprians text was, quia proſpexit redemptionem populo ſuo.lib.2.Num. 7. Againe your text Iohn 1. hath in principio erat verbum. S.Cyprians text had, In principio erat Sermo.lib.2.Num.6. Your text Rom 2. hath, An diuitias bonitatis eius & patientiæ, & longanimitatis contemnis? S.Cyprians tranſlation had, An nunquid opulentiam bonitatis eius & ſuſtinentiam & patientiam contemnis? lib.3.Num.35. The Clergie of Rome in S.Cyprians time, vſed not your vulgar latine text, as appeareth by diuers texts cited in their Epiſtles: As for example, Your text hath, Math.18. Omne debitum dimiſi tibi quoniam rogaſti me, The Romanes text had, Donaui tibi omne debitum quia me rogaſti, Cler. Rom. epiſt.31. Your text hath Rom.1. Quia fides veſtra annunciatur in vniuerſo mundo, Their text had, Quia fides veſtra prædicatur in toto mundo.

Irenæus or he that tranſlated him into latine, which is very ancient, followed another tranſlation, then your vulgar latine. I will forbeare examples which are many, becauſe it is not certaine of what time the tranſlator of Irenæus liued, who is thought to haue written in Greeke.

Com. in pſ. 67. In pſ. 106.

Arnobius an ancient writer vſed not your text, as appeareth by diuers places which he citeth. for example, Your text hath 1.Ioh.2. Filioli nouiſſima hora eſt. Arnobius did reade, Pueri nouiſſima hora. &c. Your text Luc.22. hath, Satanas expetiuit vos vt cribraret. Arnobius did reade ventilet. Your text ſayth, Ego autem rogaui, Arnobius ſayth, Ego autem interceſſi.

S.Hilarie vſeth not your vulgar latine text, as appeareth through all his Commentarie vpon S.Matthew, whereof take theſe examples: Your text hath Matth.7. In quo enim iudicio iudicaueritis, iudicabimini. S.Hilarie ſayth, Iudicabitur de vobis.

Againe cap.11. your text hath Arundinem vento agitatam. Hilarie readeth vento moueri. Your latine text hath, Matth.26. Extendens manum exemit gladium ſuum & percutiens ſeruum principis ſacerdotum amputauit auriculam eius. S.Hilarie ſaith, gladium exerens ſeruo principis ſacerdotum aurem abſcidit.

S.Ambroſe you confeſſed before, to vſe a more ancient tranſlation, then your vulgar Latin, and leſt the vnlearned reader ſhould thinke it were in that one onely place, I will giue a fewe examples, whereby it may appeare that he vſed not your vulgar latine in his whole Commentary vpon S. Luke, which is his without controuerſie. In the Angels ſalutation, Luc.1. your text hath in mulieribus. S.Ambroſe ſaith inter mulieres. In the anſwere of Marie, your text hath fiat mihi. Ambroſe ſayth contingat mihi. In the 12.chapter, where your text hath ager, Ambroſe hath poſſeſſio. Yours hath Quid induamini, Ambroſe hath, quid veſtiamini.

Pacianus vſed it not, as Ep.1.Luc. Dignus eſt mercenarius, your text is, Operarius. 2.Corinth.2. Non enim verſutias eius ignoramus. Yours, Non enim ignoramus cogitationes eius.

Iulius Firmicus, tra.1. Qui aufert. Vulg. Qui tollit. Apo.5. Profitrauerunt ſe. Vulg. Cecidерunt.

Gaudentius Brixianus vſed it not, as appeareth Ep. ad Germinium, where he rehearſeth the whole parable of the vniuſt ſteward out of another tranſlation.

Seeing none of theſe Fathers of theſe times, vſed your vulgar latine text, I pray you tell vs in good earneſt, what fathers you meane? for theſe are the chiefe, and almoſt all thoſe workes remaine of thoſe times. Againe, where you ſay in the margent, it is moſt ancient, you forget what you ſayd before, that Ambroſe followed an elder tranſlation then the vulgar latine tranſlation.

Sect.22.

RHEM.27 2. It is that (by the common receiued opinion and by all probabilitie) which S. Hierom afterward corrected according to the Greeke, by the appointment of Damaſus then Pope, as he maketh mention in his preface before the foure Euangeliſts, vnto the ſayd Damaſus: and in Catalogo in fine, and epi.102. Corrected by S. Hieronym.

FVLKE.27. The places by you quoted, do ſhew, that Hieronym did correct a vulgar latine text, that was much vſed before his time, at the requeſt of Damaſus, but the common receiued opinion of Papiſts, which call it S. Hieronyms tranſlation, is no good argument to prooue it to be the ancient vulgar text of his correction. All probabilitie, is but your owne authoritie. For it is againſt all probability, that Hieronym who corrected it, according to the Greeke, as he profeſſeth would haue left ſo many places, that are not warranted by any Greeke copie.

Againe, there are in it, ſome of thoſe faults which S.Hieronym did correct, as in Marke the firſt, the name of Eſay, which he thinketh to be the fault of the writers. Com.in Matth.c.3. The like is in ſome copies of the vulgar Latin, Iudæa for Iudæ. Matth.2. and.cap.6. he correcteth the word exterminant, which remaineth in your vulgar Latin text.

Alſo cap.16.4. it appeareth that S.Hieronyms text was vade retro me, yours is vade poſt me.

In the Epiſtle to the Galath c.1. where your vulgar Latin hath expugnabam illam. S.Hieronym in his Commentarie, rehearſeth the text & deuaſtabam illam. Likewiſe for acquieui in the ſame chapter, hee correcteth contuli according to the Greeke. Againe vpon the third chapter he ſaith expreſly Legitur in quibuſdam codicibus, quis vos faſcinauit non credere veritati? Sed hoc quia in exemplaribus Adimantÿ non habetur, omiſimus. In ſome bookes it is read, who hath bewitched you not to beleeue the truth? but becauſe it is not found in the copies of Origines, wee haue omitted it. But thoſe wordes which he ſayth he hath omitted, your vulgar text hath. Therefore with greater probabilitie, may I ſay, that your vulgar text is not that which S.Hieronym corrected, but rather the ſame text vncorrected, then you can affirme, that by all probabilitie, it is that which he corrected.

Many like examples might be brought out of his Commentaries vpon the Epiſtle to the Epheſians, and to Philemon, and to Titus, where he ſheweth his correction out of the Greeke, which is not obſerued in your vulgar Latine text. Therefore your vulgar Latine text is not that which he corrected.

RHEM.28 3. *Conſequently it is the ſame which S. Auguſtine ſo commendeth vnd alloweth in an Epiſtle to S. Hierom. * Epiſt. 16. Commended by S. Auguſtine.

FVLKE.28. The antecedent being proued falſe, the conſequent cannot be true. S.Auguſtine commendeth S.Hieronyms labour and diligence in that correction of the vulgar Latine, but wee haue declared before, this is not that which he corrected, therefore it is not the ſame which Auguſtine ſo commendeth. Neither doth Auguſtine vſe your your vulgar Latin text,as I might ſhew by 500. examples, but a fewe ſhall ſuffice to giue a taſte.

In the 9.of S.Iohn,your vulgar Latin text hath, fecit lutum ex ſputo, & liniuit lutum ſuper oculos eius. S.Auguſtines tranſlation was de ſaliua ſua lutum fecit & inunxit oculos cæci.Tract.in Ioan.44. Alſo Ioan.13.your vulgar latine hath poſt buccellam. S.Auguſtines booke had, poſt panem, or poſt panem intinctum. In the 1.chapter of the firſt Epiſtle of S.Iohn,your vulgar Latin text hath, *& teſtamur & annunciamus vobis, vitam æternam, quæ erat apud patrem, & apparuit nobis.S.Auguſtines text had,& teſtes ſumus & annunciamus vobis vitã æternam,quæ erat apud patrem & manifeſta eſt in nobis.* Alſo in the ſecond chapter, to the fift verſe he addeth theſe words, Si in illo perfecti fuerimus,which are not in your vulgar Latine text,in the ſame place, he readeth dilectio Dei,where your text hath charitas. In the fourth chapter of the ſame Epiſtle,your text hath, Omnis ſpiritus qui ſoluit Ieſum. S.Auguſtines text had omnis ſpiritus, qui non confitetur Ieſum in carne veniſſe,&c. By theſe it is manifeſt that S.Auguſtine folowed not your vulgar Latin text,which it is like he would haue done,if it had bene the ſame which S.Hieronym corrected,and which he ſo commended and allowed.

RHEM. 29. 4. It is that which for the moſt part euer ſince hath bene vſed in the Churches ſeruice, expounded in ſermons, alleaged and interpreted in the Commentaries and writings of the ancient fathers of the Latin Church. Vſed & expounded by the fathers.

FVLKE.29. You are not able to prooue your Church ſeruice to bee ſo ancient as S.Auguſtines time, for many of your Church Leſſons are taken out of Beda,and other writers, which liued many hundred yeres after S.Auguſtines age. And ſuch parts of the Scripture,as ſeeme to haue bene of moſt ancient time vſed in the Church of Rome, are not taken out of your vulgar Latin text. In the Lords prayer, it is panem noſtrum quotidianum, in your vulgar text ſuperſubſtantialem, Likewiſe for gloria in excelſis, your vulgar Latin hath gloria in altiſſimis. So out of Matthew 21. your Church ſeruice hath,Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini,hoſanna in excelſis, your vulgar Latin hath in altiſſimis.

That it hath not bene euer ſince S.Hieronyms time alledged,and interpreted in the writings and Commentaries of the ancient fathers of the Latine Church,ſhal appeare by theſe teſtimonies following. Your text hath Matth.16.portæ inferi non prævalebunt. Optatus Mileuitanus alledgeth portæ inferorum non vincent. Alſo Matth.7. your vulgar Latine hath,conuerſi dirumpant vos. Optatus read, conuerſi elidant vos. Againe, Luc.18.in your vulgor Latine it is thus written, dixit autem & ad quoſdam qui in ſe confidebant tanquam iuſti, & aſpernabantur cæteros. Optatus ſaith it is written, Dicebat Ieſus hanc ſimilitudinem propter eos qui ſe ſanctos putant, & contemnunt cæteros.

Fulgentius another auncient father of the Latine Church,alledged not alwayes your Latine text,as appeareth Ad Trasimundum lib.1.c.5. Omnis ſpiritus qui non confitetur Ieſum Chriſtum in carne veniſſe, ex Deo non eſt. Your text hath *qui ſoluit Ieſum.*1.Ioan.4. Alſo lib.2.c.18. his text had conforme corpori, where your text hath *configuratum.*Phil.3.

Primaſius another old father of the Latin Church,in his Commentarie vpon the Epiſtle to the Hebrues,c.1. hath Oleo lætitiæ præ conſortibus, where your text hath, oleo exultationis præ participibus. And c.3.ad Gal. in his expoſition he followeth that,which he ſayth was the Latin text,Quibus ad horam ceſſimus: where as the Latin now is negatiuely neq; ad horam. And although the writers or printers haue prefixed the vulgar Latine before his commentaries: yet it appea-reth by many places of his commentaries, that he folowed another text.

Proſper Aquitanicus ſomewhat elder then he,alledgeth Scripture, out of another tranſlation, then your vulgar Latine: as *de promiſſ.part.3.pro.1.*out of Ioan.1. dic,vt habeamus remunciare his, your text is,vt reſponſum demus. In the ſame place,vox clamantis in eremo parate viam,&c. your text is in deſerto,dirigite. And out of the Acts 13.he citeth this text,Cum impleretur curſus Ioannes dixit,quem me ſuſpiciamini eſſe, non ſum ego, ſed ecce venit poſt me, de cuius pedibus non ſum dignus ſoluere corrigiam calciamentorum eius. Your text is, cum implaret autem Ioannes curſum ſuum dicebat, quem me arbitramini eſſe non ſum ego, ecce venit poſt me cuius non ſum dignus calciamenta pedum ſoluere. It were follie to adde more examples,in a caſe ſo manifeſt.

Leo Biſhop of Rome,expoundeth not your vulgar Latine text, and therefore it is not like to be that which S.Hieronyme corrected: for in his Hom.in feſt.omn. ſanctorum, interpreting the beginning of S.Mathewes Goſpel: next after Beati pauperes, hee placeth Beati qui lugent, as it is in the Greeke, Poſt prædicationem, &c. After the commendation of this moſt happie powertie, our Lord added, ſaying, Bleſſed are they that mourne. Your vulgar text placeth, Beati mites, quoniam ipſi poſſidebunt terram. And Leo when he commeth to that third beatitude, he readeth hæreditate poſſidebunt terram, more expreſſing the Greeke word. Gregorie in deede, who was three hundred yeeres after the time by you before named, vſed your vulgar Latine text,and that ſo preciſely,that where there is a manifeſt corruption, not of the tranſlator, but of the writers, Luk.15.euerrit domum for euerrit,he neuertheles expoundeth the text according to that corruption, although he confeſſeth that in another tranſlation it was emundat, which is more agreeable to the Greeke. But this error of Gregorie,you are content to giue ouer, for in your tranſlation you ſay,ſhee doth ſweepe the houſe, according to the trueth of the original Greeke,being aſhamed to follow the groſſe error of the beſt Biſhop of Rome, of all the number that followed him.

Vigilius an ancient father vſeth not your tranſlation, as appeareth in many places: *Lib.*2. hee citeth the text thus, Luc,2. Puer autem creſcebat & confortabatur repletus ſapientia, & gratia Dei ſuper eum. Your text hath, Plenus ſapientia, & gratia Dei erat in illo. Againe, this text Hebr,2. hee citeth, Nam paulò minus minoratum vidimus Ieſum, &c. Your text is, Eum autem qui modicè quàm angeli minoratus eſt. In the ſame place after ſome Greeke copies Vigilius readeth, Sine Deo, where your text is, Gratia Dei.

Gildas our countreyman Matth.5.16. Magnificent patrem veſtrum. Vulg. Glorificent. Matth.7.3. Trabem in oculo tuo non conſideras. Vulg. Non vides. 1.Timoth.3. Si quis epiſcopatum cupit, bonum opus cupit. Vulg. Deſiderat.

RHEM.30. Seſſ.4. 5, The holy Councel of Trent, for ſheſe and many other important conſiderations, hath declared and defined this only of all other Latin tranſlations,to be authenticall,and ſo onely to bee vſed and taken in publike leſſons, diſputations, preachings and expoſitions, and that no man preſume vpon any pretence to reiect or refuſe the ſame. Only authenticall by the holy Coũcel of Trent.

FVLKE.30. The prophane particular chapter of Trent,hath no authority to preferre any tranſlation, much leſſe one ſo corrupt and depraued as that is,before the original text of the Apoſtles and Euangeliſts owne enditing:nor to forbid any man to reiect that,which is found diſagreeing from the originall veritie. No Councel although it were generall (which your good lords and maſters of the Popiſh French Church, will not acknowledge Tridentine to be) hath any authoritie againſt the trueth,but onely for it, as S.Paul ſayth of himſelfe, and other Apoſtles.

2.Cor.13.

RHEM.31. 6 It is the graueſt, ſincereſt, of greateſt maieſty, leaſt partiality, as being without all reſpect of controuerſies & contentions, ſpecially Moſt graue, leaſt partiall.

ſpecially thoſe of our time, as appeareth by thoſe places which Eraſmus and others at this day tranſlate much more to the aduantage of the Catholike cauſe. Most graue, leaſt partial.

FVLKE. 31 In grauitie, ſincerities, and maieſtie, it is not to be compared with the authentical Greeke text, beſide that in many places, it is ridiculous, vnſincere, vntrue, and conſequently of no auctoritie, much leſſe maieſtie. And although the tranſlator was not partial in reſpect of the controuerſies of our time, yet his vnapt tranſlation ſometime is abuſed of you, to the maintenance of your errors, as in anſwering your annotations it wil appeare.

RHEM. 32 7. It is ſo exact and preciſe according to the Greeke, both the phraſe and the word, that delicate Heretikes therefore reprehended it of rudenes. And that it followeth the Greeke farre more exactly then the Proteſtants tranſlations, beſide infinite other places, we appeale to theſe. Tit. 3. 14. Curent bonis operibus præeſſe. ασχολεισθαι Eng. bib. 1577. to mainteine good workes. & Heb. 10. 20. Viam nobis initiauit, conſecrated. English bib. he prepared. So in theſe words Iuſtificationes, Traditiones, Idola, &c. In all which they come not neere the Greeke, but annoyd it of purpoſe. Preciſe in following the Greeke.

FVLKE. 32 The tranſlator in deed according to his knowledge, did purpoſe to tranſlate exactly, both words & phraſes: but being neither very good Grecian, nor good Latiniſt, beſide that hee erred in many places from the true ſenſe, hee hath tranſlated many places barbarouſly, as is confeſſed by Lindanus, Iſidorus Clarius, and other of indifferent iudgement among you. What hurt is it then, if by learned men of theſe times, which haue exact iudgement in both the tongues, that rudenes be amended? Is the Scripture of more credite in falſe Latine, or in barbarous Latine, then in true and cleane Latine? No verely, but that you preferre old errours, before olde trueth newly reſtored If that vulgar tranſlation follow the trueth more exactly then ours, I would wiſh ours were reformed according to the Greeke. Concerning the examples you bring, I anſwere to the firſt, that your (præeſſe) doth not follow the Greeke more exactly, then our words, to maintaine, or, to ſhew forth. For προϊστασθαι doth ſignifie as well thas which we tranſlate, as that which your vulgar text hath. We tranſlate it alſo to excell, as Beza doth ſay, Præſtantes eſſe: and the Greeke ſignifieth all three indifferently, as euery man that is learned therein, will confeſſe, and the Lexicons beare witneſſe. To the ſecond I ſay, The word, Dedicated, as Beza tranſlateth it, had bene more proper, then Prepared: yet, becauſe the word ſignifieth, To renew, and mention is made before of the new way, it is no hurt to the ſenſe, to ſay, He prepared a new way. As for the wordes, Iuſtificationes, Traditiones, Idola, wee expound truely according to the Greeke, as is declared at large, in the booke of the Defence of our tranſlations, vnto which I remit the Reader.

RHEM. 33 8. The Aduerſaries themſelues, namely Beza, preferre it before all the reſt. In præfat. no. Teſt. an. 1556. And againe he ſaith, that the olde Interpreter tranſlated very religiouſly. Annot. in Luc. 1. v 1. Preferred by Beza himſelfe.

FVLKE. 33 Beza preferreth it before the licentious tranſlations of Caſtalion, Illyricus, and ſuch like, and it is not to be denied, that the olde Interpreter of the new Teſtament, according to his knowledge, and after that copy which he followed, tranſlated religiouſly: yet, partly for want of knowledge, partly for lacke of conference of other copies, or iudgement to diſcerne them, hee hath tranſlated many things obſcurely, many things vntruely, ſome things ambiguouſly, and often times barbarouſly.

RHEM. 34 9. In the reſt, there is ſuch diuerſitie and diſſenſion, and no end of reprehending one another, and tranſlating euery man according to his fantaſie, that * Luther ſaid, If the world ſhould ſtand any long time, we muſt vertime againe (which he thought abſurd) the Decrees of Coincels, for preſerning the vntie of faith, becauſe of ſo diuers interpretations of the Scripture. And Beza (in the place aboue mentioned) noteth the itching ambition of his fellow-tranſlators, that had much rather diſagree and diſſent from the beſt, then ſeeme themſelues to haue ſaid or written nothing. And Bezas tranſlation it ſelfe, being ſo eſteemed in our country, that the Geneua Engliſh Teſtaments be tranſlated according to the ſame, yet ſometime goeth ſo wide from the Greeke, and from the meaning of the holy Ghoſt, that themſelues which proteſt to tranſlate it, dare not follow it. For example, Luke* 3. 36. They haue put theſe words, The ſonne of Cainan, which he wittingly and wilfully left out: and Acts. 1. 14. they ſay, With the women, agreeably to the vulgar Latine: where he ſaith, Cum vxoribus, with their wiues. All the reſt miſliked of the Sectaries themſelues, eche reprehending an other.

* The new Teſt. printed the yeere 1580. in the Title.

FVLKE. 34 The diſſenſion of interpreters, muſt be decided by the originall Greeke, as S. Auguſtine ſheweth, and S. Hieronyme thinketh as much. Neither is there greater diſſenſion of our interpreters, then is of the copies of your vulgar Latine text: neither is it like, neither is there any cauſe why Luther ſhould ſo ſay, as you report out of his aduerſary Cocleus. For ſo long as the Greeke text remaineth, the diuerſitie of tranſlations cannot bring the trueth in vncertaintie, but they that be learned and louers of trueth, may plainly ſee it. Nor yet is Bezas tranſlation ſo wide from the Greeke, that it is forſaken of vs: but we vſe our iudgement freely in thoſe points, and are not tyed vnto his authoritie. The ſonne of Cainan, though it be a ſuperfluous and falſe addition, yet becauſe it is in moſt of the Greeke copies, we are content to let it ſtand, as the name of Ieremie in S. Matthewes Goſpel, which yet wee doubt not to be a corruption in ſtead of Zacharie, or els that there ſhould bee neither of both named. Yet Beza by authoritie of Moſes, and of a very ancient Greeke copy, now remayning in the Libratie of the Vniuerſitie of Cambridge, doeth leaue it out in his tranſlation. Cap. 27. 9.

The other example, Cum vxoribus, with their wiues, is nothing wide from the Greeke text, but very aptly agreeth therewith, yet becauſe the word ſignifieth alſo women generally, & becauſe it might be, that there were other godly women, beſide the wiues of the Apoſtles, our tranſlatour thought good to tranſlate it by the word women, which comprehendeth as well wiues as other women.

RHEM. 35 It is not onely better then all other Latine tranſlations, but then the Greeke text it ſelfe, in thoſe places where they diſagree. It is truer then the vulgar Greeke text it ſelfe.

FVLKE. 35 This onely argument, if it were wel proued, might iuſtifie your tranſlation out of the vulgar Latine text. The other nine reaſons, if they were all granted (as there is not one of them all true and good) are not ſufficient to proue, that you ought to tranſlate out of the Latine, rather then out of the Greeke. Seeing the water is moſt pure out of the ſpring, and not out of ponds and ditches, that are deriued from it.

RHEM. 36 The proofe hereof is euident, becauſe moſt of the ancient Heretikes were Grecians, and therefore the Scriptures in Greeke were more corrupted by them, as the anciens fathers often complaine. Tertullian noteth the Greeke text which is at this day. (1. Cor. 15. 47.) to be an olde corruption of Marcion the Heretike, and the trueth to be as in our vulgar Latine, Secundus homo de cœlo cœleſtis, The ſecond man from heauen heauenly. So reade other ancient Fathers, and Eraſmus thinketh it muſt needes be ſo, and Caluin himſelfe followeth it.* Inſtit. lib. 2. cap. 13. parag. 2. Againe, S. Hierom noteth that the Greeke text (1. Cor. 7. 33.) which is as this day, is not the Apoſtolicall veritie, or the true text of the Apoſtle: but that which is in the vulgar Latine, Qui cum vxore eſt, ſolicitus eſt quæ ſunt mundi, quomodo placeat vxori, & diuiſus eſt. He that is with a wife, is carefull of worldly things, how he may pleaſe his wife, and is diuided or diſtracted. The Eccleſiaſticall hiſtory called the Tripartite, noteth the Greeke text that now is (1. Io. 4. 3.) to be an old corruption of the ancient Greeke copies, by the Neſtorian Heretikes, & the true reading to be as in our vulgar Latin, Omnis ſpiritus qui ſoluit IESVM, ex Deo non eſt. Euery ſpirit that diſſolueth IESVS, is not of God: and Beza confeſſeth that Socrates in his Eccleſiaſticall hiſtory readeth ſo in the Greeke, πᾶν πνεῦμα ὃ λύει τὸν Ἰησοῦν χριστὸν, &c. The ancient fathers for proofe thereof, and the aduerſaries themſelues.

* Li. 5. cont. Marcionem. * Ambroſe. Hierom. Li. 1. cont. Iouin. c. 7. Li. 12. c. 4. Lib. 7. c. 32.

FVLKE. 36 The proofe is like your accuſtomed proues, where you heape on words with a litle apparance to deceiue the ignorant, which being rightly weighed, haue no ſubſtance at all of trueth in them. Your firſt argument is, that moſt of the ancient Heretikes were Grecians, which did corrupt the Scriptures in Greeke. A feeble reaſon, as though the prouidence of God, which cauſed the new Teſtament to be written in Greeke, either could not, or would not, preſerue it from the corruption of Heretikes, in Greeke, as wel as in Latine. But ſome of theſe corruptions (you ſay) remaine in the Greeke bookes vnto this day: it may be in ſome copies they do, which yet are conuinced by other copies. But that you deny: and for example you ſay, Tertullian affirmeth the Greeke text, which is at this day, 1. Cor. 15. 47. to be an old corruption of Marcion the Heretike, and the trueth to be as your vulgar Latine hath: but Lindanus whom you follow, miſtooke Tertullian greatly, & ſo doth Beza. For Tertullian layeth not Marcions corruption in that verſe, but in the 45. verſe, & by the authoritie of the Apoſtle in the 47. verſe, diſcouereth his corruption, as well as by the order of the ſame verſe. For after he hath proued out of the Apoſtle againſt Marcion, that the reſurrection perteineth vnto the body, and not vnto the ſoule onely: hee declareth that the Apoſtle confirmeth the ſame of Chriſt himſelfe, where he ſaith. *Factus primus Adam, &c. The firſt Adam was made a liuing ſoule, the laſt Adam a quickening ſpirit, although the moſt fooliſh Heretike would not haue it to be ſo: for he hath placed the laſt lord, inſtead of the laſt Adam, fearing in deed, leſt if he ſhall haue the Lord to be the laſt Adam, we alſo might defend Chriſt in the laſt Adam, to be of the ſame nature, whereof the firſt Adam was. But the falſhood doth plainly appeare: for why is there the firſt Adam, but becauſe there is the laſt Adam? There is no order of things one to another, except they be equal, and be either of the ſame name, or ſubſtance, or auctor: For although in diuers things alſo, there may be one thing firſt, and an other laſt, yet they muſt be of one auctor. But if the auctor be an other, he alſo may be called the laſt: yet that which he hath brought in, is firſt, but laſt, if it be equall to the firſt: but equall to the firſt it is not, becauſe it is not of the ſame auctor: after the ſame maner, he ſhalbe conuinced in the name of man. The firſt man (ſaith hee) is of the earth earthly, the ſecond is the Lord from Heauen. Why is he called the ſecond, if hee be not a man, as the firſt? or is the firſt the Lord, if the ſecond be? But it ſufficeth, if in the Goſpel he taketh Chriſt the ſonne of man, and man, and in the man Adam, cannot deny him. The words folowing alſo, do preſſe him together, for when the Apoſtle ſaith, ſuch as he is, which is of the earth, namely the man, ſuch are the men earthly. Therefore ſuch as the man is, that is frō heauen, ſuch are the men which are frō heauen.

Marcion denied the humanitie of Chriſt.

Marcion denied God to be the creatour of the world.

*Meaning, the Apoſtle.

This place of Tertullian being rightly vnderſtood, doeth not charge the Greeke text with any corruption, but rather reproueth the corruption of Marcion in the 45. verſe, and is a good teſtimony for the antiquitie of that reading, which is now of that 47. verſe in the Greeke text. And where as in his booke, De reſurrectione carnis, it is now read, Secundus homo de Cælo: it ſeemeth that Dominus is left out, through fault of the writers, ſeeing he addeth immediatly, id eſt, ſermo Dei, id eſt Chriſtus, which agreeth properly to Dominus, and addeth not Cæleſtis, as it is in the vulgar Latine. And although ſome ancient Fathers of the Latine Church, as Ambroſe, & Hieronyme doe read ſo, and Caluine miſliketh not the ſenſe, which is true: yet all the Greeke copies, & ancient Fathers of the Greeke Church, as Athanaſius alledging it againſt Marcion himſelfe, Euthy. Pan. part. 1. tit. 9. Chryſoſtome, Damaſcen and Oecumenius, holding the Greeke text, and the ſenſe therof, being good and godly, there is no reaſon why it ſhould be counted a corruption. An other corruption of the Greeke text, you ſay, is noted by S. Hierom. in 1. Cor. 7. 33. Aduerſus Iouinian. li. 1. where in deed he ſaith, that the Latin books of his time, were as the Greeke is now, & that the Apoſtolike trueth is as your vulgar text is, & as he in that place tranſlateth: yet he confeſſeth, that he hath cited it otherwiſe, and ſo he doth in his booke againſt Heluidius, and in Ep. ad Euſtochiū de Virgin. cuſtodia. But ſeeing S. Baſil, that was ſomewhat elder then he, and a father of the Greeke Church, doth often times cite the text, as we read it now, & ſo doth Chryſoſtome likewiſe reade and expound it, Oecumenius alſo, & Theophylactus: and almoſt all the old Greeke copies do agree in this reading, with that which was the ancient Latin text in S. Hieronyms time: it is rather like S. Hieronyms Greeke booke was faultie, & lacked the cōiunction, then that al the Greeke Church was deceiued in it. The third corruption you ſay, is noted by the Tripartite hiſt. li. 12. c. 4. in 1. Ioan. 4. 3. and the true reading to be omnis ſpiritus qui ſoluit Ieſum, as alſo Socrates cōtendeth, affirming that text which we now reade, is a corruption of the Neſtorians, as Beza confeſſeth. But Beza telleth you alſo, that S. Cyprian li. 2. aduerſ. Iudæos c. 8. citeth it in Latine, according to that we now read in the Greeke, who ſeeing he liued certeine hundred yeres before Neſtorius, Socrates, or Caſſiodorus, which liued ſo long after him, do vniuſtly charge him with corruption, although ſome old copies in their time, whom your vulgar interpreter folowed, might haue ὃ λύει ἐκ τοῦ as Socrates ſaith. Yet al the Fathers of the Greeke Church, as appeareth by Oecumenius, reteining the Greeke text, as it is now, and all the ancient copies thereunto agreeing, and the Syrian tranſlation confirming it, the teſtimony of one no very ancient Hiſtorian, Socrates, & that manifeſtly falſe, is not ſufficient to conuince the Greeke Teſtament of corruption: eſpecially, ſeeing not onely Cyprian, and long before him Tertullian de præſcriptionibus aduerſ. hæret. and after them Auguſtine, and other ancient Fathers of the Latine Church, do acknowledge this reading, to be the true text and word of God.

De Virginitate.

RHEM. 37 But the proofe is more pregnant out of the Aduerſaries themſelues. They forſake the Greeke text as corrupted, and tranſlate according to the vulgar Latine, namely Beza and his ſcholers the Engliſh tranſlatours of the Bible, in theſe places, Heb. ca. 9. verſ. 1. ſaying, The firſt couenant, for that which is in the Greeke, The firſt Tabernacle, where they put couenant, not as of the text, but in another letter, as to be vnderſtood, according to the vulgar Latine, which moſt ſincerely leaueth it out altogether, ſaying, Habuit quidem, & prius iuſtificationes, &c. The former alſo in deed had iuſtifications, &c. Againe, Rom. 11. verſ. 21. They tranſlate not according to the Greeke text. Tempori ſeruientes, ſeruing the time, which Beza ſaith muſt needs be a corruption: but according to the vulgar Latine, Domino ſeruientes, ſeruing our Lord. Againe, Apo. 11. verſ. 2. they tranſlate not the Greeke text, Atrium quod intra templum eſt, the court which is within the temple. but cleane contrary according to the vulgar Latine, which Beza ſaith is the true reading, Atriū quod eſt foris templum, the court which is without the temple. Onely in this laſt place, one Engliſh Bible of the yere 1562. foloweth the errour of the Greeke. Againe, 2. Tim. 2. v. 14. they adde, but, more then is in the Greeke, to make the ſenſe more commodious and eaſie, according as it is in the vulgar Latine. Againe, Ia. 5. 12. they leaue the Greeke, and follow the vulgar Latine, ſaying, leſt you fal into condemnation. I doubt not (ſaith Beza) but this is the true & ſincere reading, and I ſuſpect the corruption in the Greeke came thus, &c. It were infinite to ſet downe all ſuch places, where the aduerſaries (ſpecially Beza) follow the old vulgar Latine and the Greeke copy agreeable thereunto, condemning the Greeke text that now is, of corruption.

εἰς κατάκρισιν.

The Caluiniſts themſelues often forſake the Greeke as corrupt, and tranſlate according to the ancient vulgar Latine text.

It is

FVLKE, 37 It is a ſhameleſſe cauilation to ſay, we acknowledge the Greeke text to be corrupt, becauſe in ſome few places, where the Greeke copies doe vary, through the default of the writers, being deceiued by ſimilitude of letters, or otherwiſe, wee chuſe that reading, which being moſt agreeable to the circumſtance of the text, is confirmed alſo by auctoritie of the vulgar Latine tranſlation: as in the firſt example you bring out of Heb. 9. 1. Some Greeke copies now extant, leaue out the word tabernacle (which is in many copies) and ſo the circumſtance of the place requireth. The ſame is the iudgement of Photius, and Oecumenius, and before them of Chryſoſtome, in whoſe copy it was left out. The Syrian tranſlation alſo omitteth it, as well as the vulgar Latine. Is the Greeke text then corrupted, (though many copies be corrupted) when we haue ſo good teſtimonie of the true reading thereof, both out of ſome ancient Greeke copies yet extant, out of the ancient Fathers of the Greeke text, and alſo out of the ancient tranſlations into other languages?

The ſecond, Rom. 12. likewiſe, hath moſt of the ancient Greeke copies to warrant it, beſide the auctoritie of Clemens Alexandrinus, Baſil, Chryſoſtome, Photius, Oecumenius, Theophylactus, olde writers of the Greeke Church, the Syrian tranſlation, and the vulgar interpreter of the Latine: yet forſooth, wee forſake the Greeke text as corrupted, when in diuerſitie of Greeke readings, we follow that which is ſo ſubſtantially aduouched.

The third example, Apo. 11. beſide the Complutenſe editiõ, which doubtles folowed ſome ancient Greeke copies, hath the auctoritie of Arethas, & thoſe ancients of the Greeke Church, out of whom he gathered his Cõmẽtarie, which is ſufficient to iudge of that diuerſitie, which is in miſtaking of one only letter in ỹ Greeke word.

The fourth, 1. Tim. 1. 14. is no departing, or forſaking of any Greeke text, but only a neceſſary explication of that Greeke according to our Engliſh phraſe. In ſo infinite a number of places, as you ſpeake of, in the ende of this ſection, you had ſmal wit to bring this for one, but that you were come to the end of your quarrels, though you place another after it for a faſhion. You your ſelues haue other maner of additiõs then this is, in your tranſlation, whereof ſome are neceſſary, and ſome needleſſe: yet you would not be charged to forſake the Latine text as corrupt, although ſometimes you do, and cleaue to the Greeke, wherein no wiſe man wil blame you.

The laſt example, Ioan. 5. 11. hath alſo ancient Greeke copies, the Syrian tranſlation, and the iudgement of Oecumenius, with ſuch ancient Fathers as he doeth follow, together with the vulgar Latine.

To conclude, we forſake not the Greeke text as corrupted, when we forſake the fault of the Printer, or of the writer, and follow the Greeke text, which is warranted by ancient copies, written or printed, and by the auctoritie of ancient Fathers, the ſenſe of the holy Ghoſt, and the circumſtances of the places agreeing that to bee the very true reading of the Greeke text, and the right Scripture of God, no more then you forſake the vulgar Latine text as corrupted, when you leaue the common reading, and follow that which out of ſome ancient written copies, is placed in the margent: as I noted before, of the text of Luke, euerſit domum, for euerrit, and yet the errour of euerſit, is aboue nine hundred yeere old, as appeareth by Gregory. And you your ſelues acknowledge in the ende of this Preface, that ſometimes you tranſlate the word that is in the Latine margent, and not that in the text, when by the Greeke, or the Fathers, wee ſee it is a manifeſt fault of the writer thereof, that miſtooke one word for another. And may not we doe the ſame in the Greeke, which you doe in the Latine, without forſaking the Greeke text as corrupted? O conſcience of Papiſts!

Luke 15. 8. Hom. 34. in Euang.

RHEM. 38 Againe, Eraſmus the beſt tranſlatour of all the later, by Bezas iudgement, ſaith, that the Greeke ſometime hath ſuperfluities corruptly added to the text of holy Scripture, as Mat. 6. to the end of the Pater noſter, theſe words, Becauſe thine is the kingdome, the power, and the glory for euer-more. Which he calleth, nugas, trifles raſhly added to our Lords prayer, and reprehendeth Valla for blaming the old vulgar Latine becauſe it hath not, likewiſe Rom. 11. 6. theſe wordes in the Greeke, and not in the vulgar Latine: But if of workes, it is not now grace: otherwiſe the worke is no more a worke. and Mar. 10. 29. theſe wordes, or wife, and ſuch like. Yea the Greeke text in theſe ſuperfluities condemneth it ſelfe, and inflifieth the vulgar Latine exceedingly: as being marked throughout in a number of places, that ſuch and ſuch words or ſentences are ſuperfluous. in all which places our vulgar Latine hath no ſuch thing, but is agreeable to the Greeke, which remaineth after the ſuperfluities be taken away. For example, that before mentioned in the ende of the Pater noſter, hath a marke of ſuperfluitie in the Greeke text thus "". and Mar. 6. 11. theſe words, Amen I ſay to you, it ſhalbe more tollerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrhe in the day of iudgement, then for that citie. and Mar. 20. 22. theſe wordes, And be baptized with the baptiſme that I am baptized with? Which is alſo ſuperfluouſly repeated againe, verſe 23. and ſuch like places exceeding many: which being noted ſuperfluous in the Greeke, and being not in the vulgar Latine, proue the Latine in thoſe places to be better, truer and more ſincere then the Greeke.

Superfluities in the Greeke, which Eraſmus calleth trifling and raſh additions.

See No. Teſt. Græc. Rob Stephani in folio, and Criſpini.

FVLKE, 38 It is not by and by trifles, whatſoeuer Eraſmus, or any other man, ſhall reiect out of the Greeke text vnder that name: and yet you do him wrong, to ſay hee calleth the concluſion of the Lords prayer trifles, abſolutely, but vpon condition, if it be not part of the ancient text: for confirmation whereof (beſide the moſt part of ancient Greeke copies) Chryſoſtome in his Commentary vpon S. Matthewes Goſpel, Hom. 20. without any queſtion or controuerſie, doeth reade it and expound it. Therefore it may well bee thought, that the Homily vpon the Lords prayer in the fifth Tome, where it is omitted, was written by ſome Father of the Latin Church, rather then by Chryſoſtome. And ſo the ſtile in my opinion doeth argue with the mention of ſurſum corda, brought in alſo by S. Cyprian. Furthermore, Euthymius who gathered his expoſition out of many ancient Fathers of the Greeke Church, doeth in like maner read it, and expound it. The Syrian interpretation alſo, which is very ancient, doeth acknowledge it. So doeth the Hebrew text, which if it be not the authenticall of S. Matthew, yet it is very ancient.

The Latine Church in deed hath not vſed it in the formе of prayer, becauſe it is not a petition, but acknowledging of the power and glory of God, to whom the petitions are directed. Yet it ſeemeth, that Tertullian did reade it: for although in his booke, de oratione, where he handleth onely the petitions, hee make no mention of it, yet lib. 4. aduer. Mar. it is very like, he hath reſpect vnto it, when after a ſhort conuiction of the Heretike out of euery petition of the Lords prayer, he addeth, Proinde à quo petam, &c. Therefore of whom ſhall I aske, that I may receiue? At whom ſhall I ſeeke that I may finde? At whom ſhall I knocke, that it may be opened vnto me? Who hath to giue to him that asketh? but he whoſe are all things, whoſe alſo I am which do aske. And where as ſome ancient Greeke copies, whom it ſeemeth that the vulgar Latine Interpreter did follow, as the booke came into his hand, doe lacke this concluſion, yet it followeth not that it is raſhly added in all the reſt, and ſo raſhly receiued of the Greeke Church, but rather it is moſt like, that the writers of thoſe copies omitted it, as a thing commonly knowen, and dayly rehearſed of euery man: by which meanes alſo, it is like the omiſſion of certaine petitions in S. Lukes Goſpel came.

Concerning the ſecond example of ſuperfluitie noted by Eraſmus, Ro. 11. 6. Seeing al the Greeke copies, that we can heare of extant in theſe dayes (except one) do agree in this text: And the ancient Fathers Chryſoſtome in his Commentary vpon this place: Likewiſe Photius, Oecumenius, and Theophylactus doe reade it, and the text requireth it to make a perfect antitheſis, we muſt rather thinke it a defect in your vulgar Latine text, then a ſuperfluitie in the Greeke. For the third ſuperfluitie of the word wife Mar. 10. 29. Eraſmus hath nothing but his bare coniecture, all the Greeke copies, none excepted, being againſt him. But it is a proper deuiſe that you haue found out, to make the Greeke text condemne it ſelfe of ſuperfluitie, & to iuſtifie the vulgar Latin exceedingly. Becauſe the Printers Steuen and Criſpine, do ſet a marke at thoſe wordes or ſentences, which are found in the moſt of the written copies, yet not in all: that the readers may know, that ſuch wordes or ſentences are not found in euery written copy: which by no logike in the world, argueth the one of ſuperfluitie, more then the other of defect, but leaue it to the iudgement and diſcerning of the learned, whether is moſt agreeable to the trueth. Your owne vulgar Latine text, printed by Plantine, and corrected by Hentenius, hath more then 100. places in the new Teſtament, marked with an obeliske, that are more then is found in diuers ancient copies. Wherefore if Popiſh logike be as good againſt Latine, as it is againſt Greeke, I may be bolde likewiſe to conclude, that the vulgar Latine text in theſe ſuperfluities, condemneth it ſelfe, and iuſtifieth the Greeke text exceedingly, as being marked throughout in a number of places, that ſuch and ſuch wordes and ſentences are ſuperfluous, in which our Greeke text hath no ſuch thing: for example, Acts 5.8. this word Mulier woman, hath a marke of ſuperfluitie. And in the ſame Chapter, verſ. 15. this ſentence. Et liberarentur omnes ab infirmitatibus ſuis, and might be all deliuered from their infirmities. And Chapter 15. 41. this ſentence is noted with a marke of ſuperfluitie, præcipiens cuſtodire præcepta Apoſtolorum & Seniorum, Commanding them to keepe the precepts of the Apoſtles and Elders, none of all which is in our Greeke text, and therefore proue the Greeke to be better and more ſincere then the Latine. This is your owne argument, therefore you may not deny it.

RHEM. 39 Whereupon we conclude of theſe premiſſes, that it is no derogation to the vulgar Latine text, which wee tranſlate, to diſagree from the Greeke text, where as it may notwithſtanding be not onely as good, but alſo better. and this the Aduerſary himſelfe, their greateſt and lateſt tranſlatour of the Greeke, doeth auouch againſt Eraſmus in behalfe of the olde vulgar Latine tranſlation, in theſe notorious wordes. How vnworthely and without cauſe (ſaith hee) doth Eraſmus blame the olde Interpreter as diſſenting from the Greeke? hee diſſented, I grant, from thoſe Greeke copies which he had gotten: but we haue found, not in one place, that the ſame interpretation which he blameth, is grounded vpon the authoritie of other Greeke copies, and thoſe moſt ancient. Yea in ſome number of places we haue obſerued, that the reading or the Latine text of the olde Interpreter, though it agree not ſometime with our Greeke copies, yet it is much more conuenient, for that it ſeemeth he followed ſome better and truer copie. Thus farre Beza. In which wordes he vnwittingly, but moſt truely, iuſtifieth and defendeth the olde vulgar Tranſlation againſt himſelfe and all other cauillers, that accuſe the ſame, becauſe it is not alwayes agreeable to the Greeke text: Whereas it was tranſlated out of other Greeke copies (partly extant, partly not extant at this day) either as good and as ancient, or better & more ancient, ſuch as S. Auguſtine ſpeaketh of, calling them doctiores & diligentiores, the more learned and diligent Greeke copies, whereunto the Latine tranſlations that faile in any place, muſt needes yeelde. Lib. 2. de doct. Chriſt. cap. 15. And if it were not too long to exemplifie and proue this, which would require a treatiſe by it ſelfe, we could ſhew by many and moſt cleare examples throughout the new Teſtament, theſe ſundry meanes of iuſtifying the olde tranſlation.

Beza præfat. No. Te. 1556 See him alſo Anno. in 13. Act. ver. 20.

The vulgar Latine tranſlation agreeth with the beſt Greeke copies, by Bezas owne iudgement.

When the Fathers ſay, that the Latin text muſt yeeld to the Greeke, and be corrected by it, they meane the true and vncorrupted Greeke text.

FVLKE. 39 How good your concluſion is, I haue ſhewed before: but if you would conclude rightly, you ſhould ſay, that it is no derogation to the vulgar Latine text, to diſagree from euery Greeke copy, ſo it agree with the moſt, or the beſt. But to diſagree (as it doeth ſometimes) from all, ſometimes from the moſt, and the beſt, it muſt needes be a great derogation vnto it.

The teſtimonie of Beza, which you cite, is nothing againſt himſelfe, neither doeth it iuſtifie your vulgar Latine text in all places, but onely where it followed the beſt and trueſt copies of the Greeke text, as ſometime it doeth: vnto which you doe well confeſſe with S. Auguſtine, that the Latine tranſlations that faile in any thing, muſt needes yeelde. But the chiefeſt matter is, to proue firſt, that it was tranſlated out of the more learned and diligent Greeke copies, partly extant, partly not extant. And ſecondly, that it hath ſo continued euer ſince, without alteration or corruption. The firſt you take vpon you to proue by eight reaſons, all which ſhall be ſeuerally examined.

RHEM. 40 Firſt, if it agree with the Greeke text (as commonly it doeth, and in the greateſt places concerning the controuerſies of our time, it doeth moſt certainely) ſo farre the Aduerſaries haue not to complaine: vnleſſe they will complaine of the Greeke alſo, as they doe. Ia. 4 ver. 2. and 1. Pet. 3. ver. 21. where the vulgar Latine followeth exactly the Greeke text, ſaying, Occiditis: and Quod vos ſimilis formæ, &c. But Beza in both places correcteth the Greeke text alſo as falſe.

The vulgar Latine tranſlation, is many wayes iuſtified by moſt ancient Greeke copies, and the Fathers.

FVLKE. 40 If it agree with the true and vncorrupted Greeke text, wee will not complaine, but you muſt remember that euery Greeke copy, either extant or not extant, is not ſufficient to excuſe it: Neither can you proue, that it agreeth with the true and vncorrupted text in all places, as where it is not onely againſt all olde copies exant, but alſo againſt the reading and interpretation of all the Fathers of the Greeke Church. Where you doubt, leſt we will forſake the Greeke, it is needleſſe. Beza in Ia. 4. 2. with Eraſmus, ſuppoſeth a letter might be changed through default of the writers, in a matter of no controuerſie or aduantage againſt you. In the other place hee maketh no queſtion, but ſheweth how the Greeke word is taken, euen in the ſame ſence, that your vulgar Tranſlatour doeth.

RHEM. 41 2 If it diſagree here and there from the Greeke text, it agreeth with an other Greeke copy ſet in the margent, whereof ſee examples in the foreſaid Greeke Teſtament of Robert Steuens & Criſpin throughout. namely, 2. Pet. 1. 10. Satagite vt per bona opera certam veſtram vocationem faciatis. διὰ τῶν ἀγαθῶν ἔργων. and Mar. 8. v. 7. Et ipſos benedixit, εὐλογήσας αὐτούς.

FVLKE. 41 Sometimes it doeth agree with other Greeke copies ſet in the margent, but not alwayes, and therefore this is no good argument to iuſtifie it to agree with the Greeke in all places. Secondly, if it did alwayes agree with that which is in the margent, it were not ynough to warrant it, except you could proue, all that is in the margent, to be alway the true and vncorrupted, the more learned and diligent Greeke copy.

RHEM. 42 3 If theſe marginall Greeke copies be thought leſſe authenticall then the Greeke text, the Aduerſaries themſelues tell vs the contrary, who in their tranſlations often follow the marginall copies, and forſake the Greeke text: as in examples aboue mentioned, Rom. 11. Apoc. 11. 2. Tim. 2. Iac. 5. &c. it is euident.

FVLKE. 42 You make very good concluſions of particulers: we our ſelues do ſometimes follow the marginal copies, as the true text, and leaue the common reading, Ergo the marginall copies, be alwayes the true text. In the examples by you noted, I haue ſhewed you what reaſons we haue, to prefer theſe marginall copies. Bring you the like like for thoſe which agree with your vulgar Latine, diſſenting from the common Greeke reading, and then your argument will be of ſome force, otherwiſe you may be aſhamed to vſe it.

RHEM. 43 4 If all Eraſmus Greeke copies haue not that which is in the vulgar Latine, Beza had copies which haue it, and thoſe moſt ancient (as he ſayeth) and better. And if all Bezas copies faile in this point, and will not helpe vs, Gagneie the French Kings Preacher, and he that might command in all the Kings libraries, he found Greeke copies that haue iuſt accordāg to the vulgar Latine: and that in ſuch place as would ſeeme otherwiſe leſſe probable, as Iac. 3. verſ. 5. Ecce quantus ignis quàm magnam ſiluam incendit! Beholde how much fire what a great wood it kindleth! A man would thinke it muſt bee rather as in the Greeke text. A little fire what a great wood it kindleth! But an approoued ancient Greeke copy alleaged by Gagneie, hath as it is in the vulgar Latine. And if Gagneis copies alſo faile ſome time, there Beza and Criſpin ſupply. Greeke copies fully agreeable to the vulgar Latin are Epi. Iudæ verſ. 5 Scientes ſemel omnia, quoniam IESVS &c. and verſ. 19 Segregant ſemetipſos. likewiſe 2. Epheſ. 2. Quòd elegerit vos primitias: ἀπαρχὰς in ſome Greeke copies. Gagn. & 2. Cor. 9. Veſtra æmulatio, ὁ ὑμῶν ζῆλος. ſo hath one Greeke copy. Beza.

Codex Veronenſis. ἥλικον πῦρ πόσην. ὕλ in uſc. ἑαυτοὺς

FVLKE. 43 This argument in effect, is the ſame with the former. Therefore except you proue that which any copy of Eraſmus, Beza, Gagneie, or any other man, hath agreeable to your vulgar Latine, to be a true, vncorrupted, and more learned & diligent copy, then the common Greeke text, you ſay nothing to the purpoſe. For the Latine text (as you ſaid before in the margent) muſt yeeld, and be corrected, according to the Fathers meaning, by the true and vncorrupted Greeke text, and by S. Auguſtines iudgement, by the more learned and diligent copies, therefore cannot be iuſtified by following any Greeke copy, though it be falſe, corrupted, leſſer learned, and more negligent. And as for ſome Greeke copies, it is not vnlike, but they haue by ſome perueꝛſe writers, bene altered according to the Latine, or negligently bene written or copied out of more truer copies.

RHEM. 44 5 If all their copies be not ſufficient, the ancient Greeke Fathers had copies and expounded them agreeable to our vulgar Latine, as 1. Tim. 6. 20. Prophanas vocum nouitates. So readeth S. Chryſoſtom, and expounded it againſt Hereticall and erroneous nouelties. Yet now we know no Greeke copy that readeth ſo. Likewiſe Io. 10. 29. Pater meus quod mihi dedit maius omnibus eſt. ſo readeth S. Cyril and expounded it li. 7. in Io. c. 10. likewiſe 1. Io. 4. 3. Omnis ſpiritus qui ſoluit IESVM ex Deo non eſt. ſo readeth S. Irenæus li. 3. c. 18. S. Auguſtine tract. 6. in Io. S. Leo epiſt. 10. c. 5. beſide Socrates in his Eccleſiaſtical hiſtory, li. 7. c. 22. and the Tripartite li. 12. c. 4. who ſay plainely, that this was the old and the true reading of this place in the Greeke. And in what Greeke copy extant at this day is there this text Io. 5. 2. Eſt autem Hieroſolymis probatica piſcina? and yet S. Chryſoſtom, S. Cyril, and Theophylacte read ſo in Greeke, and Beza ſaith it is the better reading, and ſo is the Latine text of the Romane Maſſe booke iuſtified, and eighs other Latine copies, that read ſo. for our vulgar Latine here, is according to the Greeke text, Super probatica, & Ro. 5. v. 17. Donationis & iuſtitiæ ſo readeth Theodoret in Greeke. & Lu. 2. v. 14. Origen and S. Chryſoſtom reade, Hominibus bonæ voluntatis, and Beza liketh it better then the Greeke text that now is.

The Greeke Fathers.

FVLKE. 44 This reaſon hath more pith, then all the foure that went before, therefore where as your vulgar Latine hath the conſent of the ancient Fathers of the Greeke Church, although there be no Greeke copy extant at this day, to warrant it, yet will wee not condemne it, as diſagreeing from the Greeke text. As in the firſt example you bring, 1. Tim. 6. 20. Although Oecumenius doeth read, as the common reading is now, yet hee telleth you that Chryſoſtome did reade as your vulgar Latine hath. Beza addeth, Baſil, and of the Latine Fathers Ambroſe, and Auguſtine, and confeſſeth that it hath a very good ſenſe, yet hee preferreth the other, peraduenture being mooued by auctoritie of the Syrian Interpreter, who tranſlateth it vanities, and not nouelties. But in your ſecond example of Ioan 10. 29. you were fowly beguiled to ſay, So readeth S. Cyril, and expounded it lib. 7. In Ioan. c. 10. For that ſeuenth booke, as the fifth, the ſixth, the eight, are none of S. Cyrils bookes, nor of any ancient Fathers, but were added by Iodocus Cliſthouius, a very late writer, becauſe theſe foure bookes of Cyril are loſt, and are no where extant, at this day. You ſhew your ſelues to be diligent readers of antiquitie, by this example. And yet you might haue bene admoniſhed, to beware of this ridiculous errour at this time, if you would haue vouchſafed to peruſe my reioynder to Briſtow, ſometime one of your crew, who made ſport with this authoritie of Cyril, to defend the vulgar Latine ones before, and was well laught at for his labour, as you are much more, among all the learned, which by his ſtumbling in the darke, could not beware of falling in the broad day light.

Your thirde example is of 1. Ioan. 3. Omnis ſpiritus qui ſoluit Ieſum, which Irenæus readeth ſo, but of Irenæus there may be a doubt, becauſe he did write in Greeke, and is tranſlated into Latine, by one that followed the vulgar Latine text very much, and was not ſo preciſe in expreſſing the wordes of Irenæus, as may appeare by that parcel of Irenæus in Greeke, which is reſerued in Epiphanius, if any man wil beſtow a litle time in compaꝛing them. As for S. Auguſtine in tract. 6. in Ioannē, readeth this text before his treatiſe, according to the Greeke text that now is, and afterward diſcourſeth at large vpon it. But towards the ende, he repeateth the text according to the vulgar Latine, and doeth briefly expound it, whereby it ſeemeth, that his booke had both the texts. Except wee ſhould ſuſpect, that thoſe fewe lines which concerne the vulgar Latine, were interlaced by ſome, that would ſhew what ſence the wordes of the vulgare Latine, might haue. And in deed the wordes in the concluſion, Quid nos docet, niſi vt facta interrogemus, verba non credamus, do very aptly agree with the ende of the ſentence immediatly before thoſe lines, adeo vt nouerit, quis ad facta venit. But let the trueth of this coniecture, be examined by the ancient written copies of S. Auguſtine. Lodouicus Viues noteth diuers lines, inſerted in his booke de Ciuitate Dei, which in other ancient copies were not to be found.

Section 36. Leo in deed, which liued after S. Auguſtine, and was a B. of Rome, followed herein the vulgar Latine text. Socrates and the Tripartite ſtory, which is but a repetition of Socrates, I haue anſwered before. So that except you had Irenæus in Greeke, you haue gained litle certaintie out of the ancient Fathers. Tertullian and Cyprian being for the Greeke reading that now is, as I haue ſhewed before, with all the Greeke Church.

Touching your fourth example, Ioan. 5. 2. if you can be content to let Piſcina be the nominatiue caſe, and by probatica vnderſtand a gate of Ieruſalem neere to the Temple ſo called, your vulgar Latine text is agreeable to the Greeke text, and need not be altered. And this is Bezaes iudgement, for the name of that gate, citing Nehemiah 3. 1. &c. And although Chryſoſtome and Cyril, and Theophylact deceiued by them, reade otherwiſe, yet Euthymius, who followed other ancient Fathers of the Greeke Church, readeth agreeably to the Greeke text that now is, and to the vulgar Latine.

Concerning your fifth example, Theodoret (as Beza telleth you) readeth the copulatiue cõiunction καὶ, betweene the two Nownes, ſignifying gift & iuſtice, but it appeareth not ſo by his Cõmentary. And his reading is not ſufficient to cõtrol al the copies, &c al other the Fathers of the Greek Church, as Chryſoſt. Photius, Oecumenius, Theophylactus. Laſt of al, Luc. 2. 14. the vulgar Latin is mainteined not only by Origen & Chryſoſtom, but alſo by a moſt ancient copy which Beza had, now kept in the Libratie of the Vniuerſity of Cambridge, &c is not misliked of Beza, although he follow the common reading warranted by all the rest of his Greeke copies, and many other of the ancient fathers. To conclude, if all the varieties of the vulgar Latine, had some auncient Greeke Father, or some old copie, to aduouch them, as a great number haue not: yet were not that sufficient to iustifie them, if the better learned and more diligent copies, bee against them, and the sence of the place do plainely require an other reading.

RHEM. 45 8 Where there is no such signe or token of any ancient Greeke copie in the Fathers, yet these later Interpreters tell vs, that the olde Interpreter did follow some other Greeke copy, as Mart. 7.3. Nisi crebro lauerint, Erasmus thinketh that he did read in the Greeke νιπτῶ, often: and Beza and others commend his coniecture, yea and the English Bibles are so translated, whereas now it is πυγμῇ, which signifieth the length of the arme vp to the elbow. And who would not thinke that the Euangelist should say, The Pharisees wash often, because otherwise they eate not; rather then than, Vnlesse they wash vp to the elbow, they eate not?

FVLKE. 45 We thinke verely, that the old Interpretor did follow some Greeke copy which he had, in places where hee hath not bene depraued. But whether it was alwayes a true, and vncorrupted copy which he followed, we must be bolde to examine by other copies, by consent of the Greeke fathers, by diligent marking the scope of the text, and by the ancient translations, which seeing they are often against your vulgar Latine text, although the Interpretor followed some Greeke copy, whether extant or not extant, he is not altogether to be excused, nor his translation, according to some corrupt copy, to be embraced as authentical. Beside this, it is often times manifest, that when his reading was the same that ours is, yet some times because hee vnderstood not the propertie of the Greeke word, or phrase, sometime because hee was not able to expresse it aptly in the Latine tongue, he hath committed many errors, meet to be amended, as in the annotations of Beza, Erasmus, and other, a great number may be seene. This reason therefore is of no force, to make it better then the Greeke generally, though the trueth of νιπτῶ for πυγμῇ, were granted vnto you: no more then a beggars cloake with an hundreth patches in it, is better then a faire gowne of veluet, that hath but one stitch amisse in it. Now as for the word in question, if it signifie vp to the elbow, as Theophylact and Euthymius do take it, I see no absurdity, although the Popish Priest at Masse, washeth onely his fingers endes (as superstition is some times nyce, some times insatiable) if we thinke that the Pharisees washed their handes to the elbowes. And peraduenture it is more probable, that they washed to the elbow, then that they washed often times before euery meale. But seeing the worde commeth of πυγμὴ, which signifieth a fist, the meaning may bee, they washed diligently, as they do, which often times rubbe one fist in an other: and so it may bee taken for often washing, as the Interpretor of Euthymius saith it is taken of all the Interpretors.

RHEM. 46 See Annot. Louan. in No. Test. & Annot. Lucæ Burgensis in Biblia. 7 If all such coniectures, and all the Greeke Fathers helpe vs not, yet the Latine Fathers with great consent will easily iustifie the olde vulgar translation, which for the most part they follow and expound, as Io. 7.39. Nondum erat spiritus datus, so readeth S. Augustine li. 4. de Trinit. c. 20. and li. 83. Quæst. q. 62. and tract. 32. in Ioan. Leo ser. 2. de Pentecoste. Whose authoritie were sufficient, but in deede Didymus also a Greeke Doctor readeth so li. 2. de Sp. sancto, translated by S. Hierom, and a Greeke copy in the Vaticane, and the Syriake new Testament. Likewise Io. 21. 22. Sic eum volo manere, so reade S. Ambrose, in Psal. 45. and Psal. 118. octonario Resh. S. Augustine & Ven. Bede vpon S. Iohns Gospel. The Latine Fathers.

FVLKE. 46 The consent of the Latine Fathers which folowed the vulgar text, which S. Hieronym in his time confessed to be corrupted, will not iustifie the vulgar translation, against all the Greeke copies, all the Fathers, all olde translations, all circumstances of the text, and that which you adde, all such coniectures.

The former example is not agreeable to the rule, for (as you say) it hath a Greeke copy in the Varicane, it hath the Syriake translation, and a Greeke author to warrant it, beside the authoritie of Augustine and Leo, Fathers of the Latine Church. And yet two make not so great a consent, to cary the matter from al copies, Fathers, translations, circumstances, and coniectures. But in trueth, your vulgar text, in some copies, hath according to the Greeke, Spiritus sanctus, and leaueth out datus, yet indeed, this is not to bee accompted a fault or varietie, though it bee not precisely according to the word, which expresseth the true meaning of the text, as all men except Macedonian heretikes (which deny the diuinitie of the holy Ghost) will confesse.

In your second example, you haue small consent, seeing Erasmus telleth you, that Augustine is corrupted, and Hieronyme (as you confesse in the next section,) is against you, and so are some copies of your vulgar translation. Then haue you no more but S. Ambrose: for venerable Beda hath according to the Greeke, si eum volo manere, by whom the corruption of S. Augustine is plainely discouered, seeing hee hath nothing in a maner of his owne, but the very words of S. Augustine vpon that place.

RHEM. 47 Præfat. in 4. Euang. ad Damasum. 8 And lastly, if some other Latine Fathers of ancient time, reade otherwise either here, or in other places, not all agreeing with the text of our vulgar Latine, the cause is, the great diuersitie and multitude that was then of Latine copies, (where of S. Hieron complaineth) til this one vulgar Latine grew only into vse. Neither doth their diuers reading make more for the Greeke, then for the vulgar Latine, differing oftentimes from both, as when S. Hierom in this last place readeth, Si sic eum volo manere, li. 1. adu. Iou. it is according to no Greeke copy now extant. And if yet there be some doubt, that the readings of some Greeke or Latin Fathers, differing from the vulgar Latin, be a checke or condemnation to the same: let Beza, that is, let the Aduersary himselfe, tell vs his opinion in this case also. Præfat. citata. Whosoeuer, saith he, shall take vpon him to correct these things, (speaking of the vulgar Latin translation) out of the ancient Fathers writings, either Greeke or Latine, vnlesse he do it very circumspectly, and aduisedly, he shall surely corrupt all, rather then amend it, because it is not to be thought, that as often as they cited any place, they did alwayes looke into the booke, or number euery word. As if he should say, We may not by and by thinke that the vulgar Latine is faulty and to be corrected, when we reade otherwise in the Fathers, either Greeke or Latine, because they did not alwayes exactly cite the words, but followed some commodious and godly sense thereof.

FVLKE. 47 I perceiue you will needs haue your vulgar Latine text to stand, though it haue neither Greeke copies, nor Greeke Fathers, nor good reason, which you call coniectures, nor the consent of the Latine Fathers, to mainteine it. For the diuers reading of the Latine Fathers, maketh no more for the Greeke, then for the vulgar Latine (you say) differing often times from both. Admit it be so, when they differ from both, yet when they agree with the Greeke, as you cannot deny, but often times they do, they make more for the Greeke then for the vulgar Latine. And where you say, they differ often from both, that one example that you bring, argueth that you haue no great store of examples, where they differ frō both. For the place of Hieronym agreeth fully with the sense of the Greeke, although he adde the word, se, which is not in the Greeke, yet maketh no alteration in the sentence, which is conditionall, where as your vulgar Latine is absolute, without condition. But to put the matter out of doubt, that no readings of some Latine or Greeke Fathers, differing from the vulgar Latine, is a checke or condemnation to the same, Beza his authoritie is cited, saying, that whosoeuer shall take vpon him to correct the vulgar Latine translation, out of the ancient Fathers writings, Greeke or Latine, vnleſſe he doe it very circumſpectly and aduiſedly, he ſhall rather marre then mend. This is your vſuall kinde of reaſoning, of a particular to inferre an vniuerſall. But what if he doe it circumſpectly, and aduiſedly? what if he haue not onely ſome Fathers writing, but alſo ſome Greeke copies, or all, or moſt that are extant? what if he haue good reaſons taken of the ſcope of the text, and circumſtances thereof? may he not then be bolde to correct ſome thing in the vulgar Latine translation? As whenſoeuer Beza, or any other learned man reprooueth the vulgar Latine interpretour, he doth it vpon the onely writing of ſome Father, who had not alwayes the booke by him, when he cited places of the Scripture, but either all or ſome of thoſe proofes, leading him to approoue the writing of that Father, to be the true text, and eſpecially ſome Greeke copy to warrant it.

RHEM. 48 Thus then we ſee that by all meanes the olde vulgar Latine translation is approoued good, and better then the Greeke text it ſelfe, and that there is no cauſe why it ſhould giue place to any other text, copies, or readings. Mary if there be any faults euidently crept in by thoſe that heretofore wrote or copied out the Scriptures (as there be ſome) then we graunt no leſſe, then we would grant faults now adayes committed by the Printer, and they are exactly noted of Catholike writers, namely in all Plantins Bibles ſet foorth by the Diuines of Louan: and the holy Councell of Trent willeth that the vulgar Latine text be in ſuch point throwly mended, and ſo to be moſt authenticall. Such faultes are theſe, In fide, for, in fines: Præſcientiam, for, præſentiam: Suſcipiens, for, Suſpiciens: and ſuch like very rare, which are eaſilne to ſuppoſe made by the copiſts, or grauers by the ſimilitude of words. Theſe being taken away, which are no part of thoſe corruptions and differences before talked of, we tranſlate that text which is moſt ſincere, and in our opinion, and as we haue proued, incorrupt. The Aduerſaries contrarily, tranſlate that text, which themſelues confeſſe both by their writings and liues, to be corrupt in a number of places, and more corrupt then our vulgar Latine, as is before declared.

The few & ſmall faults negligently crept into the vulgar Latine tranſlation.

FVLKE. 48 They haue very dimme eyes, that thorow theſe groſſe paralogiſmes, can ſee the vulgar Latine translation, in all points approued good, yea better then the true text it ſelfe of the Greeke, ſo that it may not giue place to any other text, copies, or readings, except it be in ſuch faults as are euidently crept in by the negligence of the writers, which you affirme to be very rare. But if you would correct your bookes, but euen according to ſome ancient readings and copies, obſerued in Plantins Bible, which you ſpeake of, you ſhould reforme many hundred places euen in the Newe Teſtament, and make them to be more agreeable to the Greeke text, then that you take to be your vulgar Latine translation. But except it be groſſe corruptions, that may be felt with the hand, you will not bend one ioynt to the Greeke text, ſuch malice you beare againſt the truth. Neuerthelleſſe you tranſlate that text (you ſay) which in your opinion is vncorrupt, we tranſlate the Greeke, which wee confeſſe to be corrupt, as you haue declared. What you haue declared, we haue I hope ſufficiently confuted: it is now time to ſee what you haue more to charge vs, with confeſſion of corruption in the Greeke text.

RHEM. 49 And if we would here ſtand to recite the places in the Greeke, which Beza pronounceth to be corrupted, we ſhould make the Reader to wonder, how they can either ſo plead otherwiſe for the Greeke text, as though there were no other truth of the Newe Teſtament but that: or how they tranſlate onely that (to wit, as they thinke, the olde vulgar Latine) which themſelues ſo ſhamefully diſgrace, more then the vulgar Latine, imagining corruptions where none are, nor can be, in ſuch vniuerſall conſent of all, both Greeke and Latine copies. For example, Mat. 10. The firſt Simon, Who is called Peter. thinke (ſaith Beza) this word πρῶτος, firſt, hath bene added to the text of ſome that would aboliſh Peters primacy. Againe, Luc. 22. The Chalice, that is ſhed for you. It is moſt likely (ſaith he) that theſe words, being ſometime but a marginall note, came by corruption out of the margent into the text. Againe, Act. 7. Figures which they made, to adore them. It may be ſuſpected (ſaith he) that theſe words, as many other, haue crept by corruption into the text out of the margent. And 1. Cor. 15. He thinketh the Apoſtle ſaid not νῖκος, victorie, as it is in all Greeke copies, but νῖκος, contention. and Act. 13. he calleth it a manifeſt errour, that in the Greeke it is, 400 yeares, for 300. And Act. 7. v. 16. he reckoneth vp a whole cataloque of corruptions, namely Marc. 12. v. 42. δύο λεπτὰ ἐστὶν κοδράντης, Which is a farthing: and Act. 8. v. 26. ἔρημός ἐστιν ἁπαξ, This is deſert. and Act. 7. v. 16. the name of Abraham, and ſuch like. All which he thinketh to haue bene added or altered into the Greeke text by corruption.

The Caluiniſts confeſſing the Greeke to be moſt corrupt, yet tranſlate that onely, and holde that onely for authenticall Scripture.

* In Annot. No. Teſt. an. 1556.

FVLKE. 49 The Caluiniſts (you ſay) confeſſe the Greeke text to be moſt corrupt, & yet tranſlate it onely: yes forſooth, they haue tranſlated the Syriake, and ſome parts of the Arabike, as they could get the copies. But who are they, that confeſſe the Greeke text to be moſt corrupt? You anſwere, Beza, bringing in his ſuſpition onely, in foure places. But a ſuſpition or opinion, is neither an affirmation nor a confeſſion. Yet let vs ſeuerally examine them. In the firſt place, he doth not ſo much as ſuſpect the matter, but onely maketh an obiection, and anſwereth it, approuing alſo with the ancient Fathers, the primacy of Peter, the primacy of order (I ſay) not of dignity. Yea he is ſo farre from ſuſpition of this matter, that Marke 3. 16. hee readeth Simon the firſt, where neither your vulgar Latine readeth ſo, nor the common printed Greeke text hath it ſo.

In the ſecond place, Luc. 22. 20. he ſaith it may be, that it came out of the margent into the text, but he doth not affirme it. He ſaith further, that Baſile readeth the Participle, with his article in the Datiue caſe, which taketh away all difficultie, yet becauſe all the copies extant, haue it in the Nominatiue caſe, he concludeth in the end, that the ſolœciſme may be excuſed by the propertie of the Hebrew tongue, expreſſed ſometimes in the Greeke, as I haue ſhewed at large in mine anſwere to Gregorie Martin. ca. 1. ſect. 37, 38, 39.

In the third place, he hath ſome light ſuſpition, that the words to adore them, might be remoued out of the margent into the text, as in all written bookes, many ſuch like words haue bene. The ground of this ſuſpition, is the authority of Iuſtinus Martyr, who citing this place againſt Tryphon the Iew, leaueth out thoſe words, to adore them, yet he ſheweth how it may ſtand with the ſence of the Hebrew text of the Prophet Amos: and ſpeaketh neuer a word of corruption.

In the fourth place, he noteth the grounds of his ſuſpition, to be the Greeke text of Oſee, and the authoritie of Auguſtine In Ioan. tract. 12. who readeth, Vbi eſt mors contentio tua? whereby it appeareth that the translation which he followed, did reade νῖκος, and not νῖκος. So readeth S. Cyprian ad Quirinum. lib. 3. cap. 58. and Tertullian De reſur. carn. yet becauſe of the generall conſent of all copies, and other writers, Beza reteineth the vſuall reading.

Now come we to thoſe places, which are paſt ſuſpition, as being manifeſtly affirmed to be corruptions. Of the firſt (you ſay) he calleth it a manifeſt errour, that in the Greeke it is 400 yeres for 300 yeres, Act. 13. But that is not ſo: for rehearſing many accounts, of Beroaldus, of Iunius, and other, he ſuſpecteth onely with Luther, that errour to be in the number, he doth not affirme it to be manifeſt.

The next place is, Act. 7. 15. where he thinketh the name of Abraham, by ſome vnskilfull perſon to be added as the name of Hieremie, Math. 27. and of Eſay, Marke 1. and Math. 13. as Hieronym confeſſeth in ſtead of Aſaph, where neither of both is read, at this day. And certeine it is, that Abraham bought his field of Ephron, not of the ſonnes of Emor. And Iacob it was that purchaſed the field of Emor, the father of Sichem, as S.

not misliked of Beza, although he follow the common reading warranted by all the rest of his Greeke copies, and many other of the ancient fathers. To conclude, if all the varieties of the vulgar Latine, had some auncient Greeke Father, or some old copie, to aduouch them, as a great number haue not yet were not that sufficient to iustifie them, if the better learned and more diligent copies, bee against them, and the sence of the place do plainely require an other reading.

RHEM. 45 8 Where there is no such signe or token of any ancient Greeke copie in the Fathers, yet these later Interpreters tell vs, that the olde Interpreter did follow some other Greeke copy, as Marc. 7.3. Nisi crebro lauerint. Erasmus thinketh that he did read in the Greeke νυγμῆ, often: and Beza and others commend his coniecture, yea and the English Bibles are so translated, whereas now it is πυγμῆ, which signifieth the length of the arme vp to the elbow. And who would not thinke that the Euangelist should say, The Pharisees wash often, because otherwise they eate not, rather then, Vnlesse they wash vp to the elbow, they eate not?

FVLKE. 45 We thinke verely, that the old Interpretor did follow some Greeke copy which he had, in places where hee hath not bene depraued. But whether it was alwayes a true, and vncorrupted copy which he followed, we must be bolde to examine by other copies, by consent of the Greeke fathers, by diligent marking the scope of the text, and by the ancient translations, which seeing they are often against your vulgar Latine text, although the Interpretor followed some Greeke copy, whether extant or not extant, he is not altogether to be excused, nor his translation, according to some corrupt copy, to be embraced as authentical. Beside this, it is often times manifest, that when his reading was the same that ours is, yet some times because hee vnderstood not the propertie of the Greeke word, or phrase, sometime because hee was not able to expresse it aptly in the Latine tongue, he hath committed many errors, meet to be amended, as in the annotations of Beza, Erasmus, and other, a great number may be seene. This reason therefore is of no force, to make it better then the Greeke generally, though the trueth of νυγμῆ for πυγμῆ, were granted vnto you: no more then a beggars cloake with an hundreth patches in it, is better then a faire gowne of veluet, that hath but one stitch amisse in it. Now as for the word in question, if it signifie vp to the elbow, as Theophylact and Euthymius do take it, I see no absurditie, although the Popish Priest at Masse, washeth onely his fingers endes (as superstition is some times nyce, some times insatiable) if we thinke that the Pharisees washed their handes to the elbowes. And peraduenture it is more probable, that they washed to the elbow, then that they washed often times before euery meale. But seeing the worde commeth of πυγμὴ, which signifieth a fist, the meaning may bee, they washed diligently, as they do, which often times rubbe one fist in an other: and so it may bee taken for often washing, as the Interpretor of Euthymius saith it is taken of all the Interpretors.

RHEM. 46 See Annot. Louan. in No. Test & Annot. Lucæ Burgensis in Biblia. 7 If all such coniectures, and all the Greeke Fathers helpe vs not, yet the Latine Fathers with great consent will easily iustifie the olde vulgar translation, which for the most part they follow and expound, as 1o.7.39. Nondum erat spiritus datus. so readeth S. Augustine li. 4. de Trinit. c. 20. and li. 83. Quæst. q. 62. and tract. 32. in Ioan. Leo ser. 2. de Pentecoste. Whose authoritie were sufficient, but in deede Didymus also a Greeke Doctor readeth so li. 2. de Sp. sancto, translated by S. Hierom, and a Greeke copy in the Vaticane, and the Syriake new Testament. Likewise 1o. 21. 22. Sic eum volo manere, so reade S. Ambrose, in Psal. 45. and Psal. 118. octonario Resh. S. Augustine & Ven. Bede vpon S. Iohns Gospel. The Latine Fathers.

FVLKE. 46 The consent of the Latine Fathers which folowed the vulgar text, which S. Hieronym in his time confessed to be corrupted, will not iustifie the vulgar translation, against all the Greeke copies, all the Fathers, all olde translations, all circumstances of the text, and that which you adde, all such coniectures.

The former example is not agreeable to the rule, for (as you say) it hath a Greeke copy in the Vaticane, it hath the Syriake translation, and a Greeke author to warrant it, beside the authoritie of Augustine and Leo, Fathers of the Latine Church. And yet two make not so great a consent, to cary the matter from al copies, Fathers, translations, circumstances, and coniectures. But in trueth, your vulgar text, in some copies, hath according to the Greeke, Spiritus sanctus, and leaueth out datus, yet indeed, this is not to bee accompted a fault or varietie, though it bee not precisely according to the word, which expresseth the true meaning of the text, as all men except Macedonian heretikes (which deny the diuinitie of the holy Ghost) will confesse.

In your second example, you haue small consent, seeing Erasmus telleth you, that Augustine is corrupted, and Hieronyme (as you confesse in the next section,) is against you, and so are some copies of your vulgar translation. Then haue you no more but S. Ambrose: for venerable Beda hath according to the Greeke, si eum volo manere, by whom the corruption of S. Augustine is plainely discouered, seeing hee hath nothing in a maner of his owne, but the very words of S. Augustine vpon that place.

RHEM. 47 Præfat. in 4. Euang. ad Damasum. 8 And lastly, if some other Latine Fathers of ancient time, reade otherwise either here, or in other places, not all agreeing with the text of our vulgar Latine, the cause is, the great diuersitie and multitude that was then of Latine copies, (whereof S. Hierom complaineth) til this one vulgar Latine grew only into vse. Neither doth their diuers reading make more for the Greeke, then for the vulgar Latine, differing oftentimes from both, as when S. Hierom in this last place readeth, Si sic eum volo manere, li. 1. adu. Iou. it is according to no Greeke copy now extant. And if yet there be some doubt, that the readings of some Greeke or Latin Fathers, differing from the vulgar Latin, be a checke or condemnation to the same: let Beza, that is, Præfat. citata. let the Aduersary himselfe, sel vs his opinion in this case also. Whosoeuer, saith he, shall take vpon him to correct these things, (speaking of the vulgar Latin translation) out of the ancient Fathers writings, either Greeke or Latine, vnlesse he do it very circumspectly, and aduisedly, he shall surely corrupt all, rather then amend it, because it is not to be thought, that as often as they cited any place, they did alwayes looke into the booke, or number euery word. As if he should say, We may not by and by thinke that the vulgar Latine is faulty and to be corrected, when we reade otherwise in the Fathers, either Greeke or Latine, because they did not alwayes exactly cite the words, but followed some commodious and godly sense thereof.

FVLKE. 47 I perceiue you will needs haue your vulgar Latine text to stand, though it haue neither Greeke copies, nor Greeke Fathers, nor good reason, which you call coniectures, nor the consent of the Latine Fathers, to mainteine it. For the diuers reading of the Latine Fathers, maketh no more for the Greeke, then for the vulgar Latine (you say) differing often times from both. Admit it be so, when they differ from both, yet when they agree with the Greeke, as you cannot deny, but often times they do, they make more for the Greeke then for the vulgar Latine. And where you say, they differ often from both, that one example that you bring, argueth that you haue no great store of examples, where they differ frō both. For the place of Hieronym agreeth fully with the sense of the Greeke, although he adde the word, sic, which is not in the Greeke, yet maketh no alteration in the sentence, which is conditionall, where as your vulgar Latine is absolute, without condition. But to put the matter out of doubt, that no readings of some Latine or Greeke Fathers, differing from the vulgar Latine, is a checke or condemnation to the same, Beza his authoritie is cited, saying, that whosoeuer shall take vpon him to correct the vulgar Latine translation, out of the ancient Fathers writings, Greeke or Latine, vnleſſe he doe it very circumſpectly and aduiſedly, he ſhall rather marre then mend. This is your vſuall kinde of reaſoning, of a particular to inferre an vniuerſall. But what if he doe it circumſpectly, and aduiſedly? what if he haue not onely ſome Fathers writing, but alſo ſome Greeke copies, or all, or moſt that are extant? what if he haue good reaſons taken of the ſcope of the text, and circumſtances thereof? may he not then be bolde to correct ſome thing in the vulgar Latine tranſlation? As whenſoeuer Beza, or any other learned man reprooueth the vulgar Latine interpretour, he doth it vpon the onely writing of ſome Father, who had not alwayes the booke by him, when he cited places of the Scripture, but either all or ſome of thoſe proofes, leading him to approoue the writing of that Father, to be the true text, and eſpecially ſome Greeke copy to warrant it.

RHEM. 48 Thus then we ſee that by all meanes the olde vulgar Latine tranſlation is approoued good, and better then the Greeke text it ſelfe, and that there is no cauſe why it ſhould giue place to any other texte, copies, or readings. Mary if there be any faults euidently crept in by thoſe that heretofore wrote or copied out the Scriptures (as there be ſome) then we graunt no leſſe, then we would grant faults now alwayes committed by the Printer, and they are exactly noted of Catholike writers, namely in all Plantins Bibles ſet foorth by the Diuines of Louan: and the holy Councell of Trent willeth that the vulgar Latine text be in ſuch points throwly mended, and ſo to be moſt authenticall. Such faults are thoſe, In fide, for, in fines Præſcientiam, for, præſentiam: Suſcipiens, for, Suſcipiens: and ſuch like very rare, which are euident corruptions made by the copiſts, or grauers by the ſimilitude of words. Thoſe being taken away, which are no part of thoſe corruptions and differences before talked of, we tranſlate that text which is moſt ſincere, and in our opinion, and as we haue proued, incorrupt. The Aduerſaries contrarily, tranſlate that text, which themſelues confeſſe both by their writings and deedes, to be corrupt in a number of places, and more corrupt then our vulgar Latine, as is before declared.

The few & ſmall faults negligently crept into the vulgar Latine tranſlation.

FVLKE. 48 They haue very diuine eyes, that thorow theſe groſſe paralogiſmes, can ſee the vulgar Latine tranſlation, in all points approued good, yea better then the true text it ſelfe of the Greeke, ſo that it may not giue place to any other text, copies, or readings, excepte it be in ſuch faults as are euidently crept in by the negligence of the writers, which you affirme to be very rare. But if you would correct your bookes, but euen according to ſome ancient readings and copies, obſerued in Plantins Bible, which you ſpeake of, you ſhould reforme many hundred places euen in the Newe Teſtament, and make them to be more agreeable to the Greeke text, then that you take to be your vulgar Latine tranſlation. But except it be groſſe corruptions, that may be felt with the hand, you will not bend one ioynt to the Greeke text, ſuch malice you beare againſt the truth. Neuertheleſſe you tranſlate that text (you ſay) which in your opinion is vncorrupt, we tranſlate the Greeke, which wee confeſſe to be corrupt, as you haue declared. What you haue declared, we haue I hope ſufficiently confuted: it is now time to ſee what you haue more to charge vs, with confeſſion of corruption in the Greeke text.

RHEM. 49 And if we would here ſtaid to recite the places in the Greeke, which Beza pronounceth to be corrupted, we ſhould make the Reader to woonder, how they can either ſo plead otherwiſe for the Greeke text, as though there were no other truth of the Newe Teſtament but that: or how they tranſlate onely that (to deface, as they thinke, the olde vulgar Latine) which themſelues ſo ſhamefully diſgrace, more then the vulgar Latine, inuenting corruptions where none are, nor can be, in ſuch vniuerſall conſent of all, both Greeke and Latine copies. For example, Mat. 10. The firſt Simon, Who is called Peter. thinke (ſaith Beza) this word πρῶτος, firſt, hath bene added to the text of ſome that would eſtabliſh Peters primacy. Againe, Luc. 22. The Chalice, that is ſhed for you. It is moſt likely (ſaith he) that theſe words (being ſometime but a marginall note) came by corruption out of the margent into the text. Againe, Act. 7. Figures which they made, to adore them. It may be ſuſpected (ſaith he) that theſe words, as many other, haue crept by corruption into the text out of the margen. And 1. Cor. 15. He thinketh the Apoſtle ſaid not νῖκος, victorie, as it is in all Greeke copies, but ἔρις, contention. And Act. 13. he calleth it a manifeſt errour, that in the Greeke it is, 400 yeares, for 300. And Act. 7. v. 16. he reckoneth vp a whole catalogue of corruptions, namely Marc. 12. v. 42. ὅ ἐστι κοδράντης, Which is a farthing: and Act. 8. v. 26. αὕτη ἐστὶν ἔρημος, This is deſert. and Act. 7. v. 16. the name of Abraham, and ſuch like. All which he thinketh to haue bene added or altered into the Greeke text by corruption.

The Caluiniſts confeſſing the Greeke to be moſt corrupt, yet tranſlate that onely, and holde that onely for authenticall Scripture.

* In Annot. No. Teſt. an. 1556.

FVLKE. 49 The Caluiniſts (you ſay) confeſſe the Greeke text to be moſt corrupt, & yet tranſlate it onely: yes forſooth, they haue tranſlated the Syriake, and ſome parts of the Arabike, as they could get the copies. But who are they, that confeſſe the Greeke text to be moſt corrupt? You anſwere, Beza, bringing in his ſuſpition onely, in foure places. But a ſuſpition or opinion, is neither an affirmation nor a confeſſion. Yet let vs ſeuerally examine them. In the firſt place, he doth not ſo much as ſuſpect the matter, but onely maketh an obiection, and anſwereth it, approuing alſo with the ancient Fathers, the primacy of Peter, the primacy of order (I ſay) not of dignity. Yea he is ſo farre from ſuſpition of this matter, that Marke 3. 16. hee readeth Simon the firſt, where neither your vulgar Latine readeth ſo, nor the common printed Greeke text hath it ſo.

In the ſecond place, Luc. 22. 20. he ſaith it may be, that it came out of the margent into the text, but he doth not affirme it. He ſaith further, that Baſile readeth the Participle, with his article in the Datiue caſe, which taketh away all difficultie, yet becauſe all the copies extant, haue it in the Nominatiue caſe, he concludeth in the end, that the ſolœciſme may be excuſed by the propertie of the Hebrew tongue, expreſſed ſometimes in the Greeke, as I haue ſhewed at large in mine anſwere to Gregorie Martin. ca. 1. ſect. 37, 38. 39.

In the third place, he hath ſome light ſuſpition, that the words to adore them, might be remoued out of the margent into the text, as in all written bookes, many ſuch like words haue bene. The ground of this ſuſpition, is the authority of Iuſtinus Martyr, who citing this place againſt Tryphon the Iew, leaueth out thoſe words, to adore them, yet he ſheweth how it may ſtand with the ſence of the Hebrew text of the Prophet Amos: and ſpeaketh neuer a word of corruption.

In the fourth place, he noteth the grounds of his ſuſpition, to be the Greeke text of Oſee, and the authoritie of Auguſtine In Ioan. tract. 12. who readeth, Vbi eſt mors contentio tua? whereby it appeareth that the tranſlation which he followed, did reade νῖκος, and not νῖκε. So readeth S. Cyprian ad Quirinum. lib. 3. cap. 58. and Tertullian De reſur. carn. yet becauſe of the generall conſent of all copies, and other writers, Beza retaineth the vſuall reading.

Now come we to thoſe places, which are paſt ſuſpition, as being manifeſtly affirmed to be corruptions. Of the firſt (you ſay) he calleth it a manifeſt errour, that in the Greeke it is 400 yeres for 300 yeres, Act. 13. But that is not ſo: for rehearſing many accounts, of Beroaldus, of Iunius, and other, he ſuſpecteth onely with Luther, that errour to be in the number, he doth not affirme it to be manifeſt.

The next place is, Act. 7. 15. where he thinketh the name of Abraham, by ſome vnskilfull perſon to be added as the name of Hieremie, Math. 27. and of Eſay, Marke 1. and Math. 13. as Hieronym confeſſeth in ſtead of Aſaph, where neither of both is read, at this day. And certeine it is, that Abraham bought his field of Ephron, not of the ſonnes of Emor. And Iacob it was that purchaſed the field of Emor, the father of Sichem, as S.

Hierom

Hierom sayth. Now if you can giue the true sense, not leauing out the name of Abraham, you shall deserue great commendation. In the meane time, Beza telleth you, it maketh no vncerteinty or corruption in the Scripture, if a name or two, by error of some bolde writers, not of the authour, be placed amisse, which by conference of other places, may easily be espied, and reformed. The place, Marke 12.42. though he was long troubled, as he confesseth, about the reckoning of it, yet in the end he findeth out the true account, how two mites make a quadrant, and suspecteth no maner of corruption at all.

Neither in the last place, doeth hee so much as suspect any corruption or addition, but onely referreth the word Desert, to the way, and not to the city, although the city of Gaza at that time was not inhabited. This section therefore proueth not, that the Caluinists (as you terme them) confesse the Greeke to be most corrupt. For here is onely one name certeinly iudged to be vntruely added, as all men confesse, the name of Ieremy, Math. 27. to be, and two or three light and vncerteine suspitions, about masters of small weight, and such as can make no alteration of doctrine, the rest are false and vniust accusations.

RHEM. 50 But among other places, he laboureth exceedingly to proue a great corruption, Act. 7.14. where it is sayd (according to the Septuaginta, that is, the Greeke text of the olde Testament) that Iacob went downe into Egypt with 75 soules. And Luc. 3.36. he thinketh these words τοῦ Καϊνὰν, Which was of Cainan, to be so false, that he leaueth them cleane out in * Ann. Do. 1556. and 1565. both his editions of the new Testament, saying, that he is bolde so to doe, by the authority of Moyses. Whereby he will signifie, that it is not in the Hebrew text of Moyses or of the olde Testament, and therefore it is false in the Greeke of the newe Testament. Which consequence of theirs (for it is common among them, and concerneth all Scriptures) if it were true, all places of the Greeke text of the new Testament, cited out of the old according to the Septuaginta, and not according to the Hebrue (which they know are very many) should be false, and so by tying themselues onely to the Hebrue in the old Testament, they are forced to forsake the Greeke of the new: if they will maintein the Greeke of the new, they must forsake sometime the Hebrue in the old, but this argument shall be forced against themselues here.

They standing precisely vpon the Hebrew of the olde, and Greeke text of the new Testament, must of force deny the one of them.

FVLKE. 50 He sheweth out of Hieronym, that the Greeke text of the Septuaginta, in his time, agreed with the originall of the Hebrew in the number of 70. and therefore he thinketh τοῦ Καϊνὰν is but in stead of τοῦ Σαλὰ. But all men be not of his opinion, therfore although the matter be not great, it is no reason, that the whole Church (for that they meane by the Caluinists) should be charged for one mans opinion (& that but in one matter of no moment, to change the doctrine) to confesse the Greeke text to be most corrupt.

In the place, Luc. 3.36. he iudgeth τοῦ Καϊνὰν to be falsly added to S. Luke, not onely by authority of Moses, which were sufficient, but also by testimony of an ancient Greeke copy, which now is at Cambridge. But all your quarrels, touching Qui fuit Cainan, I haue confuted in my Defence against Gregory Martin, in the Preface, Sect. 18.20.

RHEM. 51 By this litle, the Reader may see what gay patrones they are of the Greeke text, and how litle cause they haue in their own iudgement to translate it, or vse of it, as in derogation of the vulgar Latine translation, and how easily we might answere them in a word, why we translate not the Greeke: forsooth because it is so infinitely corrupted. But the trueth is, we doe by no meanes grant it so corrupted as they say, though in comparison we know it lesse sincere and incorrupt then the vulgar Latine, and for that cause and others before alledged, we preferre the sayd Latine, and haue translated it.

They say the Greeke is more corrupt then we will grant them.

FVLKE. 51 The Greeke text of the New Testament needeth no patronage of men, as that which is the very word and trueth of God. The sincerity of our translations, against all your friuolous cauillations, hath hitherto, thanks be to God, bene so strongly defended, as you haue no list any more to assaile it. And as touching your easie answere that you can make, why you translate not the Greeke, forsooth because it is so infinitely corrupted, all men of reasonable vnderstanding may conceiue, how well you haue proued this infinit corruption. The summe of all your reasons being drawen together, your argument is this: One man suspecteth here and there, in three or foure places, some deptauation, or els in a name and a number, thinketh there is some corruption, ergo by confession of all the Caluinists, the Greeke text is infinitely corrupted. But you tell vs, you will not grant the Greeke to be so corrupt, as we say, though you know it lesse sincere, and vncorrupt, then the Latine, and therefore you preferre it, and haue translated it. Well, if you know the Greeke text that now is, to be sincere, where any of vs hath but suspected or iudged it to be corrupt: and we haue proued it to be sincere, where you haue slandered it to be corrupt: there is no reason, why you should not acknowledge it to be very perfect, and therefore haue translated it, rather then the vulgar Latine: which your owne Bibles of Plantines edition, whereunto you referre vs, doe conuince of infinit varietie, which as S. Hieronym sayth, is a manifest argument of falsehood, and as yet it is not decided among you, in that varietie, which reading is to be followed, as true and authenticall.

Præf. ad Damas. in 4. Euangelia.

RHEM. 52 If yet there remaine one thing which perhaps they will say, when they cannot answere our reasons aforesayd: to wit, that we prefer the vulgar Latine before the Greeke text, because the Greeke maketh more against vs: we protest that as for other causes we preferre the Latine, so in this respect of making for vs or against vs, we allow the Greeke as much as the Latine, yea in sundry places more then the Latine, being assured that they haue not one, and that we haue many aduantages in the Greeke more then in the Latine, as by the Annotations of this new Testament shall euidently appeare: namely in all such places where they dare not translate the Greeke, because it is for vs, and against them. as when they translate, δικαιώματα, ordinances, and not, iustifications, and that of purpose, as Beza confesseth Luc. 1,6. πρεσβύτερους, Elders, and not Priests: εἰδώλια, images rather then idols. and especially when S. Luke in the Greeke so maketh for vs (the vulgar Latine being indifferent for them & vs) that Beza saith it is a corruption crept out of the margent into the text. What need these absurd deuises and false dealing with the Greeke text, if it made for them more then for vs, yea if it made not for vs against them? But that the Greeke maketh more for vs, see 1 Cor. 7. In the Latine, Defraud not one another, but for a time, that you giue your selues to prayer. In the Greeke, to fasting and prayer. Act. 10,30. In the Latine Cornelius sayth, From the fourth day past, vntill this houre I was praying in my house, and behold a man &c. in the Greeke, I was fasting, and praying. 1. Io. 5. 18. In the Latine, We know that euery one which is borne of God, sinneth not, but the generation of God preserueth him &c. in the Greeke, but he that is borne of God preserueth himselfe. Apoc. 22,14. In the Latine, Blessed are they that wash their garments in the blood of the Lambe &c. in the Greeke, Blessed are they that do his commandements. Rom. 8,38. Certus sum &c. I am sure that neither death nor life, nor other creature is able to separate vs from the charitie of God. as though he were assured, or we might and should assure our selues of our predestination. in the Greeke, πέπεισμαι, I am probably perswaded that neither death nor life &c. In the Euangelists, about the Sacrifice and B. Sacrament, in the Latine thus: This is my blood that shall be shed for you: and in S. Paul, This is my body which shall betrayed or deliuered for you: both being referred to the time to come, and to the sacrifice on the crosse. in the Greeke, This is my blood which is shed for you: and, my body which is broken for you: both being referred to that present time when Christ gaue his body and blood at his supper, then shedding the one and breaking the

Luc. 12, v. 20.

We preferre not the vulgar Latine text, as making more for vs. The Greeke text maketh for vs more then the vulgar Latine. For the reall presence.

For fasting.

For free will.

Against onely faith.

Against speciall assurance of saluation.

For the sacrifice of Christs body and blood.

the other, that is, ſacrificing it ſacramentally and myſtically. Loe theſe and the like our aduantages in the Greeke, more then in the Latine.

FVLKE. 52 A great token of your true meaning, that you preferre not the vulgar Latine, as making more for you, in which reſpect in theſe Annotations it ſhall appeare, that you haue more aduantage in the Greeke then in the Latine, being aſſured that we haue not one, and you many aduantages in the Greeke. Theſe Popiſh brags all that reade your writings, are ſo well acquainted with them, that we need not ſtand in doubt of them: hauing tried by often experience, that when the matter commeth to approouement, your arguments are no better then a falſe and feeble cauſe can afoord you, as in anſwere to the Annotations, by Gods helpe, it will be made manifeſt: In the meane ſpace, you note vnto vs certein places, where you haue more aduantage in the Greeke then in the Latine. Firſt, in ſuch places where we dare not tranſlate the Greeke, becauſe it maketh for you, againſt vs. Secondly, where the Greeke hath ſome wordes making for you, which the Latine hath not. Of the firſt ſort, is the word Iuſtificationes, Luke 1. which we call ordinances of purpoſe (as Beza confeſſeth) And why ſhould we not of purpoſe auoid that terme, which may be cauſe of ambiguitie and errour, when the word in that place ſignifieth another thing? as I haue ſhewed at large in my defence againſt Martin. Cap. 1. ſect. 50. and Cap. 8. ſect. 1. and the other ſections following.

For the word traditiones, mine anſwere is, Cap. 2. in all the ſections: for the words Elders, Prieſts, Cap. 6. for images and idols, Cap. 3. for the place of Luke 22. 20. as I haue ſhewed before, Cap. 1. ſect. 37. 38. 39.

But to come to the latter ſort, firſt you bring two texts, 1. Cor. 7. and Acts 16. 30. where faſting is mentioned in the Greeke text, which is not in the vulgar Latine. O impudent ſlanderers, doe we denie faſting, becauſe we denie your Antichriſtian prohibition and abſtinence from meats, to be Chriſtian faſting? God be praiſed, our doctrine is ſound for faſting, would God our practiſe were as often, as our iudgement is pure and agreeable to the holy Scriptures, in an hundred places almoſt, that commend faſting.

Your next aduantage is for free-will, not flat Pelagianiſme I hope, but catercouſin with it, that mans will being holpen with Gods grace, is free: and we hold, that it is free from conſtraint, but not from bondage of ſinne, Rom. 7. And what other thing can you proue out of that text, 1. Ioh. 5. 18. he that is borne of God, preſerueth himſelfe: dare you ſay by force of free-will, and not by the ſtrength of Gods grace? Make your ſyllogiſme, & giue vs a plaine concluſion, and we ſhall ſee what aduantage the Greeke text giueth you.

Another giueth you aduantage againſt onely faith. What is that, I pray you? Apoc. 22. 14. Bleſſed are they that doe his commandements: a goodly aduantage, I promiſe you. They that are iuſtified by faith onely in his merits, doe his commandements, and none other. Againſt ſpeciall aſſurance of ſaluation, you haue Rom. 8. 38. S. Paul ſayth not as it is in the Latine, Certus ſum, I am ſure, but πέπεισμαι, I am probably perſwaded. Verily either the Greeke word ſignifieth I am ſure, ſo as I cannot be deceiued, or els your vulgar Latine tranſlation is falſe. And where he ſayth, I am perſwaded, he noteth the certeintie of the word and Spirit of God, whereby he hath this aſſurance.

Your laſt aduantage is about the ſacrifice of the B. Sacrament, where the Greeke text vſeth the preſent tenſe, referring that breaking of his bodie, and ſhedding of his blood, to the preſent ſacrificing of it ſacramentally, and myſtically: but I would aduiſe you to beware, leſt while you ſeeke aduantage for a ſacrifice, you leeſe your beſt argument for the reall preſence, as you terme it. For you are wont to reaſon thus: Hee gaue that which ſhould be crucified, but his naturall body was crucified, therefore he gaue his naturall body: and ſo he did, to be receiued ſpiritually, as in a ſacrament or myſterie. But to ſhut you from your ſacrifice, the word of ſhedding ſo often repeated will be ſufficient, except you haue forgotten your olde diſtinction of his vnbloody ſacrifice from his bloody ſacrifice: if his blood be ſhed in the ſacrament, then is the ſacrament alſo a bloody ſacrifice. When you haue weighed all, I hope you will ſee, it is ſmall paines that you gather by this aduantage, that you need not crie out and ſay, Loe theſe and the like our aduantages in the Greeke more then in the Latine. Nay rather theſe be your fantaſies of the Greeke, and of the Latine.

RHEM. 53 *But is the vulgar tranſlation for all this Papiſticall, and therefore do we follow it? (for ſo ſome of them call it, and ſay it is the * worſt of all other) If it be, the Greeke (as you ſee) is more, and ſo both Greeke and Latine, and conſequently the holy Scripture of the New Teſtament is Papiſticall. Againe, if the vulgar Latine be Papiſticall, Papiſtry is very ancient, and the Church of God for ſo many hundred yeeres wherein it hath vſed and allowed this tranſlation, hath beene Papiſticall. But wherein is it Papiſticall? forſooth in theſe phraſes and ſpeeches*, Pœnitentiam agite. Sacramentum hoc magnum eſt. AVE GRATIA PLENA. Talibus hoſtiis promeretur Deus. and ſuch like. Thirdly, doth he not ſay for, Pœnitentiam agite, in another place, Pœnitemini: and doth he not tranſlate other myſteries, by the word, Sacramentum, as Apoc. 17. The Proteſtants condemning the old vulgar tranſlation as making for vs, condemne themſelues.

It is void of all partialitie.

FVLKE. 53 There is none of vs, that calleth the vulgar tranſlation of the New Teſtament papiſticall, as though it were tranſlated by Papiſts, or els made ſo greatly for Papiſts, when it is rightly vnderſtood: but becauſe it is ſo magnified by the Papiſts, that it is preferred before the Greeke, which is the originall tongue, in which the Newe Teſtament was written, and commanded by the Tridentine Papiſts, to be counted the onely authenticall text. And he that ſayd, the vulgar tranſlation is woorſt of all, ſpake of the vulgar tranſlation of the whole Bible, in compariſon of the Hebrew of the Olde Teſtament, and of the Greeke of the New Teſtament, and of the Septuaginta in Greeke, and the Latine thereof. Your fond concluſions, the Greeke is more Papiſticall, and Papiſtry in very very ancient, if the vulgar translation be papistically, be as good as your antecedent: Some of them call it so, which I am sure, no man of learning hath done, otherwise then I haue before declared, except it be for that it is abused of Papists, to mainteine Popery, when indeed the translatour had no such meaning, as in the three first examples it is manifest: for by pœnitentiam agite, he meant not popish doing of penance, but true and Christian repentance: yet you will not giue ouer the shew of popish penance and satisfaction, that you haue by that translation. Likewise, by Sacramentum, Eph.5.32. he meant nothing but a mysterie generally, as the trueth of the Greeke is, and as you doe well proue out of his translation of the same word, Apoc.c.17. Neuertheless, if you giue ouer the holde, you would seeme to haue of that translation, to make matrimony a Sacrament of the New Testament, in that sense that Baptisme and the Lords supper are called Sacraments: you shall haue no shew in the Scriptures to dazell the eyes of the ignorant. For GRATIA PLENA, I thinke, if he had vnderstood the force of the Greeke word rightly, he would haue translated it otherwise. That he translateth the very like word, plenus vlceribus, which we also translate, full of sores, it may excuse him of partiall affection, but cannot defend his translation, to expresse the sense of the Greeke word. For the very like word he translateth iustificari, being iustified or made iust, not full of iustice, Rom.3.24. and 1.Cor.4.4. Iustificatus sum, I am iustified. But concerning the last phrase, Heb.13. because he could not expresse his owne minde in Latine, I know not what his meaning was, but leaue it to God, and himselfe. Neuertheless it is certeine, that it is not onely barbarous, but also false and blasphemous to say, that by good works Gods fauour is deserued.

The actiue of this verbe, Heb.11,5.and 6. he translateth placuisse and placere, to please and to haue pleased: what els can the passiue then signifie, but to be pleased? which perhaps he meant, if he had knowen any Latine word of the passiue voice that had signified so much, for lacke of which, he vsed the terme, which was of the common people vsed in that sense.

Now where he vseth the word mereri, Heb 10.29. you say we like it well enough: but how know you our liking so well? we may allow the sense of the translation as good, because wicked men are thought woorthy punishment according to their deserts: but we doe not allow the translation, to be agreeable to the sense of the Greeke word ἀξιωθήσεται, and therefore he could not haue sayd truely, according to the same Greeke verbe: watch that you may deserue to escape all these things, and to stand before the sonne of man, and so of the rest: for not onely his translation had beene vntrue, but the sentences thorow his vntrue translation had beene false: for though men deserue, and are accounted worthy of punishment and damnation by sinne, yet they deserue not Gods graces and his kingdome by their works, but are accounted worthy of his blessing and eternall felicity, for Christes sake of Gods meere mercy. But you aske whether Primasius, S. Augustines scholar, were a Papist, for vsing this text, and all the rest that haue done the like? I answere no. For Primasius meaneth nothing else, but that God is pleased, (as the Greeke word signifieth) to accept such sacrifices. Talibus enim hostijs & muneribus eleemosynarum, promeretur Deus adipisci, vnde dicit per Prophetam, Misericordiam volo & non sacrificium: Non est considerandus pauper, qui videtur accipere, sed potius qui iussit dare: eleemosyna enim quæ pauperi largitur in terra, à Deo recipitur in cœlo. Et nolo attendere quod hoc sit tibi redditurus quod accepit: tu enim terrena dedisti, æterna mercaberis. With such sacrifices and gifts God is pleased to receiue them: wherefore he sayth by the Prophet, I will mercie and not sacrifice. The poore man is not to be considered, which seemeth to receiue, but rather hee which commanded to giue: for the almes which is giuen to the poore man vpon earth, is receiued of God in heauen. And thinke not that he will render vnto thee that which he hath receiued: for thou hast giuen earthly things, but thou shalt purchase eternall things. These be the words of Primasius vpon that text, which declare, that promereor was vulgarly taken for delector, to be pleased or delighted. Neither doth he meane any meriting by the terme of purchasing, which he vseth: for he was an vtter enemie to the Pelagians, as his master, Augustine, was, but onely, that God of his mercy doth crowne and reward his owne gifts, not our merits, as S. Augustine sayth. And when he vseth the name of merits, he meaneth simply, works, as many of the olde writers did in that time: for otherwise there is no Father so cleere for iustification by faith onely, as Primasius is, Rom.3. vpon these words, being iustified freely. Audi gratis (sayth he) & tace de meritis: Heare this word freely, and holde thy peace of merits. Likewise vpon Rom. 4. and many other places: and whoso vsed this text according to this meaning, we take them not for Papists.

But further you demand, whether S. Cyprian was a Papist, for vsing so often this speech, Promereri dominum iustis operibus, pœnitentia, &c. I answere as before. The vsing of the words maketh not a Papist, but the popish meaning, which S. Cyprian hath not, but that God is pleased with iust works and obedience, repentance and humilitie, not merited or deserued: for he citeth the Scripture plentifully, that we ought to glory in nothing, seeing nothing is ours. Test. ad Quirin. cap. 4. And that we must put our trust onely in God, and glory in him. cap. 10. Your last question, Was it papistry to say Senior for Presbyter, &c. is foolish trifling: We accuse not your translatour of papistry, though you abuse his vntrue or vnperfect translations, sometime to the defence of papistry.

RHEM. 54 Matth.16. Iohn 20. Matth.16. Iames 2. 1.Tim 5. 1.Iohn 5. Hebr.12.

Againe, was he a Papist in these kinde of words onely, and was he not in whole sentences? as, Tibi dabo claues, &c. Quicquid solueris in terra, erit solutum & in cœlis. and Quorum remiseritis peccata, remittuntur eis. and, Tunc reddet vnicuique secundum opera sua. and Nunquid poterit fides saluare eum? Ex operibus iustificatur homo & non ex fide tantùm. and Nubere volunt, damnationem habentes, quia primam fidem irritam fecerunt. and Mandata eius grauia non sunt. and Aspexit in remunerationem. Are all these, and such like, papistically translations, because they are most plaine for the Catholike faith which they call Papistrie? Are they not word for word as in the Greeke? and the very words of the holy Ghost? And if in th se there be no accusation of papistically partialitie, why in the other? Lastly, are the ancient Fathers, Generall Councels, the Churches of all the West part, that vse all these speeches and phrases now so many hundred yeeres, are they all papistically? Be it so, and let vs in the name of God follow them, speake as they spake, translate as they translated, interpret as they interpreted, because we beleeue as they beleeued. And thus farre for defence of the olde vulgar Latine translation, and why we translated it before all others. Now of the maner of translating the same.

The papistrie thereof (as they terme it) is in the very sentences of the Holy Ghost, more then in the translation.

FVLKE. 54 We haue answered before of the words: and for the sentences we say, they are no papisticall translations, neither doe they any thing in the world fauour papistrie: for they are well translated, and the very words of the holy Ghost: when you can conclude any papistry out of these sentences in good and lawfull forme of arguments, we will yeeld to your papistry. Finally, the ancient Fathers, generall Councels, and Churches of the West part, that vsed these speeches before papistry was hatched and fully shapen, were not all Papists, but most of them professed enemies to the vsurped tyranny of the Pope, to the pride of his Clergie, to merit of works works and of free-will: and were mainteiners of iuſtification by faith only, of the mariage of them that were not able to keepe the vow of continence (as in anſwere to theſe Annotations it ſhall more fully appeare) and by their owne words not mangled, gelded, and falſified, as they were in your Annotations, but truely ſet downe as their bookes ſhall teſtifie, whereby it ſhall be euident, that you beleeue not as they beleeued, nor interpret as they interpreted, as you vſe not the tranſlation that many of them vſed, nor ſpeake as they ſpake.

RHEM. 55 *IN THIS OVR TRANSLATION, becauſe we wiſh it to be moſt ſincere, as becommeth a Catholike tranſlation, and haue endeuoured ſo to make it: we are very preciſe and religious in following our copy, the old vulgar approued Latine: not onely in ſenſe, which we hope we alwayes doe, but ſometime in the very words alſo and phraſes, which may ſeeme to the vulgar Reader and to common Engliſh eares not yet acquainted therewith, rudeneſſe or ignorance: but to the diſcreet Reader that deeply weigheth and conſidereth the importance of ſacred words and ſpeeches, and how eaſily the voluntarie tranſlatour may miſſe the true ſenſe of the Holy Ghoſt, we doubt not but our conſideration and doing therin, ſhall ſeeme reaſonable and neceſſary: yea and that all ſorts of Catholike Readers will in ſhort time thinke that familiar, which at the firſt may ſeeme ſtrange, and will eſteeme it more, when they ſhall * otherwiſe be taught to vnderſtand it, then if it were the common knowen Engliſh.*

The maner of this tranſlation, and what hath bene obſcrued therein.

* See the laſt Table at the end of the booke.

For example, we tranſlate often thus, Amen, Amen, I ſay vnto you. Which as yet ſeemeth ſtrange: but after a while it will be as familiar, as Amen in the end of all prayers and Pſalmes. and euen as when we end with Amen, it ſoundeth farre better then So be it: ſo in the beginning, Amen Amen, muſt needs by vſe and cuſtome ſound farre better, then Verily verily. *Which in deed doth not expreſſe the aſſeueration and aſſurance ſignified in this Hebrew word. beſides that it is the ſolemne and vſuall word of our Sauiour * to expreſſe a vehement aſſeueration, and therefore is not changed, neither in the Syriake, nor Greeke, nor vulgar Latine Teſtament, but is preſerued and vſed of the Euangeliſts and Apoſtles themſelues, euen as Chriſt ſpake it, propter ſanctiorem authoritatem, as Saint Auguſtine ſayth of this and of* Allelu-ia, for the more holy and ſacred authoritie thereof, lib. 2. Doct. Chriſt. cap. 11. And therefore do we keepe the word Allelu-ia Apoc. 19. as it is both in Greeke and Latine, yea and in all the Engliſh tranſlations, though in their bookes of Common prayer they tranſlate it, Praiſe ye the Lord. Againe, if Hoſanna, Raca, Belial, and ſuch like, be yet vntranſlated in the Engliſh Bibles, why may not we ſay, Corbana, and Paraſceue: ſpecially when they Engliſhing this latter thus, The preparation of the Sabbath, put three words more into the text, then the Greeke word doth ſignifie. Math. 27. 62. And others ſaying thus, After the day of preparing, make a cold tranſlation and ſhort of the ſenſe, as if they ſhould tranſlate, Sabboth, the reſting. for, * Paraſceue is as ſolemne a word for the Sabboth eue, as Sabboth is for the Iewes ſeuenth day. and now among Chriſtians much more ſolemne, taken for Good-friday onely. Theſe words then we thought farre better to keepe in the text, and to tell their ſignification in the margens or in a table for that purpoſe, then to diſgrace both the text and them with tranſlating them. Such are alſo theſe words, The Paſche. The feaſt of Azymes. The bread of propoſition. Which they tranſlate The Paſſeouer, The feaſt of ſweet bread, The ſhew bread. But if Pentecoſt Act. 2. be yet vntranſlated in their Bibles, and ſeemeth not ſtrange: why ſhould not Paſche and Azymes ſo remaine alſo, being ſolemne feaſts, as Pentecoſt was? or why ſhould they Engliſh one rather then the other? ſpecially whereas Paſſeouer at the firſt was as ſtrange, as Paſche may ſeeme now, and perhaps as many now vnderſtand Paſche, as Paſſeouer. and as for Azymes, when they Engliſh it, The feaſt of ſweet bread, it is a falſe interpretation of the word, and nothing expreſſeth that which belongeth to the feaſt, concerning vnleauened bread. And as for their terme of ſhew bread, it is very ſtrange and ridiculous. Againe, if Proſelyte be a receiued word in the Engliſh Bibles, Mat. 23. Acts 2: why may not we be bolde to ſay, Neophyte, 1. Tim. 3 ? ſpecially when they tranſlating it into Engliſh, doe falſly expreſſe the ſignification of the word thus, a yong ſcholar. Whereas it is a peculiar word to ſignifie them that were lately baptized, as Catechumenus, ſignifieth the newly inſtructed in faith not yet baptized, who is alſo a yong ſcholar rather then the other, and many that haue bene olde ſcholars, may be Neophytes by differring baptiſme. And if Phylacteries be allowed for Engliſh, Mat. 23. we hope that Didragmes alſo, Prepuce, paraclete, and ſuch like, will eaſily grow to be currant and familiar. And in good ſooth there is in all theſe ſuch neceſſitie, that they cannot conueniently be tranſlated. as when S. Paul ſaith, conciſio non circumciſio: how can we but follow his very words and alluſion? And how is it poſſible to expreſſe Euangelizo, but as we do, Euangelize? for Euangelium being the Goſpel, what is, Euangelizo or to Euangelize, but to ſhew the glad tidings of the Goſpel, of the time of grace, of all Chriſts benefits? All which ſignification is loſt, by tranſlating as the Engliſh Bibles do, I bring you good tidings, Luc. 2. 10. Therefore we ſay Depoſitum, 1. Tim. 6. and, He exinanited himſelfe, Philip. 2. and, You haue refloriſhed, Philip. 4. and, to exhauſt, Heb. 9. 28. becauſe we cannot poſſibly attaine to expreſſe theſe words fully in Engliſh, and we thinke much better, that the reader ſtaying at the difficulty of them, ſhould take an occaſion to looke in the table following, or otherwiſe to aske the full meaning of them, then by putting ſome vſuall Engliſh words that expreſſe them not, ſo to deceiue the reader. Sometime alſo we doe it for another cauſe. as when we ſay, The aduent of our Lord, and, Impoſing of hands. becauſe one is a ſolemne time, the other a ſolemne action in the Catholike Church, to ſignifie to the people, that thoſe and ſuch like names come out of the very Latine text of the Scriptures. So did Penance, doing penance, Chalice, Prieſt, Deacon, Traditions, aultar, hoſt, and the like (which we exactly keepe as Catholike termes) proceed euen from the very words of Scripture.

Certeine words not Engliſh, nor as yet familiar in the Engliſh tongue.

Catholike termes proceeding from the very text of Scripture.

FVLKE. 55 Not the deſire of ſinceritie, but rather of obſcuritie, hath made you to thruſt in a great number of wordes, not onely Hebrew, or Syriake, which are found in the Greeke text, but alſo Greeke and Latine words, leauing the Engliſh words of the ſame, which by long vſe, are well knowen and familiar in the Engliſh tongue. And as for Hebrew and Syriake words, which are found in the Greeke text, it is not to be miſliked that they ſhould be brought alſo into the Engliſh tongue: becauſe the Spirit of God, not without cauſe writing Greeke, did thinke it meet to receiue them. And therefore in our tranſlations, we reteine them all, except a few that are vſually expreſſed in Engliſh: as Amen Amen in the beginning of a ſentence, which might well haue beene vſed, but that the tranſlatour ſtudied to be more plaine, and to expreſſe the meaning of that aſſeueration. Alleluia we vſe in the New Teſtament, becauſe we finde it in the Greeke Teſtament: but when we tranſlate the Olde Teſtament, there is no reaſon why we ſhould not tranſlate it into Engliſh, aſwell as other words of the text. We ſay alſo Hoſanna, Raca, Belial, yea, and Corbona, becauſe we finde them in the originall text. But as for Greeke termes, which may well enough be expreſſed in the Engliſh tongue, wee ſee no cauſe why wee ſhould reteine them, as Paraſceue, Azymes, Neophyte. And if you had ſo religious a care to vſe all the Greeke words in your Engliſh tranſlation, which you find in your vulgar Latine text, then would you aſwell as theſe haue tranſlated, theſe and ſuch like Greeke words as your Latine text hath, Magi, Eccleſia, Architriclinus, Encænia, Dyſcolus, Pyra, Nauclerus, Typhonicus, Bolis, Artemon, Dithalaſſus. Mages, Eccleſe, Architricline, Encenes, Dyſcoles, Pyre, Nauclere, Typhonike, Bole, Artemon, Dithalaſſe, and not as you haue done, Sages, Church, Chiefe ſteward, Dedication, Wayward, Fire, Maſter of the ſhip, Tempeſtious, Sownd, Maineſaile, a place betweene two Seas. where if we ſhould picke quarrels as you doe againſt vs, we ſhould make our ſelues to all wiſe people ridiculous, as you are. You neither like that our tranſlation calleth Paraſceue, the day of preparing, nor the preparation of the Sabbath, & yet both are true, according as the word is taken in that place. You ſay it is a ſolemne word for the Sabbath Eue: but you are ſhort of the ſenſe, for it is taken for a whole day before the Euening, and for the day of preparing: neither of which things are conteined in your Popiſh terme, Eue. Where you ſay, it is taken for Good friday onely, Ignatius is againſt you, Epi. 5. vſing it for euery Friday. We tranſlate Paſcha, Eaſter, or Paſſeouer, the one being the vſuall Engliſh terme for that feaſt, the other expreſſing the meaning of the Hebrew word. And what ſignifieth Azyma but Sweet bread, and Vnleauened bread, as wee tranſlate it, and Panes propoſitionis but the Shew-bread, or the bread that is ſhewed? yet you ſay, that the one is falſe, the other ridiculous and ſtrange: neuertheleſſe ſome of the beſt learned among you, haue vſed thoſe termes, as Heskins lib. 1. cap. 15. and 22. Stapleton tranſlat. of Beda lib. 5. c. 22. You miſlike that Neophytus is tranſlated a yoong ſcholar, and will haue it reſtreined to thoſe that are newly baptized, though they be olde ſcholars. We know, that Neophytus doth ſignifie one lately planted, and ſo were they called, that were lately baptized, in as much as by the viſible ſigne of baptiſme, they were newly ingraffed into the faith: but if any ſuch were well learned, he was not excluded from the office of a Biſhop, from which Saint Paul excludeth Neophytum, as appeareth by the ſtorie of Saint Ambroſe, who was choſen Biſhop before he was baptized, and ordeined Biſhop the eight day after he was baptized. Neither doth Catechumenus ſignifie alway him that is not baptized, for Saint Paul vſeth it, Galat. 6. 6. for euery one that is inſtructed. If Phylacteria could as well be Engliſhed either for ſenſe or terme, as Didragma, Paracletus, and ſuch like, I thinke the tranſlatours would not haue fained a terme of the Greeke word: although the word Phylacteries was vſuall in the Engliſh tongue, before our late tranſlations, as appeareth in the Hom. of Wicleffe vpon the Tueſday in the ſecond weeke of Lent, where he alſo ſheweth what they were. Conciſion we vſe alſo, to expreſſe the alluſion vnto circumciſion: but there is no ſuch like reaſon, for Prepuce, depoſitum, gratis, and ſuch like Latine words as you vſe. Euangelium ſignifieth the glad tidings of the Goſpel, and ſo we tranſlate Luk. 2. Euangelizo I bring you glad tidings. And yet Iodochus Lorichius a Popiſh doctour, in his Goſpel, contendeth that Euangelium ſignifieth properly Bonum nuntium Good tidings, rather then glad tidings. So that by his iudgement, that which you reproue, is the better tranſlation. But why doe you not call Euangelium the Euangile, as the Scots doe? aſwell as Euangelizare to Euangelize, but that you affect noueltie of words, to obſcure the Goſpel, as much as you can. In the reſt which you call Catholike termes, you are glad to haue a ſound of words out of the Scripture for a ſhew, ſeeing you haue no matter at all to iuſtifie your Popiſh Aduent, penance, traditions, and ſuch like.

Euangelium Lorichij.

RHEM. 56 Moreouer, wee preſume not in hard places to mollifie the ſpeeches or phraſes, but religiouſly keepe them word for word, and point for point, for feare of miſſing, or reſtraining the ſenſe of the Holy Ghoſt to our fantaſie, as Epheſ. 6. Againſt the ſpirituals of wickedneſſe in the celeſtials. and, What to mee and thee woman? whereof ſee the Annotation vpon this place. and 1. Likewiſe Luc. 4. 36. What word is this, that in power and authority he commandeth the vncleane ſpirits? as alſo Luc. 2. Let vs paſſe ouer, and ſee the word that is done, Where we might ſay, thing, by the Hebrew phraſe, but there is a certaine maieſtie & more ſignification in theſe ſpeeches, and therefore both Greeke and Latine keepe them, although it is no more the Greeke or Latine phraſe, then it is the Engliſh. And why ſhould wee be ſquamiſh as new words or phraſes in the Scripture, which are neceſſary: when we doe eaſily admit and follow new words coined in court and in country or other ſecular writings?

Certeine hard ſpeeches and phraſes.

The Proteſtants preſumptuous boldneſſe and libertie in tranſlating.

Matth. 5. Gehenna ignis.

FVLKE. 56 By all meanes you labour to ſuppreſſe the light of trueth, vnder one pretence or another. For what preiudice had it bene to the ſenſe, if you had tranſlated ſpirituales nequitiæ, ſpirituall wickedneſſe, as you doe deſyderijs carnis luxuriæ, the deſires of fleſhly riotouſneſſe, 2 Pet. 2. 18? Your ſecond example, Ioh. 2. is no hard phraſe in Greeke, but very vulgar and common, ſignifying as we haue tranſlated, what haue I to do with thee woman? but that you are angry with Chriſt for reprehending his mother, when ſhe was in fault: whom you hold to be void of all ſinne, euen originall, contrary to the Scriptures. Otherwiſe you are not ſo preciſe in the ſame phraſe: For Matth. 8. 29. Quid nobis & tibi, you tranſlate, What is betweene vs and thee?

In the third example, ſome of your olde copies agreeing with the trueth of the Greeke, why doe you follow the errour of the reſt of your copies, but that you loue darkeneſſe rather then light? In the fourth example, the words of the text following, Thou heareſt the ſound thereof, doe plainly argue, that ſpiritus in that place, ſignifieth the winde, and not the holy Ghoſt. For the ſound or noiſe of the holy Ghoſt is not heard. Neither doe the ancient Fathers otherwiſe tranſlate it, though by that text, as they may well, they proue the free working of Gods ſpirit.

In the fifth, it is plaine both out of the text, and out of S. Matthew 8. 24. that the veſſell was filled with the waues of water. In the ſixth example, Luc. 22. 5. Paul, 1. Cor. 11. doth warrant vs, that this is S. Lukes meaning, This cup is the New Teſtament. But you know why you would haue hidden it as much as is poſſible, becauſe it is direct againſt tranſubſtantiation. In the ſeuenth, our tranſlation is according to the meaning, as appeareth, Matth. 24. 21. though yours be more preciſe to the word of S. Marke.

In the eight place, you ſay, that we too too boldly and preſumptuouſly adde the word Scripture, Iam. 4. 6. ſaying, the Scripture giueth greater grace, whereas you leaue it indifferent to the Scripture, and the holy Ghoſt, both going before. By which reprehenſion you verifie the ſaying of the Apoſtle, The ſpirit that dwelleth in you luſteth to enuie. For except enuie of our well doing, had blinded your eyes, you would neuer haue ſaid, that the holy Ghoſt is that ſpirit that luſteth vnto enuie, as both your vulgar tranſlation, and you your ſelues doe render the text.

In the ninth, you ſeeke a knot in aruſh, Heb. 12. 21. for whether this word (that) be added or omitted, the sense is all one. And you your selues adde many other words for explication, as it is necessarie for euery translatour.

Men and brethren, is our English phrase, as Masters and friends, of the same persons. And what difference is there betweene a widow woman, and a woman that was a widow? A woman a sister, the originall text saith not, 1.Cor.9. but a sister to wife: for it were absurd to say, A sister a woman. But where you say, the hell of fire, Gehẽnna ignis, seeing your Latine is gehenna ignis, why say you not, the gehenna of fire, as you say, Pasche, and not Passeouer. Amen Amen, and not verily verily? If you may expresse not onely the phrase, but also the Hebrew word in English, without offence against the maiestie of that speech, we may be bolde to bring the Hebrew phrase into the English tongue, so as it may be vnderstood of English men.

RHEM. 57 We adde the Greeke in the margent for diuers causes. Sometime when the sense is hard, that the learned reader may consider of it, and see if he can helpe himselfe better then by our translation, as Luc.11. Nolite extolli. μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε. and again, Quod superest date eleemosynam. τὰ ἐνόντα. Sometime to take away the ambiguity of the Latine or English. as Luc.11. Et domus supra domum cadet. Which we must needs English, and house vpon house shall fall. by the Greeke, the sense is not, one house shall fall vpon another, but, if one house rise vpon it selfe, that is, against it selfe, it shall perish, according as he speaketh of a kingdome diuided against it selfe, in the words before. And Act.14. Sacerdos Iouis qui erat in the Greeke, qui, is referred to Iupiter. Sometime to satisfie the Reader, that might otherwise conceiue the translation to be false. as Philip.4.v.9. But in euery thing by prayer &c. ἐν παντὶ προσευχῇ, not, in all prayer, as in the Latine it may seeme. Sometime when the Latine neither doth, nor can, reach to the signification of the Greeke word, we adde the Greeke Mat.4. also as more significant. Illi soli seruies, him onely shalt thou serue, λατρεύσεις. And Act.6. Nicolas a stranger of Antioche, προσήλυτος. and Rom 9. The seruice, ἡ λατρεία. and Eph.1. to perfite, instaurare omnia in Christo, ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι. and. Wherein he hath gratified vs, ἐχαρίτωσεν. and Eph.6. Put on the armour, πανοπλίαν. and a number the like. Sometime, when the Greeke hath two senses, and the Latine but one, we adde the Greeke. 2.Cor.1. By the exhortation wherewith we also are exhorted. the Greeke signifieth also consolation, &c. and 2.Cor.10. But hauing hope of your faith increasing, to be &c. where the Greeke may also signifie, as or when your faith increaseth. Sometime for aduantage of the Catholike cause, when the Greeke maketh for vs more then the Latine, as, Seniores, πρεσβυτέρους. Vt digni habeamini. ἵνα ἀξιωθῆτε. Qui effunditur, τὸ ἐκχυνόμενον, Precepta, παραδόσεις. and Io.21. βόσκε, Pasce & rege. And sometime to shew the false translation of the heretike. as when Beza sayth, Hoc poculum in meo sanguine qui. τὸ ποτήριον ἐν τῷ ἐμῷ αἵματι τὸ ἐκχυνόμενον. Luc.22. and Quem oportet cœlo contineri. ὃν δεῖ οὐρανὸν δέξασθαι, Act 3. Thus we vse the Greeke diuers wayes, and esteeme of it as it is worthy, and take all commodities thereof for the better vnderstanding of the Latine, which being a translation, cannot alwayes attaine to the full sense of the principall tongue, as we see in all translations.

Act.2. 2.Thess.2. 1.Cor.11.

The Greeke added often in the margent for many causes.

FVLKE. 57 Seeing you confesse, that the Latine being a translation, cannot alwaies attaine to the full sense of the principall tongue, why did you not translate out of the Greeke which is the principall tongue? And why doth the Tridentine assembly authorise that translation for onely authenticall, which neither doth nor can attaine to the full sense of the principall tongue, before the text of the principall tongue it selfe? As for the aduantage of your cause whereof you speake, hath bene exactly examined already, and more shalbe in the proper places.

RHEM. 58 Item we adde the Latine word sometime in the margent, when either we can not fully expresse it, (as Act.8. They tooke order for Steuens funerall, Curauerunt Stephanum. and, All take not this word, Non omnes capiunt.) or when the Reader might thinke, it cannot be as we translate, as, Luc.8. A storme of winde descended into the lake, and they were filled, & complebantur. and Io.5. when Iesus knew that he had now a long time, quia iam multum tempus haberet. meaning, in his infirmity.

The Latine text sometime noted in the margent.

FVLKE. 58 If you added the Latine word euery time, that you giue not the precise signification therof, you should make your selfe sometimes, and sometimes your vulgar Latine translation ridiculous, euen to children that are yong Grammarians, as when you translate fœnerator a creditour, Luc.7. stabulum an inne, Luc.10. nauis a boat, Mar 8. nauicula a ship, Luc.5. Non quia de egenis pertinebat ad eum. Not because he cared for the poore, and such like.

RHEM. 59 The precise following of our Latine text, in neither adding nor diminishing, is the cause why wee say not in the title of bookes, in the first page, S. Matthew, S. Paul: because it is so neither in the Greeke nor Latine. though in the tops of the leaues following, where we may be bolder, we adde, S. Matthew, &c. to satisfie the Reader. Much vnlike to the Protestants Bib. an. 1579. 1580. our aduersaries, which make no scruple to leaue out the name of Paul in the title of the Epistle to the Hebrewes, though it Ann. 1577.1562. be in euery Greeke booke which they translate. And their most authorised English Bibles leaue out (Catholike) in the title of S.Iames Epistle and the rest, which were famously knowen in the Primitiue church by the name of Catholicę Epistolę. Euseb. hist. Eccl. li.2.c.22.

In the beginning of bookes. Matthew, Paul, &c. not S.Matthew, S.Paul, &c.

Item we giue the reader in places of some importance, another reading in the margent, specially when the Greeke is agreeable to the same, as Io.4. transiet de morte ad vitam. Other Latine copies haue, transijt, and so it is in the Greeke.

Another reading in the margent.

FVLKE. 59 How precise you are, let those few examples last before remembred testifie. And for adding, let your owne confession beare witnesse Curauerunt Stephanum. They tooke order for Steuens funerall. Where a plaine dressing of his battered body vnto buriall is signified, and no pompous funerall. And if I should follow such small quarrels, as you do, I might bring in plenty of examples, as 2.Cor.8. Qui multum, he that had much, and Qui modicum non minorauit, he that had litle, wanted not. 2.Cor.1. Supra virtutem, aboue our power. 1.Cor.13. Enacuauī quæ erant parauli, I did away the things that belonged to a litle one.

For diminishing, take these examples. 1.Cor.14. Si quid autem volunt discere, but if they learne any thing, Will or Desire left out. Act.25. Festus autem respondit seruari Paulū in Cæsarea. But Festus answered that Paul is in Cæsarea, this word (kept) being omitted. But Act.10.41. in a place of great importance, and a matter of some controuersie, the text is diminished of a whole clause testibus præordinatis à Deo, for which you giue vs no English at all. Likewise Heb.7 28. in a matter of controuersie, where the Latine is, Lex enim homines constituit sacerdotes, infirmitatem habentes, you translate for the Law appointeth priests, them that haue infirmity, leauing out Homines. where the antithesis is betweene the Priesthood of men, and of the Sonne of God.

These be diminishings of your Latine text, which otherwise is defectiue from the Greeke in an hundred places. yet you make a great matter, that the name of Paul is left out, in the title of the Epistle to the Hebrewes, and the name of Catholike in the title of the Epistle of S. Iames. But the titles are no part of the word of God. yet haue we also those titles in some of our translations. And one ancient Greeke copy leaueth out the name of Paul. Again, those other fiue Epistles are called Catholike or General, not as though the doctrine of them, were more sound and Catholike then the doctrine of S.Pauls Epistles, but because they are directed to no speciall city or countrey, but either vniuersally to all Christians, or to all Iewes, inhabiting many nations.

RHEM. 60 We binde not our selues to the poines of any copy, print, or edition of the vulgar Latine, in places of no controuersie, but follow the pointing most agreeable to the Greeke and to the Fathers Commentaries. As Col.1.10. Ambulantes dignè

Deo, per omnia placentes. Walking worthy of God, in all things pleasing. ἀξίως τοῦ κυρίου εἰς πᾶσαν ἀρεσκείαν. Eph. 1.17. We point thus, Deus Domini nostri Iesu Christi, pater gloriæ. as in the Greeke, and S. Chrysostome, and S. Hierom both in text and commentaries. Which the Catholike reader specially must marke, lest hee finde fault, when he seeth our translation disagree in such places from the pointing of his Latine Testament. The pointing sometime altered.

We translate sometime the word that is in the Latine margent, and not that in the text, when by the Greeke or the Fathers we see it is a manifest fault of the writers heretofore, that mistooke one word for another. as, in fine, not in fide, 1. Pet. 3. v. 8. præsentiam, not, præscientiam, 2. Pet. 1. v. 16. Heb. 13. latuerunt, not, placuerunt. The margent reading sometime preferred before the text.

Thus haue we endeuoured by all meanes to satisfie the indifferent reader, and to helpe his vnderstanding euery way both in the text, and by annotations: and withall to deale most sincerely before God and man, in translating and expounding the most sacred text of the holy Testament. Farewell good Reader, and if we profit thee any whit by our poore paines, let vs for Gods sake be partakers of thy deuout prayers, and together with humble and contrite heart call vpon our Sauiour Christ to cease these troubles and stormes of his deerest spouse: in the meane time comforting our selues with this saying of S. Augustine: That Heretikes, when they receiue power corporally to afflict the Church, do exercise her patience: but when they oppugne her onely by their euill doctrine or opinions, then they exercise her wisdome. De ciuit. Dei. li. 18. cap. 51.

FVLKE. 60 You take enough vnto you, to vse your iudgement in pointing, which may alter the whole sense, and sometimes giue a contrary meaning. And as you are bolde sometime to preferre the margent reading, before the text, when by the Greeke or the Fathers, you see it is a manifest fault of the writer, so might you haue done in many more places, and made your translation more agreeable to the trueth of the Greeke text: if you had not rather to flie from the trueth, then to come no neerer then you be enforced.

Now that I also in a word, may let the Reader vnderstand my purpose in answere to the Annotations: I meane not to striue for euery word in the margent, as the names of Popish feasts, and such like, neither to meddle with those Annotations, which although they be not rightly gathered out of the text, yet conteine no impietie or slander of the Church, or the true members thereof. But onely with such as are framed against the trueth, and the mainteiners thereof.

1 The infallible authoritie and excellencie of them aboue all other writings.

S. Augustine li. 11. cont. Faustum. cap. 5.

THe excellencie of the Canonicall authoritie of the Olde and New Testament, is distincted from the bookes of later writers: which being confirmed in the Apostles times, by the successions of Bishops, and propagations of Churches, is placed as it were in a certeine throne on high, whereunto euery faithfull and godlie vnderstanding must be subiect and obedient. There, if any thing moue or trouble thee as absurd, thou mayest not say, The authour of this booke held not the trueth: but either the copy is faultie, or the translatour erred, or thou vnderstandest not. But in the works of them that wrote afterward, which are conteined in infinite bookes, but are in no case equall to that most sacred authority of CANONICALL SCRIPTVRES: in which soeuer of them is found euen the same trueth, yet the authoritie is farre vnequall.

RHEM. A

2 The discerning of Canonicall from not Canonicall, and of their infallible trueth, and sense, commeth vnto vs, onely by the credit wee giue vnto the Catholike Church: through whose commendation we beleeue both the Gospel and Christ himselfe. Whereas the Sectaries measure the matter by their fansies & opinion.

S. Augustine cont. Epist. fundament. cap. 5.

Luther, Caluin. I for my part, would not beleeue the Gospel, vnlesse the authority of the CATHOLIKE CHVRCH mooued me. They therefore whom I obeyed, saying, Beleeue the Gospel: why should I not beleeue them, saying, Beleeue not * Manicheus? Chuse whether thou wilt. If thou wilt say, Beleeue the Catholiks: loe they warne me that I giue no credit vnto you: and therefore beleeuing them, I must needs not beleeue thee. If thou say, Beleeue not the Catholiks: it is not the right way, by the Gospel to driue me to the faith of Manicheus, because I beleeued the Gospel it selfe by the preaching of the Catholiks.

Againe li. de vtilit. credend. cap. 14.

I see that concerning Christ himselfe, I haue beleeued none, but the confirmed and assured opinion of peoples and nations: and that these peoples haue on euery side possessed the mysteries of the CATHOLIKE CHVRCH. Why should I not therefore most diligently require, specially among them, what Christ commanded, by whose authority I was moued to beleeue that Christ did command some profitable thing? Wilt thou (ô Heretike) tell me better what he sayd? whom I would not thinke to haue bene at all, or to be, if I must beleeue, because thou sayest it. What grosse madnesse is this, to say, Beleeue the Catholiks, that Christ is to be beleeued: and learne of vs, what he sayd.

Thou seest then in this matter what force the authority of the CATHOLIKE CHVRCH hath, which euen from the most grounded and founded seats of the Apostles, is established vntill this day, by the line of Bishops succeeding one another, and by the consent of so many peoples. Whereas thou sayest, This is Scripture, or, this such an Apostles, that is not: because this soundeth for me, and the other against me. Thou then art the rule of trueth. whatsoeuer is against thee, is not true.

FVLKE. A Elay 51. The trueth and sense of the Scripture, commeth not onely by the credit we giue vnto the Church, but also by the spirit of God, which giueth witnesse to his word, as the Prophet sayth, * My spirit which is within thee, and my wordes which I haue put in thy mouth, and in the mouth of thy seed, shall not faile for euer. And therefore you falsifie S. Augustines authority, in translating Commoueres mooued. For he sayth, as there were many things, which held him in the Catholike faith, so, if he were not an infidel, he would not beleeue the Gospel, vnlesse the authority of the Church Commoueret, with other things did moue him. And although the authority of the Church (for the most part) doe first moue the outward man, to know and reuerence the Scriptures: yet afterward, by the spirit and the word, he is confirmed in the faith of them, so that now he beleeueth, not onely for the authority of the Church, which consisteth of men, but by the assurance of the spirit of God, and the authority of the word it selfe, expressed in the Scriptures. And therfore S. Augustine in the 14 chapter of the same booke, sayth of the Manichees, as we may say of the Papists. What haue we to doe but to forsake them, that inuite vs to know things certeine, and afterward command vs to beleeue vncerteine things: and to follow them which inuite vs first to beleeue, that which we are not yet able to beholde, that being made stronger through faith it selfe, we may attaine to vnderstand that we beleeue, now not men, but God himselfe, confirming and lightning our minde inwardly. The other two sentences of S. Augustine, although they be not truely and wholly cited, yet they conteine nothing for the Popish church, which is not Catholike, but particular and hereticall, yea antichristian, and hath no succession in doctrine, from the Apostles and the Bishops of the Primitiue church, whose doctrine it hateth and persecuteth. For it is continuance in the same doctrine, that S. Augustine commendeth, and not sitting in the same place, where the Apostles and ancient Bishops sate.

Many borne and bred in schisme & heresie, are euen by heretikes and schismatikes moued first to giue credit to the Scriptures.

RHEM. B

3 No heretikes haue right to the Scriptures, but are vsurpers: the Catholike church being the true owner and faithfull keeper of them. Heretikes abuse them, corrupt them, and vtterly seeke to abolish them, though they pretend the contrary.

Tertullian lib. De præscriptionibus, bringeth in the CATHOLIKE CHVRCH speaking thus to all Heretikes.

ô Luther, Zuinglius, Caluin. * The scholars and followers.

*Who are you, and from whence came you? what do you in my possession, that are none of mine? by what right (Marcion) doest thou cut downe my wood? who gaue thee licence (ô Valentine) to turne the course of my fountaines? by what authoritie (Apelles) doest thou remoue my bounds? and * you the rest, why do you sow and feed for these companions at your pleasure? It is my possession, I possesse it of olde, I haue assured origins thereof, euen from those authours whose the thing was. I am heire of the Apostles. As they prouided by their Testament, as they committed it to my credit, as they adiured me, so do I holde it. You surely they disherited alwayes and haue cast you off, as forreiners, as enemies.*

Againe in the same booke.

Encountering with such by Scriptures, auaileth nothing, but to ouerturne a mans stomacke or his braine. This heresie receiueth not certeine Scriptures: and if it do receiue some, yet by adding and taking away, it peruerteth the same to serue their purpose: and if it receiue any, it doth not receiue them wholly: and if after a sort it receiue them wholly, neuertheless by deuising diuers expositions, it turneth them cleane another way &c.

FVLKE. B

Luther, Zuinglius, and Caluin, which receiued and beleeued all the Scriptures of God, and alwayes gaue souereigne authority onely vnto them, are vnfitly compared with such Heretikes, as Tertullian named, which refused what Scriptures they would, and corrupted the rest at their pleasure. Therefore although all their heresies are condemned by the Scriptures, which is sufficient to establish the faithfull, yet it was in vaine to encounter with them, by authority of Scriptures, which they did not admit, where as by the argument of prescription, they were plainly conuinced. For as Tertullian sayth, That it is true which is first, and that is false which is latter, which is the meaning of Tertullian, and his scope in that booke of Prescription against heretikes.

RHEM. C

4 Yet doe they vaunt themselues of Scriptures exceedingly, but they are neuer the more to be trusted for that.

S. Hierom aduersus Luciferianos in fine.

Let them not flatter themselues, if they seeme in their owne conceit to affirme that which they say, out of the chapters of Scripture: whereas the diuell also spake some things out of the Scriptures, and the Scriptures consist not in the reading, but in the vnderstanding.

*Here perhaps some man may aske, whether Heretikes also vse not the testimonies of diuine Scripture. Yes in deed do they, and that vehemently: For thou shalt see them flee thorow euery one of the sacred books of the Law, thorow Moyses, the books of the Kings, the Psalmes, the Apostles, the Gospels, the Prophets. For, whether among their owne fellowes, or strangers: whether priuately, or publikely: whether in talke, or in bookes: whether in bankets, or in the streets: they (I say) alledge nothing of their owne, which they indeuour not to shadow with the words of Scripture also. Reade the works of Paulus Samosatenus, of Priscillian, of Eunomian, of Iouinian, * of the other plagues and pestilences: thou shalt finde an infinit heape of examples, no page in a manet omitted or void, which is not painted and coloured with the sentences of the New or Olde Testament. But they are so much the more to be taken heed of, and to be feared, the more secretly they lurke vnder the shadowes of Gods diuine Law. For they know their stinks would not easily please any man almost, if they were breathed out nakedly and simply themselues alone, and therefore they sprinkle them as it were with certeine precious spices of the heauenly word: to the end that hee which would easily despise the errour of man, may not easily contemne the oracles of God. So that they do like vnto them, which when they will prepare certeine bitter potions for children, do first anoint the brimmes of the cup with hony, that the vnwary age, when it shall first feele the sweetnesse, may not feare the bitternesse.*

* Of Caluin, or Iuel, of the rest.

FVLKE, C

The Papists in this point of vaunting, are not behinde, as appeareth in the Preface. And wherefore serue these annotations, but to vaunt themselues of the Scriptures? But they are neuer the more to be trusted for that, but the Scriptures more diligently to be searched, and studied, that their falsehood in peruerting them, may the better be espied and discouered.

Caluin and Iewel haue their pages garnished not onely with authorities of Scriptures, but also with sentences of the ancient Fathers of the Primitiue Church, which by the iudgement of Vincentius, are meanes to bring them to the true vnderstanding of the Scriptures, and are testimonies, that they teach not their owne new inuentions, as Samosatenus, Priscillian, Eunomius, Iouinian, &c. but the ancient faith of the Church, planted by the Apostles, and continued by the ancient Fathers, for many hundred yeeres after Christ, euen vntill the Apostacie was made by Antichrist.

5 The cause why, the Scriptures being perfit, yet we vse other Ecclesiasticall writings and tradition.

Vincentius Lirinensis in his golden booke before cited, aduersus prophanas hæresum Nouationes.

*Here some man perhaps may aske, forasmuch as the Canon of the Scriptures is perfit, and in all points very sufficient in it selfe, what need is there, to ioyne thereunto the authoritie of the * Ecclesiasticall vnderstanding? for this cause surely, for that all take not the holy Scripture in one and the same sense, because of the deepnesse thereof. but the speeches thereof, some interpret one way, and some another way, so that there may almost as many senses be picked out of it, as ther be men. for Nouatian doth expound it one way, & Sabellius another way, otherwise Donatus, otherwise Arius, Eunomius, Macedonius, otherwise*

* So he calleth the Churches sense, and the fathers interpretations of Scriptures.

otherwise Photinus, Apollinaris, Priscillianus, otherwise Iouinian, Pelagius, Celestius, lastly otherwise Nestorius. * And therefore very necessary it is, because of so great winding and turnings of diuers errours, that the line of Propheticall and Apostolicall interpretation, be directed according to the rule of the Ecclesiasticall and Catholike sense or understanding.

* Otherwise Wicliffe, Luther, Caluin, Puritanes.

S. Basil. lib. de Spiritu sancto. cap. 27.

Of such articles of religion as are kept and preached in the Church, some were taught by the written word, other some we haue receiued by the tradition of the Apostles, deliuered vnto vs as it were from hand to hand in mysterie secretly: both which be of one force to Christian religion: and this no man will deny that hath any little skill of the Ecclesiasticall rites or customes. for if we goe about to reiect the customes not conteined in Scripture, as being of small force, we shall vnwittingly and vnawares mangle the GOSPEL it selfe in the principall parts thereof, yea rather, we shall abridge the very preaching of the Gospel, and bring it to a bare name.

FVLKE. D While you holde tradition beside the Scripture to be necessary, you can not defend the Scripture to be perfect and sufficient by it selfe, vnto all points of faith, as Vincentius sayth. Whom you falsifie in translating ad omnia in all points, and leauing out, that he sayth before, of the meanes to defend faith, which are the authority of Gods law, and the tradition of the Catholike Church, which tradition bringeth in nothing that is left out of the Scriptures (as yours doe) but conteineth the summe of Catholike doctrine grounded in the Scriptures. As appeareth plainely by the words of the same Father, abridging his former sentence. Diximus in superioribus hanc fuisse semper & esse hodiéque Catholicorum consuetudinem, vt fidem veram duobus his modis approbent. Primum diuini Canonis auctoritate, deinde Ecclesiæ Catholicæ traditione, non quia Canon solus non sibi ad vniuersa sufficiat, sed quia verba diuina pro suo pleríque arbitratu interpretantes, varias opiniones & errores concipiant. Atque ideo necesse sit, vt ad vnam ecclesiastici sensus regulam, Scripturæ cælestis intelligentia dirigatur, in his duntaxat præcipuè quæstionibus, quibus totius Catholici dogmatis fundamenta nituntur. Wee haue sayd before, that this hath alwayes bene, and is also at this day, the custome of the Catholiks, to approoue the true faith, by these two meanes. First by the authority of the diuine Canon, afterward by tradition or deliuery of the Catholike church, not because the Canon alone, is not by it selfe sufficient vnto all things: but because many interpreting the words of God after their owne pleasure, doe conceiue diuers opinions and errours. And therefore it is necessary that the vnderstanding of the heauenly Scripture be directed to one rule of ecclesiasticall sense, onely in those questions chiefly, on which the foundations of the whole Catholike doctrine doe leane.

By which saying it is plaine, that Vincentius allowed another maner of perfection and sufficiencie of the holy Scriptures, then you doe acknowledge, which teach, that there be articles of faith necessary to be beleeued, which are not to be proued out of the Scripture, but stand onely vpon credit of tradition, as prayer for the dead, inuocation of Saints, &c. whereas Vincentius speaketh of no tradition, but that which is grounded vpon the Canon of the Scriptures.

In the second testimony of S. Basil also, you falsifie his meaning, translating dogmata, articles of religion, whereby you would haue it thought, that he speaketh of articles of faith and doctrine, preached in the church, which haue no warrant of the Scriptures, whereas he speaketh only of formes of speech, by which the articles of faith taught in the Scripture, are expressed, and of rites or ceremonies vsed in the Church in his time. As that they vsed to sing in the Church: Glory be to the Father, and to the Sonne, with the holy Ghost. The heretikes obiected, that this forme of speech, with the holy Ghost, was not found in the Scriptures. S. Basil prooueth by the Scripture, that equall glory is due to the holy Ghost, with the Father, and the Sonne. But touching the vse of the præposition σὺν, in that forme of glorifying the holy Trinitie, which of ancient time had bene vsed in the Church, he referreth it to the Apostolike tradition, as he doth a number of ceremonies beside, and formes of publike seruice then vsed in the Church: which he calleth ἄγραφα, that are not spoken of in the Scriptures, at least wise not plainely and expresly, for he defendeth some of them, to haue their reason out of the Scriptures: counting among them the forme of this confession: to beleeue in the Father, in the Sonne, and in the holy Ghost, which forme of words in so many syllables, is not found in all the Scriptures, yet the trueth and substance of this confession, is most plainly and perfectly conteined in the holy Scriptures. S. Basil therefore, is no patron of traditions, that bring in articles of faith or religion, not conteined in the Scriptures, as it is euident by other places of his writings, as in his morall. Reg. 26. Euery word and deed ought to be warranted by testimony of the Scripture inspired of God. And againe, Reg. 8. If whatsoeuer is not of faith is sinne (as the Apostle sayth) and faith is of hearing, and hearing by the word of God, whatsoeuer is without the holy Scripture, seeing it is not of faith, is sinne. The same iudgement he sheweth in many other parts of his works, as he that will, may see, Tract. de vera & pia fide, in reg. breu. inter 1. & 95. & 98 Epist. 80.

THE SVMME OF THE New Testament.

RHEM. THat which was the ſumme of the Olde Teſtament, to wit, Chriſt and his Church, as S. Auguſtine ſaith catechizing the ignorant: the very ſame is the ſumme of the New Teſtament alſo. For (as the ſame S. Auguſtine ſaith againe) In the Olde Teſtament there is the occultation of the New: and in the New Teſtament there is the manifeſtation of the Olde. And in another place: In the Olde doth the New lie hidden, and in the New doeth the Olde lie open. And thereupon our Sauiour ſaid: I am not come to breake the Law or the Prophets, but to fulfill them. For aſſuredly I ſay vnto you, Till heauen and earth paſſe, one iote or one title ſhall not paſſe of the Law, till all be fulfilled. In which words hee ſheweth plainely, that the New Teſtament is nothing els but the fulfilling of the Olde. Auguſt. de cat. rud. cap. 3. 4. Super Exod. q. 73. Mat. 5.

Therfore to come to the parts: The Goſpels do tell of Chriſt himſelfe (of whom the Olde Teſtament did foretell) and that euen from his comming into the world, vnto his going out thereof againe. The Actes of the Apoſtles do tell of his Church beginning at Hieruſalem the head citie of the Iewes, and of the propagation thereof to the Gentiles and their head citie Rome. And The Apocalypſe doeth propheſie of it, euen to the conſummation thereof: which ſhall be in the end of the world. The Epiſtles of the Apoſtles do treat partly of ſuch queſtions as at that time were mooued, partly of good life and good order.

THE SVMME OF THE foure Goſpels.

RHEM. THe Goſpels doe tell hiſtorically the life of our Lord Ieſus, ſhewing plainely, * that he is Chriſt or the King of the Iewes, whom vntill then, all the time of the Olde Teſtament, they had expected: and withall, that they of their owne mere malice and blindneſſe (the iniquitie beginning of the Seniors, but at the length the multitude alſo conſenting) would not receiue him, but euer ſought his death: which for the Redemption of the world, hee at length permitted them to compaſſe, they deſeruing thereby moſt iuſtly to be refuſed of him, and ſo his Kingdome or Church to be taken away from them, and giuen to the Gentiles. For the gathering of which Church after him, he choſeth Twelue, and * appointeth one of them to be the chiefe of all, with inſtructions both to them and him accordingly. Io. 20. 31.

RHEM. * Chriſt appointed no Pope.

The ſtory hereof is written by foure: who in Ezechiel and in the Apocalypſe are likened to foure liuing creatures, euery one according as his booke beginneth. S. Matthew to a man, becauſe he beginneth with the pedegree of Chriſt as he is man. S. Marke to a lion, becauſe he beginneth with the preaching of S. Iohn Baptiſt, as it were the roaring of a lion in the wilderneſſe. S. Luke to a calfe, becauſe he beginneth with a prieſt of the Olde Teſtament (to wit, Zacharie the father of S. Iohn Baptiſt) which prieſthood was to ſacrifice calues to God. S. Iohn to an Egle, becauſe he beginneth with the Diuinitie of Chriſt, flying ſo high as more is not poſſible. Eze. 1. Apoc. 4.

The firſt three doe report at large what Chriſt did in Galilee, after the impriſonment of S. Iohn Baptiſt. Wherefore S. Iohn the Euangeliſt writing after them all, doeth omit his doings in Galilee (ſaue onely one, which they had not written of, the wonderfull bread which he told the Capharnaites he could and would giue, Io. 6.) and reporteth firſt, what hee did whiles Iohn Baptiſt as yet was preaching and baptizing: then, after Iohns impriſoning, what he did in Iurie euery yeere about Eaſter. But of his Paſſion all foure do write at large.

Where it is to be noted, that from his baptizing (which is thought to haue bene vpon Twelfth day, what time he was beginning to be about 30. yeere old, Luke 3.) vnto his paſſion, are numbred three monethes and three yeeres, in which there were alſo 4. Eaſters.

18 And the generation of CHRIST was in this wise. When his mother MARIE was spoused to Ioseph, before they came together, she was found to be with childe by the holy Ghost.

19 Whereupon Ioseph, for that he was a iust man, and would not *put her to open shame: was minded secretly to dimisse her.

21 And she shall bring foorth a Sonne: and thou shalt call his name ‡ IESVS. For he shall saue his people from their sinnes.

*18 * The birth of Iesus Christ was on this wise. When as his mother Mary was betrothed to Ioseph (before they came together) shee was found with childe of the holy Ghost.*

*19 Then Ioseph her husband, being a righteous man, * and not willing to make her a publique example was minded priuily to put her away.*

20 But while hee thought these things, beholde, the Angel of the Lord appeared vnto him in a dreame, saying, Ioseph thou sonne of Dauid, feare not to take vnto thee Mary thy wife, for that which is conceiued in her, is of the holy Ghost.

*21 She shall bring forth a Sonne, * and thou shalt call his name Iesus: for hee shall sane his people from their sinnes.*

22 (All this was done, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken of the Lorde by the Prophet, saying,

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 1 — 1 The booke.) This Gospel is most solemnely sung in holy Church at Mattens vpon Christmas day. As also it is the Gospel of the Conception and Nativity of our B. Lady: because here is declared the pedegree of her also.

FVLKE. 1 — You must vnderstand this note,where there is a Priest or Deacon,that can chaunt it lustily,as in Cathedrall churches, or other great Quieres: as for poore countrey churches, where there is none but one hedge priest that can neither well sing nor say,it is mumbled vp as the rest of the morow Masse,vnlesse we shall thinke that poore churches and chapels be no part of the Popes holy Church. To the feasts of the Conception and Nativity of our Lady, which is a very idol, you might haue added the Visitation of Mary, of the common people called The New-found Lady day. But the true histories of the Gospel haue not so great honour with you as the idolatrous and blasphemous inuentions of your owne braine. For therefore you haue appointed those solemne feasts of the Conception and Nativity, because you teach contrary to the Scriptures, that the blessed Virgine

Virgin Mary was conceiued and borne without the ſpot of originall ſin, Rom.5.12.& 16. Rom.3.9. Gal.3.22. And therefore, in ſtead of honouring her with the ſingular priuiledge of Chriſt the Sauiour and Redeemer both of her and vs, you honour an idol, and not her: for an idol is nothing in the world. And ſo is that man
1.Cor.8.4. or woman which is conceiued without originall ſinne, except our Sauiour Chriſt, who was conceiued by the holy Ghoſt, as none other euer was or ſhalbe. Likewiſe, when you call the bleſſed Virgin, our Lady, as you call God and Chriſt our Lord, what do you, but make her equall with God and Chriſt in power and redemption? In which reſpect God is called our Lord. For it is no terme of ciuill and temporall dignity and authority, as when we ſay, Our ſouereigne Lady the Queene, but a religious and diuine honour that you aſcribe vnto her, calling her abſolutely, Our Lady, as blaſphemouſly as the Frenchmen doe ridiculouſly call other Saints Monſieur S. Pierre, M.S. Peter, or My Lord S. Peter, and Madam S. Genofefeue Miſtreſſe S. Genofefa, or, My Lady S. Genofefa, &c. In which appellation, as in offering of candles, and other things, vnto her image and worſhipping thereof, you reſemble the old Collyridian heretikes, againſt whom, and generally againſt the worſhipping of images, Epiphanius writeth Hereſ.79.& 78. calling the making of images to be worſhipped, a deuilſh intent, and the worſhipping of them and of the Virgin Mary, to be a deifying of her, and a blaſphemous and wicked worke. What would he haue written if he had ſeene the horrible idolatry committed by the Papiſts in the pilgrimages to the images of the bleſſed Virgin, where you called, and yet call ſtocks and ſtones your Lady, as Our Lady of Walſingham, Ypſwich, Paris, Antwerpe? What els were they but dead images at thoſe places? If he had heard your blaſphemies vttered in the ſolemne * feſtiuities, that you holde in her honour, conteined in hymnes, anthemes, and eſpecially in that execrable Pſalter of Bonauenture, who peruerteth whatſoeuer the holy Ghoſt hath vttered in praiſe of God, abuſing it to magnifie the Virgin Mary.

Rogá patrem, iube natum*: Intreat the father, command the ſonne, Coge Deum, compel God, vita ſalus, our life and ſaluation, &c.

FVLKE. 2 S. Auguſtine in the place quoted, by the word Sacrament, meaneth the holy myſtery that is in mariage, of the inſeparable coniunction of Chriſt with his Church, therefore he ſayth, Sacramentum, quia nullum diuortium, Sacrament, becauſe there was no diuorce. Not that matrimonie is a Sacrament of the New Teſtament (ſeeing it was inſtituted in Paradiſe before the fall of man) as Baptiſme and the Lords Supper are called Sacraments, which he ſayth, are feweſt in number, and findeth no more in the Canonicall Scriptures. Epiſt. ad Ianuar. 118. But as he calleth generally euery ſacrifice of the Olde Teſtament, a Sacrament, that is, an holy ſigne of the inuiſible ſacrifice. De ciuit. Dei. lib.10.c.5. And as he calleth that bread, which in that time was giuen to yoong nouices in Chriſtian religion before they were baptized, an holy Sacrament, though it was not the bodie of Chriſt. De peccat. mer. & remiſſ. lib.2. cap.26. Likewiſe in Pſal. 44. he ſo calleth all the myſteries of Chriſtian doctrine vttered in diuers tongues, Sacramenta doctrinæ, Sacraments of doctrine.

A virgin.) Our Sauiour borne in mariage, but yet of a Virgin, would honour both ſtates: and withall, teacheth vs againſt Iouinian the olde heretike and theſe of our time, that virginity and the continent life are preferred before mariage that hath carnall copulation. See S.Hier. adu.Iou. & S.Greg.Naz.Ser.20. de ſtudio in pauperes, in initio.

Virginity preferred.

FVLKE. 3 This is a meere ſlander of the true Catholikes, whom you call heretikes of theſe times, that we teach with Iouinian, that virginity and the continent life, are not to be preferred before mariage. For we teach euen as S. Paul doth 1.Cor.7. although we teach that mariage is better then ſingle life, where virginitie or chaſtitie are not kept, but counterfeited. And ſo held Epiphan. and the Church in his time. Cont. Apoſt. her. 61. Likewiſe Hierom. and Demetr.

RHEM. 5 25. Till. Firſt-borne.) Heluidius of olde abuſed theſe words, till, and firſt-borne, againſt the perpetuall virginity of our B. Lady. Hiero.cont.Helu. which trueth, though not expreſſed in Scripture, yet our Aduerſaries alſo doo graunt, and Heluidius for deniall thereof was condemned for an heretike by tradition only. Aug. hær. 84.

FVLKE. 5 You doe moſt impudently alledge Auguſtine, to teſtifie that Heluidius was condemned for an heretike by tradition onely. for Auguſtine hath no word ſounding to that purpoſe. And Epiphanius (whom he ſuppoſeth to haue vnderſtood Heluidians by Antidicomarianites) laboureth to conuince that errour by Scriptures. And S. Hierom, in his booke againſt Heluidius, ſheweth that he was condemned for affirming that (of the virgin Mary) which is not read in the Scriptures, in theſe words. Sed vt hæc quæ ſcripta ſunt non negamus, ita ea quæ non ſunt ſcripta renuimus. Natum Deum eſſe de virgine credimus, quia legimus, Mariam nupſiſſe poſt partum, non credimus, quia non legimus. But as we deny not theſe things that are written, ſo we reiect thoſe things that are not written. That God was borne of a virgin we beleeue, becauſe we reade it: that Mary had matrimoniall company with her husband after her deliuery, we do not beleeue, becauſe we reade it not. Beholde what a friend S. Hierome was to vnwritten tradition?

CHAP. II.

The Gentiles come vnto Chriſt with their offerings, and that ſo openly, that the Iewes cannot pretend ignorance. 3 The Iewes with Herode conſpire againſt him. 13 He thereupon fleeth from them into AEgypt. 16 They afterward, ſeeing their ſubtiltie preuailed not, imagined to oppreſſe him by open perſecution. 19 But they at length died, and he returneth to the land of Iſrael: all according to the Scriptures.

THE HOLY feaſt of the Epiphanie called Twelfthday the 6. of Ianuarie, vpon which day this is the Goſpel.

WHen IESVS therefore was *borne in Bethlehem of Iuda in the dayes of Herod the King, ‖beholde, there came Sages from the Eaſt to Hieruſalem,

2 Saying,

*WHen Ieſus was borne in Bethlehem, a citie of Iurie, in the dayes of Herod the King: behold, there came wiſe men from the Eaſt to Hieruſalem, Luke 2.6.

2 Saying,

2 Saying, where is he that is borne king of the Iewes? For we haue ſeene his ‖ ſtarre in the Eaſt, and ‖ are come to adore him.

3 And Herode the King hearing this, was troubled, and all Hieruſalem with him.

4 And aſſembling together all the high Prieſtes and the Scribes of the people, hee ‖ inquired of them where Chriſt ſhould bee borne.

5 But they ſaid to him, In Bethlehem of Iuda. For ſo it is written by the Prophet:

Mich. 5. 2.

6 And thou Bethlehem the land of Iuda, art not the leaſt among the Princes of Iuda: for out of thee ſhall come foorth the Capitaine that ſhall rule my people Iſrael.

7 Then Herode ſecretly calling the Sages, learned diligently of them the time of the ſtarre which appeared to them:

8 And ſending them into Bethlehem, ſaide, Goe, and inquire diligently of the childe: and when you ſhall finde him, make report to mee, that I alſo may come and adore him.

9 Who hauing heard the King, went their way: and behold the ſtarre which they had ſeene in the Eaſt, went before them, vntill it came and ſtood ouer, where the childe was.

10 And ſeeing the ſtarre, they reioyced with exceeding great ioy.

11 And entering into the houſe, they found the childe with MARIE his mother, and falling downe ‖ adored him: and opening their ‖ treaſures, they offered to him * ‖ gifts: golde, frankincenſe, and myrrhe.

Pſal. 71. 10.

12 And hauing receiued an anſwere in ſleepe that they ſhould not returne to Herode, they went backe an other way into their countrey. ☞

THE GOSPEL of Childermas day.

13 And after they were departed, behold an Angel of our Lorde appeared in ſleepe to Ioſeph, ſaying: Ariſe, and take the childe and his mother, and flee into Egypt: and bee there vntill I ſhall tell thee. For it will come to paſſe that Herode will ſeeke the childe to deſtroy him.

14 Who aroſe, and tooke the childe and his mother by night, and retyred into Egypt: and hee was there vntill the death of Herode:

15 That it might bee fulfilled which was ſpoken of our Lorde by the Prophet, ſaying, Out of Egypt haue I called my ſonne.*

Oſee. 11. 2.

THE Martyrdom of the holy Innocents, whoſe holy day is kept the 28. of December.

16 Then Herode perceiuing that he was deluded by the Sages, was exceeding angrie: and ſending ‖ murdered all the men children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the borders thereof, from two yeere old and vnder, according to the time which hee had diligently ſought out of the Sages.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken by Ieremie the Prophet, ſaying,

18 A voice

2 Saying, Where is he that is borne king of the Iewes? For wee haue ſeene his ſtarre in the Eaſt, and are come to worſhip him.

3 When Herode the King had heard theſe things, he was troubled, and all the City of Hieruſalem with him.

4 And when he had gathered all the chiefe Prieſts and Scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Chriſt ſhould be borne.

5 And they ſaid vnto him, At Bethlehem in Iury: For thus it is written by the Prophet,

*6 And thou Bethlehem in the lande of Iuda, art not the leaſt among the princes of Iuda: For out of thee ſhall there come a Captaine, that ſhall gouerne my people Iſrael.

Mich. 5. 2. iohn 7. 41.

7 Then Herod, when hee had priuily called the wiſe men, enquired of them diligently what time the ſtarre appeared.

8 And hee ſent them to Bethlehem, and ſayde, Goe, and ſearch diligently for the young childe, and when yee haue found him, bring mee worde againe, that I may come and worſhip him alſo.

9 When they had heard the King, they departed, and loe, the ſtarre which they ſawe in the Eaſt, went before them, till it came and ſtoode ouer the place wherein the young childe was.

10 When they ſawe the ſtarre, they reioyced exceedingly with great ioy,

11 And went into the houſe, and they ſawe the young childe with Mary his mother, and fell downe, and worſhipped him: and when they had opened their treaſures, preſented vnto him gifts, gold and frankincenſe, and myrrhe.

12 And after they were warned of God in a dreame that they ſhoulde not returne to Herode, they departed into their owne countrey another way.

13 When they were departed, beholde, the Angel of the Lorde appeared to Ioſeph in a dreame, ſaying, Ariſe, and take the yong childe, and his mother, and flee into Ægypt, and bee thou there till I bring thee worde: for it will come to paſſe, that Herode ſhall ſeeke the young childe, to deſtroy him.

14 When hee aroſe, hee tooke the yong childe and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

*15 And was there vnto the death of Herode, that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken of the Lorde by the Prophet, ſaying, Out of Egypt haue I called my Sonne.

Oſee. 11. 1.

16 Then Herod, when hee ſaw that hee was mocked of the wiſe men, was exceeding wroth, and ſent forth, and ſlew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coaſtes thereof, as many as were two yeeres olde and vnder, according to the time, which he had diligently ſearched out of the wiſe men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken by Ieremie the Prophet, ſaying,

18 In

Iere.31.15. 18 A voice in Rama was heard, crying out and much wayling: Rachel bewayling her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

THE GOSPEL on Twelfth eue. 19 But when Herode was dead, beholde an Angel of our Lorde appeared in ſleepe to Ioſeph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Ariſe, and take the childe and his mother, and goe into the lande of Iſrael. for they are dead that ſought the life of the childe.

21 Who aroſe, and tooke the childe and his mother, and came into the lande of Iſrael.

22 But hearing that Archelaus reigned in Iewrie for Herode his father, hee feared to goe thither: and being warned in ſleepe retyred into the quarters of Galilee.

23 And comming he dwelt in a citie called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was ſaid by the Prophets: That hee ſhall be called a Nazarite.

18 *In Rama was there a voyce heard, * lamentation, weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not bee comforted, becauſe they were not.* Iere.31.15.

19 But when Herode was dead, beholde, an Angel of the Lorde appeareth in a dreame to Ioſeph in Egypt, 20 Saying, Ariſe, and take the yong childe and his mother, and goe into the lande of Iſrael: For they are dead, which ſought the yong childes life.

21 And he aroſe, and tooke the yong childe and his mother, and came into the land of Iſrael.

22 But when hee heard that Archelaus did reigne in Iury in the roome of his father Herod, hee was afraide to goe thither: notwithſtanding, after he was warned of God in a dreame, he turned aſide into the parts of Galilee:

23 And when he was come thither, he dwelt in a Citie, which is called Nazareth, that it might bee fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophets, He ſhalbe called a Nazarite.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. II.

RHEM. 1. Beholde.) *Our Lords apparition or Epiphanie to theſe Sages being Gentiles, their pilgrimage to him, and in them the firſt homage of Gentilitie done vnto him the * twelfth day after his Natiuitie: and therefore is* Twelfth day highly celebrated in the Catholike Church for ioy of the calling of vs Gentiles. His baptiſme alſo and firſt miracle are celebrated on the ſame day.

FVLKE. * The day and yeere is vncertaine.

2. Starre.) Chriſtes Natiuitie depended not vpon this ſtarre, as the Priſcillianiſts falſly ſurmiſed: but the ſtarre vpon his Natiuitie, for the ſeruice whereof it was created. Grego. Hom. 10.

RHEM. 1 Pilgrimage. 2. Come to adore.) This comming ſo farre of deuotion to viſite and adore Chriſt in the place of his birth, was properly a Pilgrimage to his perſon: and warranteth the faithfull in the like kinde of externall worſhip done to holy perſons, places, and things.

FVLKE. 1 This comming was a diuine inſpiration, and oracle: for the ſtarre onely could not tell them that Chriſt was borne in Iury. Their comming, (ſaith S. Hierom) was to the confuſion of the Iewes, that they might learne the birth of Chriſt by the Gentiles. Chryſoſtom. Hom. 6. in Matth. Becauſe Chriſt was come to make an end of the old Teſtament, and to call the whole worlde to adore him, who was to be worſhipped by ſea and land, from the very beginning of his Natiuitie, he openeth the doore to the Gentiles, and ſo inſtructeth his domeſticall, that he alſo inuiteth ſtrangers: and therefore hath no reſembling to Popiſh Pilgrimage, which is idolatry. Neither doeth their example of comming to Chriſt, warrant the faithfull in the like kinde of externall worſhip, done to holy perſons, places, and things. For what faithfull Chriſtian will grant, that whatſoeuer may be done to Chriſtes owne perſon, their King, the ſame or the like may be done to any of his ſubiects? much leſſe to any places or other dead things. Such ſhameleſſe collections as this, may warrant all Idolatrie and Hereſie.

Chryſoſt. in Matth. hom. 6.

Pilgrimage.

RHEM. 2 4. Inquired of them.) The high Prieſtes were rightly conſulted in queſtion of their lawe and religion, and bee they neuer ſo ill, are often forced to ſay the trueth by priuiledge of their vnction: as here and after, they did concerning the true Meſſias.

FVLKE. 2 Not the priuiledge of their vnction forceth the Prieſtes ſometimes to ſay the trueth, for then they ſhould neuer lie, becauſe that priuiledge remaineth ſtill with them, but the wil of God ſometimes expreſſeth the confeſſion of trueth, euen out of his aduerſaries. Chryſoſt. in Matth. Hom. 7. The very enemies of the trueth are forced for the trueth to reade the Scriptures, and to interprete the propheſie of Chriſt to them that were ignorant, although they would not publiſh the whole trueth.

The priuiledge of Prieſtly vnction.

RHEM. 3 Adoration of the B. Sacrament. 11. Adored him.) This body (ſaith S. Chryſoſtome) the Sages adored in the cribbe. Let vs at the leaſt imitate them: thou ſeeſt him not now in the cribbe, but on the altar: not a woman holding him, but the Prieſt preſent, and the Holy Ghoſt powred out abundantly vpon the ſacrifice. Hom. 24. in 1. Cor. hom. 7. in Mt. de ſanct. Philogonio.

FVLKE. 3 Adoration of the B. Sacrament. Chryſoſtome ſpeaketh not of adoration of the Sacrament, but of the reuerent comming to the participation of the Lords Table, that they receiue it not vnworthely, as the wordes going before and after doe plainely declare: Immediatly before, he ſayeth, How much the greater the beneſite is which we receiue, ſo much the more wee ſhalbe puniſhed, when we appeare vnworthy of it. And after hee hath ſet foorth the example of the wiſe men, with many amplifications, he concludeth in theſe wordes: Let vs bee ſtirred vp therefore, and be afraide, and ſhew foorth greater pietie, that comming neither negligently, nor coldly, wee offer our head to a more vehement fire. This I ſay not, that we ſhould not come at all, but that we ſhould not come raſhly. It is reuerence of the holy myſteries that hee requireth, not worſhipping of the outward elements, as his owne wordes declare. Thou ſeeſt him, &c. not with the bodily eyes, but with the eyes of faith, as thou ſeeſt the holy Ghoſt powred foorth, whoſe nature to the bodily eye is altogether inuiſible: yet with the eyes of faith is ſeene, that is, certainely knowen to worke in the diuine myſteries, not tranſubſtantiation, whereof he neuer heard or thought, but the ſpirituall feeding of the faithfull, with the body and blood of Chriſt. Wherefore aſcend (ſaith he) to the gates of heauen, and marke diligently, yea rather not of heauen, but of the heauen of heauens, and then thou ſhalt beholde that we ſay: for that which is worthy of higheſt honour, I will ſhew thee in earth: meaning the body of Chriſt, which (ſaith he) thou doeſt not onely ſee, but alſo handle and eate, &c. All which ſpeeches muſt be of neceſſitie vnderſtood of a ſpirituall maner, of ſeeing, handling, and eating by faith of the inward man, whereof hee ſaith, Wipe thy ſoule therefore from all filthineſſe, and prepare thy minde to the receiuing of theſe myſteries.

Likewiſe

Likewise Hom.7.in Matth.he saith,they are like Herod,that abuse vnworthily the communion of the mysterie of the body and blood of Christ, and rebuketh them, which refuse to visite Christ in his poore members,as the wise men did in the cribbe: likewise them that leaue Christ, in the spirituall cribbe,that is,that forsake the communion of the Lords Table, and runne to filthy playes,vnto the Theater.

Finally Hom.de S.Philogonio, he vseth the like exhortation by example of the wise men,to the worthy receiuing of the Lords Supper,not to the adoring of the Sacrament after the Popish maner: For if we shall come with faith(saith he)*out of doubt we shall see him lying in the Cribbe: for this table supplieth the place of the Cribbe: for here also the Lords body is layed not wrapped in swadling clothes as then, but on euery side clothed with the holy Ghost: they which are admitted to these mysteries know what is said. And the wise men truely did nothing but worship, but thee wee will suffer,if thou shalt come with a pure conscience to receiue it,and to depart after thou hast receiued it.*Here is no word of worshipping of that which we see with our bodily eyes,but to receiue him reuerently,whom we may see by faith: so that none of these places,fauour the kneeling and knocking, that is, the grosse Idolatrie, mainteined by the Papists vnto the sacramentall bread and cuppe.

RHEM. 4 11. Treasures.) These treasures are as it were the first fruits of those riches and gifts, which (according to the Prophecies of Dauid and Esay) Gentilitie should offer to Christ and his Church, and now haue offered, specially from the time of Constantine the great. As also these three Sages, being principall men of their Countrey, represent the whole state of Princes, Kings,and Emperours,that were (according to the said Prophecies) to beleeue in Christ, to humble themselues to his crosse,to foster,enrich,adorne and defend his Church. Whereupon it is also a very conuenient and agreeable tradition of antiquitie,and a receiued opinion among the faithfull, not lacking testimonies of ancient writers, and much for the honour of our Sauiour, that these three also were Kings, to wit, either according to the state of those Countreis, where the Princes were Magi, and Magi the greatest about the Prince: or as we read in the Scriptures,of Melchisedec king of Salem,& many other kings that dwels within a small compasse: or as Iobs three friendes are called kings. These are commonly called the three kings of Colen, because their bodies are there,translated thither from the East Countrey: their names are said to haue bene Gasper, Melchior, Baltasar.

The three Kings.

FVLKE. 4 It is a meere fable without groūd of antiquitie,or any probabilitie,that these Philosophers,were Kings,which being much for the honour of Christ(as you say,)the Euangelist would not haue omitted. Chrysostome saith, that the Iewes ought to haue perceiued, how great dignity was added vnto them, by the natiuitie of so great a King,which by his triumphant birth,had drawen the king of Persians vnto him,and vnder whom they might subdue all people.But it is against reason,that the king of Persia,which was at that time a great Monarch, came to Hierusalem. And Chrysostome speaking of the Magi, neuer giueth them any honourable title meet for Kings, but speaketh more contemptibly of them then he should. for he saith they were vngodly and barbarous men, 1.Corinth.Hom.24. Therefore hee meaneth not,that the king of Persia came in person,but that by preaching of the wise men, when they returned into their countrey, the King of Persia might bee brought to the knowledge of his natiuitie.

In Mat.Hom.6.

Three Kings of Collen.

Theophylact a more late writer, sayeth, the Iewes should haue reioyced, that they should haue such a King, as should be worshipped of the Persian Kings. Where, if he meane that these Magi were Kings,hee goeth against all stories,which tell that there was but one king of the Persians at once. And for the number of them, the authour of the vnperfect worke, that goeth vnder the name of Chrysostome, being as ancient as hee,out of an olde story sayeth, they were twelue in number, Philosophers and wise men, not Kings. Gaudentius Epist. ad Paulum, Legati vniuersarum gentium Magi. Synesius Hym.7. Magorum sapiens ars, ex Stellæ ortu obstupuit dubia. Cosmas Hieros.calleth them Astrologians. Hym.1. Beda in Matth.Magi non propter Magicam artem sic nominantur, sed propter aliquam Philosophiam in qua Balaam successores creduntur. But they that feined the names, might feine the number, and the deportation of their bodies from the East, where they slept many hundred yeeres, to Collen. Sauing that it is too impudent a fiction, to place them in two Cities at once. for Millain maketh as good claime, and sheweth as good euidence for their bodies, as Collen. But the monsters of Popish reliques passe all Ouids Metamorphoses.

Reliques.

RHEM. 11. Gifts.) These Sages were three,and their gifts three,and eche one offered euery of the three,to expresse our faith of the Trinitie. The Gold,to signifie that he was a King: the frankincense, that he was God: the myrrhe, that he was to be buried as man. Aug.ser.1.de Epiph.

15. Out of Ægypt.) This place of the Prophet (and the like in the New Testament) here applied to Christ,whereas in the letter it might seeme otherwise, teacheth vs how to interprete the olde Testament, and that the principall sense is of Christ and his Church.

RHEM.5 16. Murdered.) By this example we learne how great credite wee owe to the Church in Canonizing Saints,and celebrating their holy dayes: by whose onely warrant,without any worde of Scripture, these holy Innocents haue bene honoured for Martyrs, and their holy day kept euer since the Apostles time, although they died not voluntarily, nor all perhaps circumcised,and some the children of Pagans. Aug.epist.28.Orig.hom.3.in diuersos.

Canonizing of Saincts.

FVLKE.5 Saturn.2. Neither Origen, nor Augustine, nor any ancient writer affirmeth, that euery one of those children was an holy Martyr, neither are you able to proue it. Macrobius writeth,that one of the sonnes of Herod himselfe, that was nursed in those parts, was slaine among the rest. I suppose it is not necessary to beleeue,that Herods childe was a Saint. Neither doe I thinke, that they which instituted that feast, meant to canonize him for a Saint, or euery Paganes sonne, if any such were amongst them. As for them that were not circumcised,because they were not eight dayes olde, there is no cause, why wee should thinke them to bee damned,seeing the Sacrament of Circumcision could not be ministred before the eight day. Before which age,it is not to be doubted, but that many thousands of the Iewes infants died. Where you say, their holy day hath bene kept euer since the Apostles time,you are bold to affirme,that you are not able to proue. Augustine speaketh but of his owne time. The Homilies in diuersos,which goe vnder Origens name,(as Erasmus telleth you)be not al his, but written by some Latine authour, and those that were his, are corrupted by Ruffine. So that you come not clearely to the time of Origen,and though you did,you were short of the Apostles time.And the author of that Homily in diuersos, alleageth the holy Fathers, not the Apostles, for commanding the celebration of their memory. And certaine it is, that before the time of Constantine the Great, that gaue peace to the Church,there were not many festiual dayes obserued. Insomuch, that the feastes of the Natiuitie of Christ,Easter,and Pentecost, were not vniformely obserued in all places, for many yeeres after,as appeareth by Con Autel.4.c.1.Tolet.10.c.1.Brac.2.c.9.And Beda in diuers places *de temporior ation*e,&c.Finally,what iudgmēt soeuer the Church in olde time had in canonizing of Saints, as you terme it, or in defining who are holy, nothing pertaineth to the Popes maner of canonization,which is a curious,costly,and theatricall pompe,vnmeete for the simplicity of the Church of Christ,and meete for the brauery of the whore of Babylon.Where neuertheles for the credit of his canonization, you may see a protestation that the Pope maketh, if it happen he be deceiued, in the person to be canonized. And the author of the booke sayth vpon good testimony, that the Pope was once compelled to canonize one against his opinion. Againe, what sure credite can there be of the Popes canonization, when euery Pope hath authoritie to disanull and inhibite all the actes of his predecessor, as the famous tragedy of Formosus, and his acts, so often confirmed and disanulled, his dead body mangled, and then reuerenced as a Saint, by the images in S. Peters Church, (if your stories doe not lie,) doeth abundantly testifie. Herm. Shedel, Platina, &c.

CHAP. III.

Iohn Baptist by his Eremites life, by his preaching and baptisme, calleth all vnto penance, to prepare them to Christ. 10 He preacheth to the Pharisees and Sadducees, threatning to them (vnles they truely doe penance) reprobation here and damnation hereafter: and for saluation sendeth them to Christ and his baptisme, which being far more excellent then Iohns, yet Christ himselfe among those penitents vouchsafeth to come vnto Iohns baptisme. where he hath testimonie from heauen also.

THE SECOND part of this Gospell. Of the preparatiō that was made to the manifestation of Christ. Mr.1,4. Luc.3,3. Es.40,3.

AND in those dayes *cōmeth Iohn the Baptist preaching in ỹ ‖ desert of Iewry.

2 And saying, ‖ Doe penance: for the Kingdome of heauen is at hand.

3 For this is he that was spoken of by Esay the Prophet, saying, A voice of one crying in the desert, prepare yee the way of our Lord, make straight his pathes.

4 And the sayd Iohn had his garment of Camels haire, and a girdle of a skinne about his loynes: and his meate was locusts and wilde honie.

5 Then went forth to him Hierusalem & all Iewry, and all the countrey about Iordan:

6 And were baptized of him in Iordan, ‖ confessing their sinnes.

7 And seeing many of the Pharisees and Sadducees comming to his baptisme, he said to them, Ye vipers broode, who hath shewed you to flee from the wrath to come?

8 Yeelde therefore ‖ fruit worthy of penance.

9 And delite not to say within your selues, wee haue Abraham to our father. for I tell you that God is able of these stones to raise vp children to Abraham.

*Mr.1,8.

10 For now the ‖ axe is put to the roote, of the trees. Euery tree therefore that doeth ‡ not yeeld good fruit, shall bee cut downe, and cast into the fire.

‡It is not only damnable to do ill: but also, not to doe good. Aug. Ser.61. de temp. Luc.3,16. Io.1,26. Act.11,16. 19,4.

11 *I in deede baptize you ‖ in water vnto penance, but he that shall come after mee, is stronger then I, whose shooes I am not worthy to beare, hee shall baptize you in the holy Ghost and fire.

12 Whose fanne is in his hand, and hee shall cleane purge his ‖ floore, and hee will gather his wheate into the barne, but the chaffe he will burne with vnquenchable fire.

13 Then commeth IESVS from Galilee to Iordan, vnto Iohn, to be baptized of him.

14 But Iohn stayed him, saying, I ought to be baptized of thee, & commest thou to me?

15 And IESVS answering, sayd to him, Suffer me for this time. for so it becommeth vs to fulfill all iustice. Then he suffered him.

16 And IESVS being baptized, forthwith came out of the water: and loe, the heauens were ‖ opened to him: and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a doue, and comming vpon him.

17 And

*IN those dayes came * Iohn the Baptist, preaching in the wildernesse of Iurie,*

2 And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdome of heauen is at hand.

*3 For this is hee that was spoken of by the Prophet Esaias, saying, * The voyce of one crying in the wildernes, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his pathes straight.*

*4 * This Iohn had his raiment of Camels haire, and a letherne girdle about his loynes, his meate was locusts and wild honie.* Mar.8.5.

*5 * Then went out to him Hierusalem, and all Iurie, and all the region round about Iordan,* Luke 3.7.

6 And were baptized of him in Iordan, confessing their sinnes.

*7 But when hee sawe many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptisme, he sayd vnto them, * O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the anger to come?* Mat.13.34.

8 Bring foorth therefore fruites meete for repentance.

*9 And be not of such minde, that yee would say within your selues, * We haue Abraham to our father: For I say vnto you, that God is able of these stones to raise vp children vnto Abrahã.* Iohn 8.30. act.13.26.

*10 Euen nowe is the axe also put vnto the roote of the trees: * Therefore euery tree which bringeth not foorth good fruit, is hewen downe, and cast into the fire,* Mat.7.19.

*11 * I baptize you in water vnto repentance: but he that commeth after me, is mightier then I, whose shooes I am not worthy to beare, hee shall baptize you with the holy Ghost and with fire:* Mar.1.18. iohn 1.26. luke 3.13.

*12 * Whose fanne is in his hand, and he will throughly purge the floore: and gather his wheate into his garner: but will burne vp the chaffe with vnquencheable fire.* Luke 3.18.

*13 * Then commeth Iesus from Galilee to Iordan, vnto Iohn to be baptized of him.* Mar.1.8. luke 3.22.

14 But Iohn forbade him, saying, I haue needs to be baptized of thee, and commest thou to me?

15 Iesus answering, sayd vnto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becommeth vs to fulfill all righteousnesse. Then he suffered him.

16 And Iesus, when hee was baptized, went vp straightway out of the water: and loe, the heauens were opened vnto him: and Iohn sawe the Spirit of God descending like a doue, and lighting vpon him.

17 And beholde a voice from heauen, saying, This is my beloued sonne, in whom I am well pleased.

17 *And loe, there came a voice from the heauens, saying, *This is my dearely beloued sonne, in whom I am well pleased. 2.Pet.1.19. Col.1,13.

1. Desert.) Of this word desert (in Greeke eremus) commeth the name Eremitages, and Eremites, that liue a religious and austere life in deserts and solitarie places, by the example of S. Iohn Baptist, whom the holy Doctors therefore call the Prince and as it were the author of such profession. S. Chrys. ho. 1. in Marcum & ho. de Io. Baptista. Hier. ad Eustoch. de custod. virg. And no maruel, whereas the Euangelist himselfe in this place maketh a perfect paterne of penance and Eremiticall life, for desert or wildernes, for his rough and rude apparel, for abstaining from all delicate meates (according to our Sauiours testimonie also of him Mt. 11,8. Luc 7,33.) they are not ashamed to peruert all with this strange commentarie, that it was a desert * full of townes and villages, his garment was *chamlet, his meate * such as the countrey gaue and the people there vsed: to make him thereby but a common man like to the rest, in his maner of life: cleane against Scriptures, Fathers, and reason.* Eremites.

FVLKE. 1.

Your popish Eremites, as the places of their Ermitages yet remaining in England doe declare, dwelt not in desert or solitarie places, but for the most part, neare great cities and populous townes, and in austeritie of life, were not so much as shadowes of the old Eremites, of whom there is mention in the ancient Fathers writings. Of whose profession yet Iohn the Baptist was not author, because his office was singular, neither doth any of the old Fathers so call him, although some say, he was the chiefest of them, that led a solitarie life in the wildernesse, whereof you may reade more at large in my Treatise against the defence of the Censure giuen of Master Charkes booke, sect. 2. The Centuriasts indeede say, that Chrysostome spake somewhat rashly, and against the trueth of the thing, where he maketh Iohn Baptist, Prince of al Monkes, Hom. 1. in Marc. and Hom. 69. in 21. Matth. not content to say, they leade an Angels life, and talke freely with God, but also, that their soule is without all griefes and passion, and their bodie is such as Adams was, before his sinne, which is contrary to the doctrine of Originall sinne. Now whether these things were written by Chrysostome aduisedly, and truely, I appeale to your owne iudgements, which I know to be very corrupt, yet I thinke none of you hath the face to defend all those wordes, as they lie, without any cauilation to be true and Catholike doctrine. But hereof I haue written more at large in the ouerthrowe to the answere of Master Charkes Preface, pag. 81. and so forth to pag. 94. where also the other slander of the austeritie of S. Iohns life, peruerted by Protestants, is throughly handled. Therefore I will briefly touch it in this place. First all the protestants doe grant, the austeritie of S. Iohns life, in the place of his abode, in his apparell, and in his diet: yet they doe not place it onely in these. And although they say, the desert had townes and villages not farre off, as the trueth is, yet they acknowledge it was a solitarie place. They that say his garment was chamblet, speake not of fine chamblet, but of a rough and course cloth, made of the great and hard haires of Camels, not of the fine & soft haires, called Camels wooll, whereof our chamblet and grograine are made. For his meate, they say, it was Locusts, which are vsuall to be eaten in that countrey: and wilde honie, or dewe honie, which there also is common. Not thereby making him a common man, or a delicate person, but a man of straight life, and austere conuersation. whereof in the place before noted, you may see may see more at large, what the Protestants write thereof. 2. Doe penance.) *So is the Latine, word for word, so readeth all antiquitie, namely S. Cyprian ep. 52. often, and S. Augustine li. 13. Confes. c. 12. and it is a very vsuall speech in the new Testament, specially in the preaching of S. Iohn Baptist, * Christ himselfe, and * the Apostles: to signifie perfect repentance, which hath not onely confession and amendment, but contrition or sorow for the offence, and painefull satisfaction: Such as S. Cyprian speaketh of in all the foresayd epistle. But the Aduersaries of purpose (as * namely Beza protesteth) misluke that interpretation, because it fauoureth Satisfaction for sinne, which they cannot abide. where if they pretend the ‡ Greeke word, we send them to these places Mat. 11,21. Lu. 10,13. 2. Cor. 7.9 where it must needes signifie, sorowfull, painefull, and satisfactorie repentance. we tell them also that S. Basil a Greeke Doctor calleth the Niniuites repentance with fasting and haire cloth and ashes, by the same Greeke word μετάνοια. And more we will tell them in other places. Penance. μετανοεῖν. μετάνοια.

FVLKE. 2.

When you vnderstand by penance, satisfaction for sinne, doe penance, is not the English for the Latine, Agite pœnitentiam, neither in word, nor sense. And that your interpreter meant no more in Agite pœnitentiam, then repentance, his owne translation of the same Greeke word Marke 1.15. is manifest, where you are content to say, be penitent. Agere pœnitentiam nihil aliud est, quàm profiteri & affirmare se vlterius non peccaturum. Lact. de vero cult lib. 6. c. 13. Perfecta est autem pœnitentia, præterita flere & futura non admittere. Isid. orig. lib. 6. c. de officijs. Againe, to require satisfaction in them that are to be baptized, is against your owne popish learning: for many of you hold, that there is free remission of all sinnes without any satisfaction in Baptisme. As for the painfull satisfaction, that S. Cyprian speaketh of, is meant of satisfaction vnto the Church, that is offended, to be made by them, that had fallen vnto denial of Christ, or idolatrie, through terrour of persecution, by such meanes to giue outward testimonie of the inward sorowe of their hearts, for so grieuous offences, not to make amends to the iustice of God for their sinne. Neither was that publike satisfaction required of euery one that sinned, but onely of those that had fallen openly, and grieuously into some heinous crime. And Beza doth iustly mislike your translation, because in shew of words, though not in the meaning of the translator, it fauoureth that blasphemous doctrine of satisfaction for sinne vnto the righteousnes of God, which was throughly performed by the sacrifice of Christs death. But that the Greeke worde signifieth satisfactorie penance, you send vs first to Mat. 11.21. where our Sauiour saith, Tyre & Sidon would haue repented in sackcloth and ashes, but neuer a word of satisfactiō for sitting in sackcloth & ashes, is no satisfaction for sinne, but an outward signe of true sorow for sinne, and humbling of the soule to desire forgiuenes of sinnes. Neither is there one word more, Luke 10.13. whither you send vs next. In the third place, 2. Cor. 7.9. Paul saith, he is glad that they sorowed vnto repentance for the sorow that is after God worketh repentance vnto saluation, not to be repented of. What word is here sounding for satisfaction? As for godly sorow and griefe of minde, to bee necessary vnto true repentance, we neuer will denie, but that this sorow is any satisfaction to Gods iustice, (as an horrible blasphemie) we vtterly abhorre to heare of it. But where Scripture helpeth you not, you tell vs, that S. Basil calleth the Niniuites repentance, with fasting, haire cloth, and ashes, by the same Greeke word μετάνοια, and we acknowledge as much, because our Sauiour Christ calleth there repentance by the same worde μετανοοῦσι, Math. 12.41. But where is satisfaction? S. Basil in the place by you noted, plainely sheweth the vse of sackcloth and ashes, and such like outward signes. Sackcloth (saith he) is an helper vnto repentance, being a signe of humilia- Penance. Satisfaction.

RHEM.3. 6. Confeſſing their ſinnes.) Iohn did prepare the way to Chriſt and his Sacraments, not onely by his baptiſme, but by inducing the people to confeſſion of their ſinnes, which is not to acknowledge themſelues in generall to be ſinners, but alſo to vtter euery man his ſinnes.

FVLKE.3. If generall confeſſion was not ſufficient, but euery man muſt vtter all his ſinnes in particular, Iohn had ſhriuing worke enough, for ſeuen yeeres, to heare the confeſſions of Ieruſalem, and all Iewry, and all the countrey about Iordan, of whom neuer a man was euer ſhriuen before, and therefore euery mans confeſſion muſt bee very long. O Papiſts bluſh you not at this impudent collection? Shrift or confeſſion.

RHEM.4. 8. Fruite worthy.) He preacheth ſatisfaction by doing worthy fruits or workes of penance, which are (as S. Hierom ſayth in 2.Ioel) faſting, praying, almes, and the like.

FVLKE.4. Fruits worthy of repentance are no ſatisfaction for ſinne, but arguments of true repentance, effects of repentance, and not part of it. Neither doth Herome ſay, that faſting, prayers, &c. are ſatisfaction for ſinne, but tokens of repentance. Conuertimini ad me, &c. Be ye conuerted to me with all your heart. Et animi pœnitentiam ieiunio, & fletu, & planctibus indicate. And declare the repentance of your mind, with faſting, and weeping and mourning. And afterward he ſaith, Deſpaire not of pardon, through the greatnes of your wickednes, for great mercie ſhall wipe away great ſinnes. S. Hierom knew no ſatisfaction for ſinnes, to the iuſtice of God, but the death of Chriſt.

RHEM.5. 10. The axe.) Here Preachers are taught to dehort from doing euill for feare of Hell, and to exhort to doe good in hope of heauen: which kind of preaching our Auer doe condemne.

FVLKE.5. They that heare vs preach, can teſtifie that you lie: although wee exhort not men to doe good onely, or chiefly in hope of reward, nor to auoid ſinne only for feare of hel, but rather in duetie and thankfulnes to God, that God may be glorified by their good conuerſation, and not diſhonoured by their wickednes, which profeſſe his name, and deſpiſe his lawes.

RHEM.6 11. In water.) Iohns baptiſme did not remit ſinnes, nor was comparable to Chriſts baptiſme, as here it is plaine and in many other places. Hiero. adu Lucifer. Aug. de Bapt.cont. Donat.li.5.c.9.10.11. Yet it is an article of our Adu. that the one is no better then the other, which they ſay not to extoll Iohns, but to derogate from Chriſts baptiſme, ſo far, that they make it of no more valure or efficacie for remiſſion of ſinnes, and grace, and iuſtification, then was Iohns: thereby to maintaine their manifold hereſies, that Baptiſme taketh not away ſinnes, that a man is no cleaner nor lifter by the Sacrament of Baptiſme then before, that it is not neceſſarie for children vnto ſaluation, but it is enough to bee borne of Chriſtian parents, and ſuch like erronious poſitions well knowen among the Caluiniſts. Iohns baptiſme and Chriſts.

FVLKE.6. Remiſſion of ſinnes is proper vnto God, alwell in Iohns baptiſme, as in the baptiſme of Chriſt. Iohn here compareth the miniſterie of man, with the authority and power of God. The outward baptiſme with the ſpirituall baptiſme. whereof the firſt is done by the hand of man, the other is peculiar onely vnto our Sauiour Chriſt. And though ſome of the ancient Fathers, were of another opinion, yet S. Marke ſayth expreſly, that Iohn preached the baptiſme of repentance, vnto forgiuenes of ſinnes. And who can ſeparate remiſſion of ſinnes from true repentance? when the Lord promiſeth, at what time ſoeuer the ſinner repenteth, to pardon his ſinne. The ſeale of baptiſme alſo, added to the doctrine of repentance, muſt needes teſtifie remiſſion of ſinnes. namely the ſoule to bee waſhed by mercy, as the body is with water. Neither doth this doctrine derogate any thing from the baptiſme of Chriſt, ſeeing it is Chriſt that forgiueth ſinnes, and giueth grace in the baptiſme miniſtred by Iohn, and miniſtred by his Apoſtles. For Iohns baptiſme was of Gods inſtitution, and not of Iohns deuiſing. Gaudentius biſhop of Brixia, Reſp.ad Paul.Diac. ſayth, That Chriſt came to Iohns baptiſme as a ſinner to waſh away our ſinnes in his bodie, which could not be if Iohns baptiſme did not waſh away ſinnes at all. And touching the manifold hereſies, that you charge vs with, I anſwere, that God by baptiſme aſſureth his children, of the remiſſion of their ſinnes, not that the acte of baptiſme, (as your hereſie maintaineth) of the worke wrought, taketh away ſinne, though a man were baptized being aſleepe. To the ſecond I anſwer, that a true Chriſtian, is aſſured by the Sacrament of baptiſme, of ſaluation, and therefore to be clenſed and iuſtified from his ſinnes, not onely that hee committed before baptiſme, but that of frailty he committeth to the end of his life. Which your hereſie will not allow, extending the effect and vertue of baptiſme, onely to the time before the Sacrament receiued, which in them that are baptiſed being infants, is but ſhort, and for little more, then originall ſinne. For the third we anſwere, that the ſaluation of children, dependeth not vpon the outward ſigne, and yet it is neceſſarie, that the children of Chriſtian parents be baptized, if they may attaine to the Sacrament, according to Chriſts inſtitution. For the contempt, and not the want of baptiſme (where there is no default in the party) is damnable. Iohns baptiſme. Mark.1.4. Ezec.18. Slander. Mar.16.16.

RHEM.7. 12. Floore.) This floore is his Church militant here in earth, wherein are both good and bad (heere ſignified by corne and chaffe) till the ſeparation be made in the day of iudgement: contrary to the doctrine of the Heretikes, that holde, the Church to conſiſt onely of the good.

FVLKE.7. We abhorre the hereſie of them that hold the Church viſible or militant in earth, to conſiſt onely of the good. But the heauenly Ieruſalem which is the mother of vs all, the vniuerſall Church and bodie of Chriſt, conſiſteth onely of Gods elect, and members of Chriſt ordained to eternall ſaluation. Slander.

RHEM.8. 16. Opened.) To ſignifie that heauen was ſhut in the old Lawe, till Chriſt by his Paſſion opened it, and ſo by his Aſcenſion was the firſt that entred into it: contrary to the doctrine of the Heretikes. See Hebr.9.8. and 11.40.

FVLKE.8. Chriſt was the firſt, that aſcended in bodie into heauen, as hee was the firſt fruits of the dead: the firſt that roſe againe to liue euer. But ſeeing the vertue of his death and reſurrection, were as auaileable to the Fathers vnder the Lawe, as vnto vs: to ſatisfie for their ſinnes, and to make them righteous, as it is to vs: we doubt not, but the ſoules of the Fathers, were in heauen, paradiſe, or Abrahams boſome, euen where the ſoules of the faithfull departed are now. For the Apoſtle Heb.9.8. meaneth, that the way to heauen was not opened by the prieſtood and ſacrifices of the Lawe, but by the prieſthood and ſacrifice of Chriſt. And Heb. 11.40. where he ſayth, the Fathers receiued not the promiſes, it is plaine, he ſpeaketh of the full conſummation of them, which none ſhall receiue vntill the ende of the world, when they with vs, and we with them, ſhall be made perfect together. Limbus Patrum.

Christ going into the desert to prepare himselfe before his Manifestation, overcommeth the deuils tentations. 12 Beginning in Galilee, as the Prophet sayd he should: 18 he calleth foure Disciples: and with his preaching and miracles draweth vnto him innumerable followers.

THE GOSPEL vpon the first Sunday in Lent. Mr.1,12. Luk.4,1.

THEN * Iesvs was led of the Spirit into the ‖ desert, to bee tempted of the deuil.

2 And when he had ‖ fasted fortie dayes and fortie nights, afterward he was hungry.

3 And the tempter approched and said to him, If thou be the sonne of God, commaund that these stones be made bread.

4 Who answered and sayd, It is written, Deut.8,3. Not in bread alone doth man liue, but in euerie word that proceedeth from the mouth of God.

5 Then the deuill tooke him vp into the holy citie, and set him vpon the pinnacle of the Temple,

6 And said to him, If thou be the sonne of God, cast thy selfe downe, for ‖ it is written. Ps.90,12. That he will giue his Angels charge of thee, and in their hands shall they hold thee vp, lest perhaps thou knocke thy foot against a stone.

7 Iesvs said to him againe, It is written, Deut.6,16. Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

8 Againe the deuill tooke him vp into a very high mountaine: and he shewed him al the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them,

9 And said to him, All these will I giue thee, if falling downe thou wilt adore me.

10 Then Iesvs saith to him, Auant Satan: for it is written, Deut.6.13. The Lord thy God shalt thou adore, and ‖ him onely shalt thou serue.

11 Then the deuil left him: and behold Angels came, and ministred to him.

12 And * when Iesvs had heard that Iohn was deliuered vp, he retired into Galilee: Mr,1,14. Luk.4,14.

23 And IESVS went round about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdome: & ‖ healing euery maladie and euery infirmity in the people.

24 And the bruite of him went into al Syria: and they presented to him all that were ill at ease, diuersly taken with diseases and torments, and such as were possest, and lunatikes, and sicke of the palsey, and he cured them:

25 And much people folowed him from Galilee and Decapolis, and Hierusalem, and from be-yond Iordan.

he saw other two brethren, Iames the sonne of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, in the ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets: and he called them.

22 And they immediatly left the ship and their father, and followed him.

23 And Iesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues & preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, & healing all maner of sicknes, and all maner of disease among the people.

24 And his fame spread abroad thorowout all Syria: & they brought vnto him all sicke people that were taken with diuers diseases, and gripings, and them that were possessed with deuils, & those which were lunatike, and those that had the palsey, and he healed them.

25 And there followed him great multitudes of people, from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Hierusalem, and from Iurie, and from the regions that lie beyond Iordane.

ANOTATIONS. CHAP. 4.

RHEM. 1. 1. Desert.) As Iohn the Baptist, so our Sauiour by going into the desert and there liuing in contemplation euen among bruite beasts, and subiect to the assaults of the Deuil for our sinnes, giueth a warrant and example to such holy men as haue liued in wildernes for penance and contemplation, called Eremites. Eremites.

FVLKE, 1. Christ went into the wildernes, neither for penance, nor contemplation, but as the text sayth, that he might be tempted of the deuil. Which no Christian ought to doe, to offer himselfe to temptation, therefore his going is no warrant, nor example vnto Heremites. Secondly, he went by special instinct, and leading of the spirit, which warranteth not men that are led by their owne will and affection. Thirdly, Christ remained in the wildernes, for a short seaton. Therefore is no example for them that spend their life in the wildernes. Fourthly, he fasted fortie dayes, which no man can doe of his owne strength. And yet condemne we not the contemplatiue life of them, that of old went into the wildernes, so the Church had no neede of their seruice in townes and cities, but to shew the vanitie of your collection. As for your Popish Heremites in England, neuer came in the wildernes, but oftentimes in the cities and townes: sometime by your leaue in the stewes. As Steuen Gardiner, if he were liuing could testifie, of one brought before him. Eremites.

RHEM. 2. 2. Fasted fourtie dayes) Elias and Moyses (sayth S. Hierom) by the fast of 40. dayes were filled with the familiaritie of God, and our Lord himselfe in the wildernes fasted as many, to leaue vnto vs the solemne dayes of fast. (that is, Lent.) Hiero. in c. 48. Esa. S. Augustine also hath the very words ep. 119. And generally all the ancient Fathers that by occasion or of purpose speake of the Lents-fast, make it not only an imitation of our Sauiours fast, but also an Apostolical tradition, and of necessitie to be kept. Contemne not Lent (sayth S. Ignatius) for it conteineth the imitation of our Lords conuersation. And S. Ambrose sayth plainely, that it was not ordained by men, but consecrated by God: not inuented by any earthly cogitation, but commanded by the heauenly Maiestie. And againe, that it is sinne not to fast all the Lent. S. Hieroms words also be most plaine: we (sayth he) fast fortie dayes, or, make one Lent in a yere, according to the tradition of the Apostles, in time conuenient. This time most conuenient is (as S. Augustine saith ep. 119.) immediatly before Easter, thereby to communicate with our Sauiours Passion: and (as other writers doe adde) thereby to come the better prepared and more worthily, to the great solemnitie of Christs Resurrection: beside many other goodly reasons in the ancient fathers, which for brewity wee omit. See (good Christian Reader) twelue notable sermons of S. Leo the Great de Quadragesima, of Lent: namely Ser. 6. and 9. Where hee [illegible]th is the Apostles ordinance by the doctrine of the holy Ghost. See S. Ambrose from the 23. sermon forward: in S. Bernard 7. sermons, and in many other Fathers the like. Last of all, note well the saying of S. Augustine, who affirmeth that by due obseruation thereof, the wicked be separated from the good, Infidels from Christians, Heretikes from faithfull Catholikes. The Lent-fast.

FVLKE. 2. Montanus the heretike, (as Eusebius testifieth out of Apollonius) was ỹ first that prescribed lawes of fasting. Eccl. hist. li. 5. c. 18. And Irenæus saith in his Epistle to Victor, that as there was in his time varietie in obseruing the feast of Christs resurrection, so in keeping the fast that went before it. For some (saith he) thought they ought to fast one day, some two dayes, some more, some fortie houres day and night, which diuersitie of fasting (he saith) commendeth the vnitie of faith and religion, Euseb. lib. 5. c. 26. Irenæus therefore discharged your 40. dayes Lent of the Apostles institution. So doth Dionys. Alexand. Ep. ad Bas. who sheweth that some fasted sixe dayes before Easter, some two dayes, some three, some foure, some none. Nowe let vs examine, what you bring out of later writers, among whom I account Ignatius, though his Epistle haue the name of a more ancient writer. But S. Ierome in Cat. knew no Epistle of his to the Philippians. And the authenticall testimonie of Irenæus cited by Eusebius, of the diuersitie of fasting, manifestly declareth, that there was no such Lent, as that Epistle nameth, in the dayes of Ignatius, who was an immediate successour of the Apostles. And albeit there was an ancient fast of fortie dayes before Easter, yet was not that your popish Lent, where flesh is prohibited, and fish permitted, but a time of abstinence indeede. The testimonie of S. Hierom, which you expound for Lent, hath neuer a word of Lent, nor for Lent. For there were other solemne dayes of fasting in the Church, then Lent. S. Augustine indeede sayth, that the fortie dayes fast, hath authoritie of the example of Moses, Helias, and Christ, and that the consent of the Church, hath established the same fortie dayes, to be kept before Easter, not as a thing necessary, but as other rites, which hee nameth, not now obserued of the Papists themselues. And further, the abstinence from flesh as vncleane, he condemneth as heretie. And Hierom against Montanus, although he ascribe the 40. dayes fast to Apostolicall tradition, because it hath no ground in the Scripture, yet he sheweth plainely, that it was of good will, and not of necessitie. Whereas the Heretikes had three Lents in the yeere, which they commanded to be kept of necessitie, but it is one thing (sayth Hierom) to Lent. Fasting.

doe a thing of neceſſitie, another thing to offer a gift of good will. And leſt his aſcription of the 40. dayes faſt, vnto the Apoſtles tradition, ſhould moue vs: in the ſame place he ſaith, it was not lawfull for Chriſtians to faſt in the Pentecoſt, that is, from Eaſter to Whitſontide, and this prohibition of faſting, is alſo by the ancient Fathers, affirmed to be an Apoſtolical tradition. Yet the counterfeit Ignatius, in that his Epiſtle to the Philippians, exhorteth them after Paſſion weeke, not to omit faſting on Wedneſdayes and Fridayes. But if any man ſhall faſt (ſaith he) on Sunday or Saturday (except one) he is a murtherer of Chriſt. Behold how hote this counterfeit Father is, about his counterfeit traditions. You ſee what credit is to be giuen to ſuch things as are aſcribed to tradition of the Apoſtles, without warrant of their owne writings. Epiphanius affirmeth it to be an Apoſtolike tradition, that men ſhould faſt Wedneſdayes and Fridayes thoughout the yere, except in the Pentecoſt, that is, from Eaſter to Whitſontide: and in the fixe dayes of Eaſter, to receiue nothing but bread, and ſalt, and water, Hæreſ. 75. And this he ſaith, was the obſeruation of the whole Church in his time. Yet the Papiſts faſt Fridayes betweene Eaſter and Whitſontide, beſide the Rogation weeke, and faſt not Wedneſdayes commonly, neither obſerue the feaſt of the ſixe dayes of Eaſter, with bread, and ſalt, and water. Yet haue theſe as good teſtimony of antiquitie, as the Lent-faſt to be Apoſtolicall tradition. The ſermons of Ambroſe, that are alledged (as Eraſmus teſtifieth, and the ſtile doth euidently declare) were none of S. Ambroſe his making, but of ſome later writer, which counterfeited the ſermons Ad fratres in Eremo, & ſome De tempore vnder S. Auguſtines name, among which are found many that are intituled to Ambroſe. To the authoritie of Leo Biſhop of Rome, calling Lent the Apoſtles ordinance, I oppoſe the authority of Damaſus, likewiſe a Biſhop of Rome in his Pontifical, affirming that Teleſphorus Biſhop of Rome, did inſtitute it. And Teleſphorus himſelfe in his Decretall Epiſtle, ſayth, that he and his fellow Biſhops, gathered together in counſell at Rome, did ordaine this 40. dayes faſt, onely for Clerkes: and contendeth in many words, that there muſt bee a difference betweene Clerkes and Lay men, as wel in faſt, as in other things. If you ſay this Epiſtle of Teleſphorus is counterfeit, yet is it good authoritie againſt you, that vrge it, with the reſt of the dunghill of Decretals, againſt vs. But the vndoubted authoritie of Irenæus, cited by Euſebius, is ſufficient to proue, that the Apoſtles left no ſuch certaine conſtitution, whatſoeuer the later Fathers affirme of Apoſtolike tradition, as they doe of other things, which neither Papiſts nor Proteſtants compt neceſſary to be obſerued. The laſt authoritie, cited out of Auguſtine, proueth, that in his time, that did write that Homily, there was no neceſſary enforcement to keepe Lent, but euery man did as he liked. But in all your citations of authors, true & fained, there is no word of abſtinence from fleſh, which is the chiefeſt part of your Popiſh Lent, but of faſting once in euery day, and that from dinner. Ambroſe ſer. 34. and 36. S. Barnard is a late writer, and therefore in opinion of Apoſtolike tradition, hee might eaſily bee deceiued, as the elder Fathers were.

FVLKE. 3. S. Aug. ſpeaketh of the ciuil adoration, or reuerence in bodily geſture, done by Abraham vnto the people of Heth. But by this text, all religious ſeruice is due onely to God. Iuſtinus Martyr proueth out of this text, οὐκ ἄλλον τινὰ δεῖ προσκυνεῖν, &c. that we ought to adore God only. thus he hath perſwaded vs ſaying, This is the greateſt commandment, Thou ſhalt adore the Lord thy God, & him only ſhalt thou ſerue. Apol. 2. And although S. Auguſtine being a meane Grecian, imagined a diſtinction betweene Latria and Dulia, whereof the Papiſts take hold, to maintaine their religious ſeruice vnto creatures: yet they that are skilfull in the Greeke tongue, do know, that theſe two words do ſignifie all one and the ſelfe ſame thing, ſauing that δουλεία rather ſignifieth a more baſe kind of ſeruice or bondage, which were abſurd to giue to creatures, in religion. And the Hebrew word, that Moſes vſeth (out of whom this Scripture is cited) ſignifieth the ſame that δουλεύειν doth, without any difference of God, or creatures. The diſtinction therefore is not in the ſignification of the Greeke Verbes, but in the ſubiect of religion, or ciuill adoration or ſeruice.

Latria and Dulia.

The place of Euſebius whereunto you ſend vs, is of the body of Polycarpus, which the Chriſtians were deſirous to haue bene giuen them, to burie all, but the malicious Iewes perſwaded the gouernor, that he ſhould not grant it, leſt the Chriſtians leauing Chriſt, ſhould begin to worſhip Polycarpus. And therefore ſay the faithfull of Smyrna, in their Epiſtle: They watched vs leſt we ſhould haue taken him out of the fire ἀγνοοῦντες ὅτι οὔτε τὸν ἐσταυρωμένον, &c. being ignorant that neither we can euer leaue Chriſt, which hath ſuffered for all that are ſaued in the world, neither worſhip any other. For him we adore, as being the ſonne of of God, but the Martyrs, as Diſciples and followers of our Lord, we loue worthily, for their exceeding great good will vnto their King and Maſter, of whom God grant we may bee partakers and ſchollers. Therefore when the Centurion, ſaw the contention of the Iewes, ſetting him in the middeſt, as their manner is, they burne him. And ſo we at length hauing gotten his bones, more precious then precious ſtones, and better tried then golde, wee layed them vp where it was meete, where (as wee may) the Lord ſhall grant vnto vs, being gathered togeither with ioy and gladnes, to celebrate the birth day of his martyrdome, both in remembrance of them that haue fought before, and for exerciſe and preparation of them that are to follow.

This worthy teſtimonie of the people of Smyrna, ſheweth, how farre their reuerent loue and regard of the bodies and reliques of the Martyrs, differeth from your popiſh idolatrie and ſuperſtition. So that I would marualle, why you quoted this place: but that I conſider, you read it not in Euſebius himſelfe, but in the old and corrupt tranſlation of Ruffinus, whereunto the word diligimus is added, and venerenur which is not in the Epiſtle rehearſed by Euſebius. S. Hierom indeed, againſt Vigilantius, is more ready to maintaine the immoderate eſtimation of reliques, then of right he ſhould haue bene. Yet is he alſo farre frō your idolatrous worſhipping of them, as his own words declare. Nos autem non, &c. But we do not worſhip and adore, I ſay not reliques of martyrs, but neither the Sunne, nor the Moone, nor Angels, nor Archangels, nor Cherubin, nor Seraphin, nor any name that is named in this world, or in the world to come, leſt we ſhould ſerue the creature more then the Creator, which is to bee bleſſed for euer. But we honour the reliques of Martyrs, that we might worſhip him whoſe Martyrs they are. And in his booke againſt Vigilantius, he noteth the ignorance and ſimplicitie of certaine Lay men, or deuout women, which hauing a Zeale of God without knowledge, lighted waxe candles in honour of Martyrs, which in poperie is a great part of commendable religion, euen in the honour of their images, which were not in the Church in S. Hieroms time. S. Auguſtine de Ciuit. lib. 10. c. 1. ſaith indeede, that by them which haue interpreted the Scripture, Latreia is taken for that that ſeruice which alwayes or almoſt alwayes, pertaineth to the religion of God. But Lodouicus Viues in his notes vpon that chapter, telleth you otherwiſe: he bringeth examples out of the Greeke text of the Septuagint as well as out of prophane authors, where Latria is taken for ſeruice due to men. And in the ſame chapter S. Auguſtine ſaith, that to conſecrate our ſelues, or any thing of ours in rites of religion to Angels (and conſequently to any creatures) is the worſhip due vnto the diuinitie or deitie it ſelfe, and that which in Greekes is called Latria. Therefore by S. Auguſtines iudgement, all your conſecrating of your ſelfe, or any thing of yours, to creatures, is idolatrie: and ſo the greateſt part of popiſh religion, euen reteyning your pretended diſtinction of Latria and Dulia, is manifeſt idolatrie.

Likewiſe de Trinit. l. 1. cap. 6. where he hath the ſame diſtinction of Latria and Dulia, he ſayth, it is idolatry, to conſecrate a temple to any creature, and thereby proueth, the diuinitie of the holy Ghoſt, becauſe our bodies are his temple. For to whom a temple belongeth, to him alſo that ſeruice which he calleth Latria. The Papiſts therefore, building and dedicating temples to the Angels, and Saints, by S. Auguſtines iudgement, giue them the honour proper to God, and ſo commit horrible ſacriledge, and idolatry. Beda in 4. Luc. diſtinguiſhing Latria from Dulia, referreth Dulia to the ſeruice of charitie, that one Chriſtian oweth to another, not to the worſhipping of reliques, and ſaith they are called Idolaters, which beſtowe vpon Idols, Vowes, Prayers, and ſacrifices, which they owe onely to God. Seeing therefore all that, is made an idole, which is worſhipped, with the ſeruice proper to God: and prayers, vowes, ſacrifices, by Bedes iudgement, are due onely to God, it followeth that prayers, vowes, and ſacrifices, beſtowed not onely vpon images, but vpon Saints, and their reliques, are the ſeruice of idols, or idolatry. As for the authoritie of the 2. Councell of Nice, that decreed the adoration of images, and of Damaſcen, that followeth that idolatrous determination, ought not to moue Chriſtian men, contrary to the expreſſe commandement of God, Exod. 20. and againſt this Councell, I oppoſe Cone. Eliber. Can. 36. that was ancienter, and the Councels of Conſtantinople vnder Leo, and of Epheſus, that were of later time, condemning the worſhipping of Images. The ſame Councell of Nice was alſo condemned, by a Councell holden by the commandement of Charles the Great, and a booke written againſt it, which is extant vnder the name of Charles the Great, but written as it ſeemeth, by Albinus, that was his inſtructor. for thus Mat. Weſt. writeth. The ſame yeere, Charles king of France, ſent a ſynodal booke into Britaine, in which were found many things contrary to the true faith: and therein eſpecially, that it was defined by the agreeable aſſertion, of almoſt all the learned men of the Eaſt, that we ought to worſhip images, which the Catholike Church doth altogether abhorre. Againſt which, Albinus wrote an Epiſtle, by authoritie of the holy Scriptures, marueloufly endited, and brought it to the French King, with the ſame ſynodall booke, in the perſon of Biſhops, and noble men.

MARGINALL NOTES.

RHEM. 1 26 Prison.) This prison is taken of verie auncient fathers, for Purgatorie: namely S. Cyprian Epist. ad Anton. num. 6.

FVLKE, 1 This prison by Carpocrates, a very ancient Heretike, was taken for the bodies, into which the soule was remoued by the deuill, vntill it was throughly purified, Irenæus lib.1.c.24. But of Montanus, an old Heretike also, it was taken for a place in hell, where euery small offence is punished in soule, although it shall be saued in the resurrection, as testifieth Tertullian de anima cap. de infer. & An aliquid patiantur. &c. By which it appeareth, that the opinion of Purgatorie, is very ancient. Neuertheless it is not like that Cyprian, who was farre from these heresies, in the forenamed Epistle, speaketh of Purgatorie: for he only alludeth to this text, and to the 1.Cor.3. comparing the excellencie of them that suffered martirdome, aboue them that had fallen in time of persecution, and were receiued againe into the Church, either by pardon of their exercises of repentance, that were prescribed vnto them, or after they had throughly performed them: because Antonianus, to whom hee did write, being somewhat enclining to the error of the Nouatians, feared least by the receiuing of them that had fallen, and by remitting those exercises of repentance, vertue would be diminished and martyrdome decay. But Cyprian answereth, that chastitie, and virginitie, had their due prayse, though adulterers vpon their repentance were receiued: For it is one thing (saith he) to stand at pardon, another thing to come to glory. It is one thing for him that is cast in prison, not to come out vntill he hath paide the vtermost farthing, another thing straightway to receiue the reward of faith and vertue, &c. S. Augustine expoundeth the place clearely of hell and eternall paines, Serm. dom. in monte lib.1. So doth S. Hierome in Lament. lib.1.cap.1. Euseb. Emiss. Hom. in domi.6. post Pent. Carcer iste infernus est. Theoph. Antioch. In carcerem, id est, in Gehennam. and Chromatius in 5. Mat. and many other of the ancient fathers. And the text is plaine, that he which is out of charitie, hath deserued hell fire: and I suppose the Papists will not send him to Purgatorie, that dieth out of charitie. Purgatorie.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. 5.

RHEM. 10 For iustice.) Heretikes and other malefactours sometime suffer willingly and stoutly: but they are not blessed, because they suffer not for iustice. For (saith Saint Augustine) they cannot suffer for iustice, that haue deuided the Church. and, where sound faith or charitie is not, there cannot be iustice. Cont. Epist. Parm. lib.1.cap.9. Epist. 50. Psal. 34. Conc. 2. And so by this scripture are excluded all false Martyrs, as S. Augustine often declareth, and S. Cypr. de Vnit. Eccle. nu. 8. False martyrs.

RHEM. 2 12 Reward.) In Latine and Greeke the worde signifieth very wages and hire due for workes, and so presupposeth a meritorious deede. Merces. Μισθος.

FVLKE 2 The reward is promised of the free mercie of God, of whose grace, commeth strength to endure persecution, and not of the merite of the worke: For whence should I haue so great merite (saith S. Ambrose) seeing mercie is my crowne? ad Virg. Exhort. He crowneth thee (saith Saint Augustine) because he crowneth his gifts, not thy merites, in Psal. 101. Merites.

RHEM. 3 15 The light.) This light of the world, and citie on a mountaine, and candle vpon a candlesticke, signifieth the Clergie, and the whole Church, so built vpon Christ the mountaine, that is must needes be visible, and cannot be hid nor vnknowen. August. cont. Fulg. Donat. c.18. lib.16. cont. Faust. cap.17. And therfore, the Church being a candle not vnder a bushel, but shining to all in the house (that is) in the world, what shall I say more, (saith S. Augustine) then that they are blinde which shut their eyes against the candle that is set on the candlestick? Tract.2. in epi. Io. The Church visible.

FVLKE 3 When S. Augustine sayth, the Church cannot be hid, he meaneth from them, that will diligently seeke her in the Scriptures, where onely the certaine knowledge of her is to be found, de Vnitat. Eccles. cap.2. & 3. & 16. de Past. Cap. 14. Neuertheless, he compareth her to the Moone, which is often hid, and so may the Church in diuers respects be hidden. In Psalme 10. Also he acknowledgeth, that the Church may be so secret, that the members know not one another, de Bapt. cont. Don. lib.6. cap.4. And the Catholike Church which is the whole mysticall body of Christ, being an article of faith, is alwayes inuisible. Eusebius Emiss. Hom. in Natal. Confess. Sic sunt Apostoli & Episcopi supra ecclesiam, sicuti ciuitas supra montem. Non possunt abscondi, altius sedent, omnium oculi ad eos respiciunt. Visibilitie of the Church.

RHEM. 17 Your light.) The good life of the Clergie edifieth much, and is Gods great honour: whereas the contrarie dishonoureth him.

RHEM. 4 20 One of these.) Beholde how necessarie it is, not onely to beleeue, but to keepe all the commandements, euen the verie least.

FVLKE. 4 It is necessarie for euery Christian man, not onely to beleeue, but to endeuour himselfe to keepe euen the least of Gods Commaundements: yet is he iustified, and hath remission of his sinnes, and transgressions of Gods Commandements, onely by faith in the mercie of God, Rom.3.28. Galat.2.16.

RHEM. 5 21 Your iustice.) It is our iustice, when it is giuen vs of God. Aug. in Ps. 30. conc.1. De Sp. & lit. c.9. So that Christians are truely iust, and haue in themselues inherent iustice, by doing Gods commandements. without which iustice of workes no man of age can be saued, Aug. de fid. & oper. cap. 16. whereby we see saluation, iustice, and iustification, not to come of onely faith, or imputation of Christs iustice. True inherent iustice.

FVLKE. 5 The vertue of iustice, whereby we loue and keepe Gods commandements (though no man doeth either of both perfectly) is vndoubtedly the gift of God, and is inherent in vs, that are iustified by the grace and mercie of God through faith, and of this vnperfect iustice, we are truely, yet vnperfectly, declared to be iust, without the workes whereof, no man of age can be saued. But yet for all this, we are iustified, or made iust in the sight of God, by faith onely, through the imputation of Christs iustice, and not by the workes of iustice, which as Saint Augustine saith, doe follow him that is iustified, doe not goe before him that is to be iustified, in Ps. 102. de fid. & oper. cap. 14. Iustice inherent.

RHEM. 6 23 Hell of fire.) Here is a plaine difference of sinnes, some mortall that bring to hell, some lesse, and lesse punished, called veniall. Veniall sinnes.

FVLKE, 6 The difference of sinnes, proueth not that some are mortall, and some veniall: for all of their owne nature are mortall. The reward of sinne (saith the Apostle) is death, Rom. 6. 23. and all sinnes to him that is truely penitent, are pardonable by Gods mercie. He that sinneth against the holy Ghost, is neuer truely penitent, nor his sinne euer remitted, Hebr. 6. Matth. 12. Veniall sinnes.

RHEM. 24 Gift at the altar.) Beware of comming to the holy altar or any Sacraments out of charitie. But be first reconciled to thy brother, and much more to the Catholike Church, which is the whole brotherhood of Christian men. Hebr. 13. 1.

RHEM. 7 33 Excepting the cause of fornication) This exception is only to shew, that for this one cause a man may put away

Mar. 10. 11. Luke 16. 18. away his wife for euer: but not that he may marie another: as it is most plaine in S. Marke and S. Luke, who leaue out this exposition, saying, *Whosoeuer dimisseth his wife and marieth another, committeth aduoutrie. See the Anno. Luke 19. 9. But if both parties be in one and the same fault, then can neither of them not so much as diuorce or put away the other.

FVLK. 7 S. Marke, and S. Luke, vnderstand the exception which they doe not expresse, for they all report one doctrine of our Sauiour Christ: and the exception declareth, that not onely diuorcement, but also mariage after diuorcement is free, as it was in the Law, where fornication is the cause of diuorcement. Chromatius in hunc locum. Vnde non ignorent quàm grauè apud Deum damnationis crimen incurrant, qui per effrenatam libidinis voluptatem absque fornicationis caussa dimissis vxoribus, in alia volunt transire coniugia. The Popes Canon lawe restrayneth the libertie of marriage and diuorcing, because hee may take more money for bulles of licence and dispensation to marie. Mariage after diuorcement.

RHEM. 8 33 Committeth aduoutrie.) The knot of mariage is a thing of so great a Sacrament, that not by separation it selfe of the parties is can be loosed, being not lawfull neither for the one part nor the other, to marie againe vpon diuorce. August. de bon. Coniug. cap. 7. Mariage a Sacrament, and is not dissolued by diuorce.

FVLKE. 8 The knot of mariage is broken, through the wickednesse of them that commit fornication, and therefore this is to be vnderstood of such diuorces, as are not for the cause of fornication. Neither can mariage out of this place, be proued to be a sacrament, although S. Augustine call it by the name of a sacrament or mysterie. see the note Cap. 1. 20. But of marying after diuorce, S. Augustine in the place before named, is doubtfull, although he encline to the negatiue, as in his booke de adulterinis Coniugijs ad Pollent. where he professeth this question to be most obscure, and more then he dare determine: but S. Hilarie maketh no question, but that through adulterie the mariage ceaseth, and is dissolued in Mat. Can. 4.

RHEM. 35 Not to sweare.) The Anabaptists here not following the Churches iudgement, but the bare letter (as other Heretikes in other cases) holde that there is no othe lawfull, no not before a iudge. whereas Christ speaketh against rash and vsuall swearing in common talke, when there is no cause.

RHEM. 9 39 Not to resist euill.) Here also the Anabaptists gather of the lester, that it is not lawfull to goe to lawe for our right as Luther also vpon this place helde, that Christians might not resist the Turke. whereas by this, as by that which followeth, patience onely is signified and a will to suffer more, rather then to reuenge. For neither did Christ, nor S. Paul folow the lester by turning the other cheeke. Io. 18. Actes 23.

FVLKE. 9 This is a slander of Luther, hee did write onely, that Christians should not hope to haue victorie against the Turkes, before the Church was reformed, and the Popes wickednesse was bridled, and mens maners were amended. Slander.

CHAP. VI.

In this second Chapter of his Sermon, he confoundeth the Pharisees iustice (that is, their almes, prayer, and fasting) for the scope and intention thereof, which was vaine glory. 19 Their ende also was to be rich, but ours must not be so much as in necessaries.

TAke good heede that you doe not your ‖iustice before men, to be seene of them: otherwise rewarde you shall not haue with your father which is in heauen.

‡THE FIRST worke of iustice. 2 Therefore when thou ‡ doest an almes-deed, sound not a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in ỹ Synagogues & in ỹ streets, that they may be honored of men: Amen I say to you, they haue receiued their reward:

3 But when thou doest an almes-deede, let not thy left hande knowe what thy right hand doeth:

4 That thy almes-deede may be in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret, will ‖repay thee.

‡THE SECOND worke of iustice. 5 And when ye ‡ pray, you shall not be as the ‖hypocrites, that loue to stand and pray in the Synagogues & corners of the streets, that they may be seene of mẽ: Amen I say to you, they haue receiued their reward.

6 But thou when thou shalt pray, enter into thy chamber, and hauing shut the doore, pray to thy father in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret, will repay thee.

7 And when you are praying, speake not much, as the heathen. For they thinke that in their ‖ much-speaking they may be heard.

8 Bee not you therefore like to them, for your father knoweth what is needful for you, before you aske him.

Luke 11, 2. THE PATER NOSTER. 9 Thus therefore shall you pray. OVR FATHER which art in heauen, sanctified be thy name.

TAke heede that ye do not your almes before men, to the intent that ye would be seene of them, or else ye haue no rewarde of your father, which is in heauen.

*2 Therefore, * when thou doest thine almes,* Rom. 12. 8. doe not blow a trumpet before thee, as hypocrites do, in the Synagogues, & in the streetes, that they might be esteemed of men. Verily I say vnto you, they haue their reward.

3 But when thou doest almes, let not thy left hand know, what thy right hand doeth:

4 That thine almes may be in secret: And thy father which seeth in secret, himselfe shall reward thee openly.

5 And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they loue to pray standing in the Synagogues, & in the corners of the streets, that they may be seene of men. Verily I say vnto you, they haue their reward.

6 But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut the doore, pray to thy father which is in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

7 But when ye pray, babble not much, as the heathẽ do. For they thinke that they shal be heard, for their much babblings sake.

8 Be not ye therfore like vnto them: For your father knoweth, what things ye haue neede of, before ye aske of him.

*9 After this maner therefore pray yee: * O* Luke 11. 2. our Father which art in heauen, halowed be thy Name.

10 Let thy kingdome come. Thy wil be done, as in heauen in earth also.

‡In S. Luke, the Latin is, Panem quotidianum, dayly bread, the Greeke being indifferent to both, τὸν ἐπιούσιον. Mar. 11,25.

11 Giue vs to day our ‡super substãtial bread.

12 And forgiue vs our ‖debts, as we also forgiue our debters.

13 And ‖lead vs not into tentation. But deliuer vs from euill. Amen.

14 For ‖if you will *forgiue men their offenses, your heauenly father will forgiue you also your offences.

15 But if you wil not forgiue men, neither will your father forgiue you your offences.

‡The third worke of iustice.

16 And when you ‡ fast, be not as the hypocrites, sad. For they disfigure their faces, that they may appeare vnto men to fast. Amen I say to you, that they haue receiued their reward.

The Gospel vpon Ashwensday.

17 But thou when thou dost fast, annoint thy head, and wash thy face:

18 That thou appeare not to men to fast, but to thy father which is in secret: and thy father which seeth in secret, will repay thee.

Luc. 12,33.

19 *Heape not vp to your selues treasures on the earth: where the rust & moth do corrupt, and where theeues digge through and steale.

20 But heape vp to your selues treasures in heauen: where neither the rust nor mothe doth corrupt, & where theeues do not digge through nor steale.

21 For where thy treasure is, there is thy heart also. ☞

Luc. 11,34.

22 *The candle of thy body is thine eye. If thine eye be simple, thy whole body shall be lightsome.

23 But if thine eye be naught: thy whole body shalbe darkesome. If then the light that is in thee, be darknesse: the darknesse it selfe how great shall it be?

Luc. 16,13. The Gospel on the fourteenth Sunday after Pentecost.

24 No man can *serue ‖two masters. For either he will hate the one, and loue the other: or hee will sustaine the one, and contemne the other. You cannot serue God and Mammon.

Luc. 12,22.

25 Therefore I say to you, *be not ‖carefull for your life what you shall eate, neither for your body what rayment you shal put on. Is not the life more then the meate: and the body more then the rayment?

26 Behold the foules of the aire, that they sow not, neither reape, nor gather into barnes and your heauenly father feedeth them. Are not you much more of price then they?

27 And which of you by caring, can adde to his stature one cubite?

28 And for rayment why are you carefull? Consider the lilies of the fielde howe they grow: they labour not, neither doe they spinne.

29 But I say to you, that neither Salomon in all his glorie was arayed as one of these.

30 And if the grasse of the field, which to day

10 Let thy kingdome come. Thy will be done, as well in earth, as it is in heauen.

11 Giue vs this day our dayly bread.

12 And forgiue vs our debts, as we forgiue our debters.

13 *And lead vs not into temptation, but deliuer vs from euill: for thine is the kingdome, and the power, and the glory, for euer, Amen. Matth. 13.19.

14 *For, * if ye forgiue men their trespasses, your heauenly Father shall also forgiue you.* Mar. 11.25. eccl. 28.2.

15 But, if ye forgiue not men their trespasses: no more shall your Father forgiue you your trespasses.

16 Moreouer, when ye fast, bee not of an heauy countenance, as the hypocrites are: for they disfigure their faces, that they might appeare vnto men to fast: Verily I say vnto you, they haue their reward.

17 But thou, when thou fastest, annoint thine head, and wash thy face:

18 That thou appeare not vnto men to fast, but vnto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

19 Hoord not vp for your selues treasures vpon earth, where mothe and rust doeth corrupt, and where theeues breake thorow, and steale. Luke 12.33. 1.tim.6.19.

20 But lay vp for you treasures in heauen, where neither moth nor rust doeth corrupt, and where theeues doe not breake thorow, nor steale. Luke 12.34.

21 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

22 The candle of the body is the eye: wherefore if thine eye be single, all thy body shall be full of light. Luke 11.34.

23 But if thine eye be wicked, all thy bodie shall be full of darkenesse. Wherefore, if the light that is in thee be darkenesse, howe great is that darkenesse?

24 No man can serue two masters: for either he shall hate the one and loue the other, or els he shall leane to the one and despise the other. Ye can not serue God, and Mammon.

25 Therefore I say vnto you, Be not carefull for your life, what ye shall eate or drinke, nor yet for your body what yee shall put on: Is not the life more worth then meate? and the body then rayment?

26 Behold the foules of the aire: for they sow not, neither doe they reape, nor cary into barnes, yet your heauenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better then they?

27 Which of you by taking of careful thought, can adde one cubite vnto his stature?

28 And why care ye for raiment? Learne of the Lilies of the field, how they grow: they wearie not themselues with labour, neither doe they spinne.

29 And yet I say vnto you, that euen Solomon in all his roialtie, was not arayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore, if God so clothe the grasse of the 31 Be not carefull therefore, ſaying, what ſhall we eate, or what ſhall wee drinke, or wherewith ſhall we be couered?

‡ They ſeeke temporall things onely, and that not of the true God, but of their idoles, or by their owne induſtrie.

32 For all theſe things the ‡ Heathen doe ſeeke after. For your father knoweth that you neede all theſe things.

the field, which though it ſtand to day, is to morow caſt into the ouen: ſhall he not much more do the ſame for you, O ye of litle faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, ſaying, What ſhall we eate? or, what ſhall we drinke? or, wherewith ſhall we be clothed?

32 (For after all theſe things do the Gentiles ſeeke:) for your heauenly father knoweth that ye haue neede of all theſe things.

33 But ſeeke ye firſt the kingdome of God, and his righteouſneſſe, and all theſe things ſhall be added vnto you.

34 Care not then for the morowe: for the morrow ſhall care for it ſelfe: Sufficient vnto the day, is the euill thereof.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. 6.

RHEM. 1 — 1 Iuſtice.) Hereby it is plaine that good workes be iuſtice, and that man doing them doeth iuſtice, and is thereby iuſt and iuſtified, and not by faith onely. All which iuſtice of a Chriſtian man our Sauiour here compriſeth in theſe three workes, in almes, faſting, and prayers. Aug li. perf. iuſt. c. 8. So that to giue almes, is to doe iuſtice, and the workes of mercy are iuſtice. Aug. in Pſ. 49. v. 5. — Good workes iuſtific.

FVLKE. 1 — Good workes are the fruites of Iuſtification, proceeding from a iuſtified man, and doe iuſtifie (as S. Iames ſaith) that is, declare a man to be iuſt, and ſo a man is iuſtified by workes, and not by faith onely. But they doe not iuſtifie a man in the ſight of God, who requireth perfect Iuſtice, and not vnperfect, ſuch as good workes of men are, which follow the iuſtified man (as S. Auguſtine ſaith) doe not goe before vnto iuſtification, in Pſal. 102. de fid. & oper. cap. 14. Wherefore a man is iuſtified in the ſight of God, by imputation of the iuſtice of Chriſt, which is moſt perfect, through the onely grace and mercie of God, apprehended by faith onely, Rom. 3. and 4. Gal. 2. — Iuſtification.

Neither is all the iuſtice of a Chriſtian man, that is iuſtified, compriſed in almes, faſting, and prayers, but in obedience of all Gods commaundements, and yet all that is vnperfect, as S. Auguſtine proueth in the place quoted, de perfect. Iuſt. and ſaith not, that all Iuſtice is compriſed in theſe three workes. This is our iuſtice now (ſaith S. Auguſtine) in which we come hungring and thirſting to the perfection and fulnes of Iuſtice, that hereafter we may be filled therewith. And in Pſal. 49. he ſaith, Who are iuſt? but they that liue of faith, doing the workes of mercie, for thoſe workes are the workes of Iuſtice. Therefore by his iudgement, the life of a iuſt man is faith, the fruite, workes of mercie and iuſtice.

RHEM. 2 — 4 Repay.) This repaying and rewarding of good workes in heauen, often mentioned here by our Sauiour, declareth that the ſaid workes are meritorious, and that we may doe them in reſpect of that reward. — Merits.

FVLKE. 2 — This repaying and rewarding, prooueth, that the reward is due, but not that the workes are meritorious. The reward is due by Gods promiſe, his meere mercie mooued him to promiſe. And we may be encouraged in reſpect of the reward to do good workes, but not only nor chiefly in that reſpect, but eſpecially to ſhew our ſelues thankefull, and dutifull, that God may be glorified by our good workes, whoſe glory ought to mooue vs more, then the reward, if that we loue God as we ought with all our hearts.

RHEM. — 5 Hypocrites.) Hypocriſie is forbidden in all theſe three workes of iuſtice, and not the doing of them openly to the glorie of God and the profit of our neighbour and our owne ſaluation: for Chriſt before (c. 5.) biddeth, ſaying: Let your light ſo ſhine before men, &c. And in all ſuch workes S. Gregories rule is to be followed, The worke ſo to be in publike, that the intention remaine in ſecret. Hom. 11. in Euang. c. 10. — Hypocriſie.

RHEM. 3 Luc. 6. 12. 18. 21, 36. 1. Theſ. 5. 17. Cypr. de orat. Do. in fine. — 7 Much ſpeaking.) *Long prayer is not forbid, for Chriſt * himſelfe ſpent whole nights in prayer, and he ſaith, * we muſt pray alwayes, and * the Apoſtle exhorteth to pray without intermiſſion, and the holy Church * from the beginning hath had her Canonicall houres of prayer: but idle and volantary babling, either of the heathens to their gods, or of Heretikes, that by long Rhetoricall prayers thinke to perſwade God: whereas the Collects of the Church are moſt briefe and moſt effectuall.* See S. Auguſtine epi. 121. c. 8, 9, 10.

FVLKE 3 — Long prayer is not forbidden, but Popiſh prayer in an vnknowen tongue is idle babling, as ill, as that which the heathen vſed. The Scripture teſtifieth (as S. Cyprian ſheweth) that the third houre of the day, the ſixt, and the ninth, were vſed for prayer, by Daniel, the three children, S. Paul, and S. Peter and S. Iohn. Which prooueth not your Popiſh Canonicall houres, that is a kind of ſeruice which you call ſo, mumbled vp of your Prieſts oftentimes in an houre or leſſe, to be of ſuch antiquitie, or to be diſcharged from much babling or lip-labour. Neither is it ment, that all thoſe three houres were ſpent onely in prayer, but that at thoſe three times of the day, the godly vſed to pray: Namely in the midſt of the time, from the Sunne riſing to noone, at noone, and in the midſt of the time betweene Noone & the Sunne ſetting, wheras all your Canonical houres in the popiſh church, are diſpatched before noone. Cyprian therefore ſpeaketh not of any ſet formes of prayers, but of times meete for all Chriſtians to pray in, not only at theſe three houres, but alſo at the Sunne riſing, and at the ſunne ſetting, and in the night ſeaſon, and generally at all houres, as our Sauiour Chriſt teacheth. Not maintaining the hereſie of the Euchites, which did nothing but pray with their lips: but requiring the heart to be alwayes lifted vp in affection of prayer, which is by faith to looke for all good things of God onely, & at certaine times alſo, to vſe words of Petition, to admoniſh vs of our neceſſities, and to ſtirre vp our deſire to be more feruent. What other thing is it (ſaith S. Auguſtine) to pray without intermiſſion, but without intermiſſion to deſire? that bleſſed life, as none is but that which is eternall, of him who onely can giue it? Therefore let vs deſire this alwayes of the Lord God, and let vs pray alwayes, Epiſt. 121. c. 9. The prayers of heretikes whether they be long or ſhort, rude or rhetoricall pleaſe not God, neither yet of hypocrites. As for the ſhort collects of the Church, are no preiudice to long prayers, where the forme of wordes, is not longer then the ſincere affection of prayer continueth. — Canonicall houres. The 3. houre, the 6. the 9.

RHEM. 4 τὸν ἄρτον. — 11 Superſubſtantiall bread.) By this bread ſo called here according to the Latin word and the Greeke, we aske not onely all neceſſarie ſuſtenance for the body, but much more all ſpirituall foode, namely the bleſſed Sacrament it ſelfe, which is Chriſt the true bread that came from heauen, and the bread of life to vs that eate his body. Cypr. de orat. Do. Aug. epiſt. 121. c. 11. — The B. Sacrament.

121. cap. 11. And therefore it is called here Supersubstantiall, that is, the bread that passeth and excelleth all creatures. Hiero. in 2. Tit. in 6. Mat. Amb. li. 5. de Sacr. c. 4. Aug. ser. 28. de verb. Do. sec. Mat. S. Germanus in Theoria.

FVLKE. 4 S. Luke is the best interpreter of the Greeke worde, who sheweth that it signifieth bread sufficient for euery day. Comprehending all things necessarie for this present life, whereof we may inferre, that spirituall food is more necessarie, which in the other petitions is asked rather then in this, if we respect either the wordes or the methode of this forme of prayer. Notwithstanding vpon the ambiguitie of the Greeke word, many of the fathers, referre this petition to spirituall foode especially, among which the Lords Supper (being a seale of our spirituall nourishment by the body and blood of Christ, vnto eternall life) is a part, as the preaching of Gods word is another part, noted also by the fathers to be desired in this petition. August. de serm. dom. in mont. lib. 2.

RHEM. 5 12 Dettes.) These dettes doe signifie not onely mortall sinnes, but also veniall, as S. Augustine often teacheth: and therefore euery man, be he neuer so iust, yet because he cannot liue without veniall sinnes, may very truely and ought to say this prayer. Aug. cont. duas epi. Pelag. lib. 1. c. 14. lib. 21. de Ciuit. c. 27. Veniall sinnes.

FVLKE. 5 S. Augustine doth often teach the difference of sinnes, some great, some lesse, but neuer your Popish distinction of mortall and veniall, as you doe, and in the places quoted speaketh of small sinnes, but not of veniall. In the former place he saith, a man may be sine crimine, that is, without heynous offence: but not, sine peccato, without sinne. In the later he nameth peccata parua, small sinnes, distinguishing them from great and heinous wickednes.

RHEM. 6 13 Leade vs not.) S. Cypr. readeth, Ne patiaris nos induci, Suffer vs not to be led, as S. Augustine noteth li. de bo. perseu. c. 6. and so the holy Church vnderstandeth it, because God (as S. Iames saith) tempteth no man: though for our sinnes, or for our probation and crowne, he permit vs to be tempted. Beware then of Bezaes exposition vpon this place, who (according to the Caluinists opinion) saith, that God leadeth them into tentation, into whom him selfe bringeth in Satan for to fill their hearts: so making God the author of sinne. In expos. orat. Do. Iac. 1. God is not author of euill.

FVLKE. 6 Howsoeuer any man hath read, the text is plaine, Leade vs not, whereby is proued, not only a permission, but an action of God, in them that are ledde into temptation. Therefore S. Augustine after a long disputation, against Iulian the Pelagian, bringeth also this petition for an argument, to proue that God as a righteous Iudge, punisheth sinne by sinne, by deliuering the reprobate into the power of Satan. Quid est autem &c. And what is that which we say dayly, Lead vs not into temptation, but that we be not deliuered vnto our owne concupiscences? Againe, Tradit ergo Deus, &c. Therefore God deliuereth into ignominious passions, that those things may be done, which are not conuenient, but he deliuereth conueniently, and the same sinnes are made both punishments of sinnes past, and deserts of punishments to come. As he deliuered Achab into the lie of the false Prophets, as he deliuered Roboam into false counsaile. These things he doth by marueilous and vnspeakeable meanes, who knoweth how to worke his iudgements not only in mens bodies, but also in their very hearts. Cont. Iul. lib. 5. cap. 3. Neither doeth Bezaes exposition, make God author of sinne, but vsing the phrase of S. Augustine, he saith, The Lord leadeth into temptation them, whom as a iust iudge, not as an auctor of sinne, he permitteth vnto the will of Satan, that he may fill their heart, as Saint Peter speaketh, Act. 5. And it is a most detestable slander, that Caluine or they that follow his iudgement, make God the auctor of sinne. Slander.

RHEM. 14 If you forgiue.) This point of forgiuing our brother, when we aske forgiuenesse of God, our Sauiour repeateth againe, as a thing much to be considered. and therefore commended in the parable also of the seruant that would not forgiue his fellow seruant, Mat. 18.

Iud. 20, 26. 2. Esd 9. Ioel. 2, 15. Ion. 3. 16 Fast.) *He forbiddeth not open and publike fasts, which in the * Scriptures were commanded and proclaimed to the people of God, and the Ninimites by such fasting appeased Gods wrath: but to fast for vaine glory and praise of men, and to be desirous by the very face and looke to be taken for a faster, that is forbidden, and that is hypocrisie.* Publike fast.

RHEM. 7 20 Treasures in heauen.) Treasures layd vp in heauen, must needes signifie, not faith onely, but plentifull almes and deedes of mercie and other good workes, which God keeping as in a booke, will reward them accordingly: as of the contrarie the Apostle saith, He that soweth sparingly, shall reape sparingly. 2. Cor 9. Meritorious workes.

FVLKE. 7 Treasures layd vp in heauen in this place, properly signifie, neither faith nor workes, much lesse meritorious workes, but rather the reward of the heauenly life: which God of his mercie giueth to them that beleeue, according to their workes, rewarding their plentifull sowing, with plentifull reaping. Chrysost. Hom. 11. in Mat. He sheweth both that this earthly treasure lyeth open to hurt: and also that the heauenly treasure is cleare from all spot, and most safe either in respect of the place, or of the excellencie of those rewardes. Merite.

RHEM. 8 24 Two Masters.) Two religions, God and Baal, Christ and Caluin, Masse and Communion, the Catholike Church and Heretical Conuenticles. Let them marke this lesson of our Sauiour, that thinke they may serue all masters, all times, all religions. Againe, these two masters do signifie, God and the world, the flesh and the spirit, iustice and sinne.

FVLKE, 8 No Christian man serueth Caluin as his Master, but God onely. Neuertheless so long as Caluin teacheth that which he learned of Christ, Caluin may be embraced as a seruant of Christ, neither did he euer desire to be taken otherwise. But when the Pope commandeth things contrary to God, as worshipping of images, communion vnder one kinde, and such like, and will be honoured as a most holy Lord that cannot erre, it may be said most truely, No man can serue God and the Pope. Slander.

RHEM. 25 Carefull.) Prudent prouision is not prohibited, but too much doubtfulnesse and feare of Gods prouision for vs: to whom we ought with patience to commit the rest, when we haue done sufficiently for our parts.

CHAP. VII.

In this third and last chapter of his Sermon, because we know not mens ends, he biddeth vs beware of iudging: 6 and neuertheless to take open dogges (so he calleth them) as they be. 7 If these workes of iustice seeme too hard, we must pray instantly to him that giueth them. 12 In the conclusion, he giueth one short rule of all iustice, 13 and then he exhorteth with all vehemencie to the straite way both of the Catholike faith, 21 and also of good life: because only faith will not suffice.

IVDGE not, that you be not iudged.
2 For * in what iudgement you iudge, you shal be iudged: and in what measure you mete, it shall be measured to you againe.
3 And why seest thou the mote that is in thy brothers eye: and the beame that is in thine owne eye thou seest not?

Luc. 9, 37. Mar. 4, 24.

*IVdge ye * not, that ye be not iudged.* Luke 6.37.
*2 For with what iudgement ye iudge, yee shalbe iudged: * and with what measure ye mete, it shalbe measured to you againe.* rom. 2.1. 1.Cor.4.3. Mar.4.24. Luke 6.38.
*3 Why seest thou the mote that is in thy brothers eye, but perceiuest not the beame that is in thine owne eye?

*4 Or,

4 Or how sayest thou to thy brother, Let me cast out the mote of thine eye: and behold a beame is in thine owne eye?

5 Hypocrite, cast out first the beame out of thine owne eye, and then shalt thou see to cast out the mote out of thy brothers eye.

6 Giue not that which is ‖holy to dogges: neither cast ye your pearles before swine, lest perhaps they tread them with their feete, and turning, all to teare you.

Luc.11,9. 7 *Aske, and it shall be giuen you: seeke, and you shall find, knocke, and it shalbe opened to you.

8 For ‖euery one that asketh, receiueth: and that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.

9 Or what man is there of you, whom if his childe shall aske bread, will he reach him a stone?

10 Or if he shall aske him fish, will hee reach him a serpent?

11 If you thē being naught, know how to giue good gifts to your children: how much more will your father which is in heauen, giue ‡ good things to them that aske him?

‡ These good things are grace and all spirituall gifts, and whatsoeuer pertaineth to the health of the soule. Luc.6,31. Luc.13,24.

12 *All things therefore whatsoeuer you will that men do to you do you also to them. For this is the Law and the Prophets.

13 *Enter ye by the narrowe gate: because brode is the gate, and large is the way that leadeth to perdition, and many there be that enter by it.

14 How narrow is the gate, and straite is the way that leadeth to life: and few there are that finde it?

THE GOSPEL on the 7. Sunday after Pentecost. Luc.6,44.

15 Take yee great heede of false Prophets, which come to you in the ‖ clothing of sheep, but inwardly are rauening wolues.

16 ‖By their *fruits you shall know them. Do men gather grapes of thornes, or figges of thistles?

17 Euen so euery good tree yeldeth good fruits, and the euill tree yeldeth euill fruits.

18 A good tree can not yeeld euill fruits, neither an euill tree yeeld good fruits.

19 Euery tree that yeeldeth not good fruite, shall be cut downe, and shall be cast into fire.

20 Therefore by their fruites you shall know them.

21 Not euery one that saith to me, ‖Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdome of heauen: but he that doth the will of my father which is in heauen, hee shall enter into the kingdome of heauen.

22 Many shal say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue not we prophecied in thy name, and in thy name cast out deuils, and in thy name wrought many miracles?

23 And then I will confesse vnto them, That I neuer knew you, depart from me you that worke iniquitie.

24 *Euery

4 *Or, how wilt thou say to thy brother, Suffer me, I will cast out a mote out of thine eye: and behold, the beame is in thine owne eye? Luke 6.41.

5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beame out of thine owne eye: and then shalt thou see clearely to cast out the mote that is in thy brothers eye.

6 Giue not that which is holy vnto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearles before the swine: least they tread them vnder their feete, and turning againe, all to rent you.

7 *Aske ye, and it shall be giuen you: seeke, and ye shall find: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. Mat.21.22. mar.11.24. luke 11.9. iohn 16.14. iam. 1.6.

8 For euery one that asketh, receiueth: and he that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shalbe opened.

9 What man is there of you, if his sonne aske bread, will he giue him a stone?

10 Or if he aske fish, will he giue him a serpent?

11 If ye then being euill, knowe to giue your children good giftes: how much more will your father which is in heauen, giue good things to them that aske him?

12 Therefore all thinges * whatsoeuer yee would that men should doe to you, doe ye euen so to them: For this is the law and the Prophets. Luke 6.31. tobi 4.16.

13 *Enter ye in at the straite gate, for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there bee which goe in thereat. Luke 13.24.

14 Because straite is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth vnto life, and fewe there be that find it.

15 Beware of the false Prophets which come to you in sheepes clothing, but inwardly they are rauening wolues.

16 Ye shall knowe them by their fruits: * Do men gather grapes of thornes? or figges of thistles? Luke 6.43.

17 Euen so, euery good tree bringeth foorth good fruite: but a corrupt tree bringeth foorth euill fruite.

18 A good tree cannot bring foorth badde fruite, neither can a bad tree bring foorth good fruite.

19 *Euery tree that bringeth not foorth good fruite, is hewen downe and cast into the fire. Mat 3.10.

20 Wherefore, by their fruites ye shall knowe them.

21 Not euery one that saith vnto me, *Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdome of heauen: but he that doeth the will of my father which is in heauen. Rom.2.13. Iam.1.22.

22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lorde, haue wee not prophecied through thy name? and through thy name haue cast out deuils? and done many great workes through thy name?

23 *And then will I confesse vnto them, That I neuer knew you: *Depart from me all ye that worke iniquitie. Luke 13.26. Psal.6.9.

Luc.6.47. 24 * Euery one therefore that heareth these my wordes, and doeth them: shall be likened to a wise man that built his house vpon a rocke,

25 And the raine fell, and the fluddes came, and the windes blewe, and they beate against that house, and it fell not, for it was founded vpon a rocke.

26 And euery one that heareth these my words, & doth them not, shalbe like a foolish man that built his house vpon the sand, 27 And the rayne fell, and the fluddes came, and the windes blew, and they beate against that house, and it fell, & the fal thereof was great.

28 And it came to passe, when IESVS had fully ended these wordes, the multitude house: and it fell not, because it was grounded on a rocke.

26 And euery one that heareth of me these sayings, and doeth them not, shall be likened vnto a foolish man, which built his house vpon the sand:

27 And the raine descended, and the floods came, and the windes blew, and beat vpon that house, and it fell, and great was the fall of it.

his doctrine.

29 For he taught them as one hauing power,
and not as the Scribes.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. 7.

RHEM. 1 Iudge not.) It is no Christian part to iudge ill of mens actes which be in themselues good and may proceede of good meaning, or of mans inward meanings and intentions which we can not see: of which faults they must beware that are to suspitious and giuen to deeme alwayes the worst of other men. But to say, that Iudas, or an Heretike euidently knowen to die obstinately in heresie, is damned, and in all other plaine and manifest cases to iudge, is not forbidden.

RHEM. 1 6 Holy to dogges.) No holy Sacrament and specially that of our Sauiours blessed bodie, must be giuen wittingly to the vnworthy, that is, to them that haue not by confession of all mortall sinnes examined and proued themselues. See the Annot. 1.Cor.11,27.28.29. Worthy receiuing.

FVLKE. 1 So that by confession of all mortall sinnes, you meane not auricular shrift, which the Scripture doth not exact, this note containeth no false doctrine.

RHEM. 2 8 Euery one that asketh.) All things that we aske necessarie to saluation with humilitie, attention, continuance, and other due circumstances, God will vndoubtedly grant when it is beſt for vs.

FVLKE 2 To aske in faith, is necessarie, and more then a due circumstance. Iam.1.6. Faith.

RHEM. 3 15 Clothing of sheepe.) *Extraordinarie apparance of zeale and holinesse in the sheepes cote in some Heretikes: but these of this time weare not that garment much, being men of vnsatiable sinne. This is rather their garment, common to them with all other Heretikes, to crake much of the word of the Lord, and by presensed allegations and * sweete words of benediction, and specially by promise of knowledge, light and libertie of the Gospell, to seduce the simple and the sinnefull.* Heretikes wolues in sheepeskins.

FVLKE 3 This note is true of Libertines, Anabaptists and such Heretikes of our time: but the true professours of the Gospel, whom you especially enuie, shall be found in triall, alwayes as honest as Papists. Slander.

RHEM. 4 16 Fruites.) These are the fruites which Heretikes are knowen by, diuision from the whole Church, diuision among themselues, taking to themselues new names and new maisters, inconstancie in doctrine, disobedience both to others and namely to spirituall officers, loue and liking of themselues, pride and intollerable vaunting of their owne knowledge aboue all the holy Doctors, corruption, falsification, and quite denying of the parts of Scriptures that specially make against them, and these be common to all Heretikes lightly. Other some are more peculiar to these of our time, as Incestuous mariages of vowed persons, Spoile of Churches, Sacrilege and profanation of all holy things, and many other speciall points of doctrine, directly tending to the corruption of good life in all states. Heretikes knowen by their fruits FVLKE. 4 All false doctrine, contrary to the Scriptures, is the proper fruites of Heretikes. For he is an Heretike, which obstinately maintaineth an opinion, contrarie to the Scriptures, as the Papistes doe many. And especially, those plaine notes, which the spirit giueth of Antichristian Heretikes, namely, the forbidding of mariage and meates, where are they to be found at this day, but in Papists? 1.Tim.4. The rest of the notes you giue, are not found in vs, but rather in you. The mariage of vowed persons, that cannot containe, is allowed by Epiphanius, and Hierome, as I shewed before, to be Catholike. And if it be incestuous, your Pope giueth licence for incestuous mariages, as he doth for those mariages, that are against the lawe of nature, which are incestuous in deede. We spoile no Churches, but destroy Idolatry, as God commandeth. Deut.7.6. Slander. Hær.61.ad Demet. Mariage of votaries. As k. Philip.of Spaine to marry his sisters daughter.

RHEM. 5 21 Lord, Lord.) These men haue faith, otherwise they could not inuocate, Lord, Lord: Ro. 10. But here we see that to beleeue is not ynough, and that not onely infidelitie is sinne, as Luther teacheth. Yea Catholikes also that worke true miracles in the name of our Lord, and by neuer so great faith, yet without the workes of iustice shall not be saued. 1.Cor.13. Againe, consider here who they are that haue so often in their mouth, The Lord, the Lord, and how little it shall auaile them, that set so litle by good workes, and contemne Christian iustice. Not onely faith.

FVLKE. 5 These men say, Lord, Lord, without a true and liuely faith. For he that in true faith shall inuocate or call vpon the Lord, shall be saued. Rom.10. We confesse, it is not ynough, to beleeue, neither doth Luther teach, that onely infidelitie is sinne, but that it is the roote of all sinne. Neither doe we hold, that by the faith of working miracles, which apprehendeth onely the power of God, any man shall be iustified, but by faith in Gods promises, which layeth hold of the mercie which God offreth. Finally, he that is iustified by faith onely, doth the will of God his heauenly father, though not perfectly, yet gladly and cheerefully. God be thanked, we do not set litle by good workes, which we acknowledge to be the necessarie effects of iustifying faith, though we renounce our owne iustice, that we may be partakers of the iustice of God in Christ. Philip.3.9. Iustification by faith onely. Good workes. Slander.

CHAP. VIII.

Immediatly after his Sermon (to confirme his doctrine with a miracle) he cureth a Leper. 5 But aboue him and all other Iewes, he commendeth the faith of the Centurion, who was a Gentil: and foretelleth by that occasion, the vocation of the Gentiles,

Gentiles, and reprobation of the Iewes. 14 In Peters house he sheweth great grace. 18 In the way to the sea he speaketh with two, of following him: 23 and vpon the sea commandeth the tempest: 28 and beyond the sea he manifesteth the deuils malice against man, in an heard of swine.

8 And the Centurion making answere, sayde, Lorde ‖ I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter vnder my roofe: but onely say the word, and my boy shall be healed.

9 For I also am a man subiect to authoritie, hauing vnder me souldiars: and I say to this, go, and he goeth: and to another, come, and he commeth: and to my seruant, doe this, and he doeth it.

10 And IESVS hearing this, marueiled: and sayd to them that followed him, Amen I say to you, I haue not found so great faith in Israel.

11 And I say to you, that many shal come from the East and West, and shall sit downe with Abraham and Isaac and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen:

12 But the children of the kingdome shal bee cast out into the exteriour darkenesse: there shall bee weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And IESVS saide to the Centurion, Goe: and as thou hast beleeued, be it done to thee. And the boy was healed in the same houre.

9 For I also my selfe am a man set vnder authoritie, hauing souldiers vnder me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth: & to another, Come, and he commeth: and to my seruant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Iesus heard these things, he marueiled, and said to them that folowed, Verily I say vnto you, I haue not found so great faith, no not in Israel.

30 And there was not farre from them an heard of many swine feeding.

31 And the diuels besought him saying, If thou cast vs out, send vs into the heard of swine.

32 And he said to them, Goe. But they going forth went into the swine, and behold the whole heard went with a violence headlong into the sea: and they dyed in the waters.

33 And the swineheards fled: and comming into the citie, told all, and of them that had beene possessed of diuels.

30 And there was a good way off from them, an heard of many swine, feeding.

31 So the deuils besought him, saying, If thou cast vs out, suffer vs to goe away into the heard of swine.

32 And hee saide vnto them, Goe. Then went they out, and departed into the heard of the swine: and beholde, the whole heard of the swine rushed headlong into the sea, and perished in the waters.

33 Then they that kept them, fled, and went their wayes into the citie, and told euery thing, and what was done of the possessed with the deuils.

34 And behold, the whole citie came out to meete Iesus: & when they saw him, they besought him that he would depart out of their coastes.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. 8.

RHEM. 1 4 Priest.) The Priests of the old Lawe (saith S. Chrysostome) had authoritie and priuiledge onely to discerne who were healed of leprosie, and to denounce the same to the people: but the Priests of the new law haue power to purge in very deede the filth of the soule. Therefore whosoeuer despiseth them, is more worthy to be punished then the rebell Dathan and his complices. S. Chryso. lib. 3. de Sacerd. Priests forgiue sinnes.

FVLKE. 1 The wordes of Chrysostome are these. The Priests of the Iewes, had authoritie to put away leprosie of the bodie, or rather not to put it away at all, but onely to discerne them that were ridde of it, and thou knowest, how greatly their Priesthood was to be esteemed. But these haue received authoritie, not to discerne the leprosie of the bodie, being ridde away, but altogether altogether to put away the vncleannesse of the soule. They therefore that despise them, are more wicked then Dathan, and worthy of great punishments. By which words, he meaneth not, that Ministers of that Gospel, haue absolute power to forgiue sinnes, but authoritie to assure the penitent sinners of Gods forgiuenesse, in which respect, they are sayd to forgiue in Gods name. For Christ himselfe, did not forgiue sinnes, but as hee, was God equall to his father. Chrysostome in Mat. Hom. 30.

Thou also therefore humbling thy selfe, say: Lord I am not worthy, &c. So sayd* *S. Chrysostom in his masse, and so doth the Cath. Church vse at this day in euery Masse. See S. FVLKE. 2. Transubstantiation. The body and blood of Christ, is to be receiued with all humilitie and reuerence: yet not imagining transubstantiation. For that materiall part of the Sacrament, which entreth into the mouth, Origen saith, it goeth the way of all meates, in Mat. cap. 15. Chrysostomes liturgie was made long after Chrysostoms time, as appeareth by a prayer for the Emperour Alexius, in whose dayes it was made. Augustine ep. 118. vseth the example of the Centurion, to shew that neither they that receiue the Sacrament dayly, nor they that receiue it seldome, dishonour the body of Christ, hauing either of them their seuerall reasons, as Zacheus, which receiued our Sauiour Christ into his house ioyfully, and the Centurion, who acknowledged, that he was vnworthy to receiue him vnder his roofe.

RHEM. 3 14. His wiues mother.) Of Peter specially among the rest it is euident that he had a wife, but (as S. Hierom saith) after they were called to be Apostles, they had no more carnall companie with their wiues, as he prooueth there by the very wordes of our Sauiour, *He that hath left wife &c. And so in the Latine Church hath bene alwayes vsed, that married men may be and are dayly made Priests, either after the death of the wife, or with her consent to liue in perpetuall continencie. And if the Greekes haue Priests, that doe otherwise, S. Epiphanius a Greeke Doctor telleth them that they doe it against the auncient Canons, and * Paphnutius plainely signifieth the same in the first Councel of Nice. But this is most plaine, that there was neuer either in the Greeke Church or the Latine, authenticall example of any that maried after holy Orders.* Priests mariage. Lib. 1. adu. Iou. cap. 14. Mat 19. 29. Epiph. hær. 59. *Sozom. lib. 1. cap. 22. Socrat. li. 1. c. 8.

FVLKE. 3. S. Hierom against Iouinian, hath many feeble arguments, among which this is one, that the Apostles had no carnall copulation with their wiues, because Christ saith, He that hath left wife, &c. Mat. 19. 29. For our Sauiour Christ speaketh of none other forsaking of wiues, then is necessary for all maried men, to leaue their wiues as well as their parents, children, brethren, houses, landes, namely in carnall affection, or worldly loue not in lawfull vse. And Clemens Alexandrinus much ancienter then Hierom, and neerer the Apostles times, sayth, that Peter and Philip begat sonnes, and Philip gaue his daughters in mariage, Stromat. li. 3. Euseb. Emiss. in nat. Ioa. Eu. iste (Petrus) vxorem & prolem habuit. And by whom had Peter his daughter Petronilla? of whom the popish legends write much holines, if not by companying with his owne wife, and that since he was an Apostle, and had the surname of Peter, which her age also doth argue: for she was so yong in the time of the persecution of Domitian the Emperor, that Flaccus the countie, desired to haue her in mariage, whereas if she had bene borne before Peters calling to the Apostleship, she should haue bene almost threescore yeres old at that time. In the Romish Church where Antichrist was to haue his seat, the mysterie of iniquitie began to worke, and shew it selfe in prohibition of mariage somewhat timely: yet are you not able to proove, that none but such as professed continencie, were in the Latine Church, euer admitted to the ministerie. Tertullian was a maried man in the ministerie, without any such profession of continencie, as appeareth by his bookes written to his wife. Where, in the first hee exhorteth her, after his departure, not to marrie againe. In the second, that if the infirmitie of her bodie was such, as shee must needes marrie, that shee marrie not an infidel. This exhortation had bene needeles, if shee had already professed continencie: neither needed Tertullian to haue set before her the example of many other, that in mariage, by consent, tooke away the debt of mariage, to perswade her, that shee might be able if she would endeuour, to liue vnmaried. And if hee, before hee entred into Ecclesiasticall order, with her consent, had promised perpetuall continencie shee should haue had experience in her selfe in her yonger time, how able shee was to liue without the vse of an husband. But Epiphanius, (you say) telleth the Greeke Priests, that they doe against the ancient Canons, which keepe companie with their wiues: yet doth he confesse immediatly, that those Canons were not kept in his time. But where you adde, that Paphnutius in the first Councel of Nice, doth plainely signifie the same, it is false. For Socrates thus writeth of the matter, Visum est Synodum &c. It pleased the Bishops to bring in a new law into the Church, that those that were dedicated to the holy ministerie, namely, Bishops, Priests, or Elders and Deacons, should not sleepe with their wiues which they had maried when they were lay men: and after they had consulted of this matter, Paphnutius stoode vp in the midst of the company of Bishops, and cried out aloud, that they should not lay an heauie yoke vpon the men dedicated to the holy ministerie, saying, that the bed was honourable, and the matrimony vnpolluted, lest with too much precisenes, they should rather hurt the Church: for all men could not beare the exercise of continencie, and peraduenture, chastitie should not bee kept of euery ones wife: and he called the company with a mans lawfull wife, chastity. That it was sufficient, that they which had obtained Clergie before mariage, should not come to mariage any more, according to the ancient tradition of the Church, but that no man should be separate from her, whom he had married being a lay man. The very same in substance reporteth Sozomen. And Clemens affirmeth, that the Apostle alloweth the husband of one wife, whether he be Priest or Deacon, or Lay man, vsing matrimonie without reprehension, Stromat. lib 3. But there was neuer any example authenticall (you say) of any that maried after holy Orders. Of examples, I suppose you doubt not but that there were many, which tooke wiues after they were made Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, because in the later Councels, there be so many Canons to punish them that so maried, and to prohibite them to marrie. And certaine it is by stories, and other monuments of antiquitie, that in England Priests did marrie commonly, euen after the decree made against it, by Lanfrancus Archbishop of Canterburie in a Synode holden at Winchester, Anno Dom. 1076. For Gerardus Archbishop of Yorke, writing to Anselmus Archbishop of Canterbury, certifieth him, that those whom he inuited to take Orders, would not consent in their ordination, to professe chastitie, that is, not to marrie, as the decree of Lanfrancus required. But these examples, you will say, were not authenticall, because they were against the ancient tradition of the Church, alleaged euen by Paphnutius, and against the Canons of so many Councels: Whereunto I replie, that seeing they were to bee warranted by the word of God, no tradition or decree of men, can make that vnlawfull, which by Gods word is not onely at libertie, but also commanded, namely, that to auoide fornication, let euery man haue his wife, and if they cannot containe let them marrie, and of virginitie, and continencie, there is no commandement of the Lord but euery man may vse the libertie that God hath giuen, yea though hee hath the gift of continencie. And Lib. 1. ad vxorem. Lib. 1. cap. 11. Aurelia. 2. c. 8. Aurel. 3. c. 4. Toler. 8. c. 7. Consta 6. c 6. 1. Cor. 7. 2. 1. Cor. 7. 9. 1. Cor. 7. and 29.

therefore S. Paul being vnmarried, affirmeth that it was lawful for him to leade about with him a sister to wife, as the rest of the Apostles did, euen the Lords brethren and Cephas: Ergo it was lawfull for him to haue maried, being an Apostle. The libertie therefore giuen by God to all, and the commandement of God (to them which haue not the gift of continencie) to marrie, doth make the examples of them that maried after holy orders taken, in the accompt of God and all that be godly, to be authenticall. And although Paphnutius accompteth the tradition of the Church ancient, by which they were prohibited to marrie, that were not maried before they were ordained: yet it appeareth by Tertullian, that it was not so ancient as his time. For in his booke of Monogamie against second mariages, written when he was an heretike, he derideth the Catholike Bishops, which thought it lawfull for them to marrie againe, when their first wife was dead, peruerting the meaning of S. Pauls words, which sayth, a Bishop must be the husband of one wife, to the maintenance of his heresie, as the Papists doe: He saith the holy Ghost foresaw there should come some, that would affirme all things to be lawfull for Bishops: For how many are there among you (saith he) that gouerne the Church, which haue maried the second time, insulting against the Apostle, and not blushing, when these words are read vnder them. This place sheweth, that that which was thought vnlawfull by the heretike, was counted lawfull and authenticall by the Catholike Church. Long after Tertullians time, was the Ancyrian Councel, where the tenth Canon decreeth thus: That whosoeuer being ordained Deacons at the time of their ordination, doe protest and say, that they must marrie, because they cannot remaine vnmaried: if they marrie afterward, let them continue in the ministerie, because the Bishop hath granted them so to doe. This Canon testifieth of many authenticall examples, of them that maried and might marie, after holy orders taken. Moreouer, in the dayes of Iulian the Apostata we reade, that Basilius a Priest or Elder of the Church of Ancyra, and Eupsychius of Cæsarea of Cappadocia, which had lately taken to wife a Gentlewoman, and was but euen a bridegrome, ended their liues by martyrdome, Sozom. lib. 5. c. 11. & histo. tripartit. lib. 6. c. 14. And many hundred yeeres after this, Balsamon maketh mention of a constitution of Leo the Emperour, by which it appeareth, that there was a custome in his time, that those which had taken holy orders, might marry lawfull wiues, within two yeeres after their ordination, Balsa. in Can. 10. Conc. Ancyr. So long the authoritie of Gods word in the Greeke Church, preuailed against the decrees of men, and in the Church of England much longer, vntill within these foure or fiue hundred yeeres at the most. 1. MARGINALL NOTES.

RHEM. 1. 15 Then they shall.) Christ signifieth that the Church shall vse fasting dayes after his Ascension. Epiph. in Comp. fid. Cath. August. Epi. 80.

FVLKE. 1. Neither Epiphanius, nor Augustine, speake of popish fasting dayes, which consist in abstinence from flesh: But Epiphanius sayth, the Apostles appointed the Wednesday and Friday, to be fasting-dayes, (how truely, let the Papists themselues iudge) and that on those dayes, the fasting was appointed vntill the ninth houre of the day, which is three houres before night. Augustine Epi. 86. acknowledgeth fasting, but no certaine fasting dayes, otherwise then the custome of euery Church required, according to the answere of S. Ambrose made vnto him concerning fasting on Saturday, which was obserued at Rome, but not at Millaine. Popish fasting dayes.

FVLKE. 2. She had no deuotion to the hemme of his garment, but because she was kept off by the prease, so that shee could not come neere to desire his aide, as others did, shee sayd within her selfe: If I shall but onely touch the hemme of his garment, &c. But the popish touching of reliques, which neither haue any vertue in them, nor any promise of God annexed to the touching of them, for health either of bodie or soule, cannot bee excused from superstition. And this is a very blunt comparison of reliques of dead men, with the presence of the Sonne of God. Who was willing to shew his diuine power by his word onely, or by outward signes of touching with his hand, or touching his garment, or anointing with oyle, or making of clay with his spettle, and such like: as it pleased him in healing mens bodies. By what word of God are we certified that hee will doe the like, yea grant spirituall holines, by touching of reliques? if we haue not Gods word, what faith can we haue, but a superstitious credulitie? FVLKE. 3. The myracles sayd to be done in the popish Church, are counterfeit fables for the most part, rather then illusions of deuils, as hath bene proued by many experiences, and yet are they false or lying signes of Antichrist. ANNOTATIONS. Chap. 9.

RHEM. 4. 3. He blasphemeth.) When the Iewes heard Christ remit sinnes, they charged him with blasphemie, as Heretikes now charge his priests of the new Testament, for that they remit sinnes: to whom he said, Whose sinnes you shall forgiue, they are forgiuen, &c. Io. 20.

FVLKE. 4. The Ministers of the new Testament, haue authoritie to forgiue sinnes, and to reteine them, by declaring herein the will of God, as his ambassadours and messengers. The Iewes charged our Sauiour Christ with blasphemie, because they acknowledged not his diuinitie. For the Priests in the Lawe, were also Ministers, not authors of forgiuenes of sinnes, whereof they were not ignorant. Remission of sinnes.

RHEM. 5. 5. Whether is easier.) The faithlesse Iewes thought (as Heretikes now adayes) that to forgiue sinnes was so proper to God, that it could not be communicated vnto man: but Christ sheweth that as to worke miracles is otherwise proper to God onely, and yet this power is communicated to men, so also to forgiue sinnes. Men haue power to forgiue sinnes.

FVLKE. 5. Chrysostome sayth, He did not refute their opinion which sayd it was proper onely to God to forgiue sinnes, but did approue it. For if he had not bene equall vnto his father, hee would haue sayd: Surely you iudge rightly, I am farre from that so great power, but now he sayth no such thing, but contrariwise affirmeth it by word and signe. So because it is woont to bee vnpleasant to the hearers, that any man should speake openly of himselfe: by the words of other men, and by a signe or miracle, he sheweth that he is God equall to his father, And so forth in Mat. Ho. 30. S. Hilarie is of the same iudgement, saying, Monet scribas, &c. It moueth the Scribes, that sinne should be forgiuen by a man: for they beheld in Iesu Christ onely a man, and that to be forgiuen by him, which the Lawe could not release. For faith onely iustifieth. Afterward the Lord looketh into their murmuring and sayth: that it is easie for the Sonne of man on earth to forgiue sinnes. For it is true, no man can remit sinnes but God onely, therefore he which remitteth sinnes is God, because no man forgiueth sinnes but God, In Matth. Can. 8. S. Ambrose is worthy to be heard in the same case, Quæ cum Iudæi asserunt, &c. When the Christ forgaue sinnes as God. Matth. 14 30. Fides enim sola iustificat.

the Iewes affirme that sinnes can be forgiuen by God onely, verely they confesse him to be God, and by their owne iudgement they bewray their falshood, in that they affirme the worke, and denie the person. Therefore euen of themselues, the Sonne of God receiueth a testimonie of his worke, and requireth not the consent of their voice. For falshoode can confesse, but cannot beleeue, Therefore there wanted no testimonie to his diuinitie: there wanteth faith to their owne saluation. In Lucam. cap. 5. Behold, that which was Catholike doctrine in these ancient fathers, is counted heresie in vs.

RHEM. 6. 6. The sonne of man in earth.) Christ had power to remit sinnes, and often executed the same, not onely as hee was God, but also as he was a man, because he was head of the Church and our chiefe Bishop and Priest according to his manhood, in respect whereof all power was giuen him in heauen and earth. Mat. 28. v. 18.

FVLKE. 6. Christ had absolute power of himselfe, as very God, to forgiue sinnes properly, and to preach the forgiuenesse of sinnes as Mediator. Athan. contr. Arr. lib. 3. *Et peccata condonat at paralytico & mulieri quæ sibi pedes vnxerat: dicens, Remittuntur tibi peccata, &c. Et mortuos reuocabat in vitam. Enthym. pan. part. 1. tit. 11. ex epistola de gestis in concilio Arim. & Seleuc. De filio rursum Esaias, Quis Deus, inquit, sicut tu, tollens iniustitias & delens iniquitates? Filius autem dixit quibus voluit, Remittuntur tibi peccata. ibidem.

RHEM. 7 8. Glorified.) The faithfull people did glorifie God that gaue such power to men for to remit sinnes and to doe miracles, knowing that that which God committeth to men, is not to his derogation, but to his glory, himselfe onely being still the principall worker of that effect, men being onely his ministers, substitutes, and working vnder him and by his commission and authoritie.

FVLKE. 7 Let S. Hilarie speake vpon these words of the text. Conclusa sunt omnia suo ordine, &c. All things are concluded in their right order, and nowe the feare of desperation ceasing, honor is rendred to God, because he hath giuen so great power to men, but this was due onely to Christ, it was familiar to him onely, to doe these things, by the communion or participation of his Fathers substance. Therefore this is not to be marueiled, that he can doe these things (for what shall not God bee beleeued to be able to doe?) or els the praise should haue bene of one man, not of many, but hereof is the cause of the honour giuen to God, because power is giuen to men by this way, through his word, both of remission of sinnes, and of resurrection of the bodie and of returning into heauen. In these words S. Hilarie sheweth what is proper to Christ as God, and what is granted to his ministers, to preach and declare by his word. That which is proper to the Diuinitie, cannot be communicated to any creature. Such is the absolute power to forgiue sinnes, which are committed against the Lawe of God, and therefore proper onely to God. The authoritie, which God hath giuen to men, to assure the faithfull penitent, of remission of sinnes, nothing derogateth from the glory of God, but greatly setteth foorth the glory of his mercie. Remission of sinnes.

RHEM. 8. 8. To men.) Not onely Christ as he was man, had this power to forgiue sinnes, but by him and from him the Apostles, and consequently Priests. Mat. 28. All power is giuen me. Mat. 18. Whatsoeuer you shall loose in earth, shall be loosed in heauen. Ioan. 20. Whose sinnes you shall forgiue, they are forgiuen.

FVLKE. 8. Christ gaue power to his Apostles, and the ministers of the Church to forgiue sinnes, not absolutely & properly, as God forgiueth, but to be witnesses and ministers of Gods forgiuenes: whereof S. Ambrose sayth, Quamuis enim magnum sit, &c. Although it be a great matter to forgiue sinnes vnto men (for who can forgiue sinnes but onely God, who also forgiueth by them, to whom he hath giuen the power of forgiuing) yet it is a much more diuine thing, to giue resurrection to the bodies. Thus you see this fathers iudgement, that man when hee forgiueth sinnes, by power graunted of God, doth not forgiue properly, but God to whom it is proper to forgiue sinnes, forgiueth by man. Remission of sinnes.

RHEM. 13. Not sacrifice.) These are the words of the Prophet, who spake them euen then when sacrifices were offerred by Gods commandement: so that it maketh not against sacrifice, but he sayth that sacrifice onely without mercie and charitie, and generally with mortall sinne, is not acceptable. The Iewes offered their sacrifices duely, but in the meane time they hand no pitie nor mercie on their brethren: that is it which God misliketh. External Sacrifice

14. Fast often.) By the often fasting of his disciples, we may easily gather that hee appointed them a prescript maner of fasting: as it is certaine he taught them a forme of prayer. Luc. 5. and 11. Fasting.

17. New wine.) By this new wine, he doth plainely here signifie fasting and the straiter kind of life: by the old bottels, them that cannot away therewith.

19. Twelue yeeres.) This woman a Gentile had her disease twelue yeeres, and the gouernours daughter a Iewe (which is here raised to life) was twelue yeeres old, Luc. 8. Marke then the allegorie hereof in the Iewes and Gentiles, As that woman fell sicke when the wench was borne, so the Gentiles went their owne wayes into idolatrie, when the Iewes in Abraham beleeued. Againe, as Christ here went to raise the wench, and by the way the woman was first healed, and then the wench reuiued: so Christ came to the Iewes, but the Gentiles beleeued first and were saued, and in the ende the Iewes shall beleeue also. Hierom. in Mat.

RHEM. 9. 21. Touch onely.) Not onely Christs words, but his garment and touch thereof or any thing to him belonging, might do and did miracles, force proceeding from his holy person to them. Yea this woman returning home set vp an Image of Christ, for memorie of this benefit, and the hemme of the same Image did also miracles. This Image Iulian the Apostata threw downe, and set vp his owne in stead thereof, which was immediatly destroyed by fire from heauen. But the Image of Christ broken in pieces by the heathen, the Christians afterward gathering the pieces together, placed it in the Church: where it was (as Sozomenus writeth) vnto his time. Reliques and Images. Euseb. li. 7. c. 14. hist. Li. 5. c. 20.

FVLKE. 9. Christ by his word, and without his word, by outward signes, and without any at al, did only worke miracles, and the force or vertue did not proceede into his garment, but immediatly from himselfe: Therfore Christ sayd not, there is vertue proceeded from my garments, but there is vertue proceeded frō me. Luk. 8. 48. There was no vertue in his garments, when the souldiers had parted them among them: nor while he ware them, for the people that thronged him, receiued no benefit by them, but she onely, and they that touched him by faith. Nowe concerning the Image that this woman is sayd to haue set vp: Eusebius reporteth the storie, not of his owne knowledge, but of heare say, That in Cæsarea Philippi, where this woman dwelled, ouer against her doore, vpon an high stone, was a brasen Image of a woman kneeling, and holding vp her hands, as though she made an humble suite: ouer against which there was another brasen Image of a man, which was sayd to be of Christ, reaching his hand to the woman, at whose feete vpon the same pillar, a strange kind of herbe did spring, which when it came vp to the hemme of his brasen garment, it was a medicine for all diseases. This Image Eusebius confesseth to haue remained vnto his time, as was testified by them that trauailed to that citie, and saw it. But of the miraculous herbe, how true it was, he saith not. Now what his iudgement was of them that did set vp this image, he declareth in these words: ὃ δυνησόμενός τις, &c. And it is not to be marueiled, that those of the Gentiles, which Reliques. Images. Lib. 7. c. 18.

receiued benefits of our Sauiour of old time, did these things, seeing wee haue seene the Images of his Apostles Paul and Peter, yea and of Christ himselfe preserued, being painted in colours, as it is like, ancient men of an heathenish custome, ἰθνικῆ συνηθείᾳ, which they had without alteration, after this maner, were wont to honour them whom they tooke for sauiours. Eusebius accounting this setting vp of Images in the honour of Christ and his Apostles to be an heathenish custome, gaue small credite to the miracle of the strange herbe: of whose vertue he could alleage no example, of any that was cured, as he doth the testimonie of them that saw the Image.

Where you alleage out of Sozomenus, that the Christians afterward placed the Image in the Church, as though they set it vp to be worshipped: The trueth is, they layd vp the pieces of the Image, after it was broken, which they gathered together, and kept them in the Church, which is all that can bee gathered of the storie. Wherein as they shewed some zeale of Christian religion, in seeking to preserue that which was defaced by the infidels, so they cannot be altogether excused from superstition, if they kept the pieces in the Church, as any relique of holines. Epiphanius finding an Image of Christ in a chappel contrary to the Scriptures (as he sayth) rent it in pieces. Epiph. Epist. ad Ioan. Hierosol.

RHEM. 10. 28. Doe you beleeue that I can.) We see here that to the corporall healing of these men he requireth onely this faith, that he is able. Which faith is not sufficient to iustifie them. How then doe the Heretikes by this and the like places plead for their onely iustifying faith? See the Annot. Mar. 5. 36.

FVLKE. 10. No wise or learned man alleageth this place, for iustification by faith only, this is therfore a peeuish slander. In the place noted you shall see more. Slander.

RHEM. 11. 38. Pray therefore.) Therefore doth the Church pray and fast in the Imber dayes, when holy Orders are giuen, that is, when workemen are prepared to be sent into the harueft. See Act. 13. 2.

FVLKE. 11. Christ biddeth not his disciples pray and fast in the Imber dayes, but to pray continually, not that hedge priests should be sent forth to say Masse, but that learned pastors might be raised vp of God, to gather in his harueft, by preaching the Gospel. And at ỹ ordination of Ministers of the Church, what time soeuer it be, the Church assembled prayeth to God for the that are called, that they may be faithful & diligent in their calling. Imber dayes.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. X.

RHEM. 1. Power.) Miracles were so necessary to the confirmation of their doctrine beginning then to be preached, that not onely Christ himselfe did miracles, but also he gaue to his Apostles power to do them.

RHEM. 1 2. First Simon.) Peter the first, not in calling, but in preeminence, for (as S. Ambrose saith in 2. Cor. 12.) Andrew first folowed our Sauiour before Peter: and yet the Primacie Andrew receiued not, but Peter. which preeminence of S. Peter aboue the other Apostles is so plainly signified in this word, First, by the iudgement euen of Heretikes, that Beza, notwithstanding he confesseth the consent of al copies both Latin and Greeke, yet is not ashamed to say that he suspecteth that this word was thrust into the text by some fauourer of Peters Primacie, whereby we haue also thas they care no more for the Greeke then for the Latin, when it maketh against them: but as their pleasure say that all is corrupted. Peters Primacie. Beza in Annot. noui Test. 1556.

FVLKE. 1 S. Ambrose acknowledgeth the Primacie, but not the preeminence of Peter aboue the other Apostles. For in the place quoted, he saith, that Paul was not inferiour to the other Apostles that went before him, (among which Peter was one) in dignitie, but in time. And in his booke De Incarnat. Domini cap. 4. he acknowledgeth the Primacie of Peter. Primatum confessionis vtique, non honoris, &c. The Primacie of confession verely, not of honour or preeminence, the Primacie of faith, not of degree. Likewise De Sp. Sanct. lib. 2. cap. 2. he saith, Paul was not inferiour to Peter. And In Ep. ad Gal. cap 2. he declareth, that Paul had the Primacie ouer the Gentiles, as Peter ouer the Iewes. The rest that you say of Beza, is an impudent slander, answered in the confutation of your Preface. fol. 49. Primacie of Peter. Slander.

RHEM. 9. Do not possesse.) Preachers may not carefully seeke after the superfluities of this life, or any thing which may be an impediment to their function. And as for necessaries, they deserue their temporal liuing at their hands for whom they labour spiritually.

RHEM. 2 12. Peace to this house.) As Christ him selfe vsed these words or this blessing often. Peace be to you, *so here he biddeth his Apostles say the like to this house where they come: And so hath it been alwayes a most godly vse of Bishops * to giue their blessing where they come. which blessing must needes be of great grace and profite, when none but worthy persons* (as here we read) might take good thereof: and when it is neuer lost, but returneth to the giuer, when the other party is not worthy of it. Among other spirituall benefits it taketh away venial sinnes. Ambr. in 9. Luc. Bishops blessing, It remitteth veniall sinnes.

* Aug. de ciuit. li. 22. c. 8. Leo Imp. in vit. S. Chrys. Socrat. li. 6. c. 14.

FVLKE. 2 We doubt not, but the blessing or godly prayers, as of the Apostles, so also of godly Bishops, and other Ministers of the Church, is greatly to be esteemed: but the Popish Bishops blessing with his fingers, is not worth a straw, neither doeth any ancient Father commend such a blessing. S. Augustine saith, that he and other departing from Aurelius a godly Bishop, receiued benediction of him, that is, a godly and Christian farewell. In Soer. lib. 6. c. 14. is no mention of Bishops blessing, but rather of banning. For Socrates reporteth, yet doubting whether it was true, that Epiphanius and Chrysostome being fallen out, Chrysostome should say, I hope thou shalt neuer come to thy country, and Epiphanius answered, I hope thou shalt not die Bishop. But whether they said so or no, Epiphanius died in the way homeward, and Chrysostome was deposed from his bishoprike. I suppose this story, maketh litle for the Bishops blessing. But it taketh away venial sinnes (you say) by authoritie of Ambrose In Luc. 9. But in trueth, there is neuer a word of the Bishop, or of his blessing, or of veniall sinnes, but of the benefite which men receiue by entertaining of Preachers of the Gospel. Vt non solum pacem tribuamus hospitibus, verum etiam si qua eos terrena obumbrant delicta leuitatis, receptis Apostolicæ prædicationis vestigijs, auferantur. We doe not onely giue peace to them that entertaine vs, but also if any offences of earthly lightnesse doe ouershadow them, after the steppes of the Apostolike preaching be receiued, they are taken away. His meaning is, they receiue great benefite both by the prayers and by the doctrine of the Preachers, if they entertaine it as wel as their persons. A poore place, for the Popish Bishops blessing. Bishops blessing. De Ciuit. l. 22. Cap. 8.

14. Shake

RHEM. 14. Shake of the dust.) To contemne the true Preachers, or not to receiue the trueth preached, is a very damnable sinne.

15. More tolerable.) Hereby it is euident that there be degrees and differences of damnation in Hel fire according to mens deserts. Aug. li. 4. de Bapt. c. 19.

18. Kings.) In the beginning Kings & Emperours persecuted the Church, that by the very death and blood of Martyrs it should grow more miraculously. afterward when the Emperours and Kings were themselues become Christians, they vsed their power for the Church, against Infidels and Heretikes. Aug. ep. 48.

RHEM. 3 19. It shal be giuen.) This is verified euen at this present also, when many good Catholikes, that haue no great learning, by their answers confound the Aduersaries.

FVLKE. 3 The story of the Church declareth, this to be verified in the true Martyrs thereof, but the best learned of the Papists, are not able to defende their heresie by the Scriptures, against the vnlearned Christian Catholikes, much lesse against the learned, as the writings of both parts make manifest.

RHEM. 4 25. How much more.) No maruel therefore if Heretikes cal Christes Vicar Antichrist, when their forefathers the faithles Iewes called Christ himselfe Beelzebub.

FVLKE. 4 He that calleth himselfe the Vicar of Christ, and putteth himselfe in the stead of Christ, by the very signification of the word, is Antichrist. So doeth the Pope: hauing no warrant out of the word of God, to be so much, as a member of Christ. Because his doctrine, decrees and life, are contrary to Christ, as in the booke called Antitheſis Chriſti & Papæ, and many other godly Treatises, is manifestly declared. Antichrist.

RHEM. 32. Confesse me.) *See how Christ esteemeth the open confessing of him, that is, of his trueth in the Catholike Church, for as when Saul persecuted the Church, he said himselfe was persecuted: so to confesse him, and his Church is all one. Contrarywise, see how he abhorreth them that deny him before men, which is not onely to deny any one litle article of the Catholike faith commended to vs by the Church: but also to allow or consent to heresie by any meanes, as by subscribing, comming to their seruice and sermons, furthering them any way against Catholikes, and such like. Confessing of Christ and his trueth. Act. 9.

RHEM. 5 34. Not peace but sword.) Christ came to breake the peace of worldlings and sinners: as when the sonne beleeueth in him, and the father doth not: the wife is a Catholike, and the husband is not. For to agree together in infidelitie, heresie, or any other sinne, is a naughtie peace. This being the true meaning of Christes words, marke that the Heretikes interprete this to maintaine their rebellions and troubles which their new gospel breedeth. Beza in no. Test. an. 1565.

FVLKE. 5 This is a meere slander against Beza: for our Gospel which wee preach, neither breedeth, nor alloweth any rebellions. But your hellish father the Pope, raiseth rebellions, as it is most notorious, against our soueraigne Lady the Queene, of her subiects in the North, and sending both his Legats, and his banner of rebellion, to raise rebellion in Ireland, hireth, blesseth, and pardoneth, horrible traitors, to murder their most louing and naturall Prince, and you traytors of Rhemes, are ioyned with them in their most deuilish conspiracies, procuring and comforting them, that enterprise such monstrous impietie; and shame you nothing, to charge Beza with mainteining of rebellion? As for the ciuill warres in France, let all the kings edictes of pacification, that hitherto haue come forth, testifie, that those of the reformed religion, in taking armes to defend the lawes and liberties of their countrey, against priuate persons, haue done nothing but in the Kings seruice. Slander. D. Morton, D. Sander, Parry and the rest executed.

RHEM. 37. More then.) No earthly thing, nor duty to Parents, wife, children, countrey, or to a mans owne body and life, can be any iust excuse why a man should doe, or feine himselfe to do or beleeue any thing against Christ or the vnitie and faith of his Church.

RHEM. 6 41. In the name.) Reward for hospitality, and specially for receiuing an holy person, as Prophet, Apostle, Bishop, or Priest persecuted for Christes sake. For by receiuing of him in that respect as he is such an one, he shall be partaker of his merit, and be rewarded as for such an one, whereas on the contrary side, he that receiueth an Heretike into his house and a false preacher, doth communicate with his wicked workes. Ep. 2. Io.

FVLKE. 6 Our Sauiour Christ promiseth a reward to them that entertaine the godly, persecuted, or not persecuted, but not out of the merite of him that is receiued, which is nothing vnto saluation, but of his owne abundant grace, by which, the Prophet and the righteous man, receiue their reward, and not of their owne merits. Leo. Pro calice aquæ frigidæ præmium habet gratuita largitio. Ser. 4. de quadrage. Prouided, that Iesuites, Seminarie priestes, and such other, that come to stirre vp rebellion, procure murther of their Prince, and inuasion of their country by strangers, or to infect the people with Popish heresies, be not accompted, but as false prophets, hypocrites, traitors, and heretikes, not Prophets, iust men, or true Christian Catholikes. Merits.

CHAP. XI.

Iohn the Baptist in prison also doing his diligence, sendeth some of his disciples to Christ: that as they heard, so they might also see his miracles with their eyes. 7 Afterward Christ declareth how worthy of credite Iohns testimony was: 16 and inueigheth against the Iewes, who with neither of their maners of life could be wonne: 20 no nor with Christes infinite miracles: 25 praysing Gods wisdom in this behalfe, 27 and calling to him selfe all such as feele their owne burdens.

AND it came to passe: when IESVS had done commaunding his twelue Disciples, hee passed from thence, to teach and preach in their cities.

AND it came to passe, that when Iesus had made an ende of commanding his twelue disciples, hee departed thence to teach, and to preach in their cities.

THE GOSPEL on the 2. Sunday in Aduét. Luc. 7, 18. 2 *And when Iohn had heard in prison the workes of Christ: sending two of his disciples, he said to him,

2 When Iohn had heard in the prison the workes of Christ, hee sent two of his disciples,* Luke 7. 18.

3 Art thou he that art to come, or looke we for an other?

3 And saide vnto him, Art thou hee that should come? Or, do we looke for another?

4 And IESVS making answere saide to them, Go and report to Iohn what you haue heard and seen.

4 Iesus answered, and saide vnto them, Goe, and shew Iohn againe those things which yee doe heare and see:

Esa. 35. 5. 61. 1. 5 *The blinde see, the lame walke, the lepers are made cleane, the deafe heare, the dead rise againe, to the poore the Gospel is preached:

5 The blinde receiue their sight, the halt doe walke, the lepers are cleansed, and the deafe heare, the dead are raised vp, and the poore haue the Gospel preached to them.

6 And blessed is he that shal not be scandalized in me.

7 And when they went their way, IESVS began to say to the multitudes of Iohn, ‖ what went you out ‖ into the desert to see? a reede shaken with the winde?

8 But what went you out to see? a man clothed in soft garments? Beholde they that are clothed in soft garments, are in Kings houses.

9 But what went you out to see? a Prophet? yea I tel you & more then a Prophet.

Mal.3.1. 10 For this is he of whom it is written, Beholde I sende mine angel before thy face, which shall prepare the way before thee.

11 Amen I say to you, there hath not risen among the borne of women a greater then Iohn the Baptist: yet he that is the lesser in the kingdom of heauen, is greater then he.

Luc.16,16. 12 And *from the dayes of Iohn the Baptist vntil now, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent beare it away.

15 Hee that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

Luc.7,31. 16 And *whereunto shall I esteeme this generation to be like? It is like to children sitting in the market place: which crying to their companions,

Mt.3,4. 18 For *Iohn came neither ‖ eating nor drinking: and they say, He hath a diuel.

19 The Sonne of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Beholde a man that is a glotton and a winedrinker, a friend of Publicans and sinners. And wisdome is iustified of her children.

Luc.10,13. 20 Then *began hee to vpbraide the cities, wherein were done the most of his miracles, for that they had not done penance.

21 Wo be to thee Corazain, wo bee to thee Beth-saida: for if in Tyre and Sidon had been wrought the miracles that haue been wrought in you, they had done ‖ penance in heare cloth and ashes long agoe.

22 But neuertheless, I say to you, it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of iudgement, then for you.

23 And thou Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted vp to heauen? thou shalt come downe euen vnto hell. for if in Sodom had been wrought the miracles that haue been wrought in thee, perhaps it had remained vnto this day.

24 But notwithstanding I say to you, that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of iudgement, then for thee.

14 *And if ye will receiue it, this is Elias which was for to come. Mala.4.5.

15 Hee that hath eares to heare, let him heare. Luke 7.31.

16 But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like vnto little children, sitting in the markets, and calling vnto their fellowes,

20 Then beganne he to vpbraide the cities, wherein most of his mightie woorkes were done, because they repented not. Luke 10.13.

21 Woe vnto thee Chorazin, woe vnto thee Bethsaida: for if the mightie workes which were done in you, had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, they would haue repented long agoe in sackcloth and ashes.

22 But I say vnto you, It shall bee easier for Tyre and Sidon at the day of iudgement then for you.

23 And thou Capernaum, which hast bene lifted vp into heauen, shalt bee brought downe to hell: For if the mightie workes which haue bene done in thee, had bene done among them of Sodome, they woulde haue remained vntill this day.

THE GOSPEL vpon S. Matthias day Feb. 24. and vpon S. Francis day Octob. 4. & for many Martyrs. Luc. 10, 21.

25 At that time IESVS answered & said. *I confesse to thee O Father lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast reueiled them to ‖ litle ones.

26 Yea Father: for so hath it wel pleased thee.

27 All things are deliuered me of my Father. And no man knoweth the Sonne but the Father: neither doeth any know the Father, but the Sonne, and to whom it shall please the Sonne to reueile.

28 Come yee to mee all that labour, and are burdened, and I will refresh you.

29 Take vp my yoke vpon you, & learne of mee, because I am meeke, and humble of heart: and you shall finde rest to your soules.

25 At that time Iesus answered, and said, I thanke thee, O Father, Lorde of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes. Luke 10.21.

26 Euen so, O Father, for so, was it thy good pleasure.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XI.

RHEM. 3. Art thou he.) Iohn himselfe doubted not, for he baptized him and gaue great testimonie of him before: Ioh. 1. But because his disciples knew him not, nor esteemed of him so much as of Iohn their owne Maister, therefore did hee sende them vnto Christ, that by occasion of Christes answere hee might the better instruct them what he was, and so make them Christes disciples, preferring them to a better Maister.

7. What went you out.) High commendation of Iohns holinesse, as well for his fasting, rough attire, solitary life, and constancie, as for the dignitie of his function. Eremites life.

RHEM. 1 7. Into the desert. The faithfull people in all ages resorted of deuotion into wildernes to see men of speciall and rare holines, Prophets, Eremites, Anchorites, &c. to haue their prayers or ghostly counsel. See S. Hierom de vita Hilarionis. Eremites.

FVLKE. 1 When men of rare holines, haue bene in the wildernes, (which hath not bene in all ages) men haue resorted to them to be partakers of their prayers, and ghostly counsaile. But this pertaineth not to Popish Heremites, which dwelled commonly scarce a quarter of a myle from cities and populous townes, nor to Popish Anachorets, which dwelled euen in cities and townes, hauing dayly resort vnto them, although they came not abroad themselues.

RHEM. 2 14. Elias. As Elias shall be the messenger of Christes later comming, so was Iohn his messenger and Præcursor at his former comming: and therefore is he called Elias, because of his like office and like spirit. Luc. 1. Grego. ho. 7. in Euang. Elias.

FVLKE. 2 The Greeke Participle being of the preterimperfect temps, as well as of the present, the comming of Elias in person, cannot be proued out of this text, notwithstanding the opinion of Gregory, and other ancient writers, which S. Hierom vpon this place noteth, but doeth not allow. Origen seemeth to bee against it, in Matth. tract. 3. and Pamphilus Apologia pro Origine. The like vse of this Participle is in this same chapter vers. 3. where the sense must needes be, Art thou hee which was to come. So it ought to be here. This is Elias which was to come. So doeth Hentenius a Papist translate it, Qui venturus erat in Euthym.

RHEM. 18. Eating and drinking.) The wicked quarrellers of the world misconster easily all the actes and life of good men. If they be great fasters and austere liuers, they are blasphemed and counted hypocrites: if they conuerse with other men in ordinary maner, then they be counted dissolute.

RHEM. 3 21. Penance in sackcloth.) *By this sackecloth and ashes added here and in other places, wee see euidently that Penance is not onely leauing of former sinnes, and change or amendement of life past, no nor bare sorowfulnes or recounting of our offenses already committed, but requireth punishment, and chastisement of our persons by these and such other meanes as the Scriptures doe els where set foorth, and therefore concerning the worde also, it is rather to bee called Penance, as in our translation: then (as the Aduersaries of purpose auoyding the word) Repentance or Amendement of life: and that according to the very vsuall signification of the * Greeke word in the most ancient Ecclesiastical Greeke writers: who for* Pœnitentes (which in the Primitiue Church did publike penance) say, οἱ ἐν μετανοίᾳ ὄντες, that is, Men that are doing penance. And concerning that part of penance which is Confession, the Ecclesiastical history calleth it by the same Greeke word, and the penitents comming to confession, τοῦ μετανοεῖν. Sozom. li. 7. c. 16. Socrat. li. 5. c. 19. Penance. Μετάνοια. Dionys. Eccl. hier. c. 3. in initio.

FVLKE. 3 Sackcloth and ashes are signes of humiliation (as S. Basil saith,) and so helping vnto repentance, and thereto pertaineth all chastisement of the body, which the Scripture commendeth, and not to satisfaction for our sinnes. The Greeke word signifieth, change of the minde, and therefore is well translated by vs, repentance and amendement of life, and is not taken for paine or punishment, as you would import by your terme of penance, which yet if it be rightly vnderstood, is nothing but penitence. Hæc secunda pœnitentia in similitudinem fontis est: & si fortè, impugnante diabolo aliquod peccatum irrepserit, huius satisfactione purgetur. Satisfactio autem est causas peccatorum & suggestiones excludere, & vltrà peccatum non iterare. Isiodor. Origin. lib. 6. cap. 18. And although Dionyse, or other ancient Fathers, haue sometimes, and that seldome, vsed the worde μετάνοια, by a Metonymy, for the publike exercises, that were appointed for the trial and testimonie of repentance, in them that had openly fallen, yet it followeth not, that the worde doeth properly signifie so: but as it is in the Scripture, and of the Greeke Fathers also most commonly taken for true repentance, and conuersion of the heart vnto God. Neither is confession called μετάνοια in the Ecclesiasticall writers, although they speake of Priestes or Elders, that by hearing mens confessions, iudged of their repentance, and therefore were called those that were appointed for repentance. Socr. lib. 5. cap. 19. neither are they that confessed called μετανοοῦντες of their confession, but of their repentance, whereof the humble acknowledging, and confessing of their sinnes, was a testimonie vnto men, as their conscience was knowen to God. In Psal. 29. Satisfaction for sinne. Confession.

RHEM. 4 25 Litle ones.) These litle ones doe not signifie here onely the vnlearned, as though Coblers, and Weauers, and wo- men and girles had this reuelation, and therefore doe vnderſtand all Scriptures and are able to expound them: but here are ſignified the humble, whether they be learned or vnlearned: as when he ſaith, Vnleſſe you become as litle ones, you ſhall not enter into the kingdome of heauen. And ſo alſo the greateſt Doctors (who as they were moſt learned, ſo moſt humbled themſelues to the iudgement of the Catholike Church) are theſe litle ones: and Heretikes, who although vnlearned, yet vaunt their knowledge and their ſpirit of vnderſtanding aboue all ancient Fathers and the whole Church, cannot bee of theſe litle and humble ones. Mt.18,3.

FVLKE. 4 The godly, whether they be learned or vnlearned, do not vaunt of their knowledge, and ſpirit of vnderſtanding, aboue all ancient Fathers, and the whole Church. But where they haue the plaine teſtimony of Gods worde on their ſide, they may ſafely be preferred before the authoritie of all men of the world, that holde the contrary. By that which hath bene obſerued in part, and more ſhalbe God willing, before we come to the end of theſe Annotations, it ſhall appeare, that the Papiſts which bragge ſo much of the ancient Fathers, and of the Church, doe much more decline from the iudgement of the ancient Fathers, and primitiue Church, then wee, which may not yeelde to any mans opinion, that is contrary to the plaine ſenſe of the holy Scriptures and word of God. Slaunder. The authoritie of the Scripture. Ancient Fathers.

RHEM. 5 30. Yoke ſweete.) What is this light burden and ſweete yoke, but his Commandements, of which S. Iohn ſaith, 1. Epi. 5. His commandements are not heauy? cleane contrary to the aduerſaries that ſay, they are impoſſible to be kept. The commandements poſſible.

FVLKE, 5 The Law of God is vnpoſſible to be kept in ſuch perfection, as God requireth, and therefore no man can be iuſtified by the workes of the Law, Gala. 2.16. c.3,11. And yet the yoke of Chriſt is ſweete, and his burthen light to them whom he eaſeth and refreſheth from the burthen of ſinne, and his Commandements are not heauie, to them, whoſe faith ouercommeth the world, 1. Iohn 5. Per eam (remiſſionem peccatorum) Chriſtus eos qui laborant & onerati ſunt, venientes ad ſe reficit, quibus leue iugum, leuemq; ſarcinam ſuæ charitatis imponit. Fulg. de remiſſ. pecc. li. 6. c. 4 Proſp. ſen. 122. Omne præceptum Dei leue eſt amanti, necnon ob aliud intelligitur dictum, Onus meum leue eſt, niſi quia dat Spiritum ſanctum per quem diffunditur charitas in cordibus noſtris, vt diligendo liberaliter faciamus: quòd qui timendo facit, ſeruiliter facit. Paulinus ep. 20. Nam & ob hoc Domini noſtri iugum ſuaue & onus leue eſt, qui è terrenis nos & inferis leuat, & in excelſa regni cæleſtis attollit. But if any man can keepe Gods Commandements, he needeth not to come to Chriſt to be refreſhed, hee ouercommeth by iuſtice of workes, and not by faith, hee need not ſay the Lords prayer: yea Chriſt died not for ſuch a one. The Law impoſſible to be kept.

CHAP. XII.

The blindneſſe of the Phariſees about the Sabboth he reprooueth by Scriptures, by reaſon, and by a myracle. 14. and his death being therefore ſought by them, hee meekely goeth out of the way, according as Eſay had prophecied of him. 22. His caſting out of deuils alſo he defendeth againſt them. 31. and ſetteth foorth the danger they ſtand in for their horrible blaſphemie. 38. And becauſe they aske yet for a ſigne, hee ſheweth how worthely they ſhall be damned, 43. foretelling howe the deuill ſhall poſſeſſe their Nation, 46. and teſtifying that although hee be of their blood, yet not they for this, but ſuch as keepe his commandements are deere vnto him.

Mar.2.23. luke 6.1. AT that time *IESVS went through the corne on the Sabboth: and his Diſciples being hungry, beganne to plucke the eares, and to eate.

11 And hee ſaid vnto them, What man of you wil there be that ſhal haue one ſheepe: & if it fall and if the same fall into a ditch on the Sabboths, will he not take holde and lift it vp?

12 How much better is a man more then a sheepe? therefore it is lawfull on the Sabboths to do a good deed.

13 Then he saith to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. and he stretched it forth, and it was restored to health euen as the other.

14 And the Pharisees going forth made a consultation against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But IESVS knowing it, retired from thence: and many followed him, and he cured them all.

16 And he charged thē that they should not disclose him.

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, saying.

Esa. 42, 1. 18 Beholde my seruant whom I haue chosen, my beloued in whom my soule hath well liked. I will put my spirit vpon him, and iudgement to the Gentiles shall be shew.

19 He shall not contend, nor crie out, neither shall any man heare in the streets his voice.

20 The reed bruised hee shall not breake, and smoking flaxe he shall not extinguish: till he cast forth iudgement vnto victorie.

21 And in his name the Gentiles shall hope.

Luke 11, 14. Mar. 3, 22. 22 Then * was offered to him one possessed with a deuill, blinde and dumbe: and he cured him, so that he spake and saw.

23 And all the multitudes were amased, and said, whether this be the Son of Dauid?

24 But the Pharisees hearing it, said, This fellow casteth not out deuils but ‖ in Beelzebub the Prince of the deuils.

‡ Therefore the kingdome of heretikes can not possibly stand, because it is alwayes full of diuision and dissension.

25 And IESVS knowing their cogitations, said to them. Euery kingdome ‡ diuided against it selfe shall be made desolate: and euery city or house diuided against it selfe, shall not stand.

26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is diuided against himselfe: howe then shall his kingdome stand?

27 And if I in Beelzebub cast out deuils: your children in whom doe they cast out? Therefore they shall be your iudges:

31 Therefore I say to you, euery sinne and blasphemy shall be forgiuen men, but ‖ the blasphemy of the Spirit shal not be forgiuen.

32 And whosoeuer shall speake a word against the Sonne of man, it shall be forgiuen him: but he that shall speake against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiuen him neither in 12 How much more then is a man better then a sheepe? Wherefore it is lawfull to do wellon the Sabboth dayes.

13 Then sayth he to the man, Stretch forth thy hand: and he stretched it foorth, and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 Then the Pharisees went out, and held a counsel against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But when Iesus knew it, hee departed thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all,

16 And charged them that they should not make him knowen:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying,

*18 * Beholde my child whom I haue chosen, my beloued, in whom my soule well delighteth: I will put my spirit vpon him, and hee shall shew iudgement to the Gentiles.* Esa. 42. 1.

*22 * Then was brought vnto him one possessed with a deuill, blinde, and dumbe: and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumbe both spake and saw.* Luke 11. 14.

23 And all the people were amazed, and sayd, Is not this that sonne of Dauid?

*24 * But when the Pharisees heard it, they sayd, This fellow doth not cast out these deuils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the deuils.* Mat. 9. 34. mar. 3. 22. luke 11. 17.

25 But when Iesus knew their thoughts, hee sayd vnto them, Euery kingdome diuided against it selfe, is brought to desolation: and euery citie or house diuided against it selfe shall not stand.

26 And if Satan cast out Satan, then were he diuided against himselfe, howe shall then his kingdome endure?

27 Also if I by Beelzebub cast out deuils, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your Iudges.

28 But if I cast out the deuils by the spirit of God, then is the kindome of God come vpon you.

29 Or els, howe can one enter into a strong mans house, and spoile his goods, except he first bind the strong man, & then will spoile his house.

32 And whosoeuer speaketh a word against the sonne of man, it shall be forgiuen him: but whosoeuer speaketh against the holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiuen him, neither in this world, neither 35 A good man out a good treasure bringeth forth good things: and an euil man out of an euil treasure bringeth forth euil things.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XII.

RHEM. 1 33. Make the tree good.) It is a mans owne free will and election, to be a good tree or an ill tree: to bring forth good fruits or bad. S. Auguſtine vpon this place, lib. 2. c. 4. de actis cum Felic. Manichæo.

FVLKE. 1 S. Auguſtine defendeth freewill againſt the hereſie of the Manichees, which held that men were made euill by nature, and creation of the euill god, and not of their owne will. The freedome therefore againſt ſuch enforcement, as the Manichees taught, is not contrary to the thraldome of mans will, ſince the fall of Adam which fell of his freewill. And therefore S. Auguſtine in his retractation of the ſame booke, ſaith, In the ſecond of theſe books we diſputed of the free choiſe of will, either to the doing of euill or good. But of grace, whereby they are truely free, of whom it is ſayd, If the ſonne ſhall make you free, then ſhall you be truely free, we were not compelled by any neceſſitie to diſpute more diligently, becauſe the aduerſary was ſuch a one, as he was, with whom we had to do. And the very ſame collection out of this text, he retracteth lib. 1. cap. 22. and ſheweth, how it muſt be vnderſtood, that he ſayd of freewill, or els it is erronious: Alio loco, &c. In another place I ſayd, Except a man ſhall change his will, he can worke no good, which in another place he teacheth to be placed in our power, where he ſayth: Either make the tree good, and his fruit good, or make the tree euill, and his fruit euill, which is not againſt the grace of God, which we preach now. For it is in the power of man to change his will into better, but this power is none at all, except it be giuen of God, of whom is is ſayd, He gaue them power to be made the ſonnes of God: for ſeeing that it is in our power which we doe, when we are willing, nothing is ſo much in our power as our will it ſelfe, but our will is prepared of the Lord, by that meanes therefore hee giueth power. So is it to be vnderſtood which I ſayd afterward: That it is in our power, that we may obteine, either to be engraffed into the goodneſſe of God, or to be cut off by his ſeuerity: becauſe it is not in our power, but that it followeth our will, which when it is prepared of the Lord to be ſtrong and able, that worke of pietie is eaſily done, which otherwiſe was hard, yea impoſſible. Thus the ſimple may ſee, how you goe about to delude them, alledging the words of S. Auguſtine, againſt his owne iudgement and meaning.

Freewill.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XII.

RHEM. 2 24. In Beelzebub.) The like blaſphemy againſt the holy Ghoſt is, to attribute the miracles done by Saints, either dead or aliue, to the deuill.

FVLKE. 2 Thoſe miracles that are ſayd to be done by Saints, and are alledged to mainteine any doctrine contrary to the trueth taught in the holy Scriptures, S. Auguſtine is bolde to call them either the fictions of lying men, or elſe the works of deceiuing ſpirits: for either thoſe things are not true which are ſayd of thoſe miracles, or els of heretikes haue a-ny miracles, we muſt the rather beware of them. This writeth S. Auguſtine againſt the Donatiſts, which were full of lying miracles, but come ſhort by a thouſand degrees of the Papiſts, the monſters of whoſe lying miracles are much more, then all the poeticall fables: which all modeſt Papiſts will be aſhamed to heare of, but theſe traitours of Rhemes, barking againſt the trueth, are aſhamed of nothing.

Miracles. De vnit eccleſ. cap. 16. witneſſe Legenda aurea feſtiu. ſer. diſcipl. and other ſuch monſters of lying miracles.

RHEM. 30. Not with me.) They that are indifferent to all religions, commonly and fitly called Neuters, ioyning themſelues to neither part, let them marke theſe words well, and they ſhall ſee, that Chriſt accounted all them to be againſt him and his Church, that are not plainly and flatly with him and it.

Neuters in religion.

RHEM. 3 30 Gathereth not with me.) He ſpeaketh not onely of his owne perſon, but of all to whom he hath committed the gouernment of his Church, and ſpecially of the chiefe paſtours ſucceeding Peter in the gouernment of the whole. As S. Hierom writing to Damaſus Pope of Rome, applieth theſe words vnto him, ſaying of all heretikes, He that gathereth not with thee, ſcattereth: that is to ſay, He that is not with Chriſt, is with Antichriſt.

Epi. 58.

FVLKE. 3 He ſpeaketh of his owne doctrine, by which wee muſt make triall, who gathereth with him, and who not. We may ſafely gather with all our gouernours, or equals, that gather with Chriſt, and with none other. Neither doeth S. Hierom warrant vs, that whoſoeuer gathereth with the Biſhop of Rome, gathereth with Chriſt. For that he ſaid to Damaſus, was in that reſpect, that Damaſus gathered with Chriſt, that is, acknowledge the Godhead of Chriſt, againſt the Arians. In this article of faith, he that gathereth not with the Biſhop Damaſus, ſcatereth with the heretikes, and with Antichriſt. Not that Damaſus ſucceeded Peter in the gouernment of the whole Church, and in that he is Biſhop of Rome, is a rule to be alwayes followed. For the ſame Hierome that gathered with Damaſus, affirming the diuinitie of Chriſt, would not haue gathered with Liberius, whom he teſtifieth to haue ſubſcribed with the Arrians, againſt the diuinitie of Chriſt, in Catalo. Num. 107. Fortunatianus. And touching the Biſhop of Romes gouernment ouer the whole, in his Epiſtle to Euagrius, he ſaith, that all Biſhops be the ſucceſſours of the Apoſtles, and that the poore Biſhop of Eugubium, is not inferiour to the rich Biſhop of Rome, &c. And Cyprian ſaith, that all the Apoſtles were equall with Peter in honour and authority. De ſimplicitate prælatorum.

The Pope or Biſhop of Rome.

RHEM. 4 31. The blaſphemie of the Spirit.) He meaneth not that there is any ſinne ſo great, which God will not forgiue, or whereof a man may not repent in this life, as ſome Heretikes at this day affirme: but that ſome heinous ſinnes (as namely this blaſphemy of the Ieawes againſt the euident works of the holy Ghoſt, and likewiſe Archheretikes, who wilfully reſiſt the knowen trueth and works of the holy Ghoſt in Gods Church) are hardly forgiuen, and ſeldome haue ſuch men grace to repent. Otherwiſe among all the ſinnes againſt the holy Ghoſt (which are commonly reckoned ſixe) one onely ſhall neuer be forgiuen, that is, dying without repentance wilfully, called Finall impenitence. Which ſinne he committeth that dieth with contempt of the Sacrament of Penance, obſtinately refuſing abſolution, by the Churches miniſtery: as S. Auguſtine plainly declareth by theſe words. Whoſoeuer he be that beleeueth not mans ſinnes to be remitted in Gods Church, and therefore deſpiſeth the bountifulneſſe of God in ſo mightie a worke, if he in that obſtinate minde continue till his liues end, hee is guiltie of ſinne againſt the Holy Ghoſt, in which Holy Ghoſt Chriſt remitteth ſinnes. Enchir. 83. Ep. 50. in fine.

Finall impenitence.

Remiſſion of ſinnes in the Church.

FVLKE. 4 That God will not forgiue the ſinne againſt the holy Ghoſt, the text is more plaine, then that with any gloſſes of mans inuentions, it can be obſcured. That there is a ſinne, which he that hath committed, can not be renued by repentance, the Apoſtle ſpeaketh as plainly, Hebr. 6. 4, 5, 6. They that haue ſinned againſt the holy Ghoſt, are neuer renued by repentance, nor come to true repentance and change of minde, though as Iudas, they be ſory, not for their ſinne, but for the puniſhment, which they haue deſerued by their ſinne. S. Hierome vpon this text ſayth: That the blaſphemy againſt the holy Ghoſt ſhall at no time be forgiuen: and asketh how Biſhops and Prieſts that haue blaſphemed the holy Ghoſt were in his time receiued to their degree. Heſych. lib. 2. c. 10. Quia ſcientes & voluntariè peccantes, etſi ſe dicunt pœnitere, non pœnitent puræ: blaſphemia enim cor eorum cæcatum eſt. What this ſinne is, and that it ſhall neuer be remitted, Pacianus ſheweth againſt the Nouatians.

Sinne againſt the holy Ghoſt.

Pacian.

Pacian. epist.1. Hæc cæcitas est non videre, quod videas, & S. spiritus opera diabolo deputare, eamque gloriam Domini, qui diabolus superatur, diaboli appellare virtutem. Hoc est ergo quod non dimittetur, reliqua bonis pœnitentibus donantur. Hoc verbo, Dominus & Saluator noster, nō aliqua peccata insinuauit in futuro sæculo remittenda, quæ in hoc sæculo dimissa non fuerint: sed benè intelligentibus non alia, sed illa tantum in sæculo futuro dimittenda, quæ in hoc sæculo, in vna & vera ecclesia catholica fuerint vnicuique dimissa. Fulg. de remiss. pecc. lib 1. c. 24. And although finall vnrepentance be neuer forgiuen, because God forgiueth onely the penitent; yet it is manifest, that our Sauiour Christ speaketh not in this place of finall impenitency, but of blasphemy against the holy Ghost, which he may commit, that obstinately and contumeliously reiecteth the grace of God offered him in the Church, for remission of sinnes, as S. Augustine sayth, but of despising the Sacrament of Popish penance, he speaketh not one word. Popish penance. For there was no such Sacrament acknowledged in his time, although according to the discipline of the Church, they that had openly and grieuously fallen, (so that they were excommunicated) had time and exercises appointed them to shew their repentance, that they might be againe receiued into the Church, which discipline also, whosoeuer contemneth, so long as he remaineth in that contempt, by our Sauiour Christes owne saying, is to be taken for an heathen and Publicane, and if he die in that contempt without repentance, he dieth as an heathen or Publicane. But of the necessity of auricular confession, of satisfaction in worke to the iustice of God for sinnes committed, of the forme of words of absolution, mumbled ouer a mans head by a Popish priest, S. Augustine knew nothing in his time.

RHEM. 5 32. Sonne of man.) The Iewes in their words sinned against the Sonne of man, when they reprehended those things which he did as a man, to wit, calling him a glutton, a great drinker of wine, a friend of the Publicans, and taking offence because he kept company with sinners, brake the Sabboth, and such like: and this sinne might more easily be forgiuen them, because they iudged of him as they would haue done of any other man: but they sinned and blasphemed against the Holy Ghost (called here the finger of God whereby he wrought miracles) when of malice they attributed the euident works of God in casting out diuels, to the diuell himselfe: and this sinne shall not be remitted, because it shall hardly be remitted, as we see by the plague of their posterity vntill this day.

FVLKE. 5 Not the Iewes generally are charged, nor their posteritie are punished for the sinne against the holy Ghost, but some of them which were the Pharises and Scribes, that came from Ierusalem, of whose posterity it is possible, there is few or none remaining at this day. Luc. 11. 17. Mar. 3. 22.

RHEM. 6 32. Nor in the world to come.) S. Augustine and other holy doctours gather hereupon, that some sinnes may be remitted in the next life, and consequently proue Purgatory thereby. De ciuit. Dei. li. 21. c. 13. D. Greg. Dial. li. 4. c. 39. Purgatory.

FVLKE. 6 S. Marke is a sure interpreter of these words. For he (saith S. Marke) that blasphemeth the holy Ghost, neuer hath forgiuenesse, but is guilty of eternall condemnation. The errour of Purgatory in S. Augustines time began to peere vp, from which, as S. Augustine was not altogether cleere, so doth he not affirme any thing certeinly of it. For in his treatise De octo Dulcitij quæst. Quæst. 1. thus he writeth of it, Tale aliquid &c. Such a thing (as sauing by fire) is not incredible to be euen after this life, and whether it be so or no, it may be enquired, and either be found, or be hid, that some faithfull men are saued later or sooner, by a certaine purging fire, by how much more or lesser they haue loued corruptible goods, yet not such of whom it is sayd that they shall not possesse the kingdome of God, &c. except after they haue duely repented, those crimes be remitted vnto them. Purgatory. Mar. 3. 29.

But Hypognost. cont. Pelag. li. 5. he acknowledgeth heauen and hell out of the Scriptures, but of the third place he saith, Tertium penitus, &c. The third place, we are vtterly ignorant of, yea we finde that it is not in the Scriptures. This is the variable opinion of S. Augustine, sometime doubting and thinking it not incredible, sometime denying that any such thing is found in the Scriptures. And although he spake against the Pelagians (and Papists) which fained a third place, where infants vnbaptized should remaine after this life, yet his words are generall, and his reason is as good against Purgatory, as against Limbus infantum.

In Gregories time, which was almost 200 yeere after, the errour of Purgatory had gathered more strength, and yet is holden by Gregory, but for the least and lightest offences, as idle talke, immoderate laughter, or houshold care, which scarse is occupied without offence. It is sufficient for vs, that neither the Scripture teacheth Purgatory, neither the Primitiue church did admit of it, for many hundred yeres after Christ, although by the Carpocratians, Montanists, and Originists, the foundations of that errour were layed of ancient time.

RHEM. 7 36. Idle word.) If of euery idle word we must make account before God in iudgement, and yet shall not for euery such word be damned euerlastingly: then there must needs be some temporall punishment in the next life.

FVLKE. 7 Euery idle word is woorthy of condemnation, if God should deale with vs according to his iustice: as it is plaine in the next verse. For our tongue is giuen vs to speake alwayes that which is to the glory of God, and to the profit of the hearers. Neuertheless, he that pardoneth all the grieuous sinnes of the faithfull that are truely penitent, whereof they must also make account in iudgement, forgiueth also the sinne of idle wordes. Therefore this is a brutish collection, as all the rest of your Popish Notes are, We must giue an account and not be damned, ergo there must needs be some temporall punishment in the next life. Purgatory.

RHEM. 48. Who is my mother.) The dutifull affection toward our parents and kinsfolke is not blamed, but the inordinate loue of them to the hinderance of our seruice and duty toward God. Vpon this place some olde heretike denied Christ to haue any mother. Aug. lib. de Fid. & Symb. cap. 4. Neither euer was there any heresie so absurd, but it would seeme to haue Scripture for it. All heresies alledge Scripture.

CHAP. XIII.

Speaking in parables (as the Scripture foretolde of him, & as meet was for the reprobate Iewes:) he sheweth by the parable of the Sower, that in the labours of the Church, three parts of foure do perish through the fault of the hearers. 24 and yet by the parable of good seed and cockle (as also of the Net) that his seruants must not for all that, neuer while the world lasteth, make any schisme or separation. 31 And by parables of the little mustard seed and leauen, that notwithstanding the three parts perishing, and ouersowing of cockles, yet that fourth part of the good seed shall spread ouer all the world. 44 And withall, what a treasure and pearle it is. 53 After all which, yet his owne countrey will not honour him.

THe same day IESVS going out of the house, sate by the sea side.

Mar. 4. 1. Lu. 8. 4. 2 And *great multitudes were gathered together vnto him, insomuch that hee went vp into a boat and sate: and all the multitude stood in the shore,

3 And he spake to them many things in parables,

*THe same day when Iesus was gone out of the house, * he sate by the sea side.* Marke 4. 1. luke 8. 5.

2 And great multitudes were gathered together vnto him, so that he went into the shippe, and sate, and the whole multitude stoode on the shore.

3 And hee spake many things to them in parables, parables, saying, Beholde the sower went forth to sow.

4 And whiles he soweth, some fell by the way side, and the fowles of the aire did come and eat it.

5 Othersome also fell vpon rockie places, where they had not much earth: and they shot vp incontinent, because they had not deepnesse of earth,

6 And after the sun was vp, they parched: & because they had not root, they withered.

7 And other fell among thornes: and the thornes grew and choked them.

8 And othersome fel vpon good ground: and they yeelded fruit, the ‖ one an hundred fold, the other threescore, and another thirty.

9 Hee that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

10 And his Disciples came & said to him. Why speakest thou to them in parables?

11 Who answered and said vnto them, Because ‖ to you it is giuen to know the mysteries of the kingdome of heauen: but to them it is not giuen.

12 For he that hath, to him shalbe giuen, and hee shall abound: but he that hath not, from him shal be taken away that also which he hath.

13 Therfore in parables I speake to them: because seeing they see not, & ‡ hearing they heare not, neither do they vnderstand:

14 And the prophesie of Esay is fulfilled in them, which saith, With hearing shall you heare, and you shall not vnderstand: and seeing shall you see, and you shall not see.

15 For the hart of this people is waxed grosse, and with their eares they haue heauily heard, and their eyes ‖ they haue shut: lest at any time they may see with their eies, & heare with their eares, and vnderstand with their heart and be conuerted, and I may heale them.

16 But blessed are your eies because they do see, and your eares because they do heare.

17 For amen I say to you, that * many Prophets & iust men haue desired to see the things that you see, and haue not seen them: and to heare the things that you heare, and haue not heard them.

18 Heare you therfore the parable of the sower.

19 Euery one that heareth the word of the kingdome and vnderstandeth not, there commeth the wicked one, & catcheth away that which was sowen in his heart: this is he that was sowen by the way side.

20 And hee that was sowen vpon rockie places: this is he that heareth the word, and incontinent receiueth it with ioy,

21 Yet hath hee not root in himselfe, but is for a time: and when there falleth tribulation and persecution for the word, he is by and by scandalized.

22 And

‡ When Gods word is preached, they properly haue eares to heare, that haue hearts to obey: and they hearing doe not heare, which heare by sense of their body, and obey not by consent of their hearts. Aug. de dono perseu. c. 14. Luc. 10. 23.

parables, saying, Beholde, the sower went foorth to sowe.

4 And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayes side: and the fowles came, and deuoured them vp.

5 Some fell vpon stony places, where they had not much earth: and anon they sprung vp, because they had no deepnesse of earth.

6 And when the sunne was vp, they caught heat: and because they had not root, they withered away.

7 Againe, some fell among thornes: and the thornes sprung vp, and choked them.

8 But some fel into good ground, & brought forth fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold.

9 Who hath eares to heare, let him heare.

10 And the Disciples came, and sayd vnto him, Why speakest thou vnto them by parables?

11 He answered, and said vnto them, Because it is giuen vnto you to know the secrets of the kingdome of heauen, but to them it is not giuen.

*12 * For whosoeuer hath, to him shalbe giuen, and he shall haue more abundance: but whosoeuer hath not, from him shall be taken away, euen that he hath.* Mat. 25. 29.

13 Therefore speake I to them in parables: because they seeing, see not: and hearing, they heare not, neither do they vnderstand.

*14 And in them is fulfilled the prophesie of Esaias, which saith, * With the eare ye shall heare, and shall not vnderstand: and seeing, ye shall see, and shall not perceiue.* Esa. 6. 9. mar. 4. 12. luke 8. 10. ioh. 12. 40. act. 28. 26. rom. 11. 8.

15 For this peoples heart is waxed grosse, and their eares are dull of hearing, & their eyes haue they closed: lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and should vnderstand with their heart, and should conuert, that I might heale them.

16 Blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your eares, for they heare.

*17 Verily I say vnto you, * that many Prophets and righteous men haue desired to see those things which ye see, and haue not seene: and to heare those things which yee heare, and haue not heard.* Luke 10. 24.

*18 * Heare ye therefore the similitude of the Sower.* Mar. 4. 15. luke 8. 11.

19 When one heareth the word of the kingdome, and vnderstandeth it not, then commeth that euill one, and catcheth away that which was sowen in his heart: this is he which receiued seed by the way side.

20 But hee that receiued the seed into stonie places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with ioy receiueth it:

21 Yet hath he not root in himselfe, but dureth for a season: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by hee is offended.

22 He

22 And hee that was ſowen among thornes, this he that heareth the word, and the carefulneſſe of this world and the deceitfulneſſe of riches choketh vp the word, and he becommeth fruitleſſe.

23 But he that was ſowen vpon good ground: this is he that heareth the word, and vnderſtandeth, and bringeth fruit, and yeeldeth ſome an hundred-fold, and other three-ſcore, and another thirtie.

THE GOSPEL vpon the fifth Sunday after the Epiphanie.

24 Another parable he propoſed to them, ſaying, The kingdom of heauen is reſembled to a man that ſowed good ſeed in his field.

25 But when men were aſleepe, his enemie came and ouerſowed cockle among the wheat, and went his way.

26 And when the blade was ſhot vp, and had brought foorth fruit, then appeared alſo the cockle.

27 And the ſeruants of the goodman of the houſe cõming ſaid to him, Sir, didſt thou not ſow good ſeed in thy field? whence then hath it cockle?

28 And he ſaid to them, The enemy man hath done this. And the ſeruants ſaid to him, Wilt thou we goe and gather it vp?

29 And he ſaid, No: ‖ leſt perhaps gathering vp the cockle, you may root vp the wheat alſo together with it.

30 Suffer both to grow vntill the harueſt, and in the time of harueſt I wil ſay to the reapers, Gather vp firſt the cockle, and binde it into bundles to burne, but the wheat gather ye into my barne.

THE GOSPEL vpon the ſixth Sunday after the Epiphanie. Mar.4,30. Luc.13,18.

31 An other parable he propoſed vnto them, ſaying, * The kingdome of heauen is like to a muſtard ſeed, which a man tooke and ſowed in his field.

32 Which is the ‖ leaſt ſurely of all ſeeds: but when it is growen, it is greater then all herbs, and is made a tree, ſo that the fowles of the aire come, and dwell in the branches thereof.

33 An other parable hee ſpake to them, The kingdome of heauen is like to leauen, which a woman tooke and hid in three meaſures of meale, vntil the whole was leauened.

34 All theſe things IESVS ſpake in parables to the multitudes, and without parables he did not ſpeake to them:

35 That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet ſaying, I will open my mouth in parables, I will vtter things hidden from the foundation of the world. Pſal.77,2.

36 Then hauing dimiſſed the multitudes, he came into the houſe, and his Diſciples came vnto him, ſaying, Expound vs the parable of the cockle of the field.

37 Who made anſwere and ſaid to them, He that ſoweth the good ſeed, is the Sonne of man.

38 And the field, is the world. And the good

22 He alſo that receiued ſeed into the thorns, is hee that heareth the word, and the care of this world, and the deceitfulneſſe of riches choke vp the word, and ſo is he made vnfruitfull.

23 But hee that receiued ſeed into the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and vnderſtandeth it, which alſo beareth fruit, and bringeth foorth, ſome an hundred folde, ſome ſixtie folde, ſome thirtie folde.

*24 Another parable put hee foorth vnto them, ſaying, * The kingdome of heauen is likened vnto a man, which ſowed good ſeed in his field.* Matth.4.13.

25 But while men ſlept, his enemie came and ſowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was ſprung vp, and had brought foorth fruit, then appeared the tares alſo.

27 So the ſeruants of the houſholder came, and ſayd vnto him, Sir, diddeſt not thou ſowe good ſeed in thy field, from whence then hath it tares?

28 Hee ſayde vnto them, The malicious man hath done this. The ſeruaunts ſayd vnto him, Wilt thou then that we go, and gather them vp?

29 But he ſayd, Nay: leſt while yee gather vp the tares, yee root vp alſo the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together vntill the harueſt: and in time of harueſt, I will ſay to the reapers, Gather ye together firſt the tares, and bind them in bundles to burne them: but cary the wheat into my barne.

*31 Another parable put he forth vnto them, ſaying, * The kingdome of heauen is like to a graine of muſtard ſeed, which a man tooke, and ſowed in his field.* Matth.4.30. luke 13.18.

32 Which in deed is the leaſt of all ſeedes: but when it is growen, it is the greateſt among herbes, and is a tree: ſo that the birdes of the aire come and make their neſts in the branches thereof.

*33 * Another parable ſpake hee vnto them, ſaying, The kingdom of heauen is like vnto leauen, which a woman tooke, and hid in three pecks of meale, till all were leauened.* Luke 13.20.

*34 * All theſe things ſpake Ieſus vnto the people in parables, and without a parable ſpake he not vnto them:* Mar.4.33.

*35 That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet ſaying, * I will open my mouth in parables, I will ſpeake foorth things which haue beene kept ſecret from the foundation of the world.* Pſal.78.2.

*36 Then Ieſus, when hee had ſent the people away, went into the houſe: * And his diſciples came vnto him, ſaying, Declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the field.* Mar.4.34.

37 Hee anſwered, and ſayd vnto them, Hee that ſoweth the good ſeed, is the ſonne of man.

38 The field, is the world. The good ſeed, theſe good ſeed: theſe are the children of the kingdome. And the cockle: are the children of the wicked one.

39 And the enemy that ſowed them, is the ‡ deuill. But the harueſt, is the end of the world. And the reapers, are the Angels.

‡ Not God then, but the Deuill is the authour of all euill.

40 Euen as cockle therefore is gathered vp, and burnt with fire: ſo ſhall it be in the end of the world.

41 The Sonne of man ſhall ſend his Angels, & they ſhal gather out of his kingdome all ſcandals, and them that worke iniquitie:

42 And ſhall caſt them into the furnace of fire, There ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

43 Then ſhall the iuſt ſhine as the ſunne, in the kingdome of their father. He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

THE GOSPEL for Virgins and other holy women.

44 The kingdom of heauen is like a treaſure hidden in a field. which a man hauing found, did hide it, & for ioy therof goeth, and ſelleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 Againe the kingdom of heauen is like to a merchant man, ſeeking good pearles.

46 And hauing found one precious pearle, he went his way, and ſold all that he had, and bought it.

47 Againe the kingdom of heauen is like to a net caſt into the ſea, and gathering together of all kinde of fiſhes.

48 Which, when it was filled, drawing it forth, and ſitting by the ſhore, they choſe out the ‡ good into veſſels, but the bad they did caſt out.

‡ Here alſo are ſignified good and bad in the Church.

49 So ſhall it be in the conſummation of the world. The Angels ſhall goe forth, and ſhall ſeparate the euill from among the iuſt,

50 And ſhall caſt them into the furnace of fire. There ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

51 Haue ye vnderſtood all theſe things? They ſay to him, Yea.

52 He ſayd vnto them, Therefore euery Scribe inſtructed in the kingdom of heauen, is like to a man that is an houſholder, which bringeth forth out of his treaſure new things and olde.

53 And it came to paſſe: when IESVS had ended theſe parables, he paſſed from thence.

Mr.6,1. Luc.4,16.

54 And * comming into his owne countrey, he taught them in their ſynagogues, ſo that they maruelled, and ſaid, How came this fellow by this wiſdome and vertues?

55 Is not this the ‖ Carpenters ſon? Is not his mother called MARY, and his brethren, Iames and Ioſeph, and Simon and Iude:

56 And his ſiſters, are they not al with vs? whence therefore hath he all theſe things?

57 And they were ſcandalized in him. But IESVS ſaid to them, There is not a Prophet without honour but in his owne countrey, and in his owne houſe.

58 And

theſe are the children of the kingdome. But the tares, are the children of the wicked.

*39 And the enemie that ſowed them, is the deuill. * The harueſt, is the end of the world. The reapers, be the Angels.* Apoc.14.15. ioel 3.13.

40 Euen as the tares therefore are gathered and burnt in the fire: ſo ſhall it bee in the end of the world.

*41 * The Sonne of man ſhall ſend foorth his Angels, and they ſhall gather out of his kingdome all things that offend, and them which doe iniquitie:* Apoc.14.15.

42 And ſhall caſt them into a furnace of fire: there ſhall be wailing and gnaſhing of teeth.

*43 * Then ſhall the righteous ſhine as the ſunne in the kingdome of their father. Who hath eares to heare, let him heare.* Sapi.3.3. dan.12.34.

44 Againe, the kingdome of heauen is like vnto treaſure hid in the field: the which, when a man hath found, hideth, and for ioy thereof goeth and ſelleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 Againe, the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a merchant man, ſeeking goodly pearles:

46 Which when hee had found one precious pearle, went and ſolde all that hee had, and bought it.

47 Againe, the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a net that was caſt into the ſea, and gathered of all kinde, 48 Which, when it was full, the Fiſhers drew to land, and ſate downe, and gathered the good into veſſels, but caſt the bad away.

49 So ſhall it be at the end of the world: the Angels ſhall come foorth, and ſeuer the bad from among the iuſt.

50 And ſhall caſt them into a furnace of fire: there ſhall be wailing and gnaſhing of teeth.

51 Ieſus ſayth vnto them, Haue yee vnderſtood all theſe things? They ſay vnto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then ſayd he vnto them, Therefore euery Scribe which is taught in the kingdome of heauen, is like vnto a man that is an houſeholder, which bringeth foorth out of his treaſure things new and olde.

53 And it came to paſſe, that when Ieſus had finiſhed theſe parables, he departed thence.

*54 * And when he came into his owne countrey, hee taught them in their Synagogue, in ſo much that they were aſtonied, and ſaid, Whence commeth this wiſedome and mightie works vnto him?* Marke 6.1. luke 4.16.

*55 * Is not this the Carpenters ſonne? Is not his mother called Mary? & his brethren, Iames, and Ioſes, and Simon, and Iudas?* Iohn 6.42.

56 And are not al his ſiſters with vs? whence hath he then all theſe things?

*57 And they were offended in him. But Ieſus ſayd vnto them, * A Prophet is not without honour, ſaue in his owne countrey, and in his owne houſe.* Marke 6.4. luke 4.24. iohn 4.44.

58 And hee wrought not many miracles there because of their incredulitie.

58 And hee did not many mightie workes there, because of their vnbeliefe.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIII.

RHEM. 1 8. One an hundred.) This difference of fruits is the difference of merits in this life, and rewards for them in the next life, according to the diuersities of states, or other differences. of states, as that the hundred folde agreeth to virgins professed, threescore folde to religious widowes, thirty fold to the maried. Aug. li. de S. Virginit. c. 44. & seq. which trueth the olde heretike Iouinian denied (as ours do at this day) affirming that there is no difference of merits or rewards. Hiero. li. 2. adu. Iouin. Ambros. ep. 82. Aug. hær. 82. Difference of merits and rewards.

FVLKE. 1 Of them that heare the word of God, some bring forth fruit more plentifully then other, according to the measure of Gods grace, giuen to euery man: who in rewarding euery man according to his works, crowneth his owne gifts, and not mens merits, as S. Augustine testifieth, In Ps. 70. Conc. 1. In Ps. 101. For if any thing be rendred to merits (sayth he) it is hire or wages, not grace, or a free gift, In Psal. 144. Neither doth Augustine speake of the merit of virginitie, as you vnderstand that word of merit, for desert, but of the dignitie or excellencie thereof before the state of the maried. Neither doth he allow, that distribution of an hundred folde to virgins, threescore folde to widowes, and thirty folde to maried folke, because the martyrdome of a maried person, is more excellent then the chastity of a virgin. Cap. 44. 45. & 46. In his catalogue of heresies, he noteth it among the errours of Iouinian, that he counted the chastity of virgins equall vnto the worthinesse of chaste and faithfull maried folks. Where, though S. Augustine vseth the terme merits, yet he meaneth by it, dignitie, excellency, or worthinesse, not desert, as the places before noted doe plainly testifie. S. Hierome, though he doth condemne the errours of Iouinian, concerning the excellencie of virginitie, (as we doe also) yet he alloweth no merit or desert of virginitie before God, nor of any worke of iustice. For thus he writeth against the Pelagians, Lib. 1. Tunc ergo iusti, &c. Then are we iust, when we confesse our selues to be sinners, and our iustice doth not consist of our owne merit, but of the mercy of God. Merits.

S. Ambrose though he prefer the worthinesse of continency before mariage, and vseth the word Meritum: yet that the reward of eternall life is not giuen to mens merits, or deseruings, he writeth thus, Exhort. ad virgines. Vnde mihi, &c. Whence should I haue so great merit, or deseruing, seeing mercy is my crowne? And euen in the same Epistle 82. ad Vercell. he writeth of the reward of eternall life. Sola vos comitabitur fides, &c. Faith onely shall goe with you to the next life, and iustice shall also accompany you, if faith go before.

RHEM. 11. To you is giuen) To the Apostles and such as haue the guiding and teaching of others, deeper knowledge of Gods word and mysteries is giuen, then to the common people. As also to Christians generally, that which was not giuen to the obstinate Iewes.

RHEM. 2 15 They haue shut.) *In saying that they shut their owne eyes, which S. Paul also repeateth Act. 28: he teacheth vs the true vnderstanding of all other places, where it might seeme by the bare wordes that God is the very authour and worker of this induration, and blindnesse, and of other sinnes: * which was an olde condemned blasphemy, and is now the heresie of * Caluin: whereas our Sauiour heere teacheth vs, that they shut their owne eyes, and are the cause of their owne sinne and damnation, God not doing, but permitting it, and suffering them to fall further because of their former sinnes, as S. Paul declareth of the reprobate Gentiles.* Ro. 1. God is not the author of euill. Iren. apud Euseb. li. 5. c. 19. Calu. li. 2. Instit. c. 4.

FVLKE. 2 It is a shameleſse slander against Caluin, that he should teach God to be the authour of sinne, as whoso will reade the place quoted of his Institution, shall plainly see. For he holdeth, as S. Augustine saith, that God hardeneth the wicked, not as an euill authour, but as a righteous Iudge, not by a bare permission or suffering, but by withdrawing and withholding his grace, and deliuering them into their owne lust, or into the deceit of Satan, as a iust punishment of their former sinnes, as Augustine teacheth at large, against Iulian the Pelagian, lib. 5. cap. 3. and S. Paul of the idolatrous Gentiles affirmeth, that God deliuered them into passions of ignominie, as you your selues translate. Rom. 1. Slander.

RHEM. 25. Ouersowed.) First by Christ and his Apostles was planted the trueth, and falshood came afterward, and was ouersowen by the enemy the diuell, and not by Christ, who is not the authour of euill Tertul. de præscript.

29. Left you plucke vp also.) The good must tollerate the euill, when it is so strong that it cannot be redressed without danger and disturbance of the whole Church, and commit the matter to Gods iudgement in the latter day. Otherwise where ill men (be they heretikes or other malefactours) may be punished or suppressed without disturbance and hazard of the good, they may and ought by publike authority either spirituall or temporall to be chastised or executed.

RHEM. 3 30. Suffer both to grow.) The good and bad (we see heere) are mingled together in the Church, which maketh against certaine Heretikes and Schismatikes, which seuered themselues of olde from the rest of the whole world, vnder pretence that themselues onely were pure, and all other both Priests and people sinners: and against some heretikes of this time also, which say that euill men are not of, or in the Church. Good and euill in the Church.

FVLKE. 3 The reprobate are in the visible Church, but they are not of the Catholike Church, which is the mysticall body of Christ. They went out from vs (sayth S. Iohn) but they were not of vs. 1. Ioan. 2. 19. The Catholike Church.

RHEM. 32. The least of all seeds.) The Church of Christ had a small beginning, but afterward became the most glorious and knowen common wealth in earth: the greatest powers and the most wise of the world putting themselues into the same.

RHEM. 4 55. Carpenters sonne.) Hereupon Iulian the Apostata and his flatterer Libanius tooke their scoffe against our Sauiour, saying (at his going against the Persians) to the Christians, what doth the Carpenters sonne now? and threatning that after his returne the Carpenters sonne should not be able to saue them from his fury, whereunto a godly man answered by the spirit of prophesie, He whom Iulian calleth the Carpenters sonne, is making a woodden coffin for him against his death. And in deed not long after there came newes that in that battell he died miserably. Sozo. li. 6. c. 2. Theodo. li. 3. c. 18. The very like scoffe vse Heretikes that call the body of Christ in the B. Sacrament, bakers bread. It seemeth in deed to the senses to be so, as Christ seemed to be Iosephs naturall sonne, but faith telleth vs the contrary aswell in the one as in the other.

FVLKE. 4 We call not the body of Christ, Bakers bread, but that which the Baker made, which is digested and cast out with other meats (as Origen sayth) which if it be not eaten, mouldeth, or is otherwise corrupted, these things it were blasphemy to affirme of the body of Christ. Therefore it is Bakers bread, that is subiect to corruption. And whereas you say, faith telleth you the contrary, tell vs vpon what text of Scripture your faith is builded. The Scripture telleth vs, that the Lords Sacrament is bread, and bread that is broken, which cannot be verified of his naturall body, which is not now broken, but is whole and vncorruptible in heauen. S. Cyrill sayth, our Sauiour Christ when he gaue the Sacrament of his body, gaue fragmenta panis, pieces of bread to his disciples which beleeued, In Ioan. lib. 5. cap. 14. Therefore their faith and yours is not all one. In Mat. 15. Transubstantiation. 1. Cor. 10.

CHAP. XIIII.

Hearing the vnworthy deſtruction of Iohn Baptiſt by Herod, 13 he betaketh him to his vſuall ſolitarineſſe in the deſert, and there feedeth fiue thouſand with fiue loaues. 23 And then after the night ſpent in the mountaine in prayer, he walketh vpon the ſea (ſignifying the wide world) 28 yea and Peter alſo: who vppon they adore him as the ſonne of God. 35 And with the very touch of his garments hemme he healeth innumerable.

Mar.6,14. Lu.9,7.3,19.

AT that time * Herod the Tetrarch heard the fame of IESVS:

2 And ſaid to his ſeruants, This is Iohn the Baptiſt: hee is riſen from the dead, and therefore vertues worke in him.

3 For Herod apprehended Iohn and bound him, and put him into priſon becauſe of Herodias, his ‖ brothers wife.

‖ brother Philips.

4 For Iohn ſayd vnto him, It is not lawfull for thee to haue her.

5 And willing to put him to death, he feared the people: becauſe they eſteemed him as a Prophet.

6 But on Herods birth-day, the daughter of Herodias daunced before them: and pleaſed Herod.

7 Wherupon he promiſed with an oth, to giue her whatſoeuer ſhe would aſk of him.

8 But ſhe being inſtructed before of her mother ſaith, Giue me here in a diſh the head of Iohn the Baptiſt.

9 And the king was ſtroken ſad: yet becauſe of his ‡ oth and for them that ſate with him at table, he commanded it to be giuen.

‡ A wicked and raſh othe, and more wickedly fulfilled: becauſe an vnlawful oth bindeth no man.

10 And he ſent, and beheaded Iohn in the priſon.

11 And his head was brought in a diſh: and it was giuen to the damſell, and ſhe brought it to her mother.

12 And his diſciples came and tooke the body, & ‖ buried it: ‡ & came & told IESVS.

‖ Iohns diſciples at this time had well learned their duety toward Chriſt. Mr.6,31. Lu.9,10. Io.6,2.

13 Which when IESVS had heard, * he ‖ retired from thence by boat, into a deſert place apart, and the multitudes hauing heard of it, followed him on foot out of the cities.

14 And he coming forth ſaw a great multitude, & pitied them, & cured their diſeaſed.

15 * And when it was euening, his diſciples came vnto him, ſaying, It is a deſert place, and the houre is now paſt: dimiſſe the multitudes that going into the townes, they may buy themſelues victuals.

16 But IESVS ſaid to them, They haue no need to goe: giue ye them to eat.

17 They anſwered him. We haue not here, but fiue loaues, and two fiſhes.

18 Who ſaid to them, Bring them hither to me.

19 And when hee had commanded the multitude to ſit downe vpon the graſſe, hee tooke the fiue loaues and the two fiſhes, and looking vp vnto heauen he bleſſed & brake, and gaue the loaues to his Diſciples, and ‖ the Diſciples to the multitudes.

20 And they did all eat, and had their fill. And they tooke the leauings, twelue full baſkets of the fragments.

21 And

*AT that time * Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Ieſu,* Marke 6.14. luke 9.7.

2 And ſayd vnto his ſeruants, This is Iohn the Baptiſt, he is riſen from the dead, and therfore great works do ſhew forth themſelues in him.

*3 * For Herod when he had taken Iohn, he bound him, and put him in priſon for Herodias ſake, his brother Philips wife.* Marke 6.17. luke 3.19.

*4 For Iohn ſayd vnto him, * It is not lawfull for thee to haue her.* Leuit 18.25.

*5 And when hee would haue put him to death, he feared the people: * becauſe they counted him as a Prophet.* Mat.21.26.

6 But when Herods birth day was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleaſed Herod.

7 Wherefore he promiſeth with an othe, to giue her whatſoeuer ſhe would aske.

8 And ſhe, being before inſtructed of her mother, ſayd, Giue me here Iohn Baptiſts head in a platter.

9 And the king was ſory: neuertheleſſe, for the othes ſake, and them which ſate alſo at the table, he commanded it to be giuen her:

10 And ſent a tormentour, and beheaded Iohn in the priſon.

11 And his head was brought in a platter, and giuen to the damſell: and ſhe brought it to her mother.

12 And his diſciples came, and tooke vp his body, and buried it; and went and tolde Ieſus.

*13 * When Ieſus heard of it, hee departed thence in a ſhippe, vnto a deſert place out of the way: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.* Marke 6.32. luke 9.10.

14 And when Ieſus went forth, he ſaw much people, and was moued with mercy toward them, and he healed their ſicke.

*15 * And when it was euening, his diſciples came to him, ſaying, This is a deſert place, and the houre is now paſt: let the people depart, that they may goe into the villages, and buy them victuals.* Marke 6.35. luke 9.12. iohn 6.5.

16 But Ieſus ſayd vnto them, They haue no need to go away: giue ye them to eat.

17 They ſay vnto him, We haue not here but fiue loaues, and two fiſhes.

18 He ſayd, Bring them hither to me.

19 And when he had commanded the people to ſit downe on the graſſe, and had taken the fiue loaues, and the two fiſhes, and lifted vp his eyes toward heauen, he bleſſed: and when he had broken them, he gaue the loaues to his diſciples: and his diſciples to the people.

20 And they did all eat, and were ſuffiſed: And they tooke vp (of the fragments that remained) twelue baskets full.

21 And the nũber of thẽ that did eat, was fiue thousand men, beside womẽ & children.

THE GOSPEL vpon the Octaue of S. Peter & S. Paul. Iulij 6.

22 And forthwith IESVS commanded his Disciples to goe vp into the boat, and to goe before him ouer the water, till he dimissed the multitudes.

23 And hauing dimissed the multitude, hee * ascended into a mountaine alone to pray. And when it was euening, he was there alone.

Mr.6,46. Io.6,16.

24 But the boat in the middes of the sea was tossed with waues, for the winde was contrary.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night, he came vnto them walking vpon the sea.

26 And seeing him vpon the ‖ sea walking, they were troubled, saying, That it is a ghost, and for feare they cried out.

27 And immediatly IESVS spake vnto them, saying, Haue confidence: it is I, feare ye not.

28 And Peter making answer, said, Lord if it be thou, bid mee come to thee vpon the waters.

29 And hee sayd, Come. And Peter descending out of the boat, ‖ walked vpon the water to come to IESVS.

30 But seeing the winde rough, hee was afrayd: and when he began to be drowned, he cried out, saying, Lord, saue me.

31 And incontinent ‡ IESVS stretching foorth his hand tooke hold of him, and sayd vnto him, O thou of little faith, why diddest thou doubt?

32 And when they were gone vp into the boat, the winde ceased.

33 And they that were in the boat, came and adored him, saying, In deed thou art the sonne of God.

34 And hauing passed the water, they came into the countrey of Genesar.

35 And when the men of that place vnderstood of him, they sent into all that countrey, and brought vnto him all that were ill at ease:

36 And they besought him that they might touch but the † hem of his garment, and whosoeuer did touch, were made hole.

† See before, chap.9,20.

21 And they that had eaten, were about fiue thousand men, beside women and children.

22 And straightway Iesus constrained his disciples to get vp into a ship, and to goe before him vnto the other side, while he sent the people away.

*23 And when he had sent the people away, he went vp into a mountaine alone to pray: * and when night was come, he was there himselfe alone.* Marke 6.46. iohn 6.16.

24 But the ship was now in the middest of the sea, and was toss with the waues: for it was a contrary winde.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night, Iesus went vnto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, That it is a spirit: and they cried out for feare.

27 But straightway Iesus spake vnto them, saying, Bee of good cheere: it is I, be not afrayd.

28 Peter answered him, and sayd, Lord, if it be thou, bidde me come vnto thee on the water.

29 And hee sayd, Come. And when Peter was come downe out of the ship, he walked on the water, to goe to Iesus.

30 But when he saw a mighty winde, he was afraid: and when he began to sinke, he cried, saying, Lord, saue me.

31 And immediatly Iesus, when he had stretched forth his hand, caught him, and sayd vnto him, O thou of litle faith, wherefore diddest thou doubt?

32 And when they were come into the ship, the winde ceased.

33 Then they that were in the ship, came and worshipped him, saying, Of a trueth thou art the sonne of God.

*34 * And when they were gone ouer, they came into the land of Genezaret.* Marke 6.54.

35 And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that countrey round about, and brought vnto him all that were sicke.

RHEM. 1 31. ‡IESVS stretching.) Notwithstanding the infirmities of them that gouerne the Church, yet Christ susteineth them, and holdeth them vp, yea and by them, whatsoeuer they are, he vpholdeth and preserueth his Church.

FVLKE. 1 God vseth not by Heretikes, and Antichristian tyrants and masters of impietie, to vpholde and preserue his Church, but by painefull and faithfull teachers, and wise and carefull gouernours, although they haue infirmities.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIIII.

RHEM. 1. Because of Herodias.) It is too ordinary in Princes to put them to death that freely tell them such faults: women, whom they fansie, specially inciting them to such mischiefe.

RHEM. 2 12. Buried it.) *An example of duety toward the dead bodies of the faithfull, wherein see the difference of Catholike Christian men and of all infidels, be the Pagans, Apostates, or Heretikes. For whereas the Christians had layed the body of this blessed Prophet and Martyr * in Samaria with the relikes of Elias and Abdias, by vertue whereof wonderfull miracles were wrought in that place: in Iulian the Apostates time, when men might doe all mischiefe freely against Christian religion, the Pagans opened the tombe of S. Iohn Baptist, burnt his bones, scattered the ashes about the fields: but certaine religious Monkes comming thither a pilgrimage at the same time, aduentured their life, and saued as much of the holy relikes as they could, and brought them to their Abbot Philip a man of God: who esteeming them too great a treasure for him and* Hiero. in Epitaph. Paulæ. c. 6.

Sacrilege against holy relikes.

and his, to keepe for their priuate deuotion, ſent them to Athanaſius the B. of Alexandria, and he with all reuerence layed them in ſuch a place (as it were by the ſpirit of propheſie) where afterward by occaſion of them was built a goodly chapell. Theod. li. 3. c. 6. Ruff. li. 2. c. 28. 27. Marke here that the Heretikes of our time doe as thoſe Pagans, to the bodies and reliks of all bleſſ'd Saints that they can deſtroy: and Catholiks contrariwiſe haue the religious deuotion of thoſe olde Chriſtians, as appeareth by the honour done now to his head at Amiens in France.

FVLKE. 2 There is no doubt, but the dead bodies of the faithfull, are to be laid vp with reuerence, in hope of the reſurrection, but not to be abuſed vnto idolatrie: for Iohns diſciples buried his body, they ſhrined it not to be worſhipped. Concerning the ſtory of the malice of the Pagans, you foiſt in many things that your authour ſayth not: for Theodoret in the place noted, ſayth no more, but that they brake vp the tombe of Iohn Baptiſt, burnt his bones, and ſcattered abroad the aſhes. Reliques.

You ſay, that the Chriſtians layed the body of Iohn the Baptiſt, with the reliques of Elias and Abdias; this ſaith not S. Hierome, but Ibi ſiti ſunt, There lie Helizæus and Abdias prophets, and Iohn the Baptiſt, then the which there was none greater, among them that were borne of a woman. Elias was taken vp in a fiery charet, therefore they had no reliques of his body. But admit your memorie failed you in naming Elias in ſtead of Helizæus, not only here, but alſo in the Table: what wonderfull miracles were there wrought before Iulians time? Ruffinus ſpeaketh of none, before nor after. S. Hierome ſaith in his time, that Paula quaked at many maruels that ſhe ſaw there: namely, deuils roaring in diuers tormentes, and before the ſepulchres of thoſe holy men, men howling like wolues, barking like dogges, roaring like lions, hiſſing like ſerpents, lowing like bulles. Some turne their heads about, and touch the earth with the crowne of their head backeward, women hanging by the feet, their garments to fall abroad vpon their faces. She tooke pity of them all, weeping for euery one, ſhe prayed Chriſt to haue mercy on them Thus writeth S. Hierome, but not of any that were cured of their madneſſe there. Againe ye may note how S. Hierome agreeth with Ruffine, when he ſayth, That S. Iohn Baptiſt lay ſtill in his time in Sebaſte or Samaria: but let the hiſtorie of Ruffine be true. He ſaith, that certeine from Hieruſalem of the monaſterie of Philip, came to that place (where the Pagans raged againſt that body of S. Iohn Baptiſt) to pray, you ſay they came thither a pilgrimage: but howſoeuer it was, they brought ſome reliques away with them, the reſt were burned. Yet Gaudentius B. of Brixia, and Paulinus of Nola were perſwaded that they had his reliques in the great Church at Fundi in Italy. Gaud. de dedic. Baſil. Paul. Epiſt. 12. Now for any iniury that is done by vs vnto the bodies of the Saints, it is a meere ſlander: but the counterfeit reliques that you ſhew, and worſhip as idols, we deſtroy and aboliſh. And to prooue they are counterfeit, we need no other teſtimonie, but of your ſelues, which place one and the ſame relique, in ſo many places at once: As for example, S. Iohn Baptiſts head, you ſay, is at Amiens, other ſay, his face onely. I will not inquire how it came thither from Conſtantinople, whither it was caried by Theodoſius. Hiſt. Trip. lib. 9. cap. 42. But the ſame part that is at Amiens, is at S. Iean Angely. The reſt of his head, from the forehead to the necke, is in Malta: yet the hinder part of his skull, is at Nemours, his braine at Nouium Raſtrouienſe, another part of his head at Iean Morien, his iaw-bone at Veſalium at the Church of S. Iohn the greater, another part at Paris at S. Iohn Laterane, a piece of his eare at S. Floride, his forehead and haires in Spaine at S. Saluadores, another piece of his head is at Noyon, and another at Luke in Italie. And yet for all theſe pieces, his whole head is in S. Siluеſters Abbey at Rome to be ſeene and worſhipped. And there is no doubt, but many Churches in England ſometimes, had reliques of his head, as they would beare vs in hand. Is there not good cauſe thinke you, that we ſhould honour theſe holy reliques: if for nothing els, yet becauſe they can multiplie themſelues, and be in ſo many places at once? O impudent brood of Antichriſt. Orationis gratia. Slander. Blondus in trium Rom. lib. 3. cap. 103.

RHEM. 3 13. Retired.) Chriſt much eſteemed Iohn, and withdrew himſelfe aſide, to giue example of moderate mourning for the departed, and to ſhew the horrour of that execrable murder. as in the Primitiue Church many good men ſeeing the miſerable ſtate of the world in the time of perſecution, and the ſinnes that abounded withall: tooke occaſion to forſake thoſe tumults, and to giue themſelues to contemplation: and for that purpoſe retired into the deſerts of Aegypt, and elſewhere, to doe penance for their owne ſinnes and the ſinnes of the world, whereupon partly roſe that infinite number of Monkes and Eremites, of whom the Fathers and Eccleſiaſticall hiſtories make mention. Hier. to. 2. in vit. Paul. Erem. Sozo. lib. 1. cap. 12. 13. Eremites.

FVLKE. 3 A ſimple argument to iuſtifie the profeſſion of Eremites. Yet that there were many good men that in times paſt led a contemplatiue life in deſert places, I denie not: but I affirme, that their example is a ſhame to the mockmonks, and falſe Eremites of Poperie, which liue in cities, and in the frequence of people, that I ſpeake nothing of their faith and life, far vnlike. Neither doth Hierome, or Sozomenus ſay, they did penance for their owne ſinnes, and the ſinnes of the world: neither had they any ſuch blaſphemous opinion, that they could ſatisfie for their owne ſinnes, much leſſe for the ſinnes of the world. S. Anthony, which was counted the chiefe of thoſe Eremites, confeſſeth that the wound of mans ſinnes could not be healed by any meanes, but by the only goodneſſe of God, which gaue his onely begotten ſonne to ſuffer for our ſinnes. Ep. 2. & 4. Eremites.

RHEM. 19. The Diſciples to the multitudes.) A figure of the miniſtery of the Apoſtles, who as they here had the diſtribution and ordering of theſe miraculous loaues, ſo had they alſo to beſtowe and diſpenſe all the foode of our ſoules in miniſtring of the Word and Sacraments, neither may lay men challenge the ſame.

RHEM. 4 26. Walking.) When not onely Chriſt, but by his power Peter alſo walketh vpon the waters, it is euident that he can diſpoſe of his owne body aboue nature, and contrary to the naturall conditions thereof, as to go thorow a doore, Io. 20. to be in the compaſſe of a litle bread. Epiphan. in Anchorato.

FVLKE. 4 Chriſt can diſpoſe his body aboue nature, but not to deſtroy the eſſentiall conditions of a body, for then he ſhould ceaſe to haue a body, and ouerthrow the hope of our reſurrection. Euſeb. Emiſſ. hom. in Sabb. poſt ciner. Propter hæreticos ita fieri oportebat, qui Chriſtum Dominum, eo quòd ſuper mare ambulauerat, non verum, ſed phantaſticum corpus habuiſſe poſtea dicebant. Vincuntur enim iſti, dum beatum quoque Petrum ſuper mare ambulaſſe audiunt, quem vtique verum corpus habuiſſe non dubitant. And where you quote Ioan. 20. to proue that his body did goe thorow a doore, your owne tranſlation is, that the doores were ſhut, not that he came thorow the doore: for he made the doore to open, and giue place to him, as the priſon doores did to the Apoſtles by the miniſterie of the Angels, Act. 5. which yet were ſhut againe, ſo ſoone as they paſſed thorow: for if the diſtance of place be taken from bodies, they ſhalbe no where, and being no where, they ſhall not be at all. as S. Auguſtine teacheth. Ep. 57. Datdan. Finally, where you quote Epiphanius to affirme, that the body of Chriſt can be in the compaſſe of a little bread, it is a maniteſt abuſing of the reader: for Epiphanius ſayth not ſo, but the cleane contrary. For teaching, that the ſacrament all bread, is an image of Chriſt, And yet (ſayth he) neither in greatneſſe, nor faſhion, nor power it is like, either to his diuinity, or to his humanity: for it is a long ſhapen rowle in faſhion, and void of ſenſe as concerning power. which teſtimony of Epiphanius cleerely ouerthroweth your errour of tranſubſtantiation, and carnall manet of Chriſtes preſence in the Sacrament, both together. The body of Chriſt.

RHEM. 5 29. Walked.) Peter (sayth S. Barnard) walking vpon the waters, as Christ did, declared himselfe the onely Vicar of Christ, which should be ruler not ouer one people, but ouer all. For many waters, are many peoples. Bernard lib.2.de consid.c.8. See the place, how he deduceth from Peter the like authoritie and iurisdiction to his successour the bishop of Rome. Peters primacie.

FVLKE. 5 Bernard was but a late writer, and was deceiued with the errour of Peters primacie, though not so grosly as the Papists holde it at this day: neither is his collection any better then his authoritie. Peter walked on the water as Christ did, ergo he was the onely vicar of Christ. While S. Bernard followed such arguments, no maruell, if it were sayd of him, Non vidit omnia, He saw not all. Peters primacie.

CHAP. XV.

The Pharisees of Hierusalem comming so farre to carpe him, he chargeth with a tradition contrary to Gods commandement. 10 And to the people he yeeldeth the reason of that which they reprooued: 15 and againe to his Disciples, shewing the ground of the Pharisaicall washing (to wit, that meats otherwise defile the soule) to be false. 21 Then he goeth aside to hide himselfe among the Gentiles: where, in a woman he findeth such faith, that he is faine, lest the Gentiles should before the time extort the whole bread, as she had a crumme, to returne to the Iewes. 34 where (all contrary to those Pharisees) the common people seeke wonderfully vnto him, and he after he hath cured their diseased, feedeth foure thousand of them with seuen loaues.

THE GOSPEL vpon Wednesday the third weeke in Lent. Mar.7,1.

THEN came to him from Hierusalem Scribes and Phatisees, saying,

2 Why do thy Disciples transgresse the tradition of the Ancients? For they wash not their hands when they eat bread.

3 But he answering sayd to them: why do you also transgresse the commandement of God for your tradition? For God said, Exo.20,12. Luk.20.9. 4 Honour father and mother. and, he that shall curse father or mother, dying let him die.

5 But you say, Whosoeuer shall say to father or mother, The gift whatsoeuer proceedeth from me, shall profit thee:

6 And shall not honour his father or his mother: and you haue made frustrate the commandement of God for your owne tradition.

7 Hypocrites, well hath Esay prophesied of you, saying,

Esa.29,13. 8 This people honoureth me with their ‖ lips: but their heart is farre from me.

9 And in vaine do they worship me, teaching doctrines and ‖ commandements of men.

10 And hauing called together the multitudes vnto him, he sayd to them, Heare ye and vnderstand.

11 ‖ Not that which entreth into the mouth, defileth a man: but that which proceedeth out of the mouth, that defileth a man.

12 Then came his disciples, & said to him, Doest thou know that the Pharisees, when they heard this word, were scandalized?

13 But he answering, sayd: All planting which my heauenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted vp.

14 Let them alone: blind they are, guides of the blind. And if the blind be guide to the blind, both fall into the ditch.

15 And Peter answering, said to him, Expound vs this parable.

16 But he sayd, Are you also as yet without vnderstanding?

17 Doe you not vnderstand, that all that entreth into the mouth, goeth into the belly, and is cast forth into the priuie?

18 But the things that proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart, and those things ‖ defile a man.

THE GOSPEL vpon Thurſday the firſt weeke in Lent.

21 And IESVS went forth fro thence and retired into the quarters of Tyre and Sidon.

22 And beholde *a woman of Chanaan came foorth out of thoſe coaſtes, and crying out, ſaide to him, Haue mercie vpon mee, O Lorde the Sonne of Dauid: my daughter is ſore vexed of a deuil.

23 Who anſwered her not a word. And his Diſciples came and beſought him ſaying, Dimiſſe her: becauſe ſhe crieth out after vs:

24 And he anſwering ſaid: I was not ſent but to the ſheepe that are loſt of the houſe of Iſrael.

25 But ſhe came and adored him, ſaying, Lord, helpe me.

26 Who anſwering, ſaide: It is not good to take the bread of the children, and to caſt it to the dogges.

27 But ſhe ſaid, yea lord: for the whelpes alſo eate of the crummes that fall from the table of their maſters.

28 Then IESVS anſwering ſaid to her, O woman, ‡ great is thy faith: be it done to thee as thou wilt: and her daughter was made hole from that houre. ☞

29 And when IESVS was paſſed from thence, he came beſide the ſea of Galilee: and aſcending into the mountaine, ſate there.

30 And there came to him great multitudes, hauing with them dum perſons, blind, lame, ſeeble, and many others: and they caſt them downe at his feete, and he cured them:

31 So that the multitudes marueiled ſeeing the dumme ſpeake, the lame walke, the blind ſee: & they magnified ỹ God of Iſrael.

Mar.8,1. 32 And *IESVS called together his diſciples, and ſaide: I pitie the multitude: becauſe three dayes now they continue with me, and and haue not what to eate: and dimiſſe them faſting I wil not, leſt they faint in the way.

33 And the diſciples ſay vnto him: whēce then may wee get ſo many loaues in the deſert as to fill ſo great a multitude?

34 And IESVS ſaid to them, how many loaues haue you? but they ſaide, Seuen, and a few litle fiſhes.

‡ Here we ſee againe that the people muſt not be their owne caruers, nor receiue the Sacraments or other ſpirituall ſuſtenance immediatly of Chriſt, or at their owne hand, but of their ſpirituall gouernours.

35 And he commanded the multitude to ſit downe vpon the ground.

36 And taking the ſeuen loaues and the fiſhes, and giuing thankes, hee brake, & gaue to his diſciples, and the diſciples gaue to the people.

37 And they did all eate, and had their fil. And that which was left of the fragments they tooke vp, ſeuen baskets full.

parted into the coaſtes of Tyre and Sidon.

22 And beholde, a woman of the Chanaanites, which came out of the ſame coaſtes, cried vnto him, ſaying, Haue mercie on mee, O Lord, thou ſonne of Dauid, my daughter is grieuouſly vexed with a deuill.

23 But hee anſwered not a word. And his diſciples came, and beſought him, ſaying, Send her away, for ſhe crieth after vs.

24 But he anſwered, and ſaid, I am not ſent *but vnto the loſt ſheepe of the houſe of Iſrael. Matth.10.6.

25 Then came ſhe, and worſhipped him, ſaying, Lord helpe me.

26 But he anſwered & ſaid, It is not meet to take the childrēs bread, & to caſt it to litle dogs.

27 And ſhe ſaid, Yes Lord: for the litle dogs alſo eate of the crummes which fall from their maſters table.

28 Then Ieſus anſwered, and ſaid vnto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it done vnto thee euen as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole euen from that ſame houre.

32 *Then Ieſus called his diſciples vnto him, Mark.8.1. and ſaid, I haue compaſſion on the people, becauſe they continue with me now three dayes, and haue nothing to eate: and I will not let them depart faſting, leaſt they faint in the way.

35 And hee commaunded the people to ſit downe on the ground.

36 And whē he had taken the ſeuen loaues and the fiſhes, and had giuen thankes, hee brake them, and gaue to his diſciples: and the diſciples gaue them to the people.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XV.

RHEM. 1 28. Great is thy faith.) It were a strange case that Christ should commend in this woman a sole faith without good workes, that is to say, a dead faith such as coulde not worke by loue, and which S. Iames doubted not to call the faith not of Christians but of deuils. Aug. de Fid. & Op. c. 16.

FVLKE. 1 Christ neuer commendeth a sole faith, which is voyde of good workes, to be sufficient for iustification, but a liuely faith, which worketh by loue, to iustifie alone, without respect had vnto the merite of the works. This womans faith was not solitary, or voyde of good workes, but accompanied with patience, inuocation, humilitie, charitie, and other fruites of faith: yet was shee iustified before God, by faith onely, and before men iustified or declared to be iust by the fruits of a liuing faith, Iames 2. A godly faith (saith S. August.) will not be without hope and charitie. Ep. 80. Iustification.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XV.

RHEM. 2 8. With their lippes.) This is to bee vnderstood properly of such as haue euer God in their mouth, the worde of our Lord, the Scriptures, the Gospel, but in their heart and all their life be in deed Godles. It may be applied also to such as say their prayers without attention or eleuation of minde to God, whether hee vnderstand the prayers or no that saith them. For many a poore Christian man that vnderstandeth not the wordes he speaketh, hath his heart neerer heauen, more feruor and deuotion, more edification to himselfe, more profite in spirit (as the Apostle speaketh) and lesse distractions, then not onely all Heretikes which haue no true feeling of such things, but then many learned Catholikes. And therefore it is not to bee vnderstood of praying in vnknowen tongues, as Heretikes sometime expound it, farre wide from the circumstance of the place & Christs intention, speaking of the hypocriticall Iewes. 1. Cor. 14.

FVLKE. 2 He that prayeth in a tongue which he vndetstandeth not, cannot come neere to God with his heart, seeing his heart cannot request that which is conteined in the sound of wordes vttered with his lippes. Hee may haue a superstitious deuotion or zeale of God, which being not according to knowledge, cannot bring him neere to God. For hee that wil come neere to God, must come by faith, without which it is impossible to please God. and faith cannot be of things vnknowen, but of things reueiled to vs by the word of God. Neither doeth the Apostle say, that he which prayeth in a tongue which himselfe vnderstandeth not, doeth edifie himselfe, but he that hath the gift to speake in an vnknowen tongue which hee himselfe vnderstandeth, but not the Church, may edifie himselfe, but not profite the Church. As for profit in spirit, S. Paul nameth not, but he that prayeth in spirit, that is according to his spirituall gift of strange tongues: if he pray in the Church, hee must pray with vnderstanding of other, that his prayer be not vnfruitfull, or else holde his peace, if neither hee, nor any other, can interprete his prayers. As for him that vnderstandeth not what he requireth in an vnknowen tongue, prayeth not at all, but mocketh God, and the Church if he pray openly. And where you say, such a one may haue lesse distractions then other in his prayer, there is nothing els, but a distraction of his minde from his tongue, when his heart cannot thinke that which the wordes hee pronounceth doeth signifie, which hee knoweth not whether they be blessing or cursing, prayers or thankesgiuing, for spirituall benefites or temporall, for himselfe or for other, for forgiuenesse of sinnes, or perseuerance in vertue. Whereas true prayer, requireth a true sence or feeling of our present neede, and of the necessitie of our brethren, yea of the whole Church of God. Nilus de oratione cap. 33. Oratio sine distractione est summa intelligentia mentis. Prayer in a tongue vnknowen. Rom. 10. 2. Hebr. 11. Rom. 10. Ioan. 17.

Prayer in an vnknowen tongue, was first brought in by Elxai, the horrible Heretike among the Iewes, which said vnto his schollers, Let no man seeke the interpretation, but onely in his prayer say these words, &c. Epip. Hæres. 19. who doubteth not, that this testimony of Esay, may be rightly applied against him & his sect: and euen by the same reason it may be applied against the Papists, who much more then the hypocriticall Iewes, honour God in vaine with their lips, according to mens traditions, and therefore their heart is farre from him.

RHEM. 3 9. Commandements of men.) Such onely are here called traditions, doctrines, or commaundements of men, which be either repugnant to Gods lawes, as this of defrauding their parents vnder pretense of religion: or which at least be friuolous, vnprofitable, and impertinent to pietie or true worship, as that other sort of so often washing handes and vessels, without regard of inward puritie of heart and minde. Let no man therefore bee abused with the Protestants peruerse application of this place against the holy lawes, canons, and precepts of the Church and our spirituall Gouernours, concerning fastes, festiuities, and other rules of discipline and due order in life and in the seruice of God. For such are not repugnant but consonant to Gods word and all pietie, and our Lorde is truely honoured, worshipped, and serued both by the making and also by the obseruing of them. S. Paul gaue commandements both by his epistles and by word of mouth, euen in such matters wherein Christ had prescribed nothing at all, and hee chargeth the faithfull to obserue the same.* The Apostles and Priestes at Hierusalem made lawes, and the Christians were bound to obey them.* [a] The keeping of Sunday, in stead of the Sabboth is the tradition of the Apostles, and dare the Heretikes deny the due obseruation thereof to be an acceptable worship of God? [b] They prescribed the Feastes of Easter, and Whitsontide and other Solemnities of Christ and his Saincts, which the Protestants themselues obserue. [c] They appointed the Lent and Imber fastes and other, as well to chastise the concupiscence of man, as to serue and please God thereby, as is plaine in the fasting of Anna, Tobie, Iudith, Esther, who serued and pleased God thereby. Therefore neither these nor other such Apostolike Ordinances, nor any precepts of the holy Church or of our lawfull Pastors are implied in these Pharisaical traditions here reprehended, nor to be compted or called the doctrines and commandements of men, because they are not made by mere humane power, but by Christes warrant and authoritie, and by such as he hath plated to rule his Church, of whom he saith,* He that heareth you, heareth me: he that despiseth you, despiseth me: They are made by the Holy Ghost, ioyning with our Pastors in the regiment of the faithfull, they are made by our Mother the Church which whosoeuer obeyeth not,* we are warned to take him as an Heathen. But on the other side, all lawes, doctrines, seruice and iniunctions of Heretikes, howsoeuer pretended to be consonant to the Scriptures, be commandements of men: because both the things by them prescribed are impious, and the Authors haue neither sending nor commission from God.* The difference betweene the Iewish traditions here reprehended, and the Churches Apostolical traditions. 2. FVLKE. 3 Of Popish traditions, doctrines, and commandements, some bee repugnant to Gods lawes, as worshipping of Images, sacrifice of the Masse, communion in one kinde, prohibiting of mariage and meates for religions sake, and such like. Some are beside the Lawes of God, as idle and vnprofitable ceremonies, whereof they haue an infinite number, seruing not to order, decencie, and edification, but to idolatry and superstition: while they make them as a part of Gods seruice and worship. In both sorts, being the doctrines of men, God is worshipped Traditions of men.

ped in vaine, as our Sauiour ſaith, out of the Prophet Eſai. Now let vs ſee, how you defend them: firſt you ſay; S. Paul gaue commandements both by his epiſtles and by word of mouth, euen in ſuch matters wherein Chriſt had preſcribed nothing at all, and chargeth the faithfull to obſerue them, for which you quote 2. Theſſ. 2. 15. and 1. Corinth. 11. I anſwere, this is a deteſtable ſlander of the holy Apoſtle, who taught nothing as neceſſary to be obſerued, but that which he had receiued of the Lord, either in particuler, as the obſeruation of the Lords Supper, 1. Corinth. 11. 23. or in generall, as the comlines to be obſerued in the holy meetings, according to the diſtinction of ſexes, which God hath made. Out of which general doctrine, the Apoſtle inferreth his arguments, for the couering of womens heads in the Congregation, and the not couering of mens heads. And yet in the outward ceremonie of couering, or not couering, he preſcribeth nothing as a part of religion or the ſeruice of God: but as a matter of comlines, and decencie among men: which is varied according to times, perſons and places: and therefore concludeth, that it is not the cuſtome of Gods Church to contend for ſuch matters. But for matters neceſſary to Gods worſhip, the Church muſt ſtriue euen to the death of her children. As for ceremonies apt for decencie, order and edification, are allowed by the word of God, and the Church hath libertie in the externall formes of them, ſo thoſe three conditions or endes be obſerued. But in the other place of S. Paul, how proue you that he ſpeaketh of any thing not expreſſed in the Scriptures? For though he hath not comprehended all things in his Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, yet he taught no doctrine neceſſary to ſaluation, but that which Moſes and the Prophets haue ſaid, and which was accompliſhed and taught by our Sauiour Chriſt in the Goſpel. As for matters of externall Diſcipline, and forme of adminiſtration of the Sacraments, publike prayers, and ſuch like, which are variable (ſo the ſubſtance of doctrine be retained, and the generall rules appointed for ſuch matters be obſerued,) he neuer required any perpetual obſeruation. 1. Cor. 14. 28. and 40. Act. 16. 13.

But the Apoſtle made lawes of blood, and ſtrangled neceſſary to be obſerued: I graunt, but not as a part of Gods worſhip, but as neceſſary for edifying of the Iewes in loue, which cauſe ceaſing, thoſe Lawes alſo ceaſe of themſelues without any abrogation. For now when the infirmitie of the Iewes is no let, it is lawfull to eate blood and ſtrangled.

Thirdly, the obſeruation of the Lords day, is not deliuered by blinde tradition, but hath teſtimonie of the holy Scriptures, 1. Corinth. 16. 2. and Apoc. 1. 10. Act. 20. 7. and the obſeruation thereof, is according to Gods commandement, and no doctrine of men.

Fouthly, you ſay, the Apoſtles preſcribed the feaſtes of Eaſter and Whitſuntide, and other ſolemnities of Chriſt, and of his Saincts, which the Proteſtants obſerue. Epiph. har. 74. I anſwere, Epiphanius aſcribeth to tradition of the Apoſtles, the Wedneſday faſt, and many other ceremonies which the Papiſts do not obſerue. Therfore the Papiſts muſt confeſſe, either that ſuch things were not preſcribed by the Apoſtles, or els that they were preſcribed none otherwiſe, then indifferent ceremonies, which are ſubiect to alteration, and in which the religion or worſhip of God doth not conſiſt. And ſo the Proteſtants obſerue them, for order & edification of Gods people, that vſe to aſſemble at ſuch times: as the Apoſtles obſerued the Sabboth day, Pentecoſt, and other ſolemnities of the Iewes, not as a portion of Chriſtian religion, but taking occaſion of the meeting of the Iewes in thoſe feſtiual times.

Fifthly, you ſay, the Apoſtles appointed the Lent & Imber faſts, aſwel to chaſtiſe mens concupiſcences, as to pleaſe God thereby. For the appointing of Lent and Imber faſts, you quote Hierom. ad Marcel. Cont. Mont. who in deed alleadgeth the tradition of the Apoſtles, for one fourtie dayes faſt in the yere, but of Imber faſts, and ſuch other he ſpeaketh neuer a word. And I haue ſhewed before out of Euſeb. 5. 18. that Montanus the heretike was the firſt that appointed lawes of faſting. And Irenæus cited by Euſeb. 5. 26. ſheweth the diuerſitie of faſting, as well as of obſeruing the feaſt of Eaſter, which proueth that neither the one, nor the other, had any certaine preſcription by the Apoſtles. That men by faſting ſerue and pleaſe God, you cite the examples of Anna, Tobie, Iudith, Heſter, who ſerued and pleaſed God thereby, whereof we doubt nothing at all, while they vſed faſting to the right end allowed of God, that is, humbling of themſelues, and chaſtiſing of the body, that it might be more obedient to the ſpirit, and feruent in prayer. For otherwiſe, faſting of it ſelfe (as S. Hierome ſaith,) is no perfect vertue, but a foundation of other vertues. Thinke not (ſaith he) that thou art holy, when thou haſt begunne to faſt and abſteine, for this vertue is an helpe, not a perfection of ſanctification. Ad Demetr. Ad Celan. I conclude therefore, that Popiſh traditions, placing religion and holines, in commandements and ceremonies of their owne inuention, are as ill, as the Phariſaicall traditions, and men ſeeke in vaine to worſhip of God by them. For Chriſt hath giuen no warrant or auctoritie to any man, to adde any thing to the worſhip God preſcribed in his word. Neither hath he aſſured vs, that whoſoeuer heareth man heareth him, but ſo long as man preacheth Gods worde, and not the viſions of his owne head. Iudas was one of them, of whom it was ſaid, he that heareth you, heareth me, but this was vnderſtood to be no longer, then hee preached the Goſpel, els the high Prieſtes might be excuſed for hearkening to him, when he ſaid, What wil you giue me and I will betray him vnto you? Againe the holy Ghoſt ioyneth not with them, that ſet vp a new religion, or teach new doctrines, but with them that reteine onely the doctrine of Chriſt, as ſufficient vnto ſaluation. And that is the true Church which heareth the voyce of the ſpouſe, and is content to be directed thereby in all things. That company of men which teach contrary to the Scripture, or beſides the Scriptures, to worſhip God, not as the word hath preſcribed, but according to the doctrines of men, is the ſynagogue of Sathan, and not the Church of Chriſt: Neither haue they ſending or commiſſion from God. But they who ſincerely according to the Scriptures, do teach the Goſpel, haue ſending and commiſſion from God. Rom. 10. and are to be heard euen as Chriſt himſelfe, ſo long as they teach nothing but that Chriſt hath taught, as it is to be proued out of the holy Scriptures. Ioan. 16. 14. cap. 14. 26. cap. 20. 31.

RHEM. 4 11. Not that which entreth.) The Catholikes doe not abſtaine from certaine meates, for that they eſteeme any meate vncleane either by creation or by Iudaical obſeruation: but they abſtaine for chaſtiſement of their concupiſcences. Aug. li. de mor. Ec. Cath. c. 33. Difference of meates.

FVLKE. 4 The Papiſts abſtaine not as the Catholikes did in S. Auguſtines time, for chaſtiſement of their concupiſcences, but of hypocriſie, for religion & holines. For wine, ſpices, fruites, ſallets, and many fiſhes which they vſe, do much more nouriſh concupiſcence, then vſual fleſh, from which they abſtaine. As S. Auguſtine ſheweth of the faſtes of the Manichees. De error. Man. lib. 2. cap. 12. Popiſh faſtings, RHEM. 5 18. Defile a man.) It is ſinne onely which properly defileth man, and meates of themſelfe or of their owne nature do not defile: but ſo farre as by accident they make a man to ſinne, as the diſobedience of Gods commandement or of our Superiours who forbid ſome meates for certaine times and cauſes, is a ſinne. As the apple which our firſt parents did eate of, though of it ſelfe it did not defile them, yet being eaten againſt the precept, it did defile. So neither fleſh nor fiſh of it ſelfe doeth defile, but the breach of the Churches precept defileth. Gen. 3. Catholike abſtinence.

FVLKE. 5 The Spirit ſpeaketh ſo euidently of your Popiſh prohibition of mariage & meates for religion and holines, that all your lying wordes and ſhifts of hypocriſie, cannot excuſe you from holding the doctrine of deuils. If Popiſh faſting.

neither flesh nor fish defile a man as you say now; why doe you prohibite flesh to some men at all times, and to all men at some times? The like I say of mariage, whereby Gregory Martin, a birde of your owne nest affirmeth, that the sacred order of priesthood is prophaned. Discou. cap. 15. And Durand can yeeld none other reason, why fish is eaten on fasting dayes, but because God hath not cursed the waters, Because remission of sinnes should be by the water of Baptisme. For this element is most worthy which washeth away filthines, and vpon which the spirit of the Lord was borne before the making of the world. But he cursed the earth in the workes of man: hereof it is that it is not lawfull in fasting to eate any kinde of ſt ſo which liueth on the earth, as foure footed beastes, and birds, &c. Lib. 6. cap. de alijs ieiunijs. Let the indifferent Reader now iudge, whether you abstaine not from flesh as from meate cursed of God. Whereas the faithfull knowe, that all the creatures of God are good, and sanctified vnto them by his word and prayer.

CHAP. XVI.

The obstinate Pharisees and Sadducees, as though his foresayd miracles were not sufficient to proue him to be Christ, require to see some one from heauen. 5 Whereupon forsaking them, hee warneth his disciples to beware of the leauen of their doctrine:

RHEM. 1 13 And Peter (the time now approching for him to goe into Iewry to his Passion) for confessing him to be Christ, hee maketh the Rocke of his Church, giuing vnto him Ecclesiastical power accordingly.

FVLKE. 1 Peter by the grace of God, and not by the merite of his confession, is made not the Rocke, but a rocke or foundation stone of the Church, and receiueth such Ectlesiasticall power, as was common to him with all the Apostles.

RHEM. 2 21 And after, he reproueth him for dissuading his Crosse and Passion, that he also affirmeth the like suffering in euery one to be necessary to saluation.

FVLKE. 2 Christ affirmeth not the like suffering to his passion to be necessary to saluation, in euery one, but that euery one in affection of denying himselfe, ought to be ready to suffer whatsoeuer is layd vpon him, for the profession of the Gospel.

Mar.8,12. Luc.12,54. AND there came to him the Pharisees and Sadducees tempting: and they demaunded him to shewe them a signe from heauen.

2 But he answered & said to them, when it is euening, you say, It will be faire-wether, for the element is redde.

3 And in the morning, This day there wil be a tempest, for the element doth glow and lowre. The face therfore of the element you haue skil to discerne: and the signes of times can you not?

Mat.12,39. 4 The *naughtie and aduouterous generation seeketh for a signe: and there shall not a signe be giuen it, but the signe of Ionas the Prophet. And he left them and went away.

Mar.8,14. 5 And *when his disciples were come ouer the water, they forgot to take bread.

6 Who said to them, Looke well and beware of the leauen of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

7 But they thought within themselues saying, Because we tooke not bread.

8 And IESVS knowing it, said, why doe you thinke within your selues O yee of little faith, for that you haue not bread?

9 Doe you not yet vnderstand, neither do you remember *the fiue loaues among fiue thousande men, and how many baskets you tooke vp?

10 Neither the * seuen loaues, among foure thousand men, & how many maundes you tooke vp?

11 Why doe you not vnderstande that I said not of bread to you, Beware of the leauen of the Pharisees and Sadducees?

12 Then they vnderstood that hee saide not they shoulde beware of the leauen of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

13 And

Mar.8.11. luke 11.54. THE *Pharisees also, with the Sadducees, came, and tempting, desired him that hee would shew them a signe from heauen.

2 He answered, and said vnto them, When it is euening, ye say, It wil be faire weather: for the skie is red,

3 And in the morning, it wil be foule weather to day: for the skie is lowring red. O ye hypocrites, ye can discerne the outwarde appearance of the skie: but can ye not discerne the signes of the times?

Matt.12.34. Ionas 2.1. *4 A frowarde and adulterous nation requireth a signe, and there shall no signe be giuen vnto it, but the signe of the Prophet Ionas. And hee left them, and departed.*

5 And when his disciples were come to the other side of the water, they had forgotten to take bread with them.

6 Then Iesus said vnto them, Take heed and beware of the leauen of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees.

7 And they thought in themselues, saying, For we haue taken no bread with vs.

8 Which when Iesus vnderstoode, hee saide vnto them, O yee of little faith, why thinke you within your selues, because yee haue brought no bread.

Matt.14.17. *9 Doe ye not yet perceiue, neither remember those fiue loaues of the fiue thousande, and howe many baskets tooke ye vp?

Matt.15.34. *10 * Neither the seuen loaues of the foure thousand, and how many baskets tooke ye vp?*

11 How is it that ye do not vnderstand that I speake it not vnto you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leauen of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees?

12 Then vnderstood they howe that hee bad not them beware of the leauen of the bread: but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

13 And *IESVS came into the quarters of Cæsarea Philippi: and hee asked his disciples, saying, ‖Whom say men that the Sonne of man is?

14 But ‖they said, Some Iohn the Baptist, and others Elias, and others Hieremie, or one of the Prophets.

15 IESVS saith to them, But whom doe you say that I am?

16 Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art Christ the sonne of the liuing God.

17 And IESVS answering, saide to him, ‖Blessed art thou Simon bar-Iona: because flesh and bloud hath not reueiled it to thee, but my father which is in heauen.

Io.1,42. ‡ That is, a Rocke.

18 And ‖I say to thee, That thou art *‡Peter: & ‖vpõ this ‖Rocke wil I ‖ build my Church, and the ‖ gates of hel shal not preuaile against it.

20 Then hee commaunded his disciples that they should tel no body that he was IESVS CHRIST.

21 From that time IESVS began to shew his disciples, that he must go to Hierusalem, and suffer many things of the Ancients and Scribes and chiefe-Priests, and be killed, and the third day rise againe.

22 And Peter taking him vnto him, began to rebuke him, saying, Lord, bee it farre from thee, this shall not be vnto thee.

‡ This word in Hebrew signifieth an aduersarie, as 3. Reg. 5,4. and so it is taken here.

23 Who turning saide to Peter, goe after me ‡Satan, thou art a scandal vnto me: because thou sauoures not the things that are of GOD, but the things that are of men.

THE GOSPEL for a Martyr, that is a bishop.

24 Then IESVS said to his disciples, If any man wil come after me, let him deny himselfe, and take vp his crosse, and follow me.

25 For he that will saue his life, shall lose it. and he that shall lose his life for mee, shall finde it.

26 For what doeth it profite a man, if hee gaine the whole world, and sustaine the damage of his soule? Or what permutation shal a man giue for his soule?

27 For the Sonne of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his Angels: and then will he render to euery man according to his ‖workes.

Mat.9,1. Luc.9,27.

28 Amen I say to you, *there be some of them that stande here, that shall not taste death, till they see the Sonne of man comming in his kingdome.

13 *When Iesus came into the coastes of Cæsarea, which is called Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom doe men say that I the Sonne of man am? Mar.8.28. luke 9.18.

16 *Simon Peter answered, and saide, Thou art Christ, the Sonne of the liuing God. Iohn 6.69.

17 And Iesus answered, and said vnto him, Happy art thou Simon Bar Iona: for flesh and blood hath not opened that vnto thee, but my Father which is in heauen.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVI.

RHEM. 3 13. Whom say men.) Christ intending here to take order for the founding, regiment, and stabilitie of his Church after his decease, and to name the person to whom he meant to giue the general charge thereof, would before by interrogatories draw out (and namely out of that one whom he thought to make the chiefe,) the profession of that high & principal Article, That he was the sonne of the liuing God. Which being the ground of the Churches faith, was a necessary qualitie and condition in him that was to bee made Head of the same Church, and the perpetuall keeper of the saide faith, and all other points thereon depending. OF PETERS PRIMACIE.

All

FVLKE. 3 All the Logicians in the world, cannot conclude in lawfull Syllogisme out of the wordes of this Chapiter, that any greater authoritie was granted to Peter, then to euery one of the Apostles: who were euery one foundation stones of the Church, had euery one the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, had euery one as large and ample power of binding and loosing as Peter had: And therefore this surmise of Christ intending to constitute Peter head of the Church, is false and fained. Peter was not head of the Church.

RHEM. 4 14. But they said.) When Christ asked the peoples opinion of him, the Apostles all indifferently made answere: but when he demanded what themselues thought of him, then loe Peter the mouth and head of the whole fellowship answered for all. Chrysho. 55. in Mat.

FVLKE. 4 If Peter were head of the fellowship before hee confessed Christ, as the wordes of Chrysostome doe import, then he was not made head by these wordes that follow: Thou art Peter, &c. But in trueth Chrysostome neuer deferred any Primacie to Peter of auctoritie and dignitie, but of order and promptnesse of faith. For Hom. 38. he giueth the same title of headship to foure Apostles at once. For Philip (saith he) and those two couples that held e the headship of the Apostleship, were of Bethsaida. And of Iohn he saith in Euang. Ioan. Prol. The sonne of thunder is most beloued of Christ, the piller of all the Churches that are in the world, which hath the keyes of the kingdom of heauen. And in 1. Corinth. Hom. 39. Hee sayeth, The dignitie of all the Apostles is equall. Therefore Chrysostome meaneth not any auctoritie ouer the rest of the Apostles, or any other, then euery one of the Apostles had: though they had not all equall gifts, but some excelled in gifts, as Peter, Iames and Iohn: nor the like dispensation in executing of their office, the Primacie of the Circumcision being appointed to Peter, and the Primacie of the Gentiles to Paul. Vertex. Verticem.

RHEM. 5 17. Blessed art thou.) Though some other (as Nathanael Ioan. 1. 49.) seeme to haue before beleeued and professed the same thing for which Peter is here counted blessed, yet it may be plainely gathered by this place, and so S. Hilarie and others thinke, that none before this did further vtter of him, then that he was the Sonne of God by adoption as other Saincts be, though more excellent then other be. For it was of congruitie and Christes special appointment, that hee vpon whom he intended to found his new Church, and whose faith he would make infallible, should haue the preeminence of this first profession of Christes naturall diuinitie, or, that he was by nature the very sonne of God, a thing so farre aboue the capacitie of nature, reason, flesh and blood, and so repugnant to Peters sense and sight of Christes humanitie, flesh, and infirmities, that for the beleefe and publike profession thereof he is counted blessed, as Abraham was for his faith: and hath great promises for himselfe and his posteritie, as the said Patriarche had for him and his seed. According as S. Basil saith, Because he excelled in faith, he receiued the building of the Church committed to him. Hilar. cant. 6. in Mat. & li. 6 de Trinit. Chrysho. 55. in Matt. Basil. li. 2. adu. Eunom.

FVLKE. 5 Chrysostome in deede thinketh, that Nathanael did not acknowledge Christ to be very God. But S. Hilary whom you name first, Can. 6. or 16. hath neuer a word of Nathaniel. But lib. 6. de Trinit. he sayeth: that Nathanael confessed Christ to be the Sonne of God, as Moses and the Prophets had foreshewed, who doubtlesse foreshew his diuinitie. S. Cyrill plainely affirmeth, that he knew him to be God, by knowing his heart. In Ioan. lib. 2. cap. 19. S. Augustine also in Ioan. Tract. 7. iudgeth, the confession of Nathaniel, to be the same that Peter made afterward, when our Lord said vnto him, Blessed art thou Simon, &c. Bede also saith, that Nathaniel considering his diuine Maiestie, confessed him to be the Sonne of God. In Ioan. Ca. 1. Primasius also saith, that Nathaniel hearing but one sentence answered, Thou art the Sonne of God, thou art the King of Israel, which thing, when Peter so long after confessed, he obteined to heare, that he was happy, and that the keyes of the kingdome of heauen were giuen to him: In epist. ad Rom. cap. 10. Thus fiue doctors against one, affirme that Nathaniel confessed as much of Christes diuinitie, as Peter. Therefore, this is another vaine surmise, why Peter should be made the head of the Church. For Christ had long before reueiled his diuinitie vnto his Apostles, and they all (except Iudas) did beleeue it, as well as Peter, who for them all, answereth and confesseth, Ioan. 6. 69. We haue beleeued and knowen, that thou art Christ the Sonne of the liuing God. Where Peter as in this place, Matth. 16. had the primacie of confession, not of honour: As S. Ambrose saith, De Incarnat. Dom. cap 4. That Peter receiued the building of the Church committed vnto him, wee acknowledge, as all the rest of the Apostles did likewise, being the foundation of the Church, as well as hee, Ephes. 2. 20.

RHEM. 6 18. And I say to thee.) Our Lord recompenseth Peter for his confession, giuing him a great reward, in that vpon him he builded his Church. Theophylactus vpon this place.

FVLKE. 6 No doubt, it was a great reward of Peters confession, that the Church is builded vpon him: but this reward, euen as the same faith and confession, was common to him with the rest of the Apostles. Neither doth Theophylactus meane otherwise: therefore hee saith within few wordes after: They which haue obtained the grace to be Bishops, haue power to remit and bind as Peter. For although it was said to Peter alone, I will giue to thee: yet the keyes were granted to all the Apostles.

RHEM. 7 18. Thou art Peter.) Christ (in the first of Iohn v. 42.) foretold and appointed that this man then named Simon, should afterward be called Cephas, or Petrus, that is to say, a Rocke, not then vttering the cause, but now expressing the same, videlicet (as S. Cyril writeth) For that vpon him as vpon a firme rocke his Church should bee builded. Whereunto S. Hilarie agreeing saith, O happy foundation of the Church in the impoſing of thy new name, &c. And yet Christ here doth not so much call him by the name Peter or Rocke, as he doeth affirme him to be a rocke: signifying by that Metaphore, both that he was designed for the foundation and ground worke of his house, which is the Church: and also that he should be of inuincible force, firmitie, durablenes, and stabilitie, to sustaine all the windes, waues, and stormes that might fall or beate against the same. And the Aduersaries obiecting against this, that Christ onely is the Rocke or foundation, wrangle against the very expresse Scriptures and Christes owne wordes, giuing both the name and the thing to this Apostle. And the simple may learne by S. Basils words, how the case standeth. Though (saith he) Peter be a rocke, yet he is not a rocke as Christ is. For Christ is the true vnmoueable rocke of himselfe. Peter is vnmooueable by Christ the rocke. For Iesus doeth communicate and impart his dignities, not voyding himselfe of them, but holding them to himselfe, bestoweth them also vpon others. He is the light, and yet, [2] You are the light: hee is the Priest, and yet he [3] maketh Priests: he is the rocke, and he made a rocke. Cyril. li. 2. c. 12. Com. in Io. Hilar. in hunc locum. Basil. li. de pœnit. [2] Mt. 5 14. [3] Luc. 22, 29.

FVLKE. 7 We confesse with Cyril, Hilary, & Basil, that Peter was a stone, designed for the foundation of the Church, but so, as all the rest of the Apostles are stones vpon which the Church is builded. Apoc. 21. 14. Neither doe we wrangle, when we say that Christ is the onely rocke or foundation, vpon which the Church is builded, for the Apostle hath taught vs so to say, 1. Cor. 3. 11. Yet doe we not exclude the Ministerie and labours of his Apostles, whom also wee acknowledge, to be stones and foundations of his Church: not in respect of their persons, but in regard of the heauenly doctrine, which being committed vnto them, by diligent preaching and writing, they planted in the world; and so became with the Prophets, the foundation of the Church: Iesus Christ still retaining his place, to be the corner stone, in whom the whole building, being coupled together, groweth vp to an holy temple in the Lord. Eph. 2. 20, 21. Therefore as Christ is the rocke, foundation, or corner stone, neither Peter,

Peter, nor al the Apoſtles, are the ſame. In ſola eccleſia catholica datur & accipitur remiſſio peccatorum, quam ipſe ſponſus eius dicit eſſe columbã ſuam, vnam electam ſuam, quam ſuper petram fundauit, cui claues regni cælorũ dedit, cui etiam poteſtatem ligandi ſoluendique conceſſit: ſicut B. Petro veritas ipſa veraciter repromittit dicens: Tu es Petrus &c. in cælo. Ab hac eccleſia quæ claues regni cælorum accepit quiſquis feris eſt, non cæli viam graditur, ſed inferni. Fulg. de remiſſ. pecc. li. 1. cap. 19. But your blaſphemous aduancing Peters primacie, tendeth to make him a whole foundation of the whole Church, which none is but Chriſt. Neither hath hee therein any Vicar or ſubſtitute, but by his diuine power, ſuſtaineth the whole building of the Church himſelfe. So ſayth Chryſoſtome: Hee himſelfe ſuſtaineth and beareth all things, in whom the whole building is coupled together. Whatſoeuer thou ſhalt name, either the roofe, or the walles, or whatſoeuer it bee, hee beareth the whole himſelfe. In Epiſt. ad Epheſ. hom. 6. Therefore that which is proper to the diuine nature of Chriſt, cannot without blaſphemie, bee aſcribed to the miniſterie of man.

RHEM. 8. 18. And vpon this rocke.) Vpon that which he ſayd Peter was, will he build his Church: and therefore by moſt euident ſequele he foundeth his Church vpon Peter. And the Aduerſaries wrangling againſt this, doe againſt their owne conſcience and knowledge: ſpecially ſeeing they knowe and confeſſe that in Chriſts wordes ſpeaking in the Syriake tongue, there was no difference at all betweene Petrus and Petra: yea and that the Greeke wordes alſo though differing in termination, yet ſignifie one thing, to wit, a rocke, or ſtone, as themſelues alſo tranſlate it. Ioa. 1, 42. So that they which profeſſe to follow the Hebrewe or Syriake and the Greeke, and to tranſlate immediatly out of them into Latine or Engliſh, ſhould if they had dealt ſincerely, haue thus turned Chriſts wordes, Thou art a rocke, and vpon this rocke: or, Thou art Peter, and vpon this Peter will I build my Church: For ſo Chriſt ſpake by their owne confeſſion without any difference. Which doth expreſly ſtoppe them of all their euaſions, that Petrus the former word is referred to the Apoſtle: and petra the latter word, either to Chriſt onely, or to Peters faith only: neither the ſayd originall tongues bearing it, nor the ſequele of the wordes, vpon this, ſuffering any relation in the world but to that which was ſpoken of in the ſame ſentence next before: neither the wordes following which are directly addreſſed to Peters perſon, nor Chriſts intention by any meanes admitting it, which was not to make himſelfe or to promiſe himſelfe to bee the head or foundation of the Church. For his father gaue him that dignitie, and he tooke not that honour to himſelfe, nor ſent himſelfe, nor tooke the keyes of heauen of himſelfe, but all of his father. He had his commiſſion the very houre of his incarnation: And though S. Auguſtine ſometimes referre the word (Petra) *to Chriſt in this ſentence (which no doubt hee did becauſe the terminations in Latine are diuers, and becauſe he examined not the nature of the originall wordes which Chriſt ſpake, nor of the Greeke, and therefore the Aduerſaries which otherwiſe flee to the tongues, ſhould not in this caſe allegage him) yet hee neuer denieth but Peter alſo is the Rocke and head of the Church, ſaying that himſelfe expounded it of Peter * in many places, and alleageth alſo S. FVLKE. 8. Many words to little purpoſe. Wee acknowledge that Peter was a ſtone, vpon which ſtone the Church is builded, as the reſt of the Apoſtles were ſtones, vpon whom alſo the Church is builded. And we confeſſe, that Cepha in the Syrian tongue (which language our Sauiour vſed) ſignifieth a ſtone, not only a great main rocke, ſuch as Chriſt is, being the foundation of the whole Church, but alſo of euery little ſtone. And in the Syriake tranſlation 1. Pet. 2. where the Apoſtle calleth all the faithfull liuing ſtones builded vpon the precious ſtone Chriſt, the ſame word is vſed. Therefore, if we ſhould tranſlate ſo preciſely as you ſpeake, out of the Syriake tongue: we ſhould ſay, Thou art a ſtone, and vpon this ſtone I will build my Church. But the Greeke which we tranſlated, making difference of the gender, we haue done right in obſeruing the ſame. And albeit Πέτρος and Πέτρα in Greeke, do ſignifie the ſame thing, yet is Πέτρος proper to the Atticke Dialect, when it ſignifieth a rocke or ſtone. And becauſe it is not like, that the Apoſtle, without cauſe, would in ſo few words varie the Dialect, we muſt needes thinke, that Πέτρος in this place, is taken for the proper name of Peter, and Πέτρα for the common name of a ſtone, whereof Peter had that ſirname. Which whether it bee to be referred to Chriſt whom Peter confeſſed, or to Peters faith, or confeſſion of Chriſt, or to Peter himſelf in reſpect of his doctrine and Apoſtleſhip (as the ancient fathers haue all theſe three relations.) It commeth to one end: that Peter had none other authoritie then the reſt of the Apoſtles, vpon whom the Church was builded, no leſſe then vpon Peter, who alſo beleeued and confeſſed as Peter did, had the keyes of the kingdom of heauen and power, to bind and looſe, as ample as he. Mat. 18. 18. Ioan. 20. 23. But let vs examine the authorities of the ancient fathers, that are quoted for this matter. Firſt S. Auguſtine vnderſtanding the rocke to be Chriſt, is condemned of error, becauſe he followed the Latin terminations of Petrus, and Petra. But is not the ſame difference in the Greeke? or thinke you the difference is made in vaine? Secondly, you ſay, notwithſtanding that his error, hee neuer denieth Peter to be the rocke and head of the Church. But if this text by his laſt iudgement in his Retractations make not for it, how can he hold Peter to be the rocke of the Church in your ſenſe, or head of the ſame? Thirdly, you ſay, he hath expounded it of Peter, in many places, and alleageth S. Ambroſe in an hymne. It is true: but in no place he concludeth thereof, the ſupremacie of Peter, or acknowledgeth Peter to be ſuch a foundation ſtone, as none of the Apoſtles is but he, or that Peter was made head of the Church. Firſt in Pſ. 69. he ſayth, That Peter hauing confeſſed Chriſt to be the Sonne of God, in that confeſſion, was called a ſtone, vpon which the Church ſhould bee builded. Theſe wordes ſet him not an inch aboue the reſt of the Apoſtles. In the ſecond place, De verb. Dom. ſec. Io. ſerm. 49. is no word of the rocke, or building of the Church vpon Peter. Except you meane theſe words, Dicit enim Petro, in quo vno formiat eccleſiam, Petre amas me. Hee ſayth vnto Peter in whom being but one, hee informeth his Church, (as maketh him an example for his Church to follow) Peter doeſt thou loue me. The whole context of that place is plaine, that S. Auguſtine ſpeaketh nothing of Peter, as the foundation of the Church. The other foure places out of the ſermons De ſanctis, are none of Auguſtines authority, no more then thoſe ſermons are. The very ſtile of which argueth them to be of another, and a later writer: yet is one of the ſermons which you quote, aſcribed alſo to S. Ambroſe. But admit they were Auguſtines, yet they make little or nothing for Peters ſupremacie, which is the matter in queſtion, and not whether the Church was builded vpon Peter, which wee doe gladly acknowledge. Ser. 15. he ſaith, that Peter was named the foundation of the Church. So doth he in the Ser. 16. with more ample wordes, but yet expounding himſelfe, hee ſayth, In eadem domo, &c. In the ſame houſe Peter layeth the foundation, Peter planteth, the Lord giueth the increaſe, the Lord ſendeth watering. In theſe words he sheweth, how he is a foundation and vnmoueable stone, conteining the building and burden of the whole christian worke, namely as he preacheth Christ the true rocke, and layeth him for the foundation of the house, while he planteth the faith. In the ser. 26. The author saith, Peter is a rocke or stone vpon which the Church is builded, as he containeth the foundation of faith in the Church. And that is true of euery one of the Apostles, to whome was committed the doctrine of the Gospell which is the foundation of Christian faith. In the 29. sermon, the author according to the Scripture, calleth Peter and Paul both Fundatores Christiani nominis, Founders of the Christian name. Peter among the Iewes, Paul among the Gentiles, and in many other wordes sheweth that Paul was not lesse or inferiour to Peter. Annot. in Iob. cap. 30. there is nothing touching this matter. But beside these, you alleage many other authorities, of which not one except Leo and Gregorie (themselues BB. of Rome) doe fauour the supremacie of Peter, nor they so absolutely, as now you hold it. For to begin with the holy councell of Chalcedon, the fathers in that councel, did so acknowledge the Church to be founded vpon Peter, that they decreed, That the bishop of Constantinople should haue equall authoritie and dignitie with the bishop of Rome, except the primacie of senioritie. Action. 16. & Can. 28. although the bishop of Romes legates were present, and alleaged what they could to hinder the decree. Tertullian saith, Peter was called a stone, or Rocke, for the building of the Church. So hee saith, All the Apostles were stones. Cont. Marcio. lib. 4. Also he saith, The Church was builded vpon Peter, because it was builded by him, that hee first occupied the key, &c. De pudicitia propè finem. By whom also it appeareth, that the Catholikes in his time, challenged authoritie of binding and loosing, to pertaine to the Church by that text. Thou art Peter, &c. where he like an heretike contendeth, that it was spoken personally to Peter, and that Montanus the spirituall man, with his Church, is successor of that authoritie, and not that Church which is a number of bishops. Origen also, Hom. 5. in Exod. calleth Peter a great foundation, and most strong rocke, vpon whom the Church is builded. But how that is to be vnderstood, he sheweth plainely in his Commentary vpon this text. Si autem super vnum illum Petrum, &c. But if thou thinkest, that the vniuersall Church is builded by God, vpon this one Peter: What sayest thou of Iames and Iohn, the children of thunder, or of euery one of the Apostles? Therefore it was truely sayd vnto Peter. Thou art Peter, and vpon this stone I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not preuaile against it: Yet it seemeth to bee sayd to all the Apostles, and to euery perfect faithfull man, because they all as Peter, be stones, and on them all, the Church of Christ is builded, and the gates of hell shall preuaile against none of them that are such. These words of Origen, you see doe plainly ouerthrow the supremacie of Peter, although he cõfesse him to be a stone vpon which the Church is builded. S. Cyprian De vnitate Ecclesiæ, was as great a friend to Peters supremacie as Origen. For thus hee writeth, Quamuis Apostolis omnibus, &c. Although he gaue equall authoritie to all his Apostles after his resurrection, and sayd, As my father sent me, so doe I send you, receiue the holy Ghost, whose sinnes you shall forgiue, they shall be forgiuen, and whose you shall reteine, they shall be reteined, yet to manifest vnitie, the beginning of that vnitie proceeding from one, he disposed by his authoritie. The same thing verely were all the Apostles that Peter was, endued with equall felowship of honour and authoritie, but the beginning proceedeth from one, that the Church might be shewed to bee one. This writeth Cyprian, of the building of the Church vpon one man Peter, shewing that all the Apostles had the same honour and power that Peter had. And therefore Peter had no supremacie of authoritie ouer them, or ouer the whole Church, more then euery one of the Apostles had. That which S. Hilarie writeth vpon this place, Can. 16. of the foundation of the Church, may well be vnderstood of faith. As hee doth most plainely expresse his mind, De Trinit. lib. 2. Vnum igitur hoc est immobile fundamentum, &c. This one foundation is vnmoueable, this is that one happie rocke of faith confessed by the mouth of Peter. Thou art the sonne of the liuing God. And lib. 6. he saith: All the Apostles, for the worthines of their faith acknowledging his diuinitie, receiued the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, and authoritie of binding and loosing in heauen and earth. Wherefore S. Hilarie out of this text, neuer acknowledged the supremacie of Peter, or any greater authority granted vnto Peter, then vnto the rest of the Apostles. The next place, you quote, for Ambr serm. 46. is the very same which you quoted before, and ascribed to August. serm. 16. de sanct. resembling indeede the stile of neither of both. Likewise the serm. 69. is the very same that you cited before, as Augustines serm. 26. de sanct. These places if you had viewed your selues, you would not haue cited for shame vnder the name of two seuerall doctors, and yet they serue you to small purpose, as I haue shewed before. But you know papists are ready to take all draffe, that you will thrust into their mouthes, and neuer examine whence it commeth. With whom so long as you may retaine your credite, you esteeme not what all the learned of the world may iudge of your impudencie. But lest you should seeme to haue nothing of Ambrose, but forged, you quote lib. 6. cap. 9. Luc. where he doeth acknowledge, Peter none otherwise to be the foundation of the Church, then euery faithfull man may be. For he (saith he) that shall ouercome the flesh is a foundation of the Church, and though he cannot be equall to Peter, yet he may follow him. Againe he saith: He denied not to his disciple the grace of this name, that he should be called Peter, because he had soliditie of constancie, and stedfastnesse of faith of the rocke. Endeuour that thou also mayest be a rocke. Therefore seeke the rocke, not without thee, but within thee. Thy ashe is thy rocke, thy minde is thy rocke. Let thy house be builded vpon this rocke, that it may not be beaten with any stormes of spirituall wickednes. Faith is thy rocke, faith is the foundation of the Church. If thou be a rocke, thou shalt be in the Church, because the Church is vpon a rocke, &c. Here is all that can be gathered out of this place for Peters supremacie. You were as well aduised to quote S. Hierome lib. 1. in Iouin. whose words are these. At dicis, super Petrum fundatur Ecclesia: &c. But thou sayest, the Church is founded vpon Peter, although in another place, the very same thing is done vpon all the Apostles, and they all receiue the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, and the strength of the Church is established equally vpon them all. Yet therefore among twelue one is chosen, that the head being appointed, occasion of schisme may be taken away. In these words, Hierome acknowledgeth no greater authoritie of Peter, then of the rest of the Apostles, but onely a primacie of order for auoiding of confusion and dissention, which in euery company of them that be equall in degree, must be obserued. Your second place out of S. Hierome, is in cap. 2. Esa. where he saith of the Church: Hæc domus ædificata est, &c. This house is builded vpon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, who also are mountaines, as followers of Christ. Of this house and Ierusalem, the Psalmist sayeth aloud. They that put their truste in the Lord, shall be as the mount Sion, hee shall not bee mooued for euer which dwelleth in Ierusalem. The mountaines are round about it, and the Lord is round about his people. Wherefore vpon one of those mountaines, Christ foundeth his Church, and sayth vnto him. Thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not preuaile against it. Loe by this testimonie, Peter is one of the mountaines, vpon which the Church is founded: where is Peters supremacie in these wordes? Last of all in cap. 16. Hier. where the text is De cauernis Petrarum, Out of the holes of the rockes, he interpreteth the rockes to be the Apostles, and Apostolike men. For not onely Christ was a rocke, but is was granted also to Peter that he should be called a rocke. Behold Peter is a rocke, as euery Apostle and apostolike man is, by this place of S. Hierome, who also in Mat. cap. 7. sayth, that our Lord founded his Church vpon that rocke, whereon the Wiseman builded his house, of which rocke, Peter the

Apostle

Apoſtle tooke his name. This being common to every wiſe builder, proueth no ſupremacie in Peter, and much leſſer in any that ſhall claime it by ſucceſſion from him, as the Romiſh prelate doth. And therefore expounding this text, he findeth nothing proper to Peter and his ſucceſſors, but common to all biſhops and prieſts. Among whom ſome not vnderſtanding the place, tooke vpon them a piece of Phariſaicall pride, which he there confuteth. And moſt expreſly defending the iudgement of the Church in the whole world, againſt the practiſe of the Romiſh Church, he ſayth: Si authoritas queritur, &c. If authoritie bee ſought, the world is greater then a citie. Whereſoeuer a biſhop be, either at Rome or at Eugubium, either at Conſtantinople or at Rhegium, either at Alexandria or at Tanis, he is of the ſame worthineſſe, and of the ſame prieſtly office. Power of riches, and baſeneſſe of pouertie, maketh not a biſhop higher or lower. But they are all ſucceſſors of the Apoſtles. But thou wilt ſay, howe is the Prieſt at Rome, ordained at the teſtimonie of a Deacon. What doeſt thou bring mee the cuſtome of one citie? The place of Chryſoſtome is anſwered before, ſect. 4. And that Cyrill meaneth Peter to be a rocke, none otherwiſe then all the Apoſtles, his wordes are plaine in Eſa. lib. 4. cap 44. Or. 2. Sed quare eos, &c. But why doe wee call them the foundations of the earth? For Chriſt is the foundation of all, and ſtay of all, keepeth and holdeth all things, to be ſure and ſtedfaſt. In him we are all built, a ſpirituall houſe compacted by his ſpirit, into an holy temple, and habitation of himſelfe: For hee dwelleth in our hearts by faith. The next and neerer foundation to vs, may be vnderſtood, the Apoſtles and Euangeliſts, being eye witneſſes, and made miniſters of the word for confirmation of faith. For when we know that their traditions are to bee followed, we ſhall keepe a right faith, and not ſtrange or erring from Chriſt. For by him it was ſayd to S. Peter (becauſe he had confeſſed the faith in him right ſoundly, and had ſayd, thou art Chriſt the ſonne of the liuing God) Thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke I will build my Church, calling a rocke, as I thinke, the vnmouueable faith of the diſciple. It is alſo ſayd by the Pſalmiſt. Her foundations are vpon the holy hilles: The holy Apoſtles are rightly to bee compared to holy hilles, the knowledge of whom, is eſtabliſhed as a foundation to the poſteritie. To the ſame effect hee writeth Lib. 5. Cap. 54. Epiphanius in Anocrato acknowledgeth Peter to be the firſt or chiefe of the Apoſtles, on whom the Church is builded, but he vnderſtandeth his confeſſion, faith and doctrine, not his perſon: For in him (ſaith he) the faith was eſtabliſhed by all meanes, and all queſtions of faith are decided in him: So likewiſe hæreſ. 59. after hee hath acknowledged him to bee a rocke, vpon which the Church is builded, he addeth the reaſon, and expoundeth how he is a rocke. Becauſe (ſayth hee) he confeſſeth Chriſt to be the ſonne of the liuing God, and heard, vpon this rocke of ſtedfaſt faith, I will build my Church. Now ſeeing this rocke of ſtedfaſt faith was in all the Apoſtles, it is certaine that Epiphanius purpoſed not to make Peter a ſingular foundation ſtone by himſelfe, but ioyntly with all his fellow Apoſtles.

Leo Biſhop of Rome, ſtriuing for the dignitie of his See, as his predeceſſors Zoſimus, Boniface, and Celeſtine had done before, and were diſcouered in the Councell of Africa to haue alleaged a forged Canon of the councell of Nice: is no equall iudge in this caſe. Neither could his allegations any thing preuaile in the Generall councell of Chalcedon, but that the biſhop of Conſtantinople was made his equall, as wee haue ſhewed before. Gregorie was almoſt immediatly before that Boniface, that bought the title of ſupremacie, of Phocas, and the later ſtill the worſe: Yet he propheſied, that Iohn biſhop of Conſtantinople, which firſt challenged the title of Vniuerſall Biſhop, was the forerunner of Antichriſt. Ep. 78. 82. 194. Your laſt witneſſe Theodorer, calleth Peter a principall foundation of the Church that was ſhaken, and confirmed againe by repentance. But the ſame Theodoret ſheweth, that hee was a foundation, in reſpect of his faith and Confeſſion in Cantic. ſaying, Petram appellat fidei pietatem &c. Hee calleth the pietie of faith, and profeſſion of truth a rocke. For when our Lord enquired of his diſciples, whome men ſayd that hee the ſonne of man was, thou ſayeth bleſſed Peter, art Chriſt the Sonne of the liuing God. To whom our Lorde anſwered, ſaying, verely, verely I ſay to thee, thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke I will build my Church. And leſt you ſhould thinke, that Peter in reſpect of his faith and confeſſion was a ſingular foundation. In Pſalm. 47. thus hee writeth: Aedificauit, &c. He hath builded (the Church) as the holy Apoſtle ſayth vpon the foundation of the Apoſtles and Prophets, Ieſus Chriſt being the corner ſtone thereof. And our Lord himſelfe ſayth to bleſſed Peter, and vpon this rocke will I build my Church, and the gates of hell ſhall not preuaile againſt it. Therefore the Prophet hath put this word, well founded, for ſound foundations, that ſhe may remaine vnſhaken and vnmouueable. Theſe words declare euidently, that Peter is a rocke and foundation of the Church, no otherwiſe, then all the Apoſtles are, and hath no ſupremacie of authority ouer the reſt, granted by this text. Thus haue we anſwered to thoſe fathers, that ſay the Church was founded vpon Peter. But becauſe you cannot denie, but that they ſay alſo that the Church is builded vpon Peters faith: you ſay, they meane not faith ſeparated from the man, or in any other man, as wee vnlearnedly take them. What they meant by faith, and how we take them, I haue ſhewed by their owne wordes, which are plaine enough, and neede no great learning to interpret them. They meane, that faith that was in Peter, which hee confeſſed at that time, which he held alwayes after, and which he with the reſt of the Apoſtles preached in the world, as they all held the ſame faith and confeſſion, and therefore were all made foundation ſtones, in reſpect of the faith they taught, vpon which the Church is builded, and receiued the keyes, and authoritie of binding and looſing, in as ample maner as Peter did. But let vs heare what high point of learning you will teach vs. They meane (ſay you) vpon faith, as in him, who here confeſſed that faith. That is (as I take it rudely) vpon Peters faith: Now whether you meane that ſingular faith, that was in Peter only, or the generall faith of the Church, whereof Peters faith was a ſingular Individuum, it paſſeth my ſimple learning to diſcuſſe. If you meane that faith, which was a ſingular accident in Peter onely, who here confeſſeth that faith: it is a ſtrange paradoxe, to ſay, that the vniuerſall Church and faith ſhould bee grounded thereupon: Seeing the foundation and the Church ſhould faile, aſſoone as Peter died. For that ſingular accident, could not deſcend to his ſucceſſours, any more then other accidents to his perſon. If you meane, that generall faith, that was in all the Apoſtles, who all by Peters mouth, confeſſed the ſame, then are they all by Chriſt his anſwere, made foundation ſtones of the Church, as well as Peter. And this is the plaine meaning, according to the euident words of the ancient fathers.

Concil. Aphric. Epiſt. ad Celeſt.

RHEM. 9. 18. Rocke.) The aduerſaries hearing alſo the fathers ſometimes ſay, that Peter had theſe promiſes and prerogatiues, as bearing the perſon of all the Apoſtles, or of the whole Church, denie abſurdly that him ſelfe in perſon had theſe prerogatiues. As though Peter had bene the proctor onely of the Church or of the Apoſtles, confeſſing the faith, and receiuing theſe things in other mens names. Where the holy Doctors meane onely that theſe prerogatiues were not giuen to him for his owne vſe, but for the good of the whole Church, and to be imparted to euery vocation according to the meaſure of their callings: and that theſe great priuiledges giuen to Peter ſhould not decay or die with his perſon, but bee perpetuall in the Church in his ſucceſſours. Therefore S. Hierome to Damaſus taketh this Rocke not to be Peters perſon onely, but his ſucceſſours and his Chaire. I (ſayth hee) following no chiefe or principall but Chriſt, ioyne my ſelfe to the communion of Peters chaire, vpon that rocke I knowe the Church was built. And of that ſame Apoſtolike Chaire

Saint

Psal.cont.part. Donat.to.7. Leo ep.89. Saint Augustine sayth, That same is the Rocke which the proud gates of hell doe not ouercome. And S.Leo, Our Lord would the Sacrament or mysterie of this gift so to pertaine vnto the office of all the Apostles, that hee placed it principally in blessed S. Peter the chiefe of all the Apostles, that from him as from a certaine head hee might powre out his gifts, as it were through the whole body: that he might vnderstand himselfe to be an alien from the diuine mysterie that should presume to reuolt from the soliditie or stedfastnesse of Peter.

FVLKE.9. We denie not that Peter had these prerogatiues himselfe, not as proctor onely for the Apostles, but as a partaker of them together with the rest of the Apostles for the present, and for their successors, the pastors and gouernors of the Church, to the benefit of the whole Church, in all times to come to the end of the world. You must faine opinions that wee hold not, because you can say nothing against that wee hold indeede. The sayings of the doctors are plaine, that the rest of the Apostles were made stones of foundation by Christ immediatly, and not by Peter: receiued the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, and power to binde and loose, not at Peters hands, but immediatly from Christ himselfe, as also the texts are plaine. Matth.18.Ioan.20. But S. Hierome (you say) taketh this rocke not to be Peters person onely, but his successors, and his chaire. Ep.Ad Damas. The same Hierome as we heard before, sayth, The Church is builded vpon all the Apostles, and all Bishops are their successours. In what bishops chaire soeuer, the true doctrine is continued and kept, it is a rocke of the Church, as well as that chaire wherein Damasus sate. Gildas lib.1.vero sacerdoti dicitur, Tu es Petrus, & super &c. But if any bishop of Rome hold not Peters faith, he sitteth not in Peters chaire. And therefore hee that ioyned with Damasus holding Peters faith of the diuinitie of Christ, would not haue ioyned with Liberius, subscribing against the diuinitie of Christ, who also sate at Rome, where Peter perhaps neuer came. But certaine it is he sate not in Peters chaire, no more then the Pharisees sate in Moses chaire, while they held and taught that which Moses did not teach. Hierome therefore following none as principall but Christ, ioyned in fellowship with Damasus, who sitting in Peters chaire, taught as Peter did, that Christ is the eternall Sonne of God. And Augustine in that Psalme against the Donatists, sayth, that the continuance of the same doctrine and vnitie of the Church, euen from Peters seate, is the rocke against which the proud gates of hell shall not preuaile. Not that whosoeuer sitteth in Peters seate, must haue all authoritie that hee will claime. For S. Augustine himselfe in the Aphrican councell, with the rest of the fathers of Aphrica, decreed against the bishops of Rome vsurped authoritie and forgerie. And in the councell of Chalcedon the bishop of Constantinople was made equall to the bishop of Rome, the legates of Leo bishop of Rome, setting themselues against it, but in vaine. Leo therefore (though otherwise a good man) is too partiall for the prerogatiue of his owne see, and therefore his testimonie is no preiudice, against so many ancient fathers, as were of the contrary iudgement before him.

RHEM.10. 18. Build my Church.) The Church or house of Christ was onely promised here to be builded vpon him (which was fulfilled.Io.21,15.) the foundation stone and other pillars or matter being yet in preparing, and Christ himselfe being not onely the supereminent foundation, but also the founder of the same: which is another more excellent qualitie then was in Peter, for which he calleth it my Church: meaning specially the Church of the new Testament, which was not perfectly formed and finished, and distincted from the Synagogue till Whitsunday, though Christ gaue Peter and the rest their commissions actually before his Ascension.

FVLKE.10. Christ had his Church from the beginning of the world builded vpon the foundation of the Prophets, himselfe being the head and corner stone thereof. He speaketh therefore now of the continuance and enlarging thereof among the Gentiles, by the ministerie of his Apostles. And therefore, this is a meete fantasie that his Church was not builded vntill Christ restored Peter to his Apostleship, Ioan.21.15. or that it was not perfectly finished before Whitsunday. You may as well say, it was not distinguished from the Synagogue or Church of the Iewes for many yeeres after, seeing the great multitude of the Iewes that beleeued, were still obseruers of the ceremonies of the law. Act.21.20.

RHEM.11. 18. Gates of hell.) Because the Church is resembled to a house or a citie, the aduersary powers also be likened to a contrary house or towne, the gates whereof, that is to say, the fortitude or impugnation shall neuer preuaile against the citie of Christ. And so by this promise we are assured that no heresies nor other wicked attempts can preuaile against the Church builded vpon Peter, which the Fathers call Peters see and the Romane Church. Count (sayth S. Augustine) the priests from the very see of Peter, and in that order of fathers consider who to whom hath succeeded, that same is the rocke which the proud gates of hell doe not ouercome. And in another place, that is it which hath obtained the top of authoritie, Heretikes in vaine barking round about it. Psal cont part. Donati. De vtil.cred.c. 17.

FVLKE.11. So long as the Romane Church continued in Peters faith and doctrine, it was founded vpon Peter, and not onely vpon Peter, but also vpon the Prophets & Apostles, yea & vpon Christ himselfe: so long the gates of hell preuailed not against it. But none of the ancient fathers affirme, that the Romane Church should alwayes continue in Peters faith. S. Augustine in his Psalme against the Donatists affirmeth, that the continuance of the Church in the same religion, euen from the seate of Peter, is the rocke which the proud gates of hel do not ouercome: Now this count of priests from the seate of Peter might be made as wel in the Church of Antioch as in the Church of Rome, seeing Peter sate at Antioch as well as he did at Rome, and the Patriarch thereof at this day, hath his succession of bishops from Peters seate, as wel as the bishop of Rome. The same count might be taken from other Churches where the Apostles sate, as Tertullian sheweth, De præscriptione. Age iam qui voles, &c. Goe to now thou that wilt exercise curiositie better in the matter of thy saluation, goe through the Apostolike Churches in which the gouernours sit euen still in the very chaires of the Apostles, in which their authenticall epistles are rehearsed sounding the voice, and representing the face of euery one of them. If Achaia be nere thee, thou hast Corinth. If thou bee not farre from Macedonia, thou hast Philippi, thou hast the Thessalonians. If thou canst go into Asia, thou hast Ephesus. If thou lie neere Italie, thou hast Rome, from whence authoritie is at hand for vs also. These wordes of Tertullian declared, that not the Church of Rome onely, but euery Apostolike Church had a sure testimonie of the trueth. And that Aphrica had recourse to Rome, onely for the neerenesse of it. In the second place De vtilitate credendi cap.17. S. Augustine nameth, neither Peters see, nor the Romane Church, but speaketh of the Catholike Church, which euen by the confession of mankinde from Apostolike see, by successions of Bishops, heretikes in vaine barking about it, and partly, by the iudgement of the people themselues, partly by the grauity of Councels, partly also by multitude of miracles, condemning them hath obteyned the toppe of authoritie. He had spoken before of the prouidence of God, which had gathered, builded, and beautified the Church, by the foreshewings of the Prophets, by the humanitie and doctrine of Christ, by the trauels of the Apostles, by the contumelies, crosses, death of the Martyrs, by the commendable way of the Saints, and by conuenient miracles in due time. Whereunto hee addeth the testimonie of mankinde, in the historie of the succession of bishops from the Apostles time, iudgement of the people, authoritie of Councels, and miracles confirming it, and condemning all heretikes. This maketh nothing for the authoritie of the Romane Church or See, aboue all other Sees and Churches. S. Auguſtine himſelfe with other biſhops of his prouince, decreed that no man vnder paine of excommunication, ſhould appeale from the Church of Aphrica, to the Church of Rome, or any other place beyond the ſea. Concil. Aphric. Can. 92. As had bene decreed before, Concil. Mileuit. cap. 22.

RHEM. 12. 19. To thee.) In ſaying, to thee will I giue, it is playne that as hee gaue the keyes to him, ſo hee builded the Church vpon him. So ſayth S. Cyprian, To Peter firſt of all, vpon whom the Lord built the Church, and from whom he inſtituted and ſhewed the beginning of vnitie, did hee giue this power, that that ſhould bee looſed in the heauens, which he had looſed in earth. Whereby appeareth the vaine cauil of our Aduerſaries, which ſay the Church was built vpon Peters Confeſſion onely, common to him and the reſt, and not vpon his perſon more then vpon the reſt. Cyp. epiſt. 73. Greg. li. 4 epiſt. 32. ind 13.

FVLKE. 12. S. Cyprian in the place cited, writeth againſt the Epiſtle of Stephanus Biſhop of Rome, and therefore it carieth no ſhew or likelyhood of trueth, that hee would write any thing, that might make the authoritie of Stephanus irrefragable, againſt himſelfe. For you would haue vs to vnderſtand, Peters and his ſucceſſours authoritie to bee ſo great by this grant, as none of them can erre. But by this place of Cyprian, it is manifeſt, that hee acknowledgeth no more to bee giuen to Peter, then to all the Apoſtles, namely, power to remitte ſinnes. Manifeſtum eſt enim, &c. It is manifeſt where, and by whome remiſſion of ſinnes which is giuen in baptiſme, may be giuen. For firſt our Lord gaue this power vnto Peter, vpon whom he builded his Church, and from whence he inſtituted and ſhewed the beginning of vnitie, that it ſhould be looſed in heauen which he looſed on earth. And after his reſurrection, he ſpeaketh vnto the Apoſtles alſo, ſaying, As my father ſent me, euen ſo doe I ſend you. When he had ſo ſayd, hee breathed and ſayd vnto them, Receiue the Holy Ghoſt: Whoſe ſinnes you ſhall remitte, they ſhall be remitted vnto him, and whoſe you ſhall retaine, they ſhall bee retained. Whereof we vnderſtand, that it is not Lawfull to baptiſe and to giue remiſſion of ſinnes, but for the gouernours in the Church, and them that are eſtabliſhed by the lawe of the Goſpel, and our Lords ordination: and that without the Church, nothing can be either bound or looſed, when there is not any man, that can binde or looſe any thing. Theſe be Cyprians words, which prooue that the Church was not built more vpon Peter, then the reſt. For if you vrge, that he ſayth, the power was giuen firſt to Peter, and the Church was built vpon him, at that time when theſe wordes were ſpoken, you confute your owne note ſect. 10. where you ſay, the Church was onely promiſed to be built vpon him in this place, which was fulfilled. Ioan. 21. 16. If the Church were not built vpon Peter before that time, all the Apoſtles receiued power of remitting and retaining ſinnes, before the Church was built vpon Peter. Ioan. 20. 22. Cyprian therefore meaneth that Chriſt ſpake in the ſingular number, firſt to Peter, that which afterward he ſpake to all the Apoſtles, ſhewing why he ſpake in the ſingular number, not that the Church ſhould be built on Peters perſon, more then on the reſt: but to ſhew the vnitie of the Church beginning of one: as his very words are manifeſt, while he giueth equall authoritie to all gouernours of the Church, as ſucceſſors of the Apoſtles, and maketh ſo little account of Peters ſucceſſor aboue the reſt, that writing expreſly againſt him, he prooueth by this text, equall authoritie of all the gouernours of the Church. Fulg. de remi. pecc. li. 1. c. 24. De eccleſia catholica. Soli enim illi Dominus ligandi ſoluendiq; tribuit poteſtatem, dicens, Tibi dabo claues regni cælorum, &c.

And that the Church is built vpon Peters confeſſion, we haue the ancient fathers teſtimonie, to warrant vs. S. Hilarie De Trinit. lib. 6. ſaith. Super hanc confeſſionis Petram, eccleſia ædificatio eſt. The building of the Church, is vpon this rocke of confeſſion. Againe: Hæc fides, &c. This faith is the foundation of the Church, by this faith the gates of hell are of no power againſt it. This faith hath the keyes of the kingdome of heauen. What this faith ſhall looſe or binde in earth, is bound and looſed in heauen. S. Auguſtine alſo De verbis Dom. in Euang. Mat. Serm. 13. Tu es ergo, &c. Thou art Peter (ſayth hee) and vpon this rocke which thou haſt confeſſed, vpon this rocke which thou haſt acknowledged, ſaying, Thou art Chriſt the Sonne of the liuing God, I will build my Church, that is, vpon my ſelfe the ſonne of the liuing God I will build my Church. I will build thee vpon me, not me vpon thee. The like ſayings he hath in Ioan. Tract. 50. & 124. In epiſt. Ioan. Tract. 10. Alſo Bede vpon this place, ſayth: Metaphorice, &c. It is ſayd vnto him by a Metaphore: Vpon this rocke, that is the Sauiour whom thou haſt confeſſed, the Church is builded, which to his faithfull confeſſion, gaue participation of his name. The authoritie of Gregorie, which you quote in the margent, being a Biſhop of Rome himſelfe, and ſo neere the time of the open reuelation of Antichriſt in the Romiſh See, is partiall in this caſe, and therefore againſt all the Primitiue church, not to be heard. Yet in that place lib 4. epiſt. 33. (for in epiſt. 32. there is neuer a word of Peter) he ioyneth with vs, ſaying, the church was builded vpon Peters confeſſion. In vera fide perſiſtite, &c. Continue in the true faith, and leade your life in the rocke of the Church which is grounded vpon the confeſſion of Peter Prince of the Apoſtles.

RHEM. 13 19. The keyes.) That is, The authoritie or Chaire of doctrine, knowledge, iudgement and diſcretion betweene true and falſe doctrine: the height of gouernment, the power of making lawes, of calling Councels, of the principall voice in them, of confirming them, of making Canons and holeſome decrees, of abrogating the contrary, of ordaining Biſhops and Paſtours, or depoſing and ſuſpending them, finally the power to diſpenſe the goods of the Church both ſpirituall and temporall. Which ſignification of preeminent power and authoritie by the word keyes the Scripture expreſſeth in many places: namely ſpeaking of Chriſt, I haue the keyes of death and Hell, that is, the rule. And againe, I will giue the key of the houſe of Dauid vpon his ſhoulder. Moreouer it ſignifieth that men cannot come into heauen but by him, the keyes ſignifying alſo authoritie to open and ſhut, as it is ſayd Apoc. 3. of Chriſt, Who hath the key of Dauid, he ſhutteth and no man openeth. By which wordes we gather that Peters authoritie is marueilous, to whom the keyes, that is, the power to open and ſhut heauen, is giuen. And therefore by the name of keyes is giuen that ſupereminent power which is called in compariſon of the power granted to other Apoſtles, Biſhops and Paſtours, plenitudo poteſtatis, fulnes of power. Bernard. lib. 2. de conſiderat. c. 8. The dignities of the keyes. Apoc. 1. Eſa. 22. 22.

FVLKE. 13. We acknowledge the authoritie, or chaire of doctrine, knowledge, iudgement, and diſcretion, betweene true and falſe doctrine, to be granted to Peter, and to euery one of the Apoſtles, to whom alſo the keyes were granted. Hilar. de Trin. lib. 6. Hieron. cont. Iou. lib. 1. Gaudentius Brixianus tract. 16. But the reſt that followeth, height of gouernement, power of making lawes, of calling Councels, of the principall voice in them, of confirming them, making and abrogating of Canons, ordaining and depoſing of biſhops, power to diſpenſe the goods of the church, both ſpirituall and temporall, eſpecially to be appropriated to Peter, hath no ground in the text: neither was any ſuch power permitted to the biſhop of Rome, as Peters ſucceſſor, for manie hundred yeeres after Chriſt. Polycarpus would not yeeld to Anicetus biſhop of Rome, in the celebration of Eaſter, as teſtifieth Irenæus, Apud Euſeb. lib. 5. cap. 26. When Victor vſurped authoritie ouer the churches of Aſia, hee was countermanded by the biſhops there. Euſeb lib. 5. cap. 25. and sharpely rebuked and withſtood by Irenæus, and the biſhops in France, Polycrates and the biſhops in Aſia, and others. Not one of the foure firſt Generall councels was called by the bishop of Rome, neither had he principall voice of confirming or making Canons in them. But in the first of Nice, he was made equall with the Patriarch of Alexandria Can. 6. In two other, namely Constantinople and Chalcedon, the Archbishop of Constantinople was made equall in authoritie with him, and in all things, except in seniouritie. Constant. 1. cap. 3. Chalced. can. 28.

In the Councels of Mileuit, and Africane, appeales for any ecclesiasticall cause, were denied vnto the see of Rome. Mileu. can. 22. Aphric. 92. Yea long after that Boniface had bought for money this supereminent authoritie, it was not acknowledged of many Churches, and namely of the church of Rauenna in Italy, for many yeeres after. That keyes in the Scripture, doe many times signifie authoritie, especially when they are applied to our Sauiour Christ, we confesse: but that any such authority as is here expressed, of making lawes, calling Councels, &c. is ment by them, wee vtterly denie, but what authoritie soeuer is vnderstood by them, is common to all the Apostles, and to the whole Church after them, as witnesseth Tertull. Scorpi. adu. Gnost. Hilar. Psal. 52. Aug. De doct. christ. lib. 1. cap. 18. Cont. aduers. leg. & Prophet. lib. 1. cap. 17. in Euang. Ioan. Tr. 5. Fulgent. De fide ad Petrum. cap. 3.

RHEM. 14 19 Whatsoeuer thou shall bind.) All kinde of discipline and punishment of offenders, either spirituall (which directly is here meant) or corporall so farre as it tendeth to the execution of the spirituall charge, is comprised vnder the worde binde. Of which sort bee Excommunications, Anathematismes, Suspensions, Degradations and other Censures and penalties or penances enioyned either in the Sacrament of Confession or in the exterior Courtes of the Church, for punishment both of other crimes, and specially of heresie and rebellion against the Church and the chiefe pastours thereof.

FVLKE. 14. Corporall punishment, either for heresie, or rebellion against the Church, & the pastors therof, belongeth not to the ministerie of the Church, but to the Christian magistrate, who beareth the sword. Rom. 13. 4. which Peter was commanded to put vp. Mat. 26. 52. But vnder this binding, you would cloake, not onely your cruelties practised against the true professors of the Gospel, but also your horrible treasons, rebellions, inuasions, and conspiracies against your lawful Prince and countrey, vnder pretence of execution of the Popes most slanderous and antichristian Bull of deprivation.

RHEM. 15 19 Loose.) To loose, is as the cause and the offenders case requireth, to loose them of any the former bands, and to restore them to the Churches Sacraments and Communion of the faithfull and execution of their function to pardon also enioyned all or part of the penances enioyned, or what debt soeuer man oweth to God or the Church for the satisfaction of his sinnes forgiuen. Which kinde of releasing or loosing is called Indulgence: finally this whatsoeuer, excepteth nothing that is punishable or pardonable by Christ in earth, for he hath committed his power to Peter. And so the validitie of Peters sentence in binding or loosing whatsoeuer, shall by Christs promise be ratified in heauen. Leo Ser. de Transfig. & Ser. 2. in anniuers. assumpt. ad Pontif. Hilar. can. 16 in Matth. Epiph. in Anchorato prope initium. If nowe any temporall power can shew their warrant out of scripture for such soueraigne power, as is here giuen to Peter and consequently to his successors, by these words, whatsoeuer thou shall bind, and by the very keyes, whereby greatest soueraignitie is signified in Gods Church as in his family and houshold, and therefore principally attributed and giuen to Christ who in the scripture is sayd to haue the key of Dauid, but here communicated also vnto Peter, as the name of Rocke: if I say any temporall potestate can shew authority of the like soueraignitie, let him chalenge hardly to be head not onely of one particular, but of the whole vniuersall Church. Esa. 22. Apoc. 3.

FVLKE. 15. Euery one of the Apostles had the same authoritie in loosing which Peter had. Matth. 18. 18. And the Church hath the same power after them. Fulgent. de remiss. peccat. lib. 2. cap. 20. Hinc est quod etiam B. Petro, hoc est, ecclesiæ suæ in terra ligandi solendiq; tribuit potestatem. But as touching satisfaction for sinnes due vnto God, no man can make, but Christ onely. And the minister of the Church cannot pardon any debt due vnto God, but assure the partie penitent of Gods forgiuenesse: And so sayth S. Hierom, writing vpon this very text. Istum locum episcopi, &c. Bishops and Priests not vnderstanding this place, take vpon them somewhat of the pride of the Pharisees, that they thinke, they may either condemne innocents, or loose guilty persons; whereas before God, not the sentence of the Priests, but the life of the persons charged, is enquired of. We reade in Leuiticus of the Lepers: where they are commanded to shew themselues to the Priests, and if they haue the leprosie, then they are made vncleane by the Priest: not that the Priests do make men lepers or vncleane, but in that they haue knowledge of him that is a leper, and him that is not a leper, and can discerne who is cleane, who is vncleane. Therefore as the priest in that case maketh a man cleane or vncleane, so here the bishop and Priest bindeth or looseth: not whether they be guilty or vnguilty, but according to his office, when he hath heard the variety of sinners, he knoweth who is to be bound, and who to be loosed. Thus farre Hierom. Bede also vpon this text, writeth to the same effect. Hæc potestas sine dubio cunctis datur Apostolis, &c. This power without doubt is giuen to all the Apostles, to whom it is said by himselfe after his resurrection generally: receiue the holy Ghost, &c. Also to bishops & priests, and to the whole Church, the same office is committed: although some of them not vnderstanding rightly, thinke they can condemne innocents, & absolue guilty persons, which they cannot do, but going about to deprive themselues of the power granted. As for exercises of repentance prescribed by the Church for satisfaction therof, or other censures of discipline, may be released by the by whom they are inioined, & that kind of releasing was of ancient time, called Indulgence. But it was not allowed to the Bishop of Rome to admit or release (except in his owne Church of Rome) those that were cast out or suspended by other bishops and Churches: as appeareth by many places in S. Cyprians epistles, and namely Ep. 55. ad Cornel. and Ep. 68. ad Clerum & plebem Hispan. That Hilarie and Epiphanius ascribe no greater authoritie to Peter, then to the rest of the Apostles, wee haue shewed before sufficiently. But Leo being a Bishop of Rome, was too partiall in extolling of Peters prerogatiue, and the preeminence of his See of Rome. Therefore he was ouer ruled by the generall Councell of Chalcedon, as we haue declared before. Finally, there is no godly temporall potestate, that chalengeth to be head of the whole Church, or of any particular Church, as Christ is head thereof, neither any of that authority which is here giuen to Peter with the rest of the Apostles and their successours the true ministers of the Church. But onely they chalenge as the highest magistrates, to haue soueraigne authoritie within their dominions, to maintaine true religion by lawes and sentences, and to banish false religion and idolatrie, to punish all offendours, whether they be of the Cleargie or Laitie, and that not onely for offences committed against the second Table, but for idolatrie, periurie, and all crimes that are against the first Table. Which authoritie the godly kings of Iuda, Dauid, Salomon, Ezekias, Iosias, &c. and the Christian Emperours, Constantine, Valentinian, Theodosius and others, did exercise to the glory of God and benefite of his Church. That you say greatest soueraignitie in Gods Church, attributed to Christ, Apoc. 3. is here communicated to Peter, it is such blasphemie, as Peter would haue rent his clothes if he had heard any man attribute so much vnto him. For Christ hath the key of Dauid, as the sonne of Dauid and onely true Messias, which openeth and no man shutteth, and shutteth where no man openeth. This key Peter cannot haue, except he were Christ, for it is proper onely to Christ, but the the keyes of the kingdome of heauen giuen to Peter and the Apoſtles, are keyes of miniſterie in reſpect of Chriſt, whoſe ſtewardes they are, to open and ſhut according to his worde, and not at their owne will and pleaſure.

RHEM. 16 27 Workes.) He ſaith not, to giue euery man according to his mercie (or their faith) but according to their workes. Auguſt. de verb. Apoſt. Ser. 35. And againe, How ſhould our Sauiour reward euery one according to their workes, if there were no free will? Auguſt. lib. 2. cap. 4. de act. cum Fœlic. Manich. Good workes. Free will.

FVLKE 16 Iuſtification by faith. Good workes. Free will. Euery mans workes be the fruites, either of his faith, or of his infidelitie. Good workes are done onely by him that is iuſtified by faith onely. For without the merites of good workes, (ſaith S. Auguſtine) the vngodly man is iuſtified by faith. Againe, Faith goeth before, that workes may follow, neither are there any good workes which doe not follow faith going before them. In Pſ. 67. The Free will that he ſpeaketh of, in that treatiſe againſt the Manichees, he ſheweth how it is to be vnderſtood in his Retractations lib. 1. cap. 22. and lib. 2. cap. 8. Mans will is not euill, by creation of the euill God, as thoſe heretikes blaſphemed, yet hath man ſince his fall, no power to doe any good, but of the grace of God. For free will (ſaith he) auaileth not to any thing but to ſinne, if the way of truth be hidden or vnknowen. De ſpir. & lit. cap. 3.

CHAP. XVII.

As he promiſed, he giueth them a ſight of the glory, vnto which Suffering doth bring. 9 and then againe doth inculcate his Paſſion. 14 A deuill alſo he caſteth out which his Diſciples could not for their inaduertitie and lacke of praying and faſting. 22 being yet in Galilee, he reuealeth more about his Paſſion. 24 and the tribute that the Collectors exacted for all, he payeth for himſelfe and Peter; declaring yet with all his freedome both by word and miracle.

Mr. 9, 2. Luc. 9, 28. 2. Pet. 1, 17. The TRANSFIGVRATION of our Lord, celebrated in the Church the 6. of Aug. THE GOSPEL of the ſayd feaſt, and of the 2. Sunday in Lent: and on the Saterday before.

AND after ſixe dayes IESVS taketh vnto him Peter and Iames and Iohn his brother, and bringeth them into a high mountaine apart:

3 And beholde there ‖ appeared to them Moyſes and Elias talking with him.

4 And Peter anſwering, ſaide to IESVS, Lord, it is good for vs to be here: if thou wilt, let vs make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moyſes, and one for Elias.

5 And as he was yet ſpeaking, beholde a bright cloude ouerſhadowed them. And loe a voice out of the cloud, ſaying, This is my welbeloued ſonne, in whom I am well pleaſed: heare ye him.

6 And the diſciples hearing it, fell vpon their face, and were ſore afraid.

7 And IESVS came and touched them: and he ſaid to them, Ariſe, and feare not.

8 And they lifting vp their eyes, ſawe no bodie, but onely IESVS.

9 And as they deſcended frō the ‖ mount, IESVS commanded them, ſaying, Tell the viſion to no body, till the Sonne of man be riſen from the dead.

10 And his Diſciples asked him, ſaying, what ſay the Scribes then, that * Elias muſt come firſt? Mal. 4, 5.

11 But he anſwering, ſaid to them, ‖ Elias in deede ſhall come, and reſtore all things.

12 And I ſay to you, that Elias is alreadie come, and they did not knowe him, but wrought on him whatſoeuer they would. So alſo the Sonne of man ſhall ſuffer of them.

2 And was transfigured before them, and his face did ſhine as the Sunne, and his clothes were as white as the light.

3 And behold, there appeared vnto them, Moſes, and Elias talking with him.

4 Then anſwered Peter, and ſaid vnto Ieſus, Lord, it is good for vs to be here. If thou wilt, let vs make here three tabernacles: one for thee, and one for Moſes, and one for Elias.

5 * While he yet ſpake, behold, a bright cloud ouerſhadowed them: and behold, there came a voice out of the cloud, which ſaid, This is my beloued ſonne, in whom I am well pleaſed, heare ye him. Mat. 3. 17. 2. pet. 1. 17.

6 And when the diſciples heard theſe things, they fell on their face and were ſore afraid.

7 And Ieſus came and touched them, and ſaid, Ariſe ye, and be not afraid.

8 And when they had lift vp their eyes, they ſaw no man ſaue Ieſus onely.

9 And when they came downe from the mountaine, Ieſus charged them, ſaying, Shew the viſion to no man, vntill the ſonne of man be riſen againe from the dead.

10 And his Diſciples asked him, ſaying, * Why then ſay the Scribes that Elias muſt firſt come? Mala 4. 5. mat. 11. 14. mar. 9. 13.

11 Ieſus anſwered, and ſaid vnto them, Elias truely ſhall firſt come, and reſtore all things:

12 But I ſay vnto you, that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but haue done vnto him whatſoeuer they luſted: Likewiſe ſhall alſo the ſonne of man ſuffer of them.

13 Then the diſciples vnderſtoode that hee ſpake vnto them of Iohn Baptiſt.

14 * And when they were come to the people, there came to him a certaine man kneeling downe to him, and ſaying, Marke 9. 14. luke 9. 37.

15 Lord, haue mercie on my ſonne, for he is lunatike, and ſore vexed: for oft times he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

16 And

16 And I offered him to thy Disciples: and they could not cure him.

17 Iesvs answered and said, O faithlesse and peruerse generation, how long shall I bee with you? How long shal I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 And Iesvs rebuked him, and the deuill went out of him, and the ladde was cured from that houre.

19 Then came the Disciples to Iesvs secretly, and said, ‖ why could not wee cast him out?

20 Iesvs said to them, because of your incredulity. for, amen I say to you, if you haue ‖ faith as a mustard seed, you shall say to this mountaine, Remooue from hence thither: and it shall remooue, and nothing shall be impossible to you.

21 But this kind is not cast out but by ‖ prayer and fasting.

Mr.9,31. Luc.9,44.

22 And * when they conuersed in Galilee, Iesvs said to them, The Sonne of man is to be betrayed into the hands of men:

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall rise againe. And they were stroken sad exceedingly.

24 And when they were come to Capharnaum, there came they that receiued the didrachmes, vnto Peter, & said to him, Your master doth he not pay the ‡ didrachmes?

‡ These didrachmes were peeces of money which they payed for tribute.

25 He saith, Yes. And when he was entered into the house, Iesvs preuented him, saying, what is thy opinion Simon? The kings of the earth of whom receiue they tribute or cense? of their children, or of strangers?

26 And he said, Of strangers. Iesvs said to him, Then the ‖ children are free.

27 But that we may not scandalize them, goe thy wayes to the sea, and cast a hooke: and that fish which shall first come vp, take: and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt finde a ‡ stater: take that, and giue it them for ‖ me and thee.

‡ This stater was a double didrachme, & therefore was paid for two.

16 And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not heale him.

17 Iesus answered, and said, O faithlesse and peruerse nation, how long shall I bee with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 And Iesus rebuked the deuill, and he departed out of him: and the child was healed euen that same time.

19 Then came the Disciples of Iesus secretly, and said, Why could not we cast him out?

*20 Iesus said vnto them, Because of your vnbelief: for verily I say vnto you, * If ye haue faith as a graine of mustard seed, ye shall say vnto this mountaine, Remooue hence to yonder place: and it shall remoone, neither shall any thing be vnpossible vnto you.* Luke 17.6.

21 Howbeit, this kind goeth not out, but by prayer and fasting.

*22 * While they were conuersant in Galilee, Iesus sayd vnto them, It will come to passe, that the sonne of man shall be betraied into the hands of men:* Matt. 20.27. mark.9.31. luk9.44.

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day shall he rise againe. And they were exceeding sory.

24 And when they were come to Capernaum, they that receiued tribute money, came to Peter, and sayd, Doeth not your master pay tribute?

25 He saith, Yes. And when he was come into the house, Iesus preuented him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom doe the kings of the earth take tribute or tall? of their owne children, or of the strangers?

26 Peter saieth vnto him, Of the strangers. Iesus saieth vnto him, Then are the children free.

27 Notwithstanding, least we should offend them, goe thou to the sea, and cast an hooke, and take vp the fish that first commeth vp: and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find a piece of twentie pence: that take, and giue vnto them for me, and thee.

ANNOTATIONS. Chap. 17.

Rhem. 1 — 1 Transfigured.) Marke in this Transfiguration many marueloꝰ points. as, that hee made not onely his owne bodie, which then was mortall, but also the bodies of Moyses and Elias, the one dead, the other to die, for the time as it were immortall: thereby to represent the state and glory of his body and his Saincts in heauen. By which marueloꝰ transfiguring of his bodie, you may the lesse marueil that he can exhibite his bodie vnder the forme of bread and wine or otherwise as he list.

Christ can exhibite his body vnder what forme he list.

Fvlke. 1 — Christ is almightie, and yet he can doe nothing against his owne will, his worde, or his glory. And therefore it is a brute conclusion, Christ could glorifie his passible bodie, ergo he can dishonour his glorious impassible bodie, to bring it within the compasse of a peece of bread, that it may be deuoured of dogs, cats, mice, or (that is worse) to be eaten of wicked men the members of the deuill. Or this: Christ could adde a glorious forme vnto his bodie, ergo he can take from it the essentiall properties of a bodie, and yet keepe it a true body still. Although the question be not so much betweene vs, what Christ is able to doe of his absolute power, as what he will doe according to his word.

The body of Christ. Omnipotencie of Christ.

Rhem. 2 — 3 Appeared Moyses.) By this that Moyses personally appeared and was present with Christ, it is plaine that the Saincts departed may in person be present at the affaires of the liuing. August. de cura pro mort. c. 15. 16. For euen as Angels elsewhere, so here the Saincts also serued our Sauiour: and therefore as Angels both in the old Testament and the new, were present often at the affaires of men, so may Saincts.

Saincts after their death deale with and for the liuing

Fvlke. 2 — If it please God by a speciall dispensation, they may: but the dead (as S. Augustine saieth) by their owne nature, cannot be present at the affaires of the liuing. De cura pro mort. Cap. 16. Againe he saieth: There be the spirits of the dead, where they doe not see what soeuer things are done, or come to passe in this life of men. Cap. 13. Therefore when soeuer they are present, it is by speciall grant of God farre otherwise, then in the vsuall order attributed to euery kind of of creature. Cap 16. Being a matter therefore ſo extraordinarie, and hauing no word to aſſure vs of Gods will, it is meere tempting of God to deſire any helpe by their preſence, as it is, to deſire God to worke miracles, becauſe God can and hath wrought them by his ſaincts. Moreouer the compariſon of Angels and ſaincts departed, is very abſurd: for the ſcripture teſtifieth, that God vſeth the miniſterie of his angels, both extraordinarily and ordinarily, for the protecting of his children. But we haue no teſtimonie of the Scripture, that he vſeth the ſoules of the ſaincts departed, for any ſuch purpoſe.

Saints departed deale not with the liuing. Pſ.34.8. Mat.18.10. Heb.1.14.

RHEM. 3 9 Mount.) This mount (commonly eſteemed and named of the auncient fathers Thabor) S. Peter calleth the holy Mount becauſe of this wonderfull viſion, like as in the old teſtament where God appeared to Moyſes in the buſh and elſewhere to others, he calleth the place of ſuch Apparitions, holy ground, wherby it is euident that by ſuch Apparitions, places are ſanctified, and thereupon groweth a religion and deuotion in the faithfull toward ſuch places, and namely to this Mount Thabor (called in S. Hierome Itabirium Ep.17.) there was great pilgrimage in the Primitiue Church, as vnto all thoſe places which our Sauiour had ſanctified with his preſence and miracles, and therefore to the whole land of promiſe for that cauſe called the holy land. See S. Hiero. in Epitap. Paulæ. & ep.17. & 18. ad Marcellam.

Holy places. 2.Pet.1,18. Exod.3,5. Deuotion and Pilgrimage to the ſame. The holy land.

FVLKE 3 S. Peter calleth the mount Tabor, the holy mount, and the place where God appeared to Moſes, was called holy ground, yet neither Peter nor Moſes, taught men to haue any religion or deuotion toward ſuch places, nor did inſtitute any pilgrimage vnto the ſame: therefore the religion and deuotion you ſpeake of, is but voluntary religion or ſuperſtition. And though ſome good men and women in S. Hieromes time, had affection to ſee thoſe places where Chriſt had been preſent, and wrought his miracles, yet did they not put any religion in ſuch viſiting, or if they did, it was a ſpice of ſuperſtition. S. Hierome himſelfe being greatly commended by Paulinus, that he liued in thoſe holy places, declareth how ſmall religion he had in them: Non Hieroſolymis, &c. It is not commendable to haue bene at Ieruſalem, but to haue liued well at Ieruſalem. And after he hath ſet foorth the praiſe of Anthonie, and many ſwarmes of ſolitarie men that dwelled in the countries neere vnto Iewrie, and yet neuer ſawe Ieruſalem, and ſpecially of Hilarion, which being a man of that countrey, and that liued in that countrey, yet ſawe Ieruſalem but one day in all his life, that rather he might ſeeme to contemne the holy places for their neereneſſe, nor againe ſeeme to ſhut vp the Lord in a certaine place: Laſt of all he ſaieth thus. Quorſum inquies, &c. Thou wilt ſay, to what ende are the matters fetched from ſo long a beginning. Verely, that thou ſhouldeſt not thinke any thing to be wanting to thy faith, becauſe thou haſt not ſeene Ieruſalem, neither that thou ſhouldeſt eſteeme vs to be better, becauſe we enioy our dwelling in this place, but whether here or elſe where, thou haſt equall reward with the Lord according to thy workes.

The holineſſe of places. Pilgrimage.

RHEM. 4 11 Elias ſhall come.) Hee diſtinguiſheth here plainely betweene the Elias in perſon, who is yet to come before the iudgement: and betweene Elias in name, to wit, Iohn the Baptiſt, who is come already in the ſpirit and vertue of Elias. So that it is not Iohn Baptiſt only nor principally of whom Malachie propheciesh (as our Aduerſaries ſay) but Elias alſo himſelfe in perſon.

Elias.

FVLKE. 4 Diuerſe of the ancient fathers are of opinion, that Helias ſhall come in perſon, immediatly before the ſecond comming of Chriſt, as the forerunner of his ſecond comming, and to conuert the remnant of the Iewes. But theſe wordes of Chriſt, doe not proue it. For he ſaith no more, but that the propheſie was, that Helias ſhould come, and that he is already come, as he ſaith of Iohn the Baptiſt. Matth.11.14. he is Helias that was to come. And Origen vpon this place vnderſtandeth no more commings of Elias, but this one of Iohn, that was come in the ſpirit of Helias.

Elias.

RHEM. 5 19 Why could not we.) No marueil if the exorciſts of the Catholike Church which haue power to caſt out deuils, yet doe it not alwayes when they will, and many times with much a doe: whereas the Apoſtles hauing receiued this power [illegible] before ouer vncleane ſpirits, yet here cannot caſt them out. But as for heretikes, they can worke it, not at all but true miracle, to confirme their falſe faith.

True miracles onely in the Cath. Church.

FVLKE. 5 If you meane of Popiſh Exorciſts, neither haue they authority of God, nor power to caſt out deuils. Neither is there any ſuch ordinarie function in the Church of God: that men ſhould haue power, to caſt out deuils, more then to heale all maner of diſeaſes, ſpeake with ſtrange tongues which they neuer learned, or to worke other miracles. Which ſpirituall gifts God gaue in the beginning of the preaching of the Goſpel, to confirme the credite thereof among the Iewes and the Gentiles, but of long time haue ceaſed among Chriſtians, who are to be directed by Gods word, whereunto their profeſſion bindeth them to giue credite, without any farther confirmation of miracles, then that which is teſtified in the holy Scriptures. And where you ſay, that heretikes can neuer caſt our deuils, or worke any true miracles, it is falſe: for our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith, that many ſhall alleage in the laſt day, that they haue propheſied in his Name, caſt out deuils, and wrought many miracles. And God in the law, chargeth his people, not to be caried away by falſe Prophets, though they worke miracles. Deut.13.1.

Popiſh Exorciſts. Miracles.

RHEM. 6 20 Faith as muſtard ſeede.) This is the Catholike faith by which onely all miracles are wrought: yet not of euery one that hath the Catholike faith, but of ſuch as haue a great and forcible faith and withall the gifts of miracles. Theſe are able as here we ſee by Chriſts warrant not onely to doe other wonderfull miracles here ſignified by this one, but alſo this very ſame, that is, to moue mountaines in deede, as S. Paul alſo preſuppoſeth, and S. Hierome affirmeth, and Eccleſiaſticall hiſtories namely telleth of Gregorius Neocæſarienſis, that he moued a mountaine to make room for the foundation of a Church, called therefore and for other his wonderfull miracles, Thaumaturgus. And yet faithleſſe Heretikes laugh at all ſuch things and beleeue them not.

Gregorius Thaumaturgus.

FVLKE 6 We are not bound to beleeue all that, which is reported of Gregorie Thaumaturgus. Yet being teſtified by authours of good credite, and the miracles tending to the confirmation of true faith, we doe not deride them as we doe and iuſtly may, the monſtrous fables of your Popiſh legends, feſtiualles, and other workes of like credite. Where alſo the miracles are fained moſt commonly, for the confirmation of falſe doctrine, and the maintenance of couetouſnes of Prieſts, as in the caſes of Purgatorie, pilgrimage, and ſuch like.

Miracles.

RHEM. 7 21 Prayer and faſting.) The force of faſting and praying: whereby alſo we may ſee that the holy Church in Exorciſmes doeth according to the Scriptures, when ſhe vſeth beſide the name of IESVS, many prayers and much faſting to driue out diuels. becauſe theſe alſo are here required beſide faith.

Prayer and Faſting.

FVLKE. 7 The Popiſh Church abuſeth the ignorant, to make them beleeue they can caſt out deuils, whereas they haue no ſuch power, neither by all their prayers or faſting, can they coniure out one vncleane ſpirit; vnleſſe they haue firſt (as ſorcerers and witches) coniured him in.

Popiſh Exorciſts.

RHEM. 8 26 The children free.) Though Chriſt to auoide ſcandall, payed tribute, yet in deede he ſheweth that both himſelfe ought to be free from ſuch payments (as being the kings ſonne, aſwell by his eternall birth of God the Father, as temporall of Dauid) and alſo his Apoſtles, as being of his familie, and in them their ſucceſſors the whole Clergie, who are called in Scripture the lotte and portion of our Lord. which exemption and priuiledge being grounded vpon the very law of nature it ſelfe,

The priuileges and exemptions of the Clergie.

and therefore practised euen among the Heathen (Gene. 42, 27.) good Christian Princes haue confirmed and ratified by their lawes as the honour of Christ, whose ministers they are, and as it were the kings sonnes. as S. Hierom declareth plainely in these words, We for his honour pay not tribute, and as the kings sonnes, are free from such payments. Hier. vpon this place.

FVLKE. 8 There is no reason by this text, why the Clergie should be exempted from tributes, and obedience vnto Princes, more then all true Christians, which are the children of God, as well as they. Our Sauiour Christ therefore, doth exempt himselfe onely, as the Sonne of God, and King of Israel, not his Apostles & Ministers also. What priuiledges or immunities, Christian kings will grant vnto the Ministers of the Gospel, they may enioy: but to claime an exemption by right, is meere Anabaptisticall. And you doe most shamefully abuse the words of S. Hierome cleane contrary to his meaning For he speaketh not of the Clergie only, but of all Christians: nor sayth, they are free from tribute paying to earthly Princes, but his meaning is, that they render not their tribute, that is, due obedience to Christ the king. His whole sentence is this. Ergo tributa. &c. Christ oweth no tributes, as the kings sonne, but he which had taken vpon him the humilitie of the flesh, ought to fulfill all righteousnesse. And vnhappie are we, which haue our name of Christ, and doe nothing worthy of so great maiestie. He for vs, both bare the crosse, and payed tribute, we for his honour, pay not tribute, and as the kings sonnes, are free from taxes. His meaning is, that we ought to yeeld all subiection, which is signified by tribute vnto him, who endured the crosse for vs, and became subiect to worldly power for vs. Chrysostome vpon the 13. of S. Paul to the Romanes, sayth, that this commandement of subiection, extendeth to all men, both Priests and Monkes, and not onely to secular men, which thing he declareth in the very beginning, when he sayth, Let euery soule be subiect to the higher powers: Although thou be an Apostle, although thou be an Euangelist, although thou be a Prophet, or whatsoeuer thou art: for this subiection hindereth not pietie. In Epist. ad Rom. Hom. 23.

Clergie not exempt from tribute.

RHEM. 9 27. Me and thee.) A great mysterie is hid that he payed not onely for himselfe, but for Peter bearing the person of the Church, and in whom as the chiefe, the rest were conteined. Aug. q. ex no. Test. 9. 75. to 4.

Peters præeminence.

FVLKE. 9 I marueile at your modestie, that you write so sparingly of Peters prerogatiue wherein your author is so ranke, but you know right well, that no man of meane iudgement acknowledgeth that booke of questions to be S. Augustines, or any mans of like antiquitie, learning and iudgement: The paiment of tribute for Peter, is a signe of subiection, not of superioritie. But he that boasteth himselfe to sit in Peters chaire, will pay no tribute, but rather exact tribute of Kings and Princes.

Peters prerogatiue.

CHAP. XVIII.

To his Disciples he preacheth against ambition the mother of Schisme: 7 foretelling both the author whosoeuer he be, and also his followers, of their woe to come. 10 and shewing on the contrary side, how precious Christian soules are to their Angels, to the Sonne of man, and to his Father. 15 charging vs therefore to forgiue our brethren, when also we haue iust cause against them, be it neuer so often, and to labour their saluation by all meanes possible.

27 Then the lorde of that seruant moued with pitie, loosed him, and forgaue him the debt,

28 But

28 And when that seruant was gone forth, he found one of his fellow-seruants, that did ow him an hundred pence: and laying hands vpon him thratled him, saying, Repay that thou owest.

29 And his felow-seruant falling downe, besought him saying, Haue patience toward me, and I will repay thee all.

30 And hee would not: but went his way, and cast him into prison, till he repayed the debt.

31 And his fellow-seruants seeing what was done, were very sorie, and they came, and told their lord all that was done.

32 Then his lord called him: and he said vnto him, Thou vngratious seruant, I forgaue thee all the debt because thou besoughtest me: oughtest not thou therefore also to haue mercie vpon thy felow-seruant, euen as I had mercie vpon thee?

33 And his lord being angry deliuered him to the tormenters, vntill he repayed all the debt.

34 So also shall my heauenly father doe to you, if you forgiue not euery one his brother from your hearts.

28 But the same seruant went out, and found one of his fellowes which ought him an hundred pence: and when he had layd hands on him, he tooke him by the throte, saying, Pay me that thou owest.

29 And his fellow fell downe at his feete, and besought him, saying, Haue patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellowes sawe what was done, they were very sory, & came, and told vnto their lord all that was done.

32 Then his lord, after that he had called him, said vnto him, O thou vngratious seruant, I forgaue thee all that debt when thou desiredst me:

33 Shouldest not thou also haue had compassion on thy fellowe, euen as I had pitie on thee?

34 And his lord was wroth, and deliuered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due vnto him.

35 So likewise shall my heauenly father doe also vnto you, if ye from your hearts forgiue not euery one his brother their trespasses.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVIII.

RHEM. 1 1 Who is the greater.) The occasion of this question and of their contention for Superioritie among the rest of their infirmities which they had before the comming of the holy Ghost, was (as certaine holy Doctors write) vpon emulation toward Peter, whom only they saw preferred before the rest in the payment of the tribute, by these wordes of our Sauiour, Giue it them for me and thee. Chrys. ho. 59. Hiero. in Mat. Vpon this place. C.17.v.27.

FVLKE. 1 Chrysostome noteth it as their error and infirmitie, that they imagined Peter, to be preferred before them, aswell in payment of the tribute, as in other matters. Likewise S. Hierome vpon this place, sayth: Ex equalitate precij, &c. By the equalitie of the price, they thought Peter was preferred before all the Apostles, which in payment of tribute, was matched with the Lord. Therefore they aske, who is greater in the kingdome of heauen, and Iesus seeing their thoughts, and vnderstanding the causes of their error, will heale the desire of glory, with the contention of humilitie. But by S. Marke it appeareth, that this contention beganne in the way, before they came into the house, where Christ appointed Peter to pay tribute for them both, therefore not vpon that occasion. Mark.9.34. Peters preferment in paying tribute.

RHEM. 7 Scandals.) The simple be most annoyed by taking scandall of their preachers, Priests, and Elders ill life: and great damnation is to the guides of the people whether they be temporall or spirituall, but specially to the spirituall, if by their ill example and slanderous life the people be scandalized.

8 Hand, foote, eye.) By these parts of the body so necessarie and profitable for a man, is signified, that whatsoeuer is neerest and deerest to vs, wife, children, friends, riches, all are to be contemned and forsaken for to saue our soule.

RHEM. 2 10 Their Angels.) A great dignitie and a marueilous benefite that euery one hath from his Natiuitie an Angel for his custodie and Patronage against the wicked before the face of God. Hier. vpon this place. And the thing is so plaine, that Caluin dare not deny it, and yet he will needes doubt of it, lib.1.Inst. c.14 sect.7. Protection of Angels.

FVLKE. 2 Caluine doubteth not of the protection of Gods Angels, but whether euery one hath a seuerall Angel, appointed for his custodie from his natiuitie, which no place of Scripture doth proue. But sometime one Angel, hath the charge of a great many men, sometime many Angels are ready for the defence of one man, & all the Angels with one consent, doe waite for our preseruation, as in the place noted you may see at large, the Scriptures cited. Neither doth Hierom meane, that euery one hath his seuerall Angel, for he alleageth for proofe, the Angel of Ephesus, Thiatyra, Philadelphia, and the rest: where if the word Angel were to be vnderstoode of heauenly spirits, yet it is one Angel, for the Church of a whole citie, and not for euery person. Angels. Apoc.2.& 3.

RHEM. 17 Not heare the Church.) Not onely Heretikes, but any other obstinate offender that will not be iudged nor ruled by the Church, may be excommunicated, and so made as an Heathen or Publican was to the Iewes, by the discipline of the same, casting him out of the fellowship of Catholikes. which excommunication is a greater punishment then if he were executed by sword, fyre, and wild beasts. Aug. cont. Aduuerſ. leg. li.2.c.17. And against he saith, He is more straitly and pitifully bound by the Churches Keies, then with any iron or adamantine manacles or fetters in the world. August. ibidem. Disobedience to the Church. Excommunication.

17 Heathen.) Heretikes therefore because they will not leaue the Church, be no better nor no other wise to be esteemed of Catholikes, then Heathen men and Publicanes were esteemed among the Iewes.

RHEM. 3 18 You shall binde.) As before he gaue this power of binding and loosing ouer the whole, first of all and principally to Peter, vpon whom he builded his Church: so here not onely to Peter, and in him to his successors, but also to the other Apostles, and in them to their successors, euery one in their charge. Hieron. lib.1.c.14 aduersus Iouin. and Epist. ad Heliod. Cyprian. de Vnit. Eccl. nu.1. Power to binde and loose. Mat.c.16.19.

FVLKE 3 Vpon the 16. chapter sect. 19. you said, the building was onely promised, and consequently the power was not giuen, but onely promised: yet here forgetting your selfe, you say, he gaue before this power to Peter ouer the whole, and now to all the Apostles, and their successors, quoting Hierom, and Cyprian, of which neither of both sayth, that he gaue Peter power ouer the whole, but equall power to all his Apostles, as is declared in the 16. chap. lib.1.cont. Iouin. Cypr. de vnit. Eccles. cap.3. S. Hierom in ep. ad Heliod. sayth no more, touching this matter, but that Peters authoritie all Clerkes succeeding the degree of the Apostles, haue the keyes of the kingdome of heauen. Of which I may inferre, that all the Apostles, had the keyes, immediatly from Christ, and not from Peter, though in Peter they were giuen to all a like: as some of the ancient Fathers doe write.

18 Shall loose.) Our Lord giueth no lesse right and authoritie to the Church to loose, then to binde, as S. Ambrose writeth against the Nouatians, who confessed that the Priests had power to binde, but not to loose.

RHEM. 20 In the middes of them.) Not all assemblies may chalenge the presence of Christ, but onely such as be gathered together in the vnitie of the Church, and therefore no conuenticles of Heretikes directly gathering against the Church, are warranted by this place. Cypr. de vnit. Eccles. nu. 7. 8. Li. 1. de pœnit. c. 2. Catholike assemblies.

22 Seuentie times seuen.) There must be no end of forgiuing them that be penitent, either in the Sacrament by absolution, or one man an other their offences.

CHAP. XIX.

THE fourth part of this Gospel, Christs comming into Iury toward his Passion. Mr. 10, 1.

He answereth the tempting Pharisees, that the case of a man with his wife shall be (as in the first institution it was) vtterly indissoluble, though for one cause he may be diuorced, 10 And th reupon to his Disciples he highly commendeth Single life for heauen. 13 He will haue children come vnto him. 16 He sheweth what is to be done to enter into life euerlasting: 20 What also, for a rich man to be perfect: 27 As also what passing reward they shall haue which follow that his counsell of perfection: 29 yea though it be but in some one peece.

AND it came to passe, when IESVS had ended these wordes, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coastes of Iewrie beyond Iordan,

2 And great multitudes followed him: and he cured them there.

THE GOSPEL for Mariage. And for S. Agatha Febr. 5.

3 And there came to him the Pharisees tempting him, and saying, Is it lawfull for a man to dimisse his wife, for euery cause?

† make man. Gen. 1, 27.

4 Who answering, said to them, Haue ye not read, that he which did † make from the beginning, made them male and female? And he said.

Gen. 2, 24.

5 For this cause, man shall leaue father and mother, and shal cleaue to his wife: and they two shal be one flesh.

6 Therefore now they are not two, but one flesh. That therefore which God hath ioyned together, let ‖ not man separate.

Deut. 24, 1.

7 They say to him, why then * did Moyses commaund to giue a bill of diuorce, and to dimisse her?

8 He saith to them, Because Moyses for the hardnesse of your heart permitted you to dimisse your wiues: but from the beginning it was not so.

Mt. 5, 32. Mr. 10, 11. Luc. 16, 18. 1. Cor. 7, 11.

9 And I say to you, that *whosoeuer shall dimisse his wife, ‖ but for fornication, and shal mary an other, doth commit aduoutrie: and he that shall marry her that is dimissed, committeth aduoutrie.

10 His disciples say vnto him, If the case of a man with his wife be so, it is not expedient to mary.

‡ χωροῦσι. capiunt.

11 Who said to them, ‖ Not all ‡ take this word, but they to whom it is giuen.

12 For there are Eunuches which were borne so frō their mothers wombe: and there are Eunuches which were made by men: and there are Eunuches, which haue ‖ gelded themselues for the kingdome of heauen. ‖ He that can take, let him take.

Mr. 10, 13. Luc. 18, 15.

13 Then * were litle children presented to him, that he should ‖ impose hands vpon them and pray. And the disciples rebuked them.

14 But IESVS sayd to them, Suffer the litle children, and stay them not from comming

*AND it came to passe, * that when Iesus had finished these sayings, he gate him from Galilee, and came into the coastes of Iurie beyond Iordane:* Marke 10. 1.

2 And great multitudes followed him, and he healed them there.

3 The Pharisees also came vnto him, tempting him, and saying vnto him, Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wife for euery cause?

*4 He answered, and saide vnto them, Haue ye not read * that he which created at the beginning, made them male and female?* Gen. 1. 27.

*5 And said, * For this cause shall a man leaue his father and his mother, and shall be knit to his wife: and they twaine shalbe one flesh.* Gen. 2. 24. ephe. 5. 31. 1. cor. 6. 16.

6 Wherefore they are no more twaine, but one flesh. Let not man therefore put a sunder, that which God hath coupled together.

*7 They say vnto him, Why did * Moses then command to giue a writing of diuorcement, and to put her away?* Deut. 24. 1.

8 He sayd vnto them, Moses, because of the hardnesse of your hearts, suffered you to put away your wiues: but from the beginning it was not so.

*9 * I say vnto you, Whosoeuer shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marrie another, committeth adulterie: and who so marrieth her which is diuorced, doth commit adulterie.* Matth. 5. 32. mar. 10. 11. luke 6. 18. 1. cor. 7. 11.

10 His disciples say vnto him, If the case of the man be so with his wife, then is it not good to marrie.

11 But he sayd vnto them, All men cannot receiue this saying, saue they to whom it is giuen.

12 For there are some chaste, which were so borne out of their mothers wombe: and there are some chaste, which were made chaste of men: & there bee chaste, which haue made them selues chaste for the kingdome of heauens sake. He that is able to receiue it, let him receiue it.

*13 * Then were there brought vnto him young children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the Disciples rebuked them,* Luke 10. 13. luke 18. 15.

14 But Iesus said vnto them, Suffer the yong children, and forbid them not to come vnto me:

ming vnto me: for the kingdome of heauen is for such,

15 And when he had impoſed hands vpon them, he departed from thence.

Mr.10,17. Lnc.18,18. 16 And * beholde one came and sayd to him, Good Maister, what good shall I doe that I may haue life euerlasting?

17 Who sayd to him, what askest thou me of good? One is good, God. But ‡ if thou wilt enter into life, keepe the commaundements.

18 He saith to him, which? And IESVS said, Thou shalt not murder, Thou shalt not commit aduoutrie, Thou shalt not steale, Thou shalt not beare false witnesse, Exo.20,13. 19 Honour thy father and thy mother, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe.

*Leu.19,18.

20 The yong man saith to him, All these haue I kept from my youth: what is yet wanting vnto me?

21 IESVS said to him, ‖ If thou wilt be perfect, goe, sell the things that thou hast, and giue to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen: and come, ‖ follow me.

22 And when the yong man had heard this word, he went away sad: for he had many possessions.

23 And IESVS sayd to his disciples, Amen I say to you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdome of heauen.

24 And againe I say to you, it is easier for a camel to passe through the eye of a needle, ‡ then for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of heauen.

‡ S. Marke expoundeth it thus, rich men trusting in their riches. c.10.24.

25 And when they had heard this, the disciples matueled very much, saying, who then can be saued?

26 And IESVS beholding, said to them. with men this is impossible: but with God ‖ all things are possible.

THE GOSPEL vpon the Conuersion of S. Paul Ian. 25. And in a votiue Masse of S S. Peter and Paul, and for holy Abbots.

27 Then Peter answering, saide to him, Behold we haue ‖ left all things, and haue followed thee: ‖ what therefore shall we haue?

28 And IESVS said to them, Amen I say to you, that you which haue folowed me, in the regeneration, when the Sonne of man shall sit in the seate of his maiestie, you ‖ also shall sit vpō twelue seats, iudging the twelue tribes of Israel.

29 And euery one that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or ‡ wife, or children, or landes for my names sake: shall receiue an hundred fold, and shal possesse life euerlasting.

Mar.10,31. Luc.13,30. 30 And * many shall be first, that are last: and last, that are first.

for to such belongeth the kingdome of heauen.

15 And when he had put his hands on them, he departed thence.

Marke 10.18. luke 18.18. *16 * And behold, one came, and said vnto him, Good master, what good thing shal I do, that I may haue eternall life?*

17 He saide vnto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, and that is God: But if thou wilt enter into that life, keepe the commandements.

Exod.20.13. *18 He saith vnto him, Which? Iesus saide, * Thou shalt doe no murder, Thou shalt not commit adulterie, Thou shalt not steale, Thou shalt not beare false witnesse,* 19 Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe.

20 The yong man sayeth vnto him, All these things haue I kept from my youth vp: what lacke I yet?

21 Iesus sayde vnto him, If thou wilt be perfect, goe and sell thy substance, and giue to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen: and come and follow me.

22 But when the yong man heard that saying, he went away sory: for he had great possessions.

23 Then Iesus sayd vnto his disciples, Verily I say vnto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdome of heauen.

24 And againe I say vnto you, It is easier for a Camell to goe thorowe the eye of a needle, then for the rich to enter into the kingdome of God.

25 When the disciples heard this, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saued?

26 But Iesus behelde them, and saide vnto them, With men this is vnpossible, but with God all things are possible.

Marke 10.28. luke 18.28. *27 * Then answered Peter, and sayd vnto him, Beholde, we haue forsaken all, and followed thee, what shall we haue therefore?*

*28 Iesus saide vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, that when the Sonne of man shall sit in the throne of his Maiestie, yee that haue followed mee in the regeneration, shall * sit also vpon twelue seates, iudging the twelue tribes of Israel.* Luke 22.30.

29 And euery one that hath forsaken housen, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my names sake shal receiue an hundred fold, and shall inherite euerlasting life.

Mar.10.31. luke 13.30. *30 * But many that are first, shalbe last, and the last shalbe first.*

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. I 17 If thou wilt enter.) I see not (saith S. Augustine) why Christ should say, If thou wilt haue life euerlasting, keepe the commandements: if without obseruing of them, by onely faith one might be saued. Aug. de fid. & op. c. 15.

FVLKE. I S. Augustine writeth against them which thought they might be iustified by a dead faith, which is voide of good workes, which auaileth no man, but to his greater condemnation. We teach according to the Scripture, that a man is iustified by faith without the workes of the law, yet by such a faith, as worketh by loue, and is fruitfull of good works. Although our Sauiour Christ in this place doth not shew how men attaine to eternal life, Iustification by faith onely.

life, but what perfect obſeruation of Gods Lawe is required of them that looke to be iuſtified by the workes of the lawe, as the Scribes and Phariſees did. Neither that men are able to fulfill the law, but by the righteouſneſſe of faith, by which S. Auguſtine ſaith, theſe things of the lawe which could not be fulfilled, are fulfilled by faith, Expoſit.quart.propoſ.in ep.ad Rom.Num.19.

RHEM. 2 29 Wife, or children.) Hereof is gathered that the Apoſtles among other things left their wiues alſo to followe Chriſt. Hiero.li.1.aduerſ.Iouin.

FVLKE. 2 The Apoſtles left their wiues, none otherwiſe then they left their houſes, and all other things here named, which euery man ought to leaue, and to follow Chriſt, if they be an hinderance to their calling as Chriſtians, or as the miniſters of the Church. See the notes vpon the eight Chapter, ſect. 3. The Apoſtles wiues.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. 3 6 Not man ſeparate.) This inſeparabilitie betwixt man and wife riſeth of that, that wedlocke is a ſacrament. Aug.li.2.de pec. origine c.34. to 7. De nupt. & concupiſ. lib.1.c.10.

FVLKE 3 S. Auguſtine vſeth the word ſacramentum, generally, for euery holy myſterie, and we confeſſe there is a great myſterie in marriage, yet is matrimony no ſacrament of the new teſtament (as Baptiſme, and the Lords ſupper are) being inſtituted in paradiſe. Therefore in the ſecond place by you quoted, he ſaith: Quoddam ſacramentum, a certaine holy myſterie of mariage, is commended to the faithfull. See Chap.1 ſect.2. and præfat.ſect.53. Mariage is no ſacrament.

RHEM. 4 9 But for fornication.) For aduoutrie one may dimiſſe an other, Mat.5. But neither partie can marrie againe for any cauſe during life. Aug.li.11.de adult. coniug.c.21.22.24. for the which vnlawfull act of marrying againe, Fabiola that noble matrone of Rome, albeit ſhe was the innocent part, did publike penance, as S. Hierome writeth in her high commendation therefore. And in S.Paul Rom.7 it is plaine, that ſhe which is with another man, her husband yet liuing, ſhall be called an aduoutereſſe: contrary to the doctrine of our aduerſaries. Mariage after diuorce vnlawfull. In Epitaph. Fabiolæ.

FVLKE. 4 The exception of fornication, leaueth mariage after diuorce, as free as it was vnder the law. And although Fabiola of her owne accord, did penance after the death of her ſecond husband, yet was ſhe not compelled to forſake her ſecond husband, nor her mariage iudged vnlawful by the Church of Rome in that time. And Hierome, although he confeſſe it a fault that ſhe maried againe, yet he excuſeth it by neceſſitie of her infirmitie, which could not liue vnmaried, and therefore citeth the ſaying of the Apoſtle, 1.Cor.7. It is better to marie, then to burne. Neither doth the ſaying of S.Paul, Rom.7. hinder the lawfulneſſe of mariage after diuorce: for he is no longer an husband, which is lawfully diuorced for adulterie. See Matth.5.ſect.8. Mariage after diuorce.

RHEM. 5 11 Not all take.) Whoſoeuer haue not this gift giuen them, it is either for that they will not haue it, or for that they fulfill not that which they will: and they that haue this gift or attaine to this word, haue it of God and their owne freewill. Aug.li.de grat.& lib.arbit.c.4. So that it is euident no man is excluded from this gift, but (as Origen here ſaith) it is giuen to all that aske for it: contrary to our aduerſaries that ſay it is impoſſible, and that for excuſe of breaking their vowes, wickedly ſay, they haue not the gift. Orig.tract 7. in Mat.

FVLKE. 5 You peruert the wordes of S.Auguſtine, cleane contrary to his meaning, Omnes non capiunt, &c. All men take not this ſaying, but they to whom it is giuen, (Quibus enim non eſt datum, aut nolunt, aut non implent quod volunt) for they to whom it is not graunted, either will not, or els fulfill not that which they will, but they to whom it is giuen doe both will it, that they doe fulfill it. S.Auguſtines meaning is, that both the will to be chaſt, and the power to fulfill that will, is of the gift of God, and not in the power of man. Yet is not the will of man enforced, but either changed into better by Gods grace, or els left ſubiect to ſinful concupiſcence, where the grace of God maketh not free. And this is the true meaning of S.Auguſtine, for as he ſaith in Pſal.147. Paucorum eſt virginitas in carne, omnium debet eſſe in corde. Virginitie in the fleſh, is but of a fewe, but in the heart it ought to be of all men. But Origen ſaith, it is giuen to all that aske for it: indeede he ſeemeth to ſay ſo much, but yet in the end he addeth: Vtile eſt autem ſcire quid debeat petere quis, vt mereatur accipere. It is profitable to know what a man ought to aske, that he may be meete to receiue. Signifying, that God giueth all things that we pray for, if they be expedient for his glorie and our ſaluation. And S.Hierome vpon this place is very plaine, although he acknowledge virginitie to be the gift of God, in them that pray for it, that labour for it, yet he confeſſeth it is not in euery mans power, ſaying: Chriſt addeth, he that can take it, let him take it, that euery man may conſider his owne ſtrength: whether he be able to fulfill the precepts of virginitie and chaſtitie: for chaſtitie of her ſelfe is pleaſant, and alluring euery man vnto it, but our ſtrength muſt be conſidered that he may take it, which can take it. Origen himſelfe Tr.24.in Matth. inueigheth againſt them, which not hauing regard to mens ſtrength, forbid them to marie. Heſych. lib.1. cap.3. Etſi non vales virginitatem quiſpiam conſequi; in caſto autem coniugio conuerſetur, veniam percipit à Domino qui dixit: Non omnes capiunt verbum quando de virginitate exponebat. Virginitie not in euery mans power.

RHEM. 6 12 Gelded themſelues.) They geld themſelues for the kingdome of heauen which vow chaſtitie. Aug. de virginitate.c.24. which proueth thoſe kind of vowes to be both lawfull, and alſo more meritorious, and more ſure to obtaine life euerlaſting, then the ſtate of wedlocke, contrary to our Aduer. in all reſpects. Vow of chaſtitie.

FVLKE 6 They that are aſſured of the gift of chaſtitie vnto their liues ende, may lawfully vow or determine of it: but without ſuch aſſurance, no man can vow continence lawfully. But where the vow is lawfull, it followeth not that it is meritorious, and more ſure to obtaine euerlaſting life, then the ſtate of wedlocke. For eternall life is the free gift of God in Ieſus Chriſt, not the merite of workes, whereof the married man by faith, may be as ſure as the virgine. Vow of continencie. Rom.6 23. Eph.2.8.& 9. Merite.

RHEM. 7 12 He that can.) It is not ſaid of the precepts, keepe them who can, for they be neceſſarie vnder paine of damnation to be kept: but of Counſels onely (as of virginitie, abſtaining from fleſh and wine, and of giuing all a mans goods away to the poore) it is ſaid, He that can attaine to it, let him doe it: which is counſell onely, not a commandement. Contrary to our Aduer. that ſay, there are no Counſels, but onely precepts. Counſels not precepts. Auſt.ſer.6.de temp.

FVLKE. 7 In the fift ſection you hold that virginitie is poſſible for all men. Whereupon it ſhould follow that this is an abſolute precept to all men. For the word is not He that will, but he that can.

The Lawe of God requireth vs to loue him with all our ſoule, with all our ſtrength, &c. Therefore wherein ſoeuer we are able to ſhewe our loue to God, wee are commanded to doe it. But where there is no generall precept to all men, as to abſtaine from mariage, there is a ſpeciall reſpect to be had, what euery man by Gods grace is able to doe, and what is moſt for the glorie of God, and that euery man when he knoweth, is bound to doe. In the 6.ſerm.of Aug.de tempore, is neuer a word of precepts or counſels. Precepts and Counſels.

RHEM. 8 13 Impoſe.) They knew the valour of Chriſts bleſſing, and therefore brought their children to him, as good Chriſtian people haue at all times brought their children to Biſhops to haue their bleſſing. See Annotation before Chap.10,13. And of Religious mens bleſſing ſee Ruffin. lib.2.c.8.hi. S.Hierom in Epitah. Paulæ. c.7.& in vit.Hilarionis. Theodoret. in hiſtoria ſanctorum Patrum num.8. Biſhops and Religious mens bleſſing.

FVLKE. 8 There is great difference betweene the blessing of Christ, and the blessing of godly men. That good Christians at all times haue brought their children to haue the Bishops blessing, you haue shewed nothing; chap. 10. and as litle in this that followeth. First Ruffine nameth diuers holy men, at whose hands he himselfe had bene blessed. S. Hierome hath nothing, but of the prayers of godly men. Theodoret saith, that being a yong man, he went with his mother, into the place where the holy man Aphrates remained, and was partaker of the blessing of his holy hand, which afterward he expoundeth to be prayers. And who findeth fault with prayers of holy men, whether they vse the ceremonie of laying on, or holding vp the hands or no? It is the vaine superstition of popish Bishops blessing, that we contemne, not the blessing or prayers of godly men. Bishops blessing. Slander.

RHEM. 9 21 If thou wilt be perfect.) Loe, he maketh a plaine difference betweene keeping the commandements, which is necessarie for euery man: and being perfect, which he counselleth onely to them that will. And this is the state of great perfection which Religious men doe professe, according to Christes counsell here, leauing all things and following him. The religious state of perfection.

FVLKE. 9 Christ neither commandeth, nor counselleth this perfection to all men, but only to this one, to discouer his hypocrisie, and vaine confidence that he had in himselfe, as though he had kept the lawe, when he was farre from it. Leo: Hæc est perfectorum vera iustitia, vt nunquam præsumant se esse perfectos. Serm. 2. de quadrag. And yet Hilarie calleth this a commandement of leauing the world. Chrysostome vpon this text, denieth that there is such perfection in contemning money, as in abnegation of a mans selfe, in taking vp the crosse, and following Christ, which is commanded to all Christians. Gaudentius Brixi. Cum se ille omnia custodisse iactaret, extorqueri tamen ab eo ad præsens vnum mandatum non potuit, vt misericors esset in pauperes, & thesaurum suum transferret ad cœlum. Epist. ad Germinium. Paulinus who sold all that he had, both his owne goods and his wiues, and gaue it to the poore, yet forsooke not his wife Therasia, and counteth it greater perfection for a man to forsake his goods in affection when he reteineth them in possession. Acknowleding that the leauing of his goods was but the beginning, not the perfection, which our Sauiour speaketh of. Nos autem non patiamur inuidiam perfectionis: sed potius accipiamus veniam infirmitatis, quia negare non potes, sortius esse manentibus, quam alienatis rebus carere: & sperneret quod habeas, quam non haberet quod spernas. Sanè considera ipsa, de quibus nobis arrogat perfectionem, verba Domini, & videbis te principia pro fine posuisse. Si vis, ait, perfectus esse, Vade & vende omnia, & da pauperibus. Si in hoc sententiam terminasset, te falsò arguerem. Quamobrem temporalium quæ in hoc sæculo habentur bonorum relictio siue distractio, non decursus stadij, sed ingressus est: nec vt meta, sed ianua est. Epist. 2. Paulin. & Therasi. Seuero. Perfection. Counsels, precepts. Can. 29.

S. Hierome vpon this Chapter vers. 27. Quia non sufficit tantùm relinquere, iungit quod perfectum est, & secuti sumus te. Expos. v. 28. Non dixit qui reliquistis omnia, hoc enim & Socrates fecit philosophus, & multi alij diuitias contempserunt, sed qui secuti estis me; quod propriè Apostolorum est, atque credentium. As for the profession of popish Monkes, is to leaue labour, and all good exercises, to tire themselues with idlenesse and belly cheere like Epicures. In Friers profession, is a fairer shew of hypocrisie, but neuer a step neerer to the true imitation of Christ. Popish Monkes and Friers.

RHEM. 10 21 Folow me.) Thus to follow Christ is to be without wife and care of children, to lacke proprietie, and to liue in common, and this hath great reward in heauen aboue other states of life: which S. Augustine saith, the Apostles followed, and himselfe, and that he exhorted others to it as much as lay in him. Aug. ep. 89. in fine, & in ps. 103. Conc. 3. post. med.

FVLKE. 10 S. Augustine saith not, that thus to follow Christ, is to be without wife, and care of children, &c. for the Apostles many of them had wiues, and some had children, and had proprietie, as Peter his house, and Iohn had to entertaine and prouide for the virgine Marie: Matthew had to make a feast of his owne goods. S. Augustine sayth, that he himselfe had loued that perfection, whereof Christ here speaketh, and had solde all his goods, and giuen them to the poore, and also had exhorted other to doe the like, and had some companions: yet preferred not himselfe before other godly men that had possessions, as some hypocrites did in his time, against whom he writeth, Ep. 89. So he saith in ps. 103. Con. 3. There were some that hearing this saying of the Gospel, desired to doe so, as also not to marry, nor to be troubled with children, nor to haue any abiding place, but to goe into a certaine common life. Yet placeth he not the imitation of Christ in these things: for rich maried men hauing children, and affaires in the world, may followe Christ by true deniall of themselues, and taking vp his crosse dayly, when wandring hypocrites, without wife, and children, in stead of folowing Christ in humilitie and pouertie, may follow the deuill in lying, pride, enuie, malice, and many other vices. Mat. 8. 14. Ioan. 20. 27. mat. 9. Luke 5. 29. Imitation of Christ.

RHEM. 11 26 All things possible. This of the camel through a needles eye, being possible to God, although he neither hath done it, nor by like will doe it: maketh against the blasphemous infidelitie of our Aduersaries that say, God can doe no more then he hath done or will doe, we see also that God can bring a camel through a needles eye, and therefore his bodie through a doore, and out of the sepulchre shut, and out of his mother a virgine, and generally aboue nature and contrary to nature doe with his body as he list.

FVLKE 11 This is an impudent slander, wherewith you charge vs, as you doe many times, to say, That God can doe no more then he hath done or will doe: but this we say, (confute it, if ye be able) that God can doe nothing, contrary to his owne will, word, nature, glory, and yet he is almightie, see cap. 17. sect. 1. Tertul. contra Praxag. Planè Deo nihil difficile. sed si tam abruptè in præsumptionibus nostris hac sententia vtamur, quiduis de Deo confingere poterimus, quasi fecerit, quia facere potuerit. Non autem quia omnia facere potest, ideò credendùm est illum fecisse etiam quod non fecit. In the sacrament we dispute not what God can do, but what he will doe, according to his word. Christ hath not taken away the nature of his body, but giuen immortalitie to it, Aug Epist. 57. therefore he will doe nothing with it, that is contrary to the nature of it. Neither came he through the doore, nor through the stone of the sepulchre, nor through the virgines body, although he came in after the doores were shut, and although the Angel rolled away the stone after his resurrection, and he was borne of his mother being a virgine. RHEM. 12 27 Left all.) This perfection of leauing all things the Apostles vowed. Aug. lib. 17. de Ciu. Dei c. 4. Vow of pouertie in respect of reward.

FVLKE. 12 The Apostles left all things in affection, but not in vse and possession, as it is proued before, sect. 10.

RHEM. 13 27 What shall we haue.) They leaue all things in respect of reward, and Christ doeth well allow vs in them by his answere.

FVLKE 13 To doe well in hope of reward, is not to be disallowed, but Christian men must haue respect vnto the glory of God, and their duetie, though they should haue none other reward. Hope of reward.

RHEM. 14 28 You also shall sit.) Note that not onely Christ, who is the principall and proper iudge of the liuing and the dead, but with him the Apostles and all perfect Saints shall iudge: and yet that doth nothing derogate to his prerogatiue, by whom and vnder whom they holde this and all other dignities in this life and the next. Aug. in Ps. 121.

FVLKE. 14 All the Saints of God shall iudge the world, and euen the Angels, 1. Cor. 5. 2. and 3. not to the derogation, but to the honour of Christ, as the members of his mysticall body. Beda in hunc locum. Quia duodenario sæpè numero solet vniuersitas designari: per 12. sedes apostolorum, iudicantium omnia numerosissimè: & per 12. tribus Israel, vniuersitas eorum qui iudicandi sunt ostenditur.

RHEM. 1 In the morning.) God called some in the morning, that is, in the beginning of the world, as Abel, Enoch, Noe, and other the iust and faithful of the first age: at the third houre, Abraham, Isaac, & Iacob, and the rest of their age: at the 6 houre of the day, Moyses, Aaron, and the rest: at the 9 houre, the Prophets, at the eleuenth, that is, at the later end of the world, the Christian Nations. Aug. de verb. Dom. ser. 59. briefly, the calling at diuers houres signifieth the calling of the Iewes from time to time in the first ages of the world, and of the Gentiles in the later age thereof. It signifieth also that God calleth countries to the faith, some sooner, some later: and particular men to be his seruants, some younger, some elder, of diuers ages.

9 Peny.) *The peny promised to all, was life euerlasting, which is common to all that shall be saued: but in the same life there be degrees of glory, as betwixt starre and starre in the element. Aug. li. de virginit. c. 26. 1. Cor. 15. Diuersitie of glory in heauen.

FVLKE. 2 A cursed glosse that corrupteth the plaine and manifest meaning of the text. The Scripture neuer promiseth the kingdome of heauen to them that are worthy of it, by the merit of their works, or that deserue it by well doing.It is the free gift of God,not of workes,as S.Paul sheweth,Ephe.2. And though God render to euery man according to his works,yet he saith not,for the desert of his works.And our Sauiour Christ commendeth not the desert of their workes,which haue fed him in the poore: but alleageth their workes, as an open testimony of their faith. For the kingdome was prepared for them before the beginning of the world,by the eternall decree of God,by which they were chosen in Christ to the praise of his glory,and created to good works, Ephe.1.and 2. and all reward due to good workes,dependeth vpon the mercy of God, and not vpon the merit of the worke.Euseb.Emiss.Dom.in Quinq.*Ac si dicat. For albeit God giue greater reward to greater vertues,yet it followeth not,that any vertue deserueth or meriteth. For the vertues, workes, and rewards, are all and euery one the free gifts of God. Hierome hath some words sounding to such a thing, yet not merits or desert: but his iudgement vpon deliberation,is to be taken out of his bookes against the Pelagians,where he writeth thus: Our righteousnes consisteth not of our owne merits, but of the mercie of God.lib.1. Againe, he sheweth manifestly, that righteousnes is not in mans merit or desert, but in the grace of God,which accepteth the faith of beleeuers, without the workes of the law. Before the Pelagian heresie (maintaining the power of freewill and merit of workes against the free grace of God) did trouble the Church,diuers of the fathers were not so wary and circumspect in their words and phrases, as afterward they saw it was necessary for them to be: For the Pelagian heretikes tooke hold of such termes and formes of speech,and alleaged the sayings of the ancient fathers, against their true meaning and right iudgement,as of S. 34 And when the time of fruites drewe nigh, he sent his seruants to the husbandmen, to receiue the fruits thereof.

35 And the husbandmen apprehending his seruants, one they beat, another they killed, and another they stoned.

35 And the husbandmen, when they had taken his seruants, they beat one, killed another, and stoned another.

36 Againe, he sent other seruants, moe then the first, and they did vnto them likewise.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXI.

RHEM. 2. You shall finde.) Christ by diuine power both knew where these beasts were, being absent, and commanded them for his vse, being another mans, and suddenly made the colt fit to be ridden on, neuer broken before.

7. The asse and the colt.) This asse vnder yoke signifieth the Iewes vnder the Law and vnder God their Lord, as it were his old and ancient people: the yong colt now first ridden on by Christ, signifieth the Gentiles, wilde hitherto and not broken, now to be called to the faith and to receiue our Sauiours yoke. And therefore the three last Euangelists writing specially to the Gentiles make mention of the colt onely. Hiero. in Mat, Aug li.12.cont. Faust, c.42.

RHEM.1. 8. Garments in the way.) These offices of honour done to our Sauiour extraordinarily, were very acceptable: and for a memorie hereof the holy Church maketh a solemne Procession euery yeere vpon this day, specially in our Countrey when it was Catholike, with the B. Sacrament reuerently caried, as it were Christ vpon the asse, and strawing of rushes and flowres, bearing of palmes, setting vp boughes, spredding and hanging vp the richest clothes, the quire and queristers singing as here the children and the people, all done in a very goodly ceremony to the honour of Christ and the memorie of his triumph vpon this day. The like seruice and the like duesies done to him in all other solemne Processions of the B. Sacrament, and otherwise, be vndoubtedly no lesse gratefull. Procession on Palme-sunday with the B. Sacrament. All deuoute offices in that kinde, exceeding gratefull.

FVLKE.1. Your Palme sunday procession was horrible idolatry, and abusing of the Lords institution, who ordeined his supper to be eaten & drunken, not to be caried about in procession like an heathenish idole. But it is pretie sport, that you make the Priest that carieth this idole, to supply the roome of the asse, on which Christ did ride. Thus you turne the holy mystery of Christs riding to Ierusalem to a Maygame and pageant play. And yet you say, such seruice done to Christ, is vndoubtedly exceeding gratefull, yea no lesse gratefull, then that was done by his disciples at this time mentioned in the text, Your argument and proofe is none, but your bare asseueration. That which his disciples did, had the warrant of the holy Scripture, but who hath required these theatrical pompes at your hands? or what word of God haue you, to assure you, that he accepteth such will-worship? who detesteth all worship which is according to the doctrines and tradition of men, and not after his owne commandement. Mat.15. Esa.29. Deut.12.32. Procession on Palme sunday.

RHEM. 2. 9. Hosanna.) These very words of ioyfull crie and triumphant voice of gratulation to our Sauiour, holy Church vseth alwayes in the Preface of the Masse, as it were the voice of the Priest and all the people (who then specially are attent and deuout) immediatly before the Consecration and Elemation, as it were expecting, and reioycing at his comming. HOSANNA.

FVLKE.2. Holy words prophanely abused, of them that expect a third comming of Christ in person, which the Scripture doth not teach, that maketh mention of the two commings of Christ, the one in humilitie to our redemption, the other in glory to iudgement. And as for the attention and deuotion of the people, that you speake of, they can haue none of those matters which they vnderstand not. And though some haue a blind and superstitious affection, yet the common sort be walking about the Church, and prating, euen in Masse time, vntill the tingling of your sacring bell, call them to worship your Idole. Sacring of the Masse.

RHEM.3. 13. House of prayer.) Note here that he calleth externall sacrifice (out of the Prophet Esay) prayer. For he speaketh of the Temple, which was builded properly and principally for sacrifice.

FVLKE.3. The Temple was not builded properly & principally for sacrifice, but for prayer, as both this text doth testifie, & Salomon in his prayer at the dedication of the Temple 1.Reg.8. The external ceremony of sacrifice without faithfull prayer, was nothing worth, but prayer without sacrifice was alwayes acceptable vnto God. Psal.50.

RHEM. 4. 16. Mouth of infants.) Yong childrens prayers proceeding from the instinct of Gods spirit, bee acceptable: and so the voices of the like, or of other simple folke now in the Church, though themselues vnderstand not particularly what they say, be marueilous gratefull to Christ. Prayers not vnderstood of the party, are acceptable.

FVLKE.4. The children that by instinct of Gods spirit, cryed in the Temple, Hosanna in the highest, spake in the Syrian tongue which they vnderstood, and also knew that they saluted our Sauiour Christ, as their Messias, whose comming they were taught according to the Scriptures, to looke for: although they vnderstood not distinctly all mysteries of Christs office, which none of his Apostles did throughly know, at this time. Therefore this is a beastly conclusion of yours, ergo prayers not vnderstood of the party, are acceptable to Christ. If you vrge the words of the Psalme, which nameth infants and sucklings that can neither speake nor vnderstand, the meaning is not, that they praise God with their voice: but that the prouidence of God to his great praise, is manifest out of their mouthes, to whom he hath prouided meate, before they were borne, and in that great weaknes and ignorance, taught them to take it for their sustenance, and call for it in their crying voice, when they lacke it. So that our Sauiour Christ, out of that text reasoneth from the lesse to the more, if God ordained his praise out of infants and sucklings, that cannot speake or vnderstand, how much more out of these, that can speake, & haue some vnderstanding? Prayers not vnderstood.

RHEM. 5 22. Beleeuing.) In respect of our owne vnworthinesse, and of the thing not alwayes expedient for vs, wee may well doubt when we pray, whether we shall obtaine or no: but on Gods part we must beleeue, that is, we must haue no diffidence or mistrust either of his power or of his will, if we be worthy, and the thing expedient. And therefore S. Marke hath thus, Haue ye faith of God. Marc.11.22.

FVLKE. 5 In respect of our owne vnworthines, wee are vtterly out of all hope, to obtaine any thing that wee pray for, and therefore pray not at all in respect of our worthines, but we pray in faith of Gods promises, which of his free Prayer in faith free grace, he hath made vnto vs, for the worthines of Christ Iesus. Neither must we doubt of the expedience of those things which he hath promised, and will performe in time and maner, which by his wisedome he seeth to be conuenient. But for such particular things, as he hath made no expresse promise to graunt them, wee must pray with submission of our request vnto his will, nothing doubting, but hee will grant whatsoeuer is for his glory, and our benefite to receiue. If we were worthy, we neede not humbly intreat his mercie, but challenge all things of his iustice.

RHEM. 6 23. In what power.) The Heretikes presumptuously thinke themselues in this point like to Christ, because they are asked in what power they come, and who sent them: but when they haue answered this question as fully as Christ did here by that which he insinuateth of Iohns testimony for his authoritie, they shall be heard, and till then they shall bee still taken for those of whom God speaketh by the Prophet, They ranne, and I sent them not. Heretikes runne, not sent. Ier. 33.

FVLKE. 6 Though Heretikes runne vnsent, yet (God be praised) wee haue inward calling of God, and outward calling of the Church, which is sufficient to warrant our ministerie, both to our selues, and to all true members of the Church of Christ, though the malignant broode of Antichrist wil not acknowledge our office and calling, to their owne confusion. Lawfull calling.

RHEM. 28. The first.) The first sonne here is the people of the Gentiles, because Gentility was before there was a peculiar and chosen people of the Iewes. and therefore the Iewes here as the later, are signified by the other sonne.

CHAP. XXII.

Yet by one other parable he foresheweth the most deserued reprobation of the earthly and persecuting Iewes, and the gratious vocation of the Gentiles in their place. 15 Then he defeateth the snare of the Pharisees and Herodians about paying tribute to Cæsar. 23 He answereth also the inuention of the Sadducees against the Resurrection: 34 and a question that the Pharisees aske to pose him: turning and posing them againe, because they imagined that Christ should be no more then a man: 46 and so he putteth all the busie sectes to silence.

AND Iesvs answering, spake againe in parables to them, saying:

THE GOSPEL vpon the 19. Sunday after Pentecost.

2 The kingdome of heauen is likened to a man being a king, which made a ‖ mariage to his sonne.

3 And hee sent his ‖ seruants to call them that were inuited to the mariage: and they would not come.

4 Againe he sent other seruants, saying, Tell them that were inuited, Behold I haue prepared my dinner: my beeues & fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come ye to the mariage.

5 But they neglected: and went their wayes, ‖ one to his farme, and another to his merchandise:

6 And the rest layd handes vpon his seruants, and spitefully intreating them, murdered them.

7 But when the king had heard of it, he was wroth, and sending his hostes, destroyed those murderers, and burnt their citie.

8 Then he sayth to his seruants, The mariage indeede is ready: but they that were inuited, were not worthy.

9 Goe ye therefore into the high wayes: and whosoeuer you shall finde, call to the mariage.

10 And his seruants going forth into the wayes, gathered together al that they found, ‡ bad and good: and the mariage was filled with ghestes.

‡ Not onely good men be within the Church, but also euill men, against the Heretikes of these dayes.

11 And the King went in to see the ghestes: and he saw there ‖ a man not attired in a wedding garment.

12 And he saith to him, Friende, how camest thou in hither not hauing a wedding garment? But he was dumbe.

13 Then the King sayd to the waiters, Binde his hands and feete, and cast him into the vtter darkenesse: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 For many be called, but few elect.

15 *Then

AND *Iesus answered, * and spake vnto them againe by parables, and sayd,* Luke 14.16. apoc. 19.9.

2 The kingdom of heauen is like vnto a man that was a king, which made a mariage for his sonne,

4 Againe he sent foorth other seruants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I haue prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come vnto the mariage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their wayes, one to his farme, another to his merchandize:

6 And the remnant tooke his seruants, and intreated them spitefully, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard thereof, hee was wroth, and when he had sent forth his armies, he destroyed those murderers, and burnt vp their citie.

8 Then he sayth to his seruants, The marriage indeede is prepared, but they which were bidden, were not worthy.

9 Goe yee therefore out into the high wayes, and as many as yee shall finde, bid to the marriage.

10 And the seruants went out into the high wayes, and gathered together all as many as they found, both good and bad, and the wedding was furnished with ghestes.

11 When the king came in to see the ghestes, he spied there a man, which had not on a wedding garment,

12 And he sayth vnto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, not hauing a wedding garment? And he was euen speechlesse.

*13 Then sayd the King to the ministers, When yee haue bound him hand and foote, take him vp, and cast him into vtter darkenes, * there shall be weeping, and gnashing of teeth.* Matt. 13.42. and 25.30.

17 Tell vs therefore what is thy opinion, is it lawfull to giue tribute to Cæsar, or not?

18 But Iesvs knowing their naughtines, sayd, what doe you tempt mee Hypocrites?

Mar.12,28. The Gospel vpon the 17. Sunday after Pentecost.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXII.

RHEM. 2. Mariage.) Then did God the father make this mariage, when by the mystery of the Incarnation he ioyned to his sonne our Lord, the holy Church for his spouse. Greg. hom.38.

3. Seruants.) The first seruants here sent to inuite, were the Prophets: the second, were the Apostles: and all that afterward conuerted countryes, or that haue and doe reconcile men to the Church.

RHEM. 1. 5. One to his farme.) Such as refuse to be reconciled to Christes Church, alleage often vaine impediments and worldly excuses, which at the day of iudgement will not serue them. Worldly excuses against reconciliation.

FVLKE. 1. This is rightly noted, if you meant the true Church of Christ, but your intent is of traiterous reconciling to Antichrist, and the See of Rome.

RHEM. 2. 11. A man not attyred.) It profiteth not much to bee within the Church and to bee a Catholike, except a man bee of good life, for such an one shall be damned, because with faith hee hath not good workes: as is euident by the example of this man, who was within, and at the feast as the rest, but lacked the garment of charitie and good workes. And by this man are represented all the baddie that are called, and therefore they also are in the Church, as this man was at the feast: but because he was called, and yet none of the elect, it is euident that the Church doeth not consist of the elect onely, contrary to our Aduersaries. The Church consisteth of good and bad.

FVLKE. 2. He that hath not good workes, hath not a true, liuely, and onely iustifying faith. The visible Church, hath both elect and reprobate in it. But the Catholike Church inuisible, which is the body of Christ, consisteth onely of Gods elect, the true members of his body. This you know right well, but that you are disposed to slander vs, whereseoeuer you can take occasion to blinde the ignorant, by ambiguitie, generalitie, or double vnderstanding of any word. The Catholike Church of Christ. Slander.

RHEM. 3. 21. To Caesar.) Temporall duties and payments exacted by worldly Princes must be payed, so that God be not defrauded of his more soueraine duty. And therefore Princes haue to take heede, how they exact: and others, how they giue to Caesar, that is, to their Prince, the things that are due to God, that is, to his Ecclesiastical Ministers. Whereupon S. Athanasius reciteth these goodly wordes out of an epistle of the ancient and famous Confessor Hosius Cordubensis to Constantius the Arian Emperour: Cease I beseech thee, and remember that thou art mortall, feare the day of iudgement, intermeddle not with Ecclesiastical matters, neither doe thou commaund vs in thy kinde, but rather learne them of vs. to thee God hath committed the Empire, to vs hee hath committed the things that belong to the Church: and as he that with malitious eyes carpeth thine Empire, gainesayth the ordinance of God: so doe thou also beware lest in drawing vnto thee Ecclesiastical matters, thou bee made guiltie of a great crime. It is written, Giue ye the things that are Caesars, to Caesar: and the things that are Gods, to God. Therefore neither is it lawfull for vs in earth to holde the Empire, neither hast thou (O Emperour) power ouer incense and sacred things. Athan. Ep. ad Solit. vitam agentes. And S. Ambrose to Valentinian the Emperour (who by the ill counsell of his mother Iustina an Arian, required of S. Ambrose to haue one Church in Millan deputed to the Arian Heretikes) Sayth: we pay that which is Caesars, to Caesar: and that which is Gods, to God. Tribute is Caesars, it is not denied: the Church is Gods, it may not rightly be yeelded to Caesar: because the Temple of God cannot be Caesars right. which no man can deny but it is spoken with the honour of the Emperour. for what is more honourable then that the Emperour be said to be the sonne of the Church? For a good Emperour is within the Church, not aboue the Church. Ambr. lib.5. Epist. Orat. de Basil. trad. Worldly Princes exact not their Subiects goe vnto them. Ecclesiastical iurisdiction. Neither must temporal Princes exact, nor their FVLKE. 3. Ciuil Princes and Magistrates, ought not to vsurpe Ecclesiasticall offices of preaching, mististring the Sacraments, excommunication, or such like: but they ought to commaund and prouide by lawes, that these things be done according to the worde of God, and to punish the offendours. The saying of Osius, cited by Athanasius, is against Constantius, that would determine by his Imperiall authoritie, contrary to the Scriptures and the consent of the generall Councell of Nice, that Christ is not eternall God equall with his Father. In Authoritie of Princes.

such cases, nothing is to be yeelded to temporall Princes. Likewise, where the Emperour would haue a Church granted to the Heretikes, Ambrose was not to yeelde, because it is against the worde of God, that Heretikes should be allowed their assemblies: yet of the place of their assembly, he saith. Volens nunquam ius deseram, coactus repugnare non noui. Willingly I will neuer forsake the right, being compelled, I haue not learned to resist. And where he saith, a good Emperour is not aboue the Church, he meaneth, hee hath no authoritie to alter any article of faith, or rule of Religion and doctrine, giuen to the Church by God. But hee is ouer the Church to protect it, to maintaine the trueth of faith and Religion by his authoritie, and to punish all offenders, whether they be of the state Ecclesiastical or Ciuil. And therein he serueth God (as S. Augustine saith of Kings) when he doeth those things, which none can do but Kings. Ep. 50. He serueth as a King (saith he) in making lawes, commanding iust things, forbidding the contrary, as Ezechias serued God, destroying the groues and temples of Idols. Againe, what man well in his wits, would say to Kings, take no care who in your kingdome mainteyneth or oppresseth the Church of your Lord God, let it not pertaine to you, who within your dominion, wilbe religious or sacrilegious. So did Constantine the great call Councels, and sit in them himselfe, Euseb. de vita Const. lib. 1. & lib. 3. Eccl. hist. lib. 10. cap. 5. Athanasius himselfe was commanded by him, in causes pertayning to his duetie, & clearing of himselfe from crimes obiected in a Councell called by the Emperour, Socrates lib. 1. c. 27. 28. 34.

RHEM. 4 30. As Angels.) As Christ proueth here, that in heauen they neither marry nor are married, because there they shalbe as Angels: by the very same reason, is prooued, that Saints may heare our prayers and helpe vs, be they neere or farre of, because the Angels doe so, and in euery moment are present where they list, and neede not to be neere vs, when they heare or helpe vs. The Saints heare our prayers.

FVLKE. 4 Our Sauiour Christ speaketh not of the state of the soules departed at this time, but after the resurrection, and therefore your argument is a most absurd conclusion, euen like your doctrine. Againe, Christ doth not in all points, compare the Saints after the resurrection to Angels, for then they should bee inuisible, and without bodies, as the Angels are: but in that they haue no neede, or vse of mariage. Beside, it is false that you say, the Angels may be present in euery moment where they list: for they cannot be in more places at once, then one: neither are they where they list, but where God appointeth them. Didymus de spiritu sancto lib. 1. Ipse Spiritus Sanctus si vnus de creaturis esset: saltem circumscriptam haberet substantiam, sicut vniuersa quæ facta sunt. Nam etsi non circumscribantur loco & finibus inuisibles creaturæ, tamen proprietate substantiæ finiuntur. &c. Angelus quippe qui aderat, verbi gratia, apostolo in Asia, oranti, non poterat simul eodem tempore adesse alijs in cæteris partibus mundi constitutis. Angels. Saints.

RHEM. 5 30. As Angels.) Not to marry nor be married, is to be like to Angels: therfore is the state of Religious men and women and Priests, for not marrying, worthily called of the Fathers, an Angelical life. Cyp. li. 2. de disciplı. & hab. Virg. sub finem. Religious single life, Angelical.

FVLKE. 5 True Virginitie, such as Paul commendeth in this point of not marying, resembleth the Angels, and thereof speake the ancient Fathers, not of the filthy life of your Popish cloisterers, and vnchaste priests, who in not marying when they cannot liue chastly, resemble the deuils, who are also vnmarried.

RHEM. 6 32. Of the dead.) S. Hierome by this place disproueth the Heretike Vigilantius, and in him these of our time, which to diminish the honour of Saints, call them of purpose, dead men.

FVLKE. 6 The Saints departed out of this life, still liue vnto God, yet are they in the Scripture oftentimes called dead men, and euen in this place of the resurrection of the dead. Therefore it is no dishonour, to call them as the Scripture calleth them. But it is a great dishonour to them, to honour them as Idoles, and to robbe God of his honour, to bestow it vpon them, as Papists do, who in a maner in all things, match them with Christ our onely Sauiour, which is onely worthy of all honour and glory, Apoc. 7. 10. Honour of Saints.

RHEM. 7 40. On these two.) Hereby it is euident that al dependeth not vpon faith only, but much more vpon charity, (though faith be the first) which is the loue of God and of our neighbour, which is the summe of all the Law and the Prophets: because he that hath this double charity expressed here by these two principal Commandements, fulfilleth and accomplisheth all that is commanded in the Law and the Prophets. Not onely faith.

FVLKE. 7 We say not, that all the Law, and the Prophets, depende vpon faith onely: but contrarywise wee say with S. Paul The Lawe is not of faith, but the man that hath done those things, shall liue by them, Galat. 3. 12. Yet this wee say with S. Augustine The Law commandeth, and faith obteineth, de nat. & grat. cap. 26. And S. Augustine himselfe saith vpon this text. It may be rightly sayd, that the Commandements of God pertaine to onely faith, if that faith be not vnderstood to be a dead faith, but a liuing faith, which worketh by loue, de fide & operibus cap. 22. But if any man fulfill the Lawe, hee shalbe iustified by workes without faith, which seeing no man is able to fulfill, the iust shall liue by faith, Galat. 3. 11. Slander. Iustification.

CHAP. XXIII.

The Scribes and Pharisees after all this, continuing still incorrigible, although he wil haue the doctrine of their Chaire obeyed, yet against their workes (and namely their ambition) he openly inueyeth, crying to them eight woes for their eightfolde hypocrisie and blindnes: 34 and so concluding with the most worthy reprobation of that persecuting generation and their mother-city Ierusalem with her Temple.

THE GOSPEL vpon Tuesday the second weeke in Lent. Luke 11. 46. Acts 15. 10.

THen Iesvs spake to the multitudes and to his disciples,

2 Saying, Vpon ‖ the chaire of Moyses haue sitten the Scribes and the Pharisees.

3 All things therefore ‖ whatsoeuer they shall say to you, obserue ye and doe ye: but according to their workes do ye not, for they say and do not.

4 For* they binde heauy burdens and importable: and put them vpon mens shoulders: but with a finger of their owne they will not moue them.

5 But they doe all their workes for to be seene of men. for they make broade their ‡phylacteries, and enlarge their *fringes.

‡ These phylacteries were pieces of parchment, wherein they wrote the ten cõmandements, and folded it, and caried it on their forehead before their eyes, imagining grosly and superstitiously, that so they fulfilled that which is said. Deu. 6 They shalbe immouable before thine eyes. Hier. in 23. Mat. Deut. 22. 12.

THen spake Iesus to the multitudes, and to his disciples,

3 All therefore whatsoeuer they bid you obserue, that obserue and do, but doe not ye after their workes: for they say, and doe not.

5 All their woorkes they doe, for to bee seene of men: * they make broade their phylacteries, and enlarge the hemmes of their garments, Num. 15. 38. deut. 6. 8.

11 He that is the greater of you, shall bee your seruiteur.
12 And he that exalteth himselfe, shalbe humbled: and hee that humbleth himselfe, shalbe exalted.
13 But woe to you ‖ Scribes & Pharisees, hypocrites: because you shut the kingdome of heauen before men. For your selues do not enter in: and those that are going in, you suffer not to enter.
14 Woe to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you *deuoure widowes houses, ‖ praying long prayers. for this you shall receiue the greater iudgement.
Luke 20,47.
15 Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you goe rounde about the sea and the land, to make one proselyte: and when hee is made, you make him the childe of hell ‖ double more then your selues.
16 Woe to you blinde guides, that say, whosoeuer shall sweare by the temple, it is nothing: but hee that shall sweare by that gold of the temple, is bound.
17 Yee fooliſh and blinde, for whether is greater, the golde, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold?
18 And whosoeuer shal sweare by the altar, it is nothing: but whosoeuer shall sweare by the gift that is vpon it, is bound.
19 Yee blinde, for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that ‖ sanctifieth the gift?
20 He therefore that sweareth by the altar, sweareth by it and by all things that are vpon it:
21 And whosoeuer shall sweare by the temple, sweareth by it & ‖ by him that dwelleth in it:
22 And he that sweareth by heaue̅, sweareth by the throne of God and by him that sitteth thereon.
23 Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you tithe mint, and anise, and cummin, and haue left the weightier things of the Lawe, iudgement, and mercie, and faith. these things you ought to haue done, and not to haue omitted those.
24 Blinde guides, that straine a gnat, and swallow a camel.

15 Woe vnto you Scribes and Phariſees hypocrites, for yee compaſſe the ſea and the land to make one proſelyte, and when hee is become one, ye make him two fold more the childe of hell then ye your ſelues are.

16 Woe be vnto you ye blind guides, for ye ſay, Whoſoeuer ſhal ſweare by the temple, it is nothing, but whoſoeuer ſhal ſweare by the gold of the temple, he is a debter.

26 Thou blind Phariſee, firſt make cleane the inſide of the cuppe and the diſh, that the outſide may become cleane.

27 Wo to you Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites: becauſe you are like to whited ſepulchres, which outwardly appeare vnto men beautifull, but within are full of dead mens bones, and all filthineſſe.

28 So you alſo outwardly in deede ‖ appeare to men iuſt: but inwardly you are full of hypocriſie and iniquitie.

29 Wo to you Scribes and Phariſees, yee hypocrites: becauſe you build the Prophets ſepulchres, and ‖ garniſh the monuments of iuſt men, 32 And fill you vp the meaſure of your fathers.

33 You ſerpents, vipers broodes, how wil you flee from the iudgement of hell?

THE GOSPEL vpon S. Stephens day, December, 26.

34 Therefore beholde I ſende vnto you Prophets and wiſe men and Scribes, and of them you ſhall kill and crucifie, and of them you ſhall ſcourge in your Synagogues, and perſecute from citie into citie:

35 That vpon you may come all the iuſt blood that was ſhed vpon the earth, from the blood of* Abel the iuſt, euen vnto the blood of* Zacharias the ſon of Barachias, whō you murdered betwene the temple and the altar.

Gene. 4, 8. 2. Par. 24, 22.

36 Amen I ſay to you, all theſe things ſhal come vpon this generation.

26 Thou blinde Phariſee, cleanſe firſt that which is within the cup and platter, that the outſide of them may be cleane alſo.

27 Woe vnto you Scribes and Phariſees hypocrites, for ye are like vnto painted Sepulchres, which in deede appeare beautifull outward, but are within full of dead mens bones, and of all filthineſſe.

28 Euen ſo, ye alſo outwardly appeare righteous vnto men: but within yee are full of hypocriſie and iniquitie.

29 Woe vnto you Scribes and Phariſees hypocrites, becauſe yee builde the tombes of the Prophetes, and garniſh the Sepulchres of the righteous,

30 And ſay, If wee had bene in the dayes of our fathers, wee woulde not haue bene partners with them in the blood of the Prophets.

31 Wherefore ye be witneſſes vnto your ſelues, that ye are the children of them which killed the Prophets.

32 Fulfill ye alſo the meaſure of your fathers.

33 Te ſerpents, ye generation of vipers, howe will ye eſcape the damnation of hell?

34 Wherefore beholde, I ſend vnto you Prophets, & wiſe men, and Scribes, & ſome of them ye ſhall kill and crucifie, and ſome of them ſhall ye ſcourge in your Synagogues, and perſecute them from Citie to Citie:

*35 That vpon you may come al the righteous blood ſhed vpon the earth, from the blood of that righteous Abel, vnto the blood of Zacharias, ſon of Barachias, whom yee ſlew betweene the Temple and the Altar.* Gene. 4, 8. Hebr. 11, 4. 2. chro. 24, 21.

36 Verily I ſay vnto you, All theſe things ſhall come vpon this generation.

*37 * O Hieruſalem, Hieruſalem, thou that killeſt the Prophets, and ſtoneſt them which haue bene ſent vnto thee, how often would* I haue gathered thy children together, euen as a henne gathereth her chickens vnder her wings, and yee would not?* Luke 13, 34. 4. Eſdr. 1, 30.

38 Beholde, your houſe is left vnto you deſolate.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXIII.

RHEM. 1 2. Chaire of Moyſes.) God preſerueth the trueth of Chriſtian religion in the Apoſtolike See of Rome, which is in the new law anſwerable to the chaire of Moyſes, notwithſtanding the Biſhops of the ſame were neuer ſo wicked of life: yea though ſome traitour as ill as Iudas were biſhop thereof, it ſhould not be preiudicial to the Church and innocent Chriſtians, for whom our Lord prouiding, ſaid, Doe that which they ſay, but do not as they doe. Auguſt. Epiſt. 165. The See of Rome preſerued in trueth.

FVLKE. 1 S. Auguſtine ſaith not, that God preſerueth the trueth of Chriſtian Religion, in the Apoſtolike See of Rome, but ſheweth that ſo long as the trueth of Chriſtian Religion is maintained, we muſt not depart from the vnitie of the Church for the euill life of the teachers or Biſhops. Hee anſwereth an epiſtle of a Donatiſt vnto Generoſus, wherein was declared the order of Biſhops, in a certaine citie, from Donatus the auctour of that ſchiſme. Whereupon S. Auguſtine ſayeth, Si ordo, &c. If the order of Biſhops ſucceeding one another bee to bee conſidered, howe much more certainely and indeede holſomely doe wee number from Peter, to whome bearing the figure of the whole Church, our Lorde ſayeth, vpon this Rocke I will builde my Church, and the gates of hell ſhall not ouercome it: for to Peter ſucceeded Linus, &c. And ſo foorth hee nameth the Biſhops to Anaſtaſius, among which hee ſayeth, there was neuer a Biſhop that was a Donatiſt: but ouerthwart out of Africa, they ſent one ordeined, which gouerning ouer a fewe Africans in the Citie of Rome, enlarged the terme of Montenſes, or Cuzupitæ. But into that order of Biſhops, which is brought from Peter himſelfe, vnto Anaſtaſius, which nowe occupieth the ſame Chaire, Succeſſion of Biſhops.

although any heresyes had crept in, in those times, it should not haue preiudiced the Church, and innocent Christians, for whom our Lord prouiding, saith of euill prelates or gouernours: doe yee those things, which they say, but doe not those things which they doe. These be his wordes, by which his meaning is plaine, that the wicked life of teachers, infecteth not the whole Church, nor any innocent Christian, but that so long as they sit in Peters, or Moses, or Christes chaire, that is, teach that which Moses, Christ, and Peter taught, they are to bee heard, and the vnitie of the Church not to be forsaken for their euill life. Hee saith not, that whosoeuer shalbe Bishop of Rome, cannot erre in doctrine, or wee may safely beleeue whatsoeuer the Bishop of Rome saith, because he sitteth in Peters chaire. For Christ bidde th not the Iewes to doe whatsoeuer the Scribes and Pharisees said (for they said Corban, which was contrary to Gods Commandement, Matt. 15. and many other things contrary to Gods Lawe, Mat. 5.) but onely so long as they sate in Moses chaire, and taught the same doctrine, which Moses deliuered in the Lawe: for they sate not in Moses chaire, but in their owne chaire, when they taught their owne traditions, and false doctrines.

RHEM. 2 3. Whatsoeuer they shall say.) Why (saith S. Augustine) doest thou call the Apostolike Chaire the chaire of pestilence? If for the men, why? Did our Lord Iesus Christ for the Pharisees, any wrong to the Chaire wherein they sate? Did he not commend that chaire of Moyses, and preseruing the honour of the Chaire, reprooue them? For he saith: They sit vpon the Chaire of Moyses, that which they say, doe ye. These things if you did well consider, you would not for the men whom you defame, blaspheme the See Apostolike (whom you do not commune vvith) and (as not communicate. And against he saith: Neither for the Pharisees (to whom you compare vs not of euill deuise but of malice) did our Lord commaund the Chaire of Moyses to be forsaken, in which Chaire verely he figured his owne, for he warneth the people to do that which they say, and not to do that which they do, and that the holinesse of the Chaire be in no case forsaken, nor the vnitie of the flocke deuided, for the naughty Pastours. The dignitie of the See of Rome, notwithstanding some euil Bishops thereof. Contra lit. Petil. li 2. c. 51. Contra lit. Petil. lib. 2. c. 61.

FVLKE. 2 S. Augustine speaketh against prayling Donatist, which called the Apostolike chaire, with which the Catholikes in Africa had communion, the chaire of pestilence, being able to charge the Bishops that succeeded therein, neither with false doctrine, nor with euil life, which if he could haue done, the fault had bene in the men, not in the chaire. Neither doth he speake only of the See of Rome, but also nameth expresly the See of Ierusalem, and consequently vnderstandeth all the Churches planted by the Apostles, which reteined the puritie of doctrine deliuered by the Apostles. Therefore he writeth thus: Verum tamen, &c. But if all throughout the whole world, were such as thou doest most falsly accuse them, what hath the chaire of the Church of Rome done vnto thee, in which Peter sate, and as this day sitteth Anacletus, or the chaire of the Church of Ierusalem, in which Iames sate, and at this day Iohn sitteth, to whom we in the Catholike vnitie are knit, and from whom with wicked rage, you haue seperated your selues: why calleft thou the Apostolike chaire, the chaire of pestilence? &c. In the second place which you cite, where S. Augustine saith, that our Sauiour Christ, by the chaire of Moses, figured his owne chaire, it is euident, that by the chaire, he meaneth not the place where he sate when he taught, but the doctrine which he taught. Therefore not the dignitie of the See of Rome, but the dignitie of the doctrine of Christ, where soeuer it be taught, and the continuance, consent, and vnitie in the same, is commended by S. Augustine: not appropriated to the See or Bishop of Rome, any longer, then the Bishop of Rome teacheth the doctrine of Christ, which is the chaire of Christ and of Peter. It is not the wicked life of the Pope, onely, nor principally, that declareth him to be Antichrist, but the doctrine of deuils, which he holdeth, and the exaltation of himselfe in deuilish pride aboue Christ, and all that is worshipped: while he arrogateth more to himselfe, then hee alloweth to Christ, as in his wicked doctrine of Pardons, Dispensations, and such like. For vnder his Bull he pardoneth, that for which the passion of Christ did not make satisfaction (as you hold) and dispenseth against the Law of God, commandeth idolatrie, and communion vnder one kinde, directly against the Commandements of God and Christ, &c. See of Rome. Antichrist.

RHEM. 6. Loue the first places.) He condemneth not due places of Superioritie giuen or taken of men according to their degrees, but ambitious seeking for the same, and their proud hearts and wicked intention, which he sawe within them, and therefore might boldly reprehend them.

RHEM. 3 8. One is your master.) In the Catholike Church there is one Master, Christ our Lord, and vnder him one Vicar: with whom all Catholike Doctors and teachers are one, because they teach all one thing, but in Arch-heretikes it is not so, where euery one of them is a diuers master, and teacheth contrary to the other, and will be called Rabbi and Master, euery one of their owne Disciples: Arius a Rabbi among the Arians, Luther among the Lutherans, and among the Caluinists Caluin. Many masters are many Arch-heretikes.

FVLKE. 3 In the Popish Church, the Pope is your master, of whom you learne that you learne not of Christ, & though you did all agree in your heresie, you were neuer the neerer, but the further from the trueth. Neuertheles, there hath bene, and stil are, great dissentions among you: as of the auctoritie of the Pope, and of the general Councel, questions not yet defined among you. But neither Luther, nor Caluine, desired to be credited any further, then the word and the doctrine of Christ did warrant them: neither is their auctoritie otherwise esteemed of vs, but so farre foorth, as it is agreeable to the holy Scriptures. And whereas you haue one Vicar, he is the vicar of Sathan, whose doctrine he maintaineth in prohibition of mariage and meats, in commanding of Idolatrie, and countermaunding of Christ. But Christ neuer appointed any vicar general, but such as he himselfe is, euen his holy Spirit the comforter, by whom he is still present with his Church, vnto the ende of the world. Vnitie. 1. Tim. 4. 1. Exod. 20. Mat. 28. 20.

RHEM. 4 10. Masters.) Wiclefe and the like heretikes of this time, doe hereupon condemne degrees of Schoole, and titles of Doctors and Masters: where they might as well reproue S. Paul for calling himselfe Doctor and Master of the Gentiles: *and for saying * that there should be alwayes* Doctors in the Church, and where as they bring the other words following, against Religious men who are called fathers: as well might they by this place take away the name of carnall fathers, and blame S. Paul for calling himselfe the onely spirituall father of the Corinthians. but in deede nothing is here forbidden but the contentions diuision and partialitie of such as make them selues Ringleaders of Schismes and Sectes, as Donatus, Arius, Luther, Caluin. Doctors, Masters, and spirituall fathers. 1. Tim. 2. 2. Tim. 1. *Eph. 4. 1. Cor. 4. 15.

FVLKE. 4 It is a slander of Wicklefe, and of the godly in this time, though some Anabaptistical spirits, or ignorant persons, imagine such degrees and titles, to bee here forbidden. But such doctours, masters, and fathers are forbidden, as be auctors, teachers, begetters of new doctrines, and religious persons, as Frances, Dominik, Layola, and such like. Slaunder.

RHEM. 5 13. Scribes and Pharisees.) In all these reprehensions it is much to bee noted, that our Sauiour for the honour of Priesthood neuer reprehendeth Priestes by that name. Cypr. ep. 65. Whereas our Heretikes vse this name of purpose in reproche and despite. The honour of Priesthood.

FVLKE. 5 The Priesthood of the Law was of Gods institution, and therefore our Sauiour Christ (as S. Cyprian saith) kept the honour that was due vnto the Priests, but not as you say, in that he neuer reprehended Priestes, by that name. For so S. Cyprian saith not: And you forget at least the Priest that passed by the wounded man. Luke 10. 13. And was it no reprehension of the Priestes thinke you? when he said, that he should suffer many things of the high Priests, and be slaine of them, Mat. 16. 21. Yet he findeth no fault with their name which the Scripture gaue Honour of Priesthood.

them, no more do we with the name Priest, as it commeth of Presbyter, and signifieth an Elder: but as it is commonly vsed for a sacrificing priest, such as the Ministers of the new Testament are not. But rather the ignorance and wicked life of your Popish Clergie, hath made the name contemptible to most, and odious to some, that know not the true etymologie thereof.

RHEM. 14. Praying long prayers.) They are not reprehended here for the things themselues, which for the most part are good, as long prayer making Proselytes, garnishing the Prophets sepulchres, &c. but for their wicked purpose and intention, as before is said, of fasting, prayers, almes, Mat. 6. — The intention.

RHEM. 6 15. Double more.) They that teach that it is ynough to haue onely faith, doe make such Christians, as the Iewes did Proselytes, children of Hel far more then before. Aug. li. de fide oper. cap. 26. — Not onely faith.

FVLKE. 6 Gods great curse light on them, that teach a faith voyde of good workes, to be ynough for a Christian man. But you that teach all good workes, what Proselytes do you make by your Circumcellion Iesuits, and Seminary Priests, compassing sea and land for them? Somervil, Parry, Throkmorton, Sauage, Babington, and the rest of those murdering spirits, right children of Hel, and of Sathan, that was a murtherer from the beginning. — Slander.

RHEM. 7 19. Sanctifieth.) Note that denaries and gifts bestowed vpon Churches and altars, bee sanctified by dedication to God, and by touching the altar and other holy things: as now specially the vessels of the sacrifice and Sacrament of Christs body and blood, by touching the same, and the altar is selfe whereupon it is consecrated. Whereof Theophylacte writeth thus vpon this place: In the old Law Christ permitteth not the gift to be greater then the altar, but with vs the altar is sanctified by the gift, for the hostes by the diuine grace are turned into our Lords body, and therefore is the altar also sanctified by them. — The altar is sanctified by our Lords body thereupon. Theophyl. Mat. 23.

FVLKE. 7 Gifts bestowed vpō the Church, to the maintenance of true Religion, be sanctified by dedication vnto God: but gifts offred in superstition and Idolatrie, are accursed as the Idols are. Popish altars that are set vp to ouerthrow the altar of the crosse, are not holy but cursed. And so is all that perteineth to them. Neither haue they protection of the Lords altar that was in the Temple, which was a figure of Christs onely singuler true sacrifice once offered, and that neuer can be sacrificed againe, (as S. Augustine saith.) Neither did the altar of the Temple sanctifie by touching, for then the murtherer which tooke hold of the hornes of the altar, should be sanctified, whom God commanded to be drawne from thence and executed. Exod. 21.14. 1 Reg. 2.28. Neither if any man had offered any other gift then that which God commanded, had the gift bene made holy by touching the altar, for it was the ordinance of God, by which the altar sanctified the gift, and not any qualitie in the altar. The saying of Theophylacte, being a late writer in comparison of antiquitie, is not so greatly to be regarded, whose words although they seem to be plaine for Transubstantiation, seeing he saith, Panes, the loaues of bread by diuine grace, are turned into the Lords body: Yet considering he was a bishop of the Greeke church which neuer accepted the Popish heresie of Transubstantiation, his meaning is not of any change in substance, but in vse, of such bread as was offered by the people for the Communion, and to the reliefe of the poore. It is like you are sicke of the disease of the Pharisees, which was couetousnes, (as Chrysostome and Theophylact note) by magnifying the gifts of the altar. — Holines of gifts and altars. Despir. & lit. Cap. 11. Cont. Aduers. legis & prophet. ca. 18. Theophyl. nameth bread, not hostes. Transubstantiation.

RHEM. 8 21. By him that dwelleth therein.) By this we see that swearing by creatures, as by the Gospel, by Saincts, is all referred to the honour of God, whose Gospel it is, whose Saints they are.

FVLKE. 8 By this we see, that in swearing by creatures, we cannot auoyde swearing by God, yet this doeth not iustifie swearing by creatures. For as the auctor of the imperfect worke that goeth vnder Chrysostomes name, saith: Idololatram se facit, &c. He maketh himselfe an Idolater, whosoeuer sweareth by any thing else beside God, & sinneth double, first because he sweareth, and then because he maketh him God, by whom he sweareth. In Mat. Hom. 12. Swearing by creatures also, is condemned by Bede in Mat. 5. — Swearing by creatures.

RHEM. 28. Appeare to men.) Christ might boldly reprehend them so often and so vehemently for hypocrisie, because he knew their hearts and intentions: but we that can not see within men, may not presume to call mens external good doing, hypocrisie: but iudge of men as we see and know.

RHEM. 9 29. Garnish.) Christ blameth not the Iewes for adorning the sepulchres of the Prophets, but enuyeth them of their malice toward him, and of that which by his diuine knowledge he foresaw, that they would accomplish the wickednes of their fathers in shedding his blood, as their fathers did the blood of the Prophets. Hilar.

FVLKE. 9 To garnish the sepulchres of the Prophets moderatly without superstition, is not euil of it selfe, but this hath commonly bene the maner of hypocrites by the subtiltie of Satan, to persecute the Prophets while they liue, and to make Idols of their bodies when they are dead. — The sepulchres of holy men.

CHAP. XXIIII.

To his Disciples (by occasion of Hierusalem and the Temples destruction) hee foretelleth, 4 what things shalbe before the consummation of the world, as specially, 14 the Churches full preaching vnto all nations: 15 then, what shall be in the very consummation, to wit, Antichrist with his passing great persecution and seduction, but for a short time: 29 then incontinent, the Day of iudgement to our great comfort in those miseries vnder Antichrist. 35 As for the moment, so vs it pertaineth not to know it, 37 but rather euery man to watch, that we be not vnprouided when he commeth to each one particularly by death.

THE GOSPEL vpon the last Sunday after Pentecost. Dan.9,27.

15 Therfore when you shall see ‖ the abomination of desolation, which was spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, standing in the holy place (he that readeth, let him vnderstand)

16 Then they that are in Iewrie, let them flee to the mountaines.

17 And he that is on the houſ-top, let him not come downe to take any thing out of his house.

18 And he that is in the field, let him not goe backe to take his coat.

19 And wo to them that are with childe, and that giue sucke in those dayes.

20 But pray that your flight be not in the Winter or on the Sabboth.

21 For there shall be then great tribulation, such as hath not been from the beginning of the world vntill now, neither shall be.

22 And vnlesse those dayes had beene shortned, no flesh should be saued: but for the elect the dayes ‖ shall be shortened.

23 Then if any man shal say vnto you, Lo ‡ here is Christ, or there: do not beleeue him.

24 For there shall rise false-Christes and false-Prophets, and shall shew ‖ great signes and woonders, so that the elect also (if it be possible) may be induced into errour.

25 Loe I haue foretold you.

26 If therfore they shal say vnto you, Behold he is in the desert: goe ye not out: behold ‖ in the closets, beleeue it not.

6 It shall come to passe, that ye shall heare of warres, and rumours of warres: See that you be not troubled: for all these things must come to passe, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation shall rise against nation, and realme against realme, and there shalbe famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in ‖ certeine places. ‖ Some reade euery place.

10 And then shall many bee offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another.

11 And many false prophets shall arise, and shall deceiue many.

12 And because iniquitie shall abound, the loue of many shall waxe colde.

13 But hee that shall endure to the end, the same shalbe saued.

14 And this Gospel of the kingdome shall be preached in all the world, for a witnesse vnto all nations, and then shall the end come.

21 For then shalbe great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor in any wise shalbe.

22 Yea, and except those daies should be shortned, there should no flesh be saued: but for the chosens sake those dayes shalbe shortned.

*23 Then if any man shall say vnto you, * Loe, here is Christ, or there: beleeue it not.* Mar.13.21. luke 17.23.

26 Wherefore, if they shall say vnto you, Beholde, he is in the desert, go not forth: Beholde, he is in the secret places, beleeue it not.

32 And of the figtree learne a parable: when now the bough thereof is tender, and the leaues come foorth, you know that Summer is nigh.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XXIIII.

RHEM. 1 23. Here is Christ.) Whosoeuer draweth Christ or his Church from the communion and fellowship of all nations Christened, to one corner, towne, or countrey, beleeue him not. Aug. de vnit. Ec. c. 3.

FVLKE. 1 Then beleeue not the Papists, for they draw the Church from the fellowship of all nations, to one citie of Rome, or to a piece of Europe, as the Donatists did to a part of Africa.

RHEM. 2 30. The signe of.) The signe of the Sonne of man, is the holy Crosse, which then shall appeare to the Iewes to their confusion. Chrys. in Mat. ho. 77. It shalbe no lesse confusion to heretikes that cannot abide the signe thereof.

FVLKE. 2 S. Hierom & S. Bede say, either the signe of the Crosse, or a banner of triumphant victory. The author of the vnperfect worke in Matth. by conference of the other Euangelist saith, That the signe of Christ, is the very body of Christ, which is to be knowen, by the signe of his body, of them that crucified him. But if it be the sign of the Crosse, it shal be no confusion to them that haue abhorred the superstition and idolatry, committed with the signe of the Crosse: but rather to them which ouerthrow the true Crosse of Christ, that is, the vertue of Christs sacrifice offered vpon the Crosse, which is the onely glory of all true Christians: which thing the Papists doe, by setting vp many altars and a new sacrifice. As for the signe of the Crosse, so it be without superstition, we can abide well enough. The signe of the Crosse.

Chrysostome making a long comparison of these two prophesies of Christ, saith thus: Thou seest in both, his great vnspeakeable power, in that that he increased and built vp them that worshipped him, and those that stumbled at him, he abased, destroyed, and plucked them vp by the roots. Doest thou see how whatsoeuer he hath built, no man shall destroy: and whatsoeuer he hath destroyed, no man shall build? He builded the Church, and no man shalbe able to destroy it: he destroyed the Temple, and no man is able to build it, and that in so long time. For they haue endeuoured both to destroy that, and could not: and they haue attempted to build vp this, and they could not doe that neither, &c.* The Church can neuer faile. Mat. 16. *Li. adu. 4. RHEM. 3 5. I am Christ.) Not onely such as haue named themselues Christ, as Simon, Menander, and such like: but all archheretikes be Christs to their followers, Luther to the Lutherans, Caluin to the Caluinists: because they beleeue them, rather then Christ speaking to his Church.

FVLKE. 3 Luther and Caluin neither named themselues Christ, nor challenged any part of Christes office, or honour to them, but the Pope doth both: aduancing himselfe aboue Christ, in his blasphemous pardons and dispensations, and in controlling of Christes institution. The Pope in his canon law is called God, Lord God, and God aboue all gods, &c.

RHEM. 12. Iniquity abound.) When heresie and false teachers reigne in the world, namely toward the latter day, wicked life aboundeth, and charity decayeth.

RHEM. 4 14. Shalbe preached.) The Gospel hath beene preached of late yeeres, and now is, by holy religious men of diuers Orders, in sundry great countreys which neuer heard the Gospel before, as it is thought. The Gospel now preached to infidels.

Noui orbis.* The like zeale of religion caused them to attempt the inuasion of this land. But God hath rewarded them according to their wickednesse.

RHEM. 5 15. Abomination of desolation.) This abomination of desolation foretolde, was first partly fulfilled in diuers prophanations of the Temple of Hierusalem, when the sacrifice & seruice of God was taken away. but specially it shalbe fulfilled by Antichrist & his precursors, when they shall abolish the holy Masse, which is the sacrifice of Christes body and blood, and the onely souereigne worship due to God in his Church: as S. Hippolytus writeth in these words: The Churches shall lament with great lamentation, because there shall neither oblation be made, nor incense, nor worship gratefull to God. But the sacred houses of Churches shalbe like to cottages, and the precious body and blood of Christ shall not be extant (openly in Churches) in those dayes, the Liturgie (or Masse) shall be extinguished, the Psalmodie shall cease, the reciting of the Scriptures shall not be heard. Hippol. de Antichristo. By which it is plaine that the heretikes of these dayes be the speciall fore-runners of Antichrist. The abomination of desolation. The abolishing of the holy sacrifice of the Masse by Antichrist & his ministers.

FVLKE. 5 This Hippolytus was not that ancient martyr, of whom S. Hierome writeth in Catal. but a latter fantasticall fellow, full of fables concerning Antichrist. That he should be no man, but a deuill in the shape of man, that Iohn the Euangelist shall come with Henoch and Helias, before the comming of Antichrist, that Antichrist shal bring deuils with him in the shape of angels, and command them to cary him vp to heauen, with such like stuffe. Yet he doth not expound this abomination, of the abolishing of the Masse, or the sacrifice thereof, nor speaketh of either of them: but flourishing in words, as his maner is, foresheweth the abolishing of all Christian religion, which shall neuer be, for Christ will continue with his Church to the end of the world.

RHEM. 6 22. Shalbe shortened.) The reigne of Antichrist shalbe short, that is, three yeres & a halfe. Dan. 7. Apo. 11. Therefore the heretikes are blasphemous and ridiculous, that say, Christes Vicar is Antichrist, who hath sitten these 1500 yeres. Antichrist, Chrysostome FVLKE. 6 Chrysostome hom. 77. interpreteth this place of the calamitie of the Iewes, which should haue bene all destroyed, through the great hatred and indignation of the Romans, and the text is plaine, agreeing with his exposition. Yet is the time of Antichrist but short, in comparison of the eternall kingdome of Christ, as the whole time, betweene the Ascension of Christ, and his second comming, in the same respect, is called short. But that the reigne of Antichrist shall be but three yeeres and an halfe, is neither sayd by Daniel, nor Iohn: For the same time, that S. Iohn calleth 42 moneths, in the same Chapter he calleth three dayes and an halfe, and afterward 1260 dayes, and a time, times, and halfe a time, that is, halfe a prophetical weake, for the comfort of the godly. Yet may not these dayes and yeeres, be counted after our vsuall measure of time: for that were absurd, and impossible. The reigne of Antichrist. Cap. 12.

RHEM. 24. Great signes.) These signes and miracles shalbe to the outward appearance onely, for S. Paul calleth them lying signes, to seduce them onely that shall perish. Whereby we see that if heretikes could worke fained and forged miracles, yet we ought not to beleeue them, much lesse when they cannot so much as seeme to do any.* 2. Thess. 2.

RHEM. 7 26. In closets.) Christ hauing made the Churches authority bright & clere to the whole world, warneth the faithfull to take heed of heretikes and schismatikes, which haue their conuenticles aside in certaine odde places and obscure corners, allurring curious persons vnto them. Aug. li. 1. q. Euang. q. 38. *For as for the comming together of Catholikes to serue God in secret places, that is a necessary thing in time of persecution, and was vsed of Christians for three hundred yeeres together after Christ, * and the Apostles also and Disciples came so together in Hierusalem for feare of the Iewes. And Catholikes doe the same at this day in our countrey, not drawing religion into corners from the society of the Catholike Church, but practising secretly the same faith, that in all Christendome shineth and appeareth most gloriously.* The secret conuenticles of heretikes. Catholike Christians secret assembling in time of persecution. *Act. 1, 12.

FVLKE. 7 The Church of God had no glorious shew in the sight of the world, for three hundred yeeres after Christ, when they came together in secret places, to serue God. Therefore, the glorious pompe of Popery in Italie, Spaine, or France, is not the bright and cleere authority of the Church, whereof S. Augustine speaketh. For that the Church wanted not for three hundred yeeres together after Christ, but in the middest of the hottest persecution, reteined the same bright and cleere authority, amongst all true Christians. The Church hidden. The glittering of the Popish Church.

RHEM. 8 29. Immediatly.) If the latter day shal immediatly follow the persecution of Antichrist, which is to endure but three yeres and a halfe, as is aforesayd: then is it meere blasphemy to say, Gods Vicar is Antichrist, and that (by their owne limitation) these thousand yeeres almost. Antichrist.

FVLKE. 8 You haue sayd, that the persecution of Antichrist, should endure but three yeeres and a halfe, but you are neuer able to proue it of vsuall yeeres, therefore it is no blasphemy to say, the Pope is Antichrist, though his tyrannie hath continued almost a thousand yeeres. But rather it is blasphemy, to say the Pope is Gods Vicar: for that importeth God and Christ to be absent from his Church. Otherwise the holy Ghost supplieth the want of his bodily presence, vntill he come againe to iudgement. Antichrist.

CHAP. XXV.

Continuing his Sermon, he bringeth two parables, of ten Virgins, and of Talents, to shew how it shalbe in Domesday with the faithfull that prepare, and that prepare not themselues. 31 Then also without parables he sheweth that such faithfull as do works of mercy, shall haue for them life euerlasting: and such as do not, euerlasting damnation.

THE GOSPEL for holy virgins.

THEN shal the kingdome of heauen be like to ten ‖ virgins: which taking their ‖ lamps went foorth to meet the bridegrome and the bride.

2 And fiue of them were fooliſh, and fiue wiſe.

3 But the fiue fooliſh, hauing taken their lamps, did not take ‖ oile with them:

4 But the wiſe did take oile in their veſſels with the lamps.

5 And the bridegrome tarying long, they ſlumbered all and ſlept.

6 And at midnight there was a clamour made, Behold the bridegrome commeth, go ye forth to meet him.

7 Then aroſe all thoſe virgins: and they trimmed their lamps.

8 And the fooliſh ſaid to the wiſe, Giue vs of † your oile: becauſe our lamps are going out.

9 The wiſe anſwered, ſaying, Leſt peraduenture there ſuffice not for vs & you, go rather to them that ſell: and buy for your ſelues.

10 And whiles they went to buy, the bridegrome was come: and they that were ready, entred with him to the mariage, and the gate was ſhut.

11 But laſt of all come alſo the other virgins, ſaying: Lord, Lord, open to vs.

12 But he anſwering ſayd, Amen I ſay to you, I know you not.

THen ſhall the kingdome of heauen be likened vnto ten virgins, which when they had taken their lamps, went foorth to meet the bridegrome.

2 But fiue of them were wiſe, and fiue were fooliſh.

3 They that were fooliſh, when they had taken their lamps, tooke none oile with them:

4 But the wiſe tooke oile in their veſſels, with their lamps alſo.

5 While the bridegrome taried, they all ſlumbred and ſlept.

6 And euen at midnight there was a crie made, Beholde, the bridgrome commeth, goe ye out to meet him.

7 Then all thoſe virgins aroſe, and prepared their lamps.

8 So the fooliſh ſayd vnto the wiſe, Giue vs of your oile, for our lamps are gone out.

9 But the wiſe anſwered, ſaying, Not ſo, leſt there be not enough for vs and you: but goe yee rather to them that ſell, and buy for your ſelues.

10 And while they went to buy, the bridegrome came, and they that were ready, went in with him to the mariage, and the doore was ſhut vp.

11 Afterward came alſo the other virgins, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open to vs.

12 But he anſwered, and ſaid, Verily I ſay vnto you, I know you not.

13 Watch 13 Watch*

13 Watch ye therfore, because you know not the day nor the houre.

Luc.19,12. THE GOSPEL for a Confessour that is a Bishop.

14 For *euen as a man going into a strange countrey, called his seruants, and deliuered them his goods.

15 And to one he gaue fiue talents, and to an other two, and to an other one, to euery one according to his proper facultie: and immediatly he tooke his iourney.

16 And hee that had receiued the fiue talents, went his way, and occupied with the same, and gained other fiue.

17 Likewise also he that had receiued the two, gained other two.

18 But he that had receiued the one, going his way digged into the earth, and hidde his lords money.

19 But after much time the lord of those seruants commeth, and made a count with them.

20 And there came he that had receiued the fiue talents, and offred other fiue talents, saying, Lord fiue talents thou didst deliuer mee, beholde ‡ I haue gained other fiue besides.

21 His lord said vnto him; Wel fare thee good and faithfull seruant, because thou hast bene faithfull ouer a few things, I will place thee ouer many things: enter into the ioy of thy lord.

22 And there came also hee that had receiued the two talents, and said, Lord two talents thou didst deliuer mee: beholde I haue gained other two.

23 His lord sayd to him, Well fare thee good and faithfull seruant: because thou hast beene faithfull ouer a few things, I will place thee ouer many things, enter into the ioy of thy lord.

24 And he also that had receiued the one talent, came foorth, and said, Lord, I knowe that thou art a hard man, thou reapest where thou diddest not sowe: and gathered where thou strawedst not:

25 And being afraid I went, and hid thy talent in the earth: behold loe here thou hast that which thine is.

26 And his lord answering, sayd to him ‡ Naughtie and slothfull seruant, thou didst know that I reape where I sowe not, and gather where I strawed not:

‡ A terrible example for al such as do not employ the very least gift of God, to his glory.

27 Thou oughtest therfore to haue committed my money to the bankers, and comming I might haue receiued mine owne ‖ with vsurie.

28 Take ye away therfore the talent from him, and giue it him that hath ten talents.

Mt.13,12. Lu.8,18.

29 For to *euery one that hath shalbe giuen, and he shall abound: but from him that hath not, that also which ‖ hee seemeth to haue, shalbe taken away from him.

30 And the vnprofitable seruant cast yee out

13 *Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day, nor yet the houre, wherein the sonne of man commeth. Matt.24.42. mar.13.33.

14 *Likewise, as when a certaine man taking his iourney into a strange countrey, called his owne seruants, and deliuered vnto them his goods. Luke 19.12.

15 And vnto one hee gaue fiue talents, to an other two, and to an other one, to euery man after his abilitie, and straightway tooke his iourney.

16 Then he that had receiued the fiue talents, went and occupied with the same, & made them other fiue talents.

17 And likewise he that had receiued two, he also gained other two.

18 But hee that had receiued one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his lords money.

19 After a long season, the lord of those seruants commeth, and reckoneth with them.

20 And so he that had receiued fiue talents, came and brought other fiue talents, saying, Lord, thou deliueredst vnto mee fiue talents: beholde, I haue gained besides them, fiue talents moe.

21 His lord sayde vnto him, Well done, thou good and faithfull seruant, thou hast bene faithfull ouer fewe things, I will make thee ruler ouer many things: enter thou into the ioy of thy lord.

22 Hee also that had receiued two talents, came, and sayd, Lord, thou deliueredst vnto mee two talents: beholde, I haue wonne two other talents beside them.

23 His lorde sayd vnto him, Well done, good and faithfull seruant, thou hast beene faithfull ouer fewe things, I will make thee ruler ouer many things: enter thou into the ioy of thy lord.

24 Then he which had receiued the one talent, came, and sayd, Lord, I knewe thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sowen, and gathering where thou hast not strawed.

25 And therfore was I afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that thine is.

26 His lord answered, and sayde vnto him, Thou euill and slouthfull seruant, thou knewest that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I haue not strawed:

27 Thou oughtest therefore to haue deliuered my money to the exchangers, and then at my comming should I haue receiued mine owne with vantage.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and giue it vnto him which hath ten talents.

29 *For vnto euery one that hath, shalbe giuen, and he shall haue abundance: but from him that hath not, shalbe taken away, euen that which he hath. Matt.13.12. mar.4.25.

out into the vtter darkenesse. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

31 And when the Sonne of man shall come in his maiestie, and all the Angels with him, then shall he sit vpon the seat of his maiestie:

32 And all nations shall be gathered together before him, and hee shall ‖ separate them one from an other, as the pastour separateth the sheepe from the goats:

33 And shall set the sheepe at his right hand, but the goats at his left.

34 Then shall the king say to them that shall be at his right hand, Come yee blessed of my Father, possesse you the kingdome ‖ prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

35 For I was an hungred, and ‖ you gaue me to eat: I was a thirst, and you gaue me to drinke:

36 I was a stranger, and you tooke mee in: naked, and you couered mee: sicke, and you visited me. I was in prison, and you came to me.

37 Then shal the iust answer him, saying: Lord, when did we see thee an hungred, and fed thee: a thirst, and gaue thee drinke?

38 And when did we see thee a stranger, and tooke thee in? or naked, and couered thee?

39 Or when did wee see thee sicke or in prison: and came to thee?

40 And the king answering, shall say to them, Amen I say to you, as long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to me.

41 Then hee shall say to them also that shall be at his left hand, ‖ Get you away from mee you cursed into fire euerlasting, which was prepared for the Deuill and his angels.

42 For I was an hungred, and you ‖ gaue mee not to eat: I was a thirst, and you gaue me not to drinke:

43 I was a stranger, & you tooke me not in: naked, and you couered me not: sicke, and in prison, and you did not visit me.

44 Then they also shall answere him, saying, Lord, when did we see thee an hungred, or a thirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sicke, or in prison, and did not minister to thee?

45 Then he shal answer them, saying, Amen I say to you, as long as you did it not to one of these least, neither did you it to me.

46 And these shall go into punishment euerlasting: but the iust, into life euerlasting.

vtter darkenesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

31 When the Sonne of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy Angels with him, then shall he sit vpon the throne of his glory.

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations, and hee shall separate them one from another, as a shepheard diuideth his sheepe from the goats.

33 And hee shall set the sheepe on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the king say vnto them which shall be on his right hand, Come yee blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdome, which hath beene prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

*35 For I was an hungred, and yee gaue me meat: I was thirstie, and yee gaue me drinke: I was a stranger, and ye tooke me in. Esay 58.7. ezech.18.7.

*36 Naked, and ye clothed me: * I was sicke, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and yee came vnto me.* Eccl.7.39.

38 When saw wee thee a stranger, and tooke thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw wee thee sicke, or in prison, and came vnto thee?

40 And the king shall answere, and say vnto them, Verily I say vnto you, in as much as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me.

*41 Then shall hee say also vnto them on the left hand, Depart from mee, yee cursed, into the euerlasting fire, which is prepared for the deuill and his angels. Psal.6.9. mat.7.23. luk.13.27.

43 I was a stranger, and ye tooke me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sicke, and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answere him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or a thirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sicke, or in prison, and did not minister vnto thee?

45 Then shall hee answere them, saying, Verily I say vnto you, in as much as yee did it not to one of the least of these, yee did it not to me.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XXV.

RHEMI. S. Your dile.] If wee be not in the fauour of God, and haue not our sweet mayster, wee shall not be holpen by other mens deserts at the day of iudgement.

FVLKE. I Christians are in the fauour of God, through the merits of Christ. And their iustice consisteth not of their owne merit, but of the mercy of God. Hierom. cont. Pelag. lib. 1. When the reward shall come, he will crowne his gifts, not thy merits, sayth S. Augustine, In Psal. 70. Conc. 2. Merit, RHEM. 2 20. I haue gained.) Freewill with Gods grace doth merit.

FVLKE. 2 The will, the worke, and the fruit thereof, and faith from whence it floweth, are all the gifts of God, and no merit of man. Our Lord and Sauiour, according to his mercy (sayth Didymus) giueth vs all things that may bring vs to saluation. Lib. 2. De Sp. sanct. in fine. Freewill.

RHEM. 3 34. Prepared for.) This kingdome then is prepared for those onely that do good works: as Christ also signifieth elswhere, saying that it is not in his power to giue it otherwise. See the annot. c. 20, 23.

FVLKE. 3 This kingdome is prepared for the elect of God, who if they liue vntill by hearing of the word of God, they may haue faith, they are alwayes fruitfull of good works, though not of these here named. For Lazarus the begger, was not able to feed, clothe, or harbour Christ, yet was he full of faith, patience, humility, prayers, &c. Good works.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXV.

RHEM. 4 1. Virgins.) These virgins fiue wise, and fiue foolish, signifie that in the Church militant there be good and bad: which had shalbe shut out at the latter day, although they haue lamps (that is faith) as the other, because their lamps are out, that is, their faith is dead without charity and good works to lighten them. Greg. ho. 12. Good works necessary.

FVLKE. 4 They that haue a dead faith, void of good works, whether the lampe signifie faith or charity, shall not be admitted into the kingdome of heauen. A dead faith.

RHEM. 1. Lamps.) These lamps lighted, be good works, namely of mercy, and the laudable conuersation which shineth before men. Aug. epi. 120. c. 33.

3. Oile.) This oile is the right inward intention directing our works to Gods glory, and not to the praise of our selues in the sight of men. Aug. epi. 120. c. 33. Right intention.

27. With vsurie.) Vsury is heere taken for the lawfull gaine that a man getteth by well imploying his goods, when God giueth vs any talents or talents, he looketh for vsury, that is, for spirituall increase of the same by our diligence and industry.

29. That which he seemeth to haue.) He is sayd to haue Gods gifts, that vseth them, and to such an one God will increase his gifts. He that vseth them not, seemeth to haue, rather then hath them. and from him God will withdraw that which before he gaue. We must vse Gods gifts.

32. Separate.) Loe here is the separation, for in the Church militant they liued both together. As for heretikes, they went out of the Church before, and separated themselues, and therefore are not to be separated here, as being iudged already. Good and bad in the Church.

RHEM. 5 34. Come ye. 41. get ye away.) It is no incongruity that God should say, Goe into euerlasting fire, to them that by their free will haue repelled his mercy: and to the other, Come ye blessed of my father, take the kingdome prepared for them, that by their free will haue receiued faith, and confessed their sinnes and done penance. Aug. lib. 2. ad. cum Fel. Manich. cap. 8. Heauen is the reward of good works, and Hell of the contrary.

FVLKE. 5 S. Augustine, as he confesseth in his retractations, hauing to doe against the Manichees, which held that men were of euill will, by creation of the euill god, defendeth the freedome of will from coaction by nature, and not from the thraldome of sinne through the first mans fall. For euen in the same chapter, he writeth vpon the saying of S. Paul, I see another law in my members, resisting the law of my minde, and bringing me captiue vnder the law of sinne, which is in my members. It is manifest that this came of the propagation of the first sinne of Adam, and of euill custome. Againe, that they haue all goodnesse onely of God, in the same place he sheweth, where he saith, of those that by free-will haue receiued the faith of Christ. They haue confessed their sinnes, repented, displeased themselues, such as they haue bene, and haue pleased him, being such as they were made by him. Free-will.

RHEM. 6 35. You gaue me.) Hereby we see how much almes-deeds and all works of mercy preuaile towards life euerlasting, and to blot out former sinnes. Aug. in pl. 49.

FVLKE. 6 You falsifie S. Augustine, he hath no such saying vpon that Psalme, but contrariwise he saith, Hoc sacrificium, &c. This is the sacrifice of praise, to giue thanks to him of whom thou hast what good soeuer thou hast, and by whose mercy, whatsoeuer euill thou hast of thine owne, is forgiuen thee. Also against merit of works he is plentifull vpon that Psalme: yea euen where he saith, The widow bought as much for two mites, as Peter leauing his nets, as Zacheus giuing halfe his patrimony. The kingdome of heauen is so much worth, as thou hast: meaning, that God regardeth not the value of the worke, as an equall price, for the kingdome which he giueth, of his meere and free grace, to his elect. Merit.

RHEM. 7 42. Gaue me not.) Hee chargeth them not here that they beleeued not, but that they did not good works. For such did beleeue, but they cared not for good works, as though by dead faith they might haue come to heauen. Aug. de fid. & op. cap. 15. & ad Dulcit. q. 2 to. 4.

FVLKE. 7 A liuely faith that doeth iustifie, is alwayes fruitfull of good works, and as S. Augustine saith, A good life is inseparable from that faith which worketh by loue. De fide & oper. cap. 24. A liuely faith.

CHAP. XXVI.

*To the Councell of the Iewes, Iudas by occasion of Mary Magdalens ointment, doth sell him for little. 17 After the Paschal lambe, 26 hee giueth them that bread of life (promised Io. 6.) in * a mysticall Sacrifice or Separation of his Body and Blood. 31 And that night he is after his prayer 47 taken of the Iewes men, Iudas being their captaine: and forsaken of the other eleuen for feare: 57 is falsely accused, and impiously condemned of the Iewes Councell, 67 and shamefully abused of them: 69 and thrise denied of Peter: All, euen as the Scriptures and himselfe had often foretolde.*

FVLKE. * Not the sacrifice of the masse.

HOLY WEEKE. The Passion according to S. Matthew in these two chapters, is the Gospel at Masse vpon Palmesunday. TENEBRE wednesday. Mar. 14, 1. Luc. 22, 1.

AND it came to passe, when IESVS had ended all these wordes, hee saide to his Disciples,

2 You know that after two dayes shalbe Pasche, and the Sonne of man shalbe deliuered to be crucified.

3 Then were gathered together the chiefe Priests and Ancients of the people into the court of the high Priest, who was called Caiphas:

4 And they consulted how they might by some wile apprehend IESVS, and kil him.

5 But

AND it came to passe, when Iesus had finished all these things, he sayd vnto his disciples,

*2 Ye know that after two dayes is the feast of Passeouer, and the Sonne of man is betrayed to be crucified. Mar. 14. 1. luke 22. 1.

*3 Then assembled together the chiefe Priests and the Scribes, and the Elders of the people vnto the palace of the high Priest, which was called Caiaphas, Iohn 11. 47.

4 And held a councell, that they might take Iesus subtilly, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the festiuall day, lest perhaps there might be a tumult among the people.

6 And * when IESVS was in Bethania in the house of Simon the Leper,

7 There came to him a woman having an alabaster-boxe of precious ointment, and powred it out vpon his head as he sate at the table.

8 And the Disciples seeing it, had indignation saying, whereto is ‖ this waste?

9 For this might haue beene solde for much, and giuen to the poore.

10 And IESVS knowing it, said to them: why do you molest this woman? for she hath wrought a ‖ good worke vpon me.

11 For the poore you haue alwayes with you: but me ‖ you haue not alwayes.

12 For she in powring this ointment vpon my body: hath done it to burie me.

13 Amen I say to you, whersoeuer this Gospel shalbe preached in the whole world, that also which she hath done, ‡ shall be reported for a memorie of her.

14 * Then went one of the Twelue, which was called Iudas Iscarioth, to the chiefe Priests,

15 And said to the, what will ye giue me, and I will deliuer him vnto you? But they appointed vnto him thirtie pieces of siluer.

16 And from thenceforth he sought opportunitie to betray him.

17 And * the first day of the Azymes the Disciples came to IESVS, saying, where wilt thou that wee prepare for thee to eate the Pasche?

18 But IESVS said, Goe ye into the citie to a certaine man: and say to him, The Master saith, My time is at hand, with thee doe I make the Pasche with my Disciples.

19 And the Disciples did as IESVS appointed them, and they prepared the Pasche.

20 But when it was euen, hee sate downe with his ‖ twelue Disciples.

21 And while they were eating, he said: Amen I say to you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they being very sad, began euery one to say, Is it I Lord?

23 But he answering said; * He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, he shal betray me:

24 The Sonne of man in deed goeth as it is written of him: but wo be to that man, by whom the Sonne of man shalbe betrayed. It were good for him, if that man had not bene borne.

25 And Iudas that betrayed him, answering said, Is it I Rabbi? He saith to him, Thou hast said.

26 And * whiles they were at supper, IESVS ‖ tooke bread, and ‖ blessed, and brake: and 5 But they sayd, Not on the feast day, lest there be an vprore among the people.

*6 * When Iesus was in Bethanie, in the house of Simon the leper,* Mar.14.3. iohn 12.2.

7 There came vnto him a woman, hauing an alabaster boxe of precious ointment, and powred it on his head as he sate at the boord.

8 But when his Disciples sawe it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste?

9 This ointment might haue bene solde for much, and giuen to the poore.

10 When Iesus vnderstood that, he sayd vnto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for shee hath wrought a good worke vpon me.

*11 * For ye haue the poore alwayes with you, but me ye haue not alwayes.* Deut.15.11.

12 For in that this woman hath cast this ointment on my body, she did it to burie me.

13 Verily I say vnto you, Whersoeuer this Gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this that this woman hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

*14 * Then one of the twelue, called Iudas Iscariot, went vnto the chiefe priests,* Mar.14.10. luke 22.4.

15 And said vnto them, What wil ye giue me, and I will deliuer him vnto you? And they appointed vnto him thirtie siluer pieces, 16 And from that time foorth, he sought opportunitie to betray him.

*17 * The first day of Sweet bread, the disciples came to Iesus, saying vnto him, Where wilt thou that wee shall prepare for thee to eate the Passeouer?* Mar.14.12. luke 22.7.

18 And he sayd, Goe into the citie to such a man, and say vnto him, The master saith, My time is at hand, I make the Passeouer at thy house with my disciples.

19 And the Disciples did as Iesus had appointed them, and they made ready the Passeouer.

*20 * When the Euen was come, he sate downe with the twelue.* Mar.14.8. luke 22.14. iohn 13.21.

21 And as they did eat, he sayd, Verily I say vnto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they being exceeding sorrowfull, began euery one of them to say vnto him, Lord, is it I?

23 He answered and said, He that hath dipped his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me.

24 The sonne of man truly goeth as it is written of him: but woe vnto that man by whom the sonne of man is betrayed: It had beene good for that man if he had not bene borne.

25 Then Iudas, which betrayed him, answered, and said, Master, is it I? He said vnto him, Thou hast said.

*26 When they were eating, * Iesus, when he had taken the bread, and giuen thanks, he brake* 1.Cor.11.24.

and he gaue to his Disciples, and sayd, Take ye, and eat: ‖ THIS IS ‖ MY BODY.

27 And taking the chalice, ‖ hee gaue thanks: and gaue to them, saying: Drinke ‡ ye all of this.

‡See the margent note, Mar. 14, 23.

28 For THIS IS ‖ MY BLOOD OF THE NEW TESTAMENT, WHICH SHALL BE SHED FOR MANY VNTO REMISSION OF SINNES.

THVRSDAY night.

30 And an hymne being said, they went forth vnto Mount-oliuet.

The NOCTVRN of Mattins in the Churches seruice, answereth to this night part of our Sauiours passion, & so consequently the other Canonicall houres to the rest. Zach. 13, 7.

31 Then IESVS saith to them, All you shall be scandalized in me, in this night. For it is written, I will strike the pastour, & the sheepe of the flocke shalbe dispersed.

32 But after I shall be risen againe, I will goe before you into Galilee.

33 And Peter answering, said to him, Although all shall be scandalized in thee, I will neuer be scandalized.

34 IESVS said to him, Amen I say to thee, that in this night before the cocke crow, thou shalt denie me thrise.

Io. 13, 38.

35 *Peter saith to him, Yea, though I should die with thee, I will not denie thee. Likewise also said all the Disciples.

36 Then IESVS commeth with them into a village called Gethsemani: and hee said to his Disciples, Sit you here till I go yonder, and pray.

37 And taking to him Peter and the two sonnes of Zebedee, he began to waxe sorowfull, and to be sad.

38 Then he saith to them: My soule is sorowfull euen vnto death: stay here, & watch with me.

39 And being gone forward a litle, he fel vpon his face, praying, and saying, My father, if it be possible, let this chalice passe from me. neuertheless ‖ not as I will, but as thou.

40 And he commeth to his disciples, and findeth them sleeping, and he saith to Peter, Euen so? Coulde you not watch one houre with me?

41 ‖ Watch ye, and pray that ye enter not into tentation. The spirit in deed is prompt, but the flesh weake.

42 Againe the second time he went, and prayed, saying, My father, if this chalice may not passe, but I must drink it, thy wil be done.

43 And he commeth againe, and findeth them sleeping: for their eyes were become heauie.

44 And leauing them, he went againe: and he prayed the third time, saying the selfe same word.

45 Then hee commeth to his Disciples, and saith to them, Sleepe ye now and take rest:

it and gaue it to the Disciples, and sayd, Take ye, eat ye, this is my body.

27 And when he had taken the cup, and giuen thanks, he gaue it them, saying, Drinke ye all of it:

28 For this is my Blood of the Newe Testament, that is shed for many for the remission of sinnes.

29 But I say vnto you, I will in no wise drinke hencefoorth of this fruit of the vine-tree, vntill that day when I drinke it new with you in my Fathers kingdome.

30 And when they had praised God, they went out vnto the mount of Oliues.

*31 * Then saith Iesus vnto them, All ye shall be offended because of mee this night: For it is written, * I will smite the shepheard, & the sheepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abroad.* Mar. 14, 27. iohn 16, 30. Zach. 13, 7.

*32 But after I am risen againe, * I will go before you into Galilee.* Mar. 14, 28. and 16, 7.

33 Peter answered, & said vnto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I neuer be offended.

*34 Iesus sayd vnto him, * Verily I say vnto thee, that in this same night before the cocke crow, thou shalt denie me thrise.* Iohn 13, 38.

35 Peter said vnto him, Though I should die with thee, yet will I by no maner of meanes denie thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

*36 * Then commeth Iesus with them vnto a place called Gethsemane, and sayeth vnto the Desciples, Sit yee there while I goe and pray yonder.* Mar. 14, 32. luke 22, 39.

37 And when he had taken with him Peter, and the two sonnes of Zebedee, he began to be sorowfull and heauie.

38 Then sayd Iesus vnto them, My soule is exceeding heauie, euen vnto the death: tary ye here, and watch with me.

39 And when hee had gone a little further, he fell flat on his face, praying, and saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cuppe passe from me: neuertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

40 And hee commeth vnto the Disciples, and findeth them asleepe, and sayeth vnto Peter, What, could yee not watch with mee one houre?

41 Watch and pray, that yee enter not into temptation: The spirit in deed is willing, but the flesh is weake.

42 Hee went away againe the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not passe away from me, except I drinke it, thy will be fulfilled.

43 And when hee came, he findeth them asleepe againe: for their eyes were heauie.

44 And hee left them, and went againe and prayed the third time, saying the same wordes.

45 Then commeth hee to his Disciples, and sayeth vnto them, Sleepe hencefoorth, and reſt: beholde the houre approcheth, and the Sonne of man ſhalbe betraied into the hands of ſinners.

46 Riſe, let vs go: behold he approcheth that ſhall betray me.

Io.18,3. 47 *As he yet ſpake, behold Iudas one of the Twelue came, and with him a great multitude with ſwords and clubs, ſent from the chiefe Prieſts & the Ancients of the people.

48 And he that betrayed him, gaue them a ſigne, ſaying, Whomſoeuer I ſhal kiſſe, that is he, holde him.

49 And foorthwith comming to IESVS, he ſaid, Haile Rabbi. And he kiſſed him.

50 And IESVS ſaid to him, Frend, whereto art thou come? Then they drew neere, and laid hands on IESVS, and held him.

51 And beholde one of them that were with IESVS, ſtretching forth his hand, drew out his ſword: and ſtriking the ſeruant of the high Prieſt, cut off his eare.

52 Then IESVS ſaith to him, Returne thy ſword into his place: for all that take the ſword, ſhall periſh with the ſword.

53 Thinkeſt thou that I cannot aske my Father: and hee will giue me preſently more then twelue legions of Angels?

54 How then ſhall the Scriptures bee fulfilled, that ſo it muſt be done?

55 In that houre IESVS ſaid to the multitudes: You are come out as it were to a thiefe with ſwords and clubs to apprehend mee: I ſate dayly with you teaching in the temple: and you laid no hands on me.

56 And all this was done, that the Scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. Thē the diſciples all leauing him, fled.

57 But they taking hold of IESVS led him to Caiphas the high Prieſt, where the Scribes and Ancients were aſſembled.

58 And Peter followed him a farre off, euen to the court of the high Prieſt. And going in he ſate with the ſeruants, that he might ſee the end.

59 And the chiefe Prieſts and the whole Councell ſought falſe witneſſe againſt IESVS, that they might put him to death:

60 And they found not, whereas many falſe witneſſes had come in. And laſt of all there came two falſe witneſſes:

Io.2,19. 61 And they ſaid, *This man ſayd, I am able to deſtroy the temple of God, and after three dayes to reedifie it.

62 And the high Prieſt riſing vp, ſayd to him: Anſwereſt thou nothing to the things which theſe doe teſtifie againſt thee?

63 But IESVS held his peace. And the high Prieſt ſaid to him: I adiure thee by the liuing God, that thou tell vs if thou be Chriſt the Sonne of God.

64 IESVS ſaith to him, Thou haſt ſaide. neuertheleſſe I ſay to you, hereafter you ſhall ſee take your reſt, beholde, the houre is at hand, and the ſonne of man is betrayed into the hands of ſinners.

46 Riſe, let vs be going: behold, he is at hand that doth betray me.

*47 While he yet ſpake, loe, Iudas one of the twelue came, and with him a great multitude with ſwordes and ſtaues from the chiefe Prieſts and Elders of the people. Mar.14.43. luke 22.47. iohn 18.3.

48 But he that betrayed him, gaue them a token, ſaying, Whomſoeuer I ſhall kiſſe, that ſame is he, holde him faſt.

49 And foorthwith when hee came to Ieſus, he ſayd, Haile maſter: and kiſſed him.

50 And Ieſus ſaid vnto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and layde hands on Ieſus, and tooke him.

51 And behold, one of them which were with Ieſus, ſtretched out his hand, and drew his ſword, and after that hee had ſtriken a ſeruant of the high Prieſts, he ſmote off his eare.

*52 Then ſayd Ieſus vnto him, Turne backe thy ſword into his place: for all they that take the ſword, ſhall periſh with the ſword. Gene.9.6. apoc.13.10

53 Thinkeſt thou that I can not now pray to my father, and he ſhall cauſe to ſtand by me more then twelue legions of Angels?

*54 But how then ſhall the Scriptures be fulfilled, * that thus it muſt be?* Eſa.53.10

55 In that ſame houre ſayd Ieſus to the multitudes, Yee be come out as it were vnto a thiefe with ſwords and ſtaues for to take me: I ſate dayly with you teaching in the temple, and ye tooke me not.

*56 But all this was done that the Scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. * Then all the diſciples hauing forſaken him, fled.* Lamen.4.20. mat.20.31.

58 But Peter followed him afarre off, vnto the hie Prieſts palace, and went in, and ſate with the ſeruants to ſee the end.

*59 The chiefe Prieſts and Elders, and all the Councell, ſought falſe witneſſe againſt Ieſus, to put him to death, Mar.14.55.

60 But found none: yea, when many falſe witneſſes came, yet found they none. At the laſt came two falſe witneſſes,

*61 And ſayd, This fellow ſaid, I am able to deſtroy the Temple of God, and to build it in three dayes. Iohn 2.19.

62 And the chiefe prieſt aroſe, and ſayd vnto him, Anſwereſt thou nothing? What is that which theſe witneſſe againſt thee?

63 But Ieſus held his peace. And the chiefe prieſt anſwered, and ſaid vnto him, I charge thee by the liuing God, that thou tell vs whether thou be Chriſt the ſonne of God?

65 Then the hie Prieſt rent his garments, ſaying, Hee hath blaſphemed, what need we witneſſes any further? behold, now you haue heard the blaſphemie, 66 How thinke you? But they anſwering ſaid, He is guiltie of death.

67 Then did they ſpit on his face, & buffeted him, and other ſmote his face with the palmes of their hands,

68 Saying, Propheſie vnto vs O Chriſt: Who is he that ſtrooke thee?

69 But Peter ſate without in the court: and there came to him one ‖ wench, ſaying: Thou alſo waſt with IESVS the Galilean.

70 But he denied before them all, ſaying, I wot not what thou ſayeſt.

71 And as hee went out of the gate, an other wench ſaw him, and ſhe ſaith to them that were there, And this felow alſo was with IESVS the Nazarite.

72 And againe hee denied with an othe, That I know not the man.

73 And after a litle they came that ſtood by, and ſaid to Peter, Surely thou alſo art of them: for euen thy ſpeech doth bewray thee.

66 What thinke yee? They anſwered and ſayd, He is worthy to die.

72 And againe he denied with an othe, I do not know the man.

73 And after a while came vnto him they that ſtood by, and ſayd to Peter, Surely thou art euen one of them: for thy ſpeech bewrayeth thee.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XXVI.

RHEM. 1 13. Shalbe reported.) Hereby we learne that the good works of Saints are to be recorded and ſet forth to their honor in the Church after their death. Whereof riſe their holy dayes and commemorations.

FVLKE. 1 The good workes of Saints may be recorded and ſet foorth in the Church to the honour of God, without their holy dayes and commemorations. For Chriſt inſtituted no holy day of Mary Magdalen, nor any ſuch matter, as the Popiſh commemorations are, nor commanded any image of her fact to be made, but a memorie by preaching the Goſpel. Saints holy dayes.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXVI.

RHEM. 2 8. This waſte.) Coſt beſtowed vpon Chriſtes body then aliue, being to the ſame not neceſſary, ſeemed to the diſciples loſt and fruitleſſe: ſo the like beſtowed vpon the ſame body in the Sacrament, vpon altars, or Churches, ſeemeth to the ſimple loſt, or leſſe meritorious, then if the ſame were beſtowed vpon the poore. Coſt vpon Churches, altars, &c.

FVLKE. 2 That which the woman did by ſpeciall inſtinct of the ſpirit of God, was by Gods appointment neceſſary to to teſtifie his buriall to be at hand. As for the coſt beſtowed vpon the Popiſh Sacrament, ſuppoſe it were the ſame body of Chriſt, yet hauing no maner of vſe of ſuch things, nor he requiring any ſuch thing to be beſtowed on it, were loſt, and might be much better imployed on the poore: whom from this time forward, he commandeth to be fed, clothed, harboured in his ſtead. For he ſhall not ſay, Whatſoeuer ye beſtowed vpon the Sacrament, altars, Churches, &c. But, Whatſoeuer ye did to any of theſe litle ones, ye did it to me. On Churches whatſoeuer is more then for conuenience and comlines, were better beſtowed on the poore that need it. Church ornaments.

RHEM. 3 10. Good works.) *Coſt beſtowed for religion, deuotion, and ſignification, is a meritorious worke, and often more meritorious then to giue to the poore, though both be very good, and in ſome caſe the poore are to be preferred: yea * in certaine caſes of neceſſity, the Church will breake the very conſecrated veſſels and iewels of ſilner and gold, and beſtow them in works of mercy. But we may remember very well, and our fathers knew it much better, that the poore were then beſt relieued, when moſt was beſtowed vpon the Church.* Relieſe of the poore. Ambroſ. li. 2. Off. c. 28.

FVLKE. 3 The worke which the woman did by ſpeciall inſtinct of Gods ſpirit, was a good worke, but not meritorious. As for the ſuperſtitious works of them that beautifie idolatrie with their riches, is neither good, nor meritorious. That which Ambroſe did, the Popiſh Church will not do: for he brake the veſſels vſed in the myſteries, to redeeme the captiues, and ſaith, The Church hath golde, not to keepe it, but to giue it out, and to helpe in neceſſities. What need we to keepe that which helpeth nothing. Yet with Papiſts, gay and precious ſhewes helpe much to deuotion. Yet Ambroſe ſaith further in the perſon of Chriſt: The Sacraments require no golde, neither doe they pleaſe me in gold which are not bought with gold, the ornaments of Sacraments, is the redemption of captiues. If the Papiſts breake their chalices, it ſhalbe rather to mainteine war againſt the profeſſours of the Goſpel, then to redeeme Chriſtian captiues out of the hand of the Turks and miſcreants. Where you ſay the poore were beſt relieued, when Church ornaments. Relieſe of the poore.

nion was bestowed on Churches, it is vntrue. Gods name be praised, the poore that be impotent in deed, haue better prouision for them in such places as the Gospel is receiued, then euer they had in Popery, as the Hospitals erected for the orphans, widowes, aged, and diseased, are a plentifull testimony.

RHEM. 4 11. Haue not.) We haue him not in visible maner as he conuersed on the earth with his disciples, meeting vnlesse like other poore men: but we haue him after another sort in the B. Sacrament, and yet haue him truely and really the selfe same body. Therefore he saith, they should not haue him, because they should not so haue him, as then, neither is euer so when he said, Luc. 24. as though he were not then with them, When I was with you. Christ alwayes with vs in the B. Sacrament.

FVLKE. 4 This vaine new found glosse, is confuted by S. Augustines authority, vpon the same word. Ioh.12. Tract 50. Loquebatur de præsentia corporis, &c. He spake of the presence of his body: for according to his maiesty, according to his vnspeakable and inuisible grace, it is fulfilled which he said, I am with you alwayes vnto the end of the world. But according to the flesh, which the word tooke vpon him, according to that he was borne of the Virgine, according to that he was apprehended of the Iewes, that he was nailed to the tree, that he was taken downe from the Crosse, that he was wrapped in linnen clothes, that he was layd in the sepulchre, that he was manifested in his resurrection, You shall not alwayes haue me with you. Why so? For he was conuersant with his disciples forty dayes, according to the presence of his body, and they waiting on him by seeing, not by following, he ascended into heauen and he is not here: for there he sitteth at the right hand of the father. And he is here, for he departed not in the presence of his Maiesty. Or els. According to the presence of his Maiesty we haue Christ alwayes: according to the presence of his flesh he sayd rightly to his disciples, But me you shall not haue alwayes. Likewise S. Hierome vpon this place saith, Sed mihi videtur, &c. Me thinketh he speaketh of his corporall presence. S. Bede also vpon this place writeth: Se non semper, &c. He saith he will not alwayes tary with his Apostles in presence of his body, whom he neuer left in power of his diuinity. And vpon Ioh.12. he saith: Christ should remaine with them but a short time corporally. The ancient Fathers vnderstood this, not of the maner of his presence visible or inuisible, but of the presence of his body in deed, neither euer heard they of that fantasticall exposition. The persons of Christs bodie in the Sacrament.

RHEM. 5 20. Twelue.) It must needs be a great mystery that he was to worke in the institution of the new sacrifice by the marueilous transmutation of bread and wine into his body and blood. Whereas he admitted none (although many presint in the city) but the twelue Apostles, which were already taught to beleeue it without contradiction, to be, and were to haue the administration and consecration thereof by the Order of Priesthood, which also was there giuen them to that purpose. Whereas at the eating of the Paschal lambe all the family were wont to be present. A woonderfull mysterie in the institution of the B. Sacrament.

FVLKE. 5 That he sate downe with the twelue, it followeth not, that onely the twelue were present at the Paschal lambe, but that all the twelue were present: yea by the institution of the Sacrament of the Paschal lambe, where it is commanded that none of it be reserued, it is manifest that there were more of his disciples present, beside the twelue. For thirteene persons could not eat a lambe of a yere old, and not being satisfied with that, haue other meat to make vp their supper, as it is plaine by dipping the sop in the platter, that there was other meat then the rosted lambe, which had no sauce or broth, but herbs. Therefore, all this fantasie of the new sacrifice, and transmutation of bread and wine into his body and bloud, with the order of Priesthood there giuen them, (this foundation of onely twelue present being ouerthrowen) falleth to the ground. And where you say, the order of Priesthood was giuen them at this Supper, other of your fellowes thinke not, till after his resurrection, Iohn 20.21. And there you hold that they were not full Priests vntill then. Exod.12. Iohn 13.29. Sacrifice of the Masse. Transubstantiation.

RHEM. 6 26. He tooke bread.) Here as ouer is instituted, for the continuance of the externall office of Christes eternall Priesthood according to the order of Melchisedec, both a Sacrifice and a Sacrament, though the Scriptures giue neither of these names to this action: and our aduersaries without all reason or religion accept in a sort the one, & vtterly deny the other. A sacrifice, in that it is ordeined to continue the memory of Christes death & oblation vpon the Crosse, & the application of the generall vertue thereof to our particular necessities, by consecrating the seuerall elements, not into Christs whole person as it was borne of the virgin or now is in heauen, but the bread into his body apart, as betraied, broken, & giuen for vs: the wine into his blood apart, as shed out of his body for remission of sinnes & dedication of the new Testament, which be conditions of his person as he was in sacrifice & oblation. In which mystical & vnspeakable maner he would haue the Church to offer and sacrifice him dayly, and he is mystery & Sacrament dieth, though now not only in heauen, but also in the Sacrament, he be indeed per concomitantiam (as the Church calleth it, that is, by sequel of all his parts to eche other) whole, aliue, and immortall. Which point because our aduersaries vnderstand not, not knowing the Scriptures nor the power of God, they blaspheme, and abuse the people to their damnation. It is also a Sacrament, in that it is ordeined to be receiued into our bodies & to feed the same to resurrection and immortality, and to giue grace and saluation to our soules, if we worthily receiue it. The holy Eucharist is both a Sacrifice and a Sacrament. Mat.22.29.

FVLKE. 6 Here are many words of the institution of a sacrifice, continuance of Christs Priesthood in the oblation of the same, a new death of Christ in the Sacrament, concomitance, &c. but no argument out of the text, no authoritie of other places of Scripture, no testimonie out of the ancient Fathers alledged for them. Yet are we condemned of ignorance, not to vnderstand nor to know the Scriptures, nor the power of God. Yet we be not so dull witted, but we vnderstand what you meane by your sacrifice, transubstantiation, concomitance, & other such prophane nouelties & vanities of voices, which the Scripture knoweth not, nor you are able to shew one iote of the Scripture for them. But let vs consider the parts of this note: First you say, here is instituted both a sacrifice and a Sacrament, though the Scriptures giue neither of these names to this action. As though our contention were for the name, rather then for the thing it selfe. The one you say, we accept in a sort, the other we vtterly deny, without all reason or religion. The name of Sacrament, because it signifieth that which this action is made by Christ, as we finde in the Scripture, namely an holy signe, we accept I am sure with good reason & religion, and in such sort as the ancient fathers of the Latine Church, from whose tongue, this name of Sacrament is borowed, did acknowledge this action to be a Sacrament. The other terme we do not vtterly deny, but in a sort. For in such sort as the ancient fathers did call this action a sacrifice, by a Metonomie, vnproperly, because it is a memory of the onely sacrifice of Christs death, and by Synecdoche, because the sacrifice of praise and thanksgiuing is offred to God for the redemption of the world in the celebration of this action: In this sort I say, we do not vtterly deny, the terme of sacrifice. But in such sort, as the Papists take it, to be a sacrifice propitiatory, wherein the naturall body and blood of Christ, are offred to God the father by the Priest in his Masse, for the sinnes of the quicke and the dead, (howsoeuer the matter in compasse of strange words and phrases be shrowded, to hide the horrible blasphemy therein conteined) we vtterly deny the name of sacrifice. Because no such thing was instituted by Christ, but it is manifestly contrary to the Scriptures. And this I thinke is good reason and religion, to deny that which is not, and is fained to be, to the derogation of the glory of our redemption, by the only sacrifice of Christ. And thus much for the name, now for the thing. You say it was instituted for the continuance of the externall office of Christs externall Priesthood according to the order of Melchisedech. This I say, is a false surmised end: for the continuance of Christs Priesthood, is only in his owne person, and passeth not from him (as the Apostle saith) ἀπαράβατον ἱερωσύνην, &c. He hath a Priesthood that passeth Sacrifice of the Masse.

not by succession, wherefore, he is able for euer to saue those that come vnto God by him, alwayes liuing, that he may make intercession for them, *Heb.*7.24.25. This is the continuance of his Priesthood according to the order of Melchisedech. As for that prophane nouelrie, of the external office of Christes Priesthood, because the Scripture teacheth it not, it is to be hissed out of the Church of Christ. The Apostle in the chapter before named, referring to Christ, whatsoeuer of Melchisedech pertained to Christ, maketh mention of no such external office. Beside, that this fained continuance of the external office of Priesthood, is contrary to the Scripture. Which teacheth that the Priesthood after the order of Melchisedech, is proper onely to Christ, who is the eternall Sonne of God without father in respect of his manhood, without mother in respect of his Godhead, hauing neither beginning of his dayes, nor end of life, which can agree to none but to our Sauiour Christ, Heb. 7.3. Therefore your Popish priesthood, chalenging the continuance of Christes external office of Priesthood after the order of Melchisedech, is an horrible blasphemy against the eternal Priesthood of the Sonne of God. Further, you say: It is a sacrifice in that it is ordeined to continue the memory of Christes death & oblation vpon the Crosse: So in deed the Fathers do figuratiuely and vnproperly cal it, as I haue shewed before. And this were tollerable, if you would proceed no further. But you adde, that it is a Sacrifice to continue the application of the generall vertue of Christs death to our particular infirmities by consecrating, &c. Whereby you meane transubstantiation of the elements, into the natural body and blood of Christ. But the Scripture teacheth vs, that the holy Ghost, through faith, applieth the benefits of Christs death vnto vs, for our redemption and saluation, and not the Priest by his Masse, *Rom.*8.2. *Gal.*3.13.4. Where you say moreouer, that the wine is consecrated into his blood apart, as flowd out of his body, &c. You ouerthrow your owne position of the vnbloody sacrifice, which you say, you offer without shedding of blood. Againe you say, in this mystical and vnspeakable manner, he would haue the Church to offer and sacrifice him dayly. But Christ neuer gaue one any word, whereby you might gather that he would such a thing. Beside, the Scripture is plaine, he would not any such sacrifice of himselfe, to be offered by other, which did not oftentimes offer himselfe, (for then he should haue died often) but once for all, and found by that one oblation, eternal redemption, & made perfect for euer those that are sanctified, *Heb.*9.12. & 25. and 10.14. Therefore he needeth not to be offered by any other. And where you say, that in mystaire and Sacrament hee dieth, it is contrary to the Scripture, which saith, he dieth no more, *Rom.*6.9. For seeing, for Christes presence in mysteris and Sacrament, you admit no figure, I cannot but vnderstand an horrible mysterie of Christs dayly dying in your Sacrifice of the Masse. But if you say the dying in Sacrament, is figuratiue, it will follow, that the presence in Sacrament is also figuratiue. And touching your high point of concomitance, which you say, wee vnderstand not, where you said, the wine is consecrated into his blood apart, as flowd out of his body, &c. which was the condition of his person as he was in sacrifice and oblation: I demaund of you, whether the blood that was shedde out of the body of Christ vpon the Crosse, was by Concomitance, his whole body and soule, manhood and God? if it were not, (as I hope you wil say it was not) why then in your sacrifice is therin the cup by concomitance, not onely the blood, but also the body Christ, his soule, manhood, and Godhead?

Last of all, when you come to the Sacrament, as a matter of small moment, in comparison of the Sacrifice, you knit it vp in two lines, not expressing what it is in deede, but affirming of it, that in deede it doeth not. For not the Sacrament, but the thing or matter of the Sacrament; (as S. Augustine calleth it,) which is the body and blood of Christ, feedeth our soules. This Sacrament therefore is an holy signe, & seale of our spiritual nourishment vnto eternall life, by the very body and blood of Christ, which is the spiritual matter, represented by this signe, and who giueth grace, which is not receiued of any, but vnto eternal life, as saith Augustine In Ioan. Tr. 26. where you adde the condition of receiuing it worthily, it is contrary to your owne principle, that Sacraments of the worke wrought, doe giue grace, so the receiuer doeth not withstand. But there is more required of him that shall receiue worthily, then not to withstand. In Ioan. Tr. 26.

RHEM. 7 26. Blessed.) Our Aduersaries for the two wordes that are in Greeke and Latin, benedixit, and gratias egit, hee blessed, he gaue thankes, vse onely the latter, of purpose to signifie that Christ blessed not nor consecrated the bread and the wine, and so by that blessing wrought any effect vpon them, but gaue thankes only to his father, as we doe in saying grace. But the trueth is that the word εὐλογεῖν, signifieth properly to blesse, and is referred to the thing that is blessed, as Luc.9. of the fishes, ἐὐλογησεν αὐτὰ, benedixit eis, he blessed them, and thereby wrought in them that wonderfull multiplication. So the blessing of God is alwayes effectual: and therefore here also he blessed the bread, and by that blessing, wish the words following, made it his body. Ambr. li. de his qui initi. myst. c. 9. Aug. ep. 59. ad Paulinum. Now whereas taking the cuppe it is said, he gaue thankes. We say that it is al one with blessing, and that he blessed the cuppe, as before the bread: as it is euident by these words of S. Paul, Calix cui benedicimus, the cuppe which we blesse: and therefore he calleth it, Calicem benedictionis, the cuppe of blessing, vsing the same Greeke word that is spoken of the bread. But why is it then said here, he gaue thankes? because we translate the wordes faithfully as in the Greeke and the Latin, and because the sense is all one, as we are taught by S. Paul before alleaged, and by the fathers, which cal this geuing of thankes ouer the cuppe or ouer the bread, the blessing thereof. S. Iustin in fin. 2. Apol. Panem Eucharistiæ fatum: S. Irenæus l. 4. c. 34. Panem in quo gratiæ actæ sunt. S. Cyprian de cœn. dom. The blessing of Christ referred to the creatures and working an effect in them. Consecration. τὸν ἄρτον ἄχαριστήσαντα. 1. Corinth. 10.

FVLKE. 7 Here is wrangling about words, to no purpose, where the one Euangelist saith, he blessed, the other saith, hee gaue thankes. Yea the same Euangelist saith, of the one part of the Sacrament, he blessed, of the other part, hee gaue thankes: therefore to blesse and to giue thankes in this place, is all one: and seeing thanksgiuing is not referred to the bread, no more is blessing. For if the Euangelists had ment to referre it to the bread, they would haue added an accusatiue case, as Luke 9. What then? doe we meane, none other blessing or giuing of thankes, then we do in saying grace at our ordinary refections? Yes verely. We meane solemne blessing, which is praise and thanksgiuing, by which the creatures are prepared to this holy action, as Oecumenius writeth: agreeable with the saying of the Apostle Paul, and of the ancient fathers Iustinus, Irenæus, Cyprianus not meaning the whole consecrating to consist in this blessing or thanksgiuing, but a part onely: nor as you say: in that blessing, with the wordes following, which you vnderstand to be none but these: This is my body: But in the whole action according to Christes institution: whereunto are required taking, eating, drinking, shewing of the Lords death. Dicit enim (Origines) Spiritum Sanctum non operari ea quæ insensata sunt, nec ad irrationabilia peruenire. Quod asserens non recogitat aquas in baptismate mysticas aduentu Spiritus Sancti consecrari: panemque dominicum quo saluatoris corpus ostenditur, & quem frangimus in sanctificationem nostri: & sacrum calicem, quæ in missa Ecclesiæ collocantur, & vtique inanima sunt per inuocationem & aduentum Sancti Spiritus, sanctificari. Theoph. Alexan. Epist. pasc. 1. But where you ioyne blessing with the wordes which you call of consecration, to make it his body, you differ from other elder Papists, which holde, that these wordes onely, without any blessing, but with the Priests intention, doe make the body of Christ. Consecration. Blessing of the bread. The Scholemen.

If you

If you be better aduised, now to take in blessing and thankesgiuing, I hope you wil shortly consent, to admit eating, drinking, and shewing of our Lords death, to be parts of the consecration.

S. Ambrose whom you cite, speaketh of the Sacrament which is receiued, Sacramentum istud quod accipis, &c. The Sacrament which thou receiuest, is made by the word of Christ. And by these Sacraments, Christ feedeth his Church by which the substance of the soule is strengthened.

S. Augustine also Ep. 59 saith, Prayers are made when that which is vpon the table, is blessed and sanctified, and broken to be distributed. Again, In the sanctification and preparation of distribution of this Sacrament, I thinke the Apostle commaunded prayers properly to be made. Again, Which things being ordered, and so worthily a Sacrament being participated, thankesgiuing concludeth all. Therefore neither Ambrose nor Augustine, vnderstand your Magical kinde of consecration, by crossing and murmuring of wordes with one breath, within which you conclude your Popish consecration.

RHEM. 8 (26. This is.) The bread and the wine be turned into the body and bloud of Christ by the same omnipotent power by which the world was made, and the word was incarnate in the wombe of the Virgin. Damasc. li. 4. c. 14. Cypr. de Cœn. Domini. Ambr. li. de myst. init. c. 9. Transubstantiation.

FVLKE. 8 Damascene, although he liued in a corrupt time, meaneth not Transubstantiation, which was not inuented in his time, but the spiritual and supernatural change of the elements in the faithful receiuer, into the diuine food of our soules, which is the flesh & bloud of Christ, as appeareth first by his comparison, of the like change of the water in baptisme, by grace of the holy Ghost, into the lauer of regeneration. So he saith, To the bread and wine which we are accustomed to take, he hath ioyned his Godhead, and made them his body and bloud, that by things accustomed, and that are according to nature, we may be conuersant in things which are about nature. His body is truly vnited to the Godhead, the body which is of the holy Virgin. Not that the same body which was taken vp into heauen commeth downe, but that the same bread and wine are changed into the body and bloud of God. If you require the maner how it is done, it sufficeth to heare that it is done by the holy Ghost, as the Lord, of the holy mother of God, by the holy Ghost made flesh to subsist to himselfe, and in himselfe. These wordes declare his meaning, to be of a spiritual and supernatural change, not of a corporall change of the bread and wine whereunto he saith Christ hath ioyned his Godhead, that by eating of bread and drinking of wine, which be things accustomed and naturall, wee might be acquainted with things supernatural. But if his words of transmutation, or changing, doe seeme to import a Popish Transubstantiation: Then marke these words, in which he vseth the terme μεταβολὴ, which if there be any Greeke word for transubstantiation, might signifie the change of being or of substance. Yet he taketh it for communication. For exhorting men with earnest affection, to come to the Communion, he saith, τῇ θείᾳ ἀνάψωμεν, &c. Let vs be partakers of that diuine fire vnto, that the fire of the desire, which is in vs, taking feeding of that coale, may burne vp our sinnes, & lighten our hearts, and that by participation of the diuine fire, we may be feared and Deified. I thinke no man doubteth, but this whole speach is figuratiue: and so is the rest. Cyprians words are these: Panis iste, &c. This bread which our Lord did reach vnto his disciples, being changed not in shape, but in nature, by almighty power of the word, is made flesh: and as in the person of Christ, the humanitie was seene, and the diuinitie was hidden, so the diuine essence, hath vnspeakably infused it selfe into the visible Sacrament, that deuotion might be vnto religion about the Sacrament, and a more sincere accesse vnto the truth, whose bodily Sacraments are, might be open vnto the participation of the spirit. This author by change in nature, meaneth not change of substance, but of the qualities or properties of natural bread, whose nature is to feed the body, whereas this bread is made to nourish the soule. Therefore he saith: That which meate is to the flesh, faith is to the soule, that meate is to the body, the word is to the spirit. Again, Therefore the eating of this flesh, is a certaine earnest affection, & desire to continue in him. Again, when we do these things, we prepare not our teeth to bite, but with sincere faith we breake and diuide this holy bread. And the vndoubted Cyprian (for of the auctor of this worke it is vncertaine) in his Epistle ad Magnum lib. 1. Ep. 6. expresly calleth the Lords body bread moulded together of many graines, and his blood wine, which is pressed out of clusters of grapes. Again, Lib. 2. Ep. 3. Cæcilio, hee saith, The blood of Christ, is not water but wine. These wordes are plaine against Transubstantiation. Transubstantiation. Ep. 63.

Neither doth S. Ambrose, by the change which is wrought in the Sacrament by the wordes of Christ, meane, the Popish pretended change: for of the bread and the wine, when they are consecrated by the word of God he saith: If there were such force in the wordes of our Lorde Iesus, that those things began to be, which were not, how much more effectual in working is it, that they may be still which they were, and also be changed into another thing? An example hereof he giueth in euery Christian man: Tu ipse eras, &c. Thou thy selfe wast, but thou wast an old creature, but after thou wast consecrated, thou beganest to be a new creature. Here the change is manifest not in substance, but in qualitie. And euen in the chapter by you cited, his wordes are euident to declare, that he speaketh of no Transubstantiation. For after he hath said, that our Lord Iesus, contrary to the order of nature, was borne of a Virgine, he addeth: Vera virtus, &c. It was the true flesh of Christ that was crucified, that was buried: therefore this is truely a Sacrament of that flesh. Our Lorde Iesus crieth out: This is my body, before the blessing of the heauenly wordes, it is called another kinde: after consecration the body of Christ is signified. He himselfe saith, it is his bloud: before consecration, it is called another thing, after consecration it is named bloud. Also by the same argument, of the supernaturall generation of Christ by the holy Ghost of the Virgine Mary, hee prooueth the trueth of regeneration in Baptisme, where there is no change of substance, but in qualities and conditions. Therefore in the one Sacrament, he meaneth no more Transubstantiation, then in the other. Rabanus Maurus de instit. Cler. lib. 1. cap. 31. Sacramentum in alimentum corporis redigitur, virtute autem Sacramenti æterne vitæ dignitas adipiscitur. De iis qui myster. Cap. 9.

RHEM. 9 (26. My body.) He saide not, This bread is a figure of my body: or, This wine is a figure of my bloud: but, This is my body, and, This is my bloud. Damasc. lib. 4. cap. 14. Theophyl. in hunc locum. Conc. 2. Nic. act. 6. to. 4. eiusdem actionis in fine. when some Fathers call it a figure or signe, they meane the outward formes of bread and wine. No figuratiue but a real presence.

FVLKE. 9 The text is plaine, he said, This is my body, This is my bloud, to declare, that he gaue to the faith of the worthy receiuer, his very body and bloud, by those outward elements of bread and wine, which are figures and signes of his body and bloud. And therefore, though he said not, This is a figure or signe of my body, and bloud: yet hee saide in the same sence: This cup is the New Testament in my blood. By which forme of speach, he declared, that the visible element is a signe or seale of the New Testament established in his blood, shed on the Crosse, and not conuerted or turned into his blood. For his naturall blood, is not the New Testament in his blood, neither is the cuppe properly, but figuratiuely, the Newe Testament. Wherefore it remaineth, that it is a Sacrament, that is, an holy signe and seale of the Newe Testament, confirmed by the death and blood shedding of Christ. And so the ancient Fathers doe meane, when they call the bread a figure or signe of his body, and not the outward formes or accidents of bread, separated from the substance of bread, for of that monster they neuer heard. Tertullian against Marcion, which denied Christ to haue a true body, writeth thus. Real presence.

thus. The bread which he tooke and distributed to his Disciples, he made his body, saying, This is my body, that is, a figure of my body, now it had not bene a figure, except he had had a true body. For a voyde thing, which is a fantasie, could not haue a figure. Or if he fayned the bread to be his body, because hee lacked a true body, he ought to haue deliuered the bread for vs. It would haue made for Marcions vanitie, that the bread should haue bene crucified. These wordes of Tertullian declare, that he meaneth the bread to be a figure of Christes true body, and not the accidents of bread. For if this fantasie of transubstantiation, had bene thought of in those dayes, Marcion would haue taken hold of the abolishing of the substance of bread, to proue the body of Christ to be onely in forme or shew, and not in deede, as the bread which is turned into it is. Againe, he might haue confirmed his heresie, that the world was not created by God the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ, seeing he did away the creature of bread, to make it his body. But Tertullian Lib. 5. saith: By the Sacrament of the bread, and the cuppe now in the Gospel, we haue proued the trueth of our Lords body and bloud, against the phantasme of Marcion. Likewise S. Augustine saith: Nam ex eo, &c. For of that it is written, that the bloud of a beast is the soule of it, beside that I said, that is pertaineth not to me, what becommeth of the soule of a beast, I may also interprete that precept in a signe. For our Lord doubted not to say, This is my body, when hee gaue the signe of his body. Cont. Adimant. cap. 12. The bloud of a beast is a signe of the soule, or life thereof, so is the bread a signe of the body of Christ. What place is here for accidents of bread, to be called the signe of his body? except you will say, the accidents of bloud, were forbidden in the Law, and not the bloud it selfe. But bloud it selfe, as a signe of the life of the beast, was forbidden to be eaten, as bread is giuen to be eaten, as a signe of Christ. Other ancient Fathers, are also in plaine wordes directly against transubstantiation, as Chrys. In Epist. ad Cæsarium. Theodoret. Dial. 2. Gelasius Bishop of Rome contra Eutychen. All these in plaine wordes affirme, the substance of bread and wine, to remaine after consecration.

Transubstantiation.

RHEM. 10 28. Bloud of the new Testament.) As the old Testament was dedicated with bloud in these wordes. This is the bloud of the Testament, &c. Heb. 9. so here is the institution of the new Testament in Christes bloud, by these wordes, This is the bloud of the new Testament, &c. which is here mystically shed, and not only afterward vpon the Crosse: for the Greeke is the present tense in al the Euangelists, and S. Paul: and likewise speaking of the body 1. Cor. 11. it is in the Greeke the present tense, and Luc. 22. and in the Latin here. And the Heretikes them selues so put it in their translations.

FVLKE. 10 The bloud of Christ, was not mystically shed in the Sacrament, but as it is mystically present. The Apostles and Euangelists, vsing the present tense for the future, doe signifie, that the passion of Christ was euen at hand. And therefore your vulgar Interpreter, according to the sence, hath truely translated the worde by the future tense. For it is not onely said, that his bloud is shed, but it is added, for many, vnto remission of sinnes, and his bodie is broken, which was not but on the Crosse. For if the blood of Christ was shedde for the remission of the sinnes of the world in the Sacrament, the passion of Christ was needlesse: and so to establish your blasphemous sacrifice of the Masse, you make voyde and frustrate, the most glorious and onely sacrifice propitiatorie for sinnes, offered by our Sauiour Christ vpon the Crosse. Vocationis ad pœnitentiam principale est beneficium gratuita remissio peccatorum: pro qua idem redemptor noster, peracto paschali cœna cominio, sanguinem suum emptiat effundendum, Bibite, inquit, ex hoc omnes; hic est enim sanguis meus noui Testamenti, qui pro multis effundetur in remissionem peccatorum. Fulgen. de Remis. pecc. lib. 1. cap. 5.

Sacrifice of the Masse.

RHEM. 11 29. Fruite of the vine.) S. Luke putteth these wordes before he come to the consecration, whereby it seemeth that hee speaketh of the wine of the Paschal lambe, and therefore nameth it, the fruit of the vine. but if hee speake of the wine which was now his bloud, hee nameth it notwithstanding wine, as S. Paul nameth the other bread, for three causes: first because it was so before: as Eue is called Adams bone, and Aarons rod deuoured their roddes: whereas they were not now roddes, but serpents. And, He tasted the water turned into wine: whereas it was now wine and not water: and such like. secondly, because it keepeth the formes of bread and wine, and things are called as they appeare: as when Raphael is called a yong man Tob. 5. and, three men appeared to Abraham Gen. 18. whereas they were three Angels. thirdly, because Christ in this Sacrament is very true and principal bread and wine, feeding and refreshing vs in body and soule to euerlasting life.

The elements after consecration called bread and wine. Gen. 2. Exo. 7. Ioa. 2.

FVLKE. 11 Vaine shifts against the plaine trueth of the text, and the euident wordes thereof. The demonstratiue Pronoune This, declareth, that he spake of the wine in his hand. And so the ancient Fathers haue alwayes taken it. Clemens Alexandrinus saith: Quod autem vinum esset, &c. That it was wine which was blessed, he sheweth againe, saying to his Disciples, I wil not drinke of the fruite of this vine. Pædagog. l. 2. Cap. 2. S. Cyprian vpon these wordes of the fruite of the vitte, which he calleth the creature of the vine inferreth: Qua in parte, &c. In which part we finde, that the cuppe which our Lord offred, was mixt, and that it was wine which he called his blood. Ep. 65. Cæcilio. Chrysostome also vpon the same text, saith: He meane to pul vp by the rootes, a certaine pernicious heresie, of them which vse water in the mysteries, so that he shewed, that when he deliuered this mysterie, hee deliuered wine, and now after his resurrection, in the bare table of the mysterie, he vsed wine. He saith, Of the fruite of the vine, which truly bringeth foorth wine, and not water. In Matth. Hom. 83. Seeing Christ therefore deliuered wine, as the text and the Fathers say, your three causes are vaine. For the Sacrament is called bread and wine, because it is so indeede, although it be also called the body and blood of Christ, as it is indeede, after a spiritual maner, to the worthy receiuer. But to examine your causes a litle: you say, S. Paul nameth it bread, because it was so before, as Eue is called Adams bone. But Eue was not called Adams bone, absolutely, but bone of his bones, and flesh of his flesh. And that she was in deede, at that present in respect of her body, for I suppose you will not say, her soule was made of Adams bone. Likewise in your second example: Aarons rodde deuoured their roddes, Moses calleth it Aarons rodde, that it was when he wrote, namely a rodde, and the Sorcerers roddes were not true Serpents, but in shew. Therefore S. Augustine saith of Aarons rodde: The thing was called by that name, from whence it was turned, and into which it was returned againe, therefore it ought to bee called that which it was principally. Quæst. sup. Exod. lib. 2. Quæst. 21. Your third example of water turned into wine, is most impertinent: for there it is expressed, both what it was before the turning, and what it was after. Your second forged cause, for that some things are called as they appeare, and not as they are, as Angels are called men, is also vnlike your matter, for the Angels that appeared, were not phantasticall shewes or accidents, but they appeared in very bodies as of men, which they assumed for the time, as it is plaine by the text: your third cause is also vaine: that the Sacraments should be called bread and wine, because Christ is the true bread and wine feeding vs in body and soule vnto eternal life. for S. Paul nameth it bread, in them which eate it vnworthily, to their condemnation.

FVLKE. 12 Watching vnto prayer is commended in this place, and in many other of the Scripture. And therefore in the Primitiue Church they had set times of watching in prayer. But your vigils, that is, holy day eues, and nocturnes, that is a certaine taske of Psalmes, and other prayers, are rather mockeries of watches and prayers, then either that which Christ willed his Disciples to doe, or the Primitiue Church vsed: although you say your religious persons vse them still. 4 Saying, I haue sinned, betraying iust bloud. But they said, what is that to vs? looke thou to it.

5 And casting downe the siluer peeces in the temple, he departed: and went & ‖ hanged him selfe with an halter.

6 And the cheefe Priestes hauing taken the siluer peeces, said, It is not lawfull to cast them into the ‡ Corbana: because it is the price of bloud.

‡ This Corbana was a place about the Temple, which receiued the peoples gifts or offerings. See Mar.12, v.42.

7 And after they had consulted together, they bought with them the potters field, to be a burying place for strangers.

8 For this cause that field was called Haceldama, that is, the field of bloud, euen to this present day.

WHen the morning was come, * all the chiefe Priests and Elders of the people helde a counsel against Iesus to put him to death. Mar.15.1. luke 22. 66. iohn 18.28.

2 And when they had bound him, they led him away, and deliuered him to Pontius Pilate the Deputie.

3 Then Iudas, which had betrayed him, when hee saw that hee was condemned, repented himselfe, and brought againe the thirtie siluer peeces to the chiefe Priests and Elders,

4 Saying, I haue sinned, in that I haue betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to vs? see thou to that.

5 And when hee had cast downe the peeces of siluer in the Temple, hee departed, * and went his way, and hanged himselfe. Acts.1.18.

6 And the chiefe Priestes tooke the siluer peeces, and said, It is not lawfull for to put them into the Treasurie, because it is the price of blood.

7 And when they had taken counsell, they bought with them the potters field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, * The field of blood vntil this day. Acts.1.19.

9 (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremie the Prophet, saying, * And they tooke the thirtie siluer pieces, the price of him that was valued, whom they bought of the children of Israel: Zach.11.12.

10 And gaue them for the potters fielde, as the Lord appointed me.)

11 Iesus stoode before the Deputie, and the Deputie asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Iewes? Iesus sayeth vnto him, Thou sayest.

12 * And when he was accused of the chiefe Priestes and Elders, he answered nothing. Mar.15.3.

13 Then sayeth Pilate vnto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witnesse against thee?

14 And

14 And he answered him not to any word; so that the President did maruel exceedingly.

HORA TERTIA of the Churches seruice.

15 And vpon the solemne day the President had accustomed to release vnto the people one prisoner whom they would.

16 And hee had then a notorious prisoner, that was called Barabbas.

17 They therefore being gathered together, Pilate said: whom wil you that I release to you, Barabbas, or IESVS that is called Christ?

18 For hee knew that for enuie they had deliuered him.

19 And as he was sitting in place of iudgment, his wife sent vnto him, saying: Haue thou nothing to doe with that iust man, for I haue suffered many things this day in my sleepe for him.

20 But the cheefe Priestes and ancients perswaded the people, that they should aske Barabbas, and make IESVS away.

21 And the President answering, saide to them: whether will you of the two to bee released vnto you? But they said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saith to them, what shall I doe then with IESVS, that is called Christ? They say all, Let him be crucified.

23 The President saide to them, Why what euill hath hee done? But they cried the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 And Pilate seeing that hee nothing preuailed, but rather tumult was towarde: taking water he washed his handes before the people, saying, I am innocent of the bloud of this iust man: looke you to it.

25 And the whole people answering, said, His bloud be vpon vs, & vpon our children.

26 Then he released to them Barabbas, and hauing scourged IESVS, deliuered him vnto them for to be crucified.

27 Then the Presidents souldiers taking IESVS into the Palace, gathered together vnto him the whole band:

Io.19,2. 28 * And stripping him, put a scarlet cloke about him,

29 And platting a crowne of thornes, put it vpon his head, and a reede in his right hand. And bowing the knee before him, they mocked him, saying, Haile king of the Iewes.

30 And spitting vpon him, they tooke the reede, and smote his head.

31 And after they had mocked him, they tooke off the cloke from him, & put on him his owne garments, and ledde him away to crucifie him.

32 And in going they founde a man of Cyrene, named Simon: him they forced to take vp his Crosse.

HORA SEXTA In the Churches Seruice.

33 And they came into the place that is called Golgotha, which is, the place of Caluarie.

34 And they gaue him wine to drinke mingled

14 And hee answered him to neuer a worde: in so much that the Deputie maruelled greatly.

*15 * At that feast the Deputie was woont to lese loose vnto the people a prisoner, whom they would.* Mar.15.6. luke 23.17.

16 Hee had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate saide vnto them, Whether will yee that I giue loose vnto you Barabbas, or Iesus, which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for enuie they had deliuered him.

19 When he was set downe on the iudgement seate, his wife sent vnto him, saying, Haue thou nothing to doe with that iust man: For I haue suffered many things this day in a dreame because of him.

*20 * But the cheefe Priestes and Elders perswaded the people that they should aske Barabbas, and destroy Iesus.* Mar.15.11. luke 23.17. iohn 18.40. acts.3.14.

21 The Deputie answered, and saide vnto them, Whether of the twaine will yee that I let loose vnto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saide vnto them, What shall I doe then with Iesus, which is called Christ? They all said vnto him, Let him be crucified.

23 The Deputie saide, What euill hath hee done? But they cried exceedingly, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 When Pilate saw that he could preuaile nothing, but that more businesse was made, hee tooke water, and washed his handes before the people, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this iust person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and saide, His blood be on vs, and on our children.

26 Then let hee Barabbas loose vnto them, and when hee had scourged Iesus, hee deliuered him to be crucified.

*27 * Then the souldiers of the deputie, when they had taken Iesus into the common hall, gathered vnto him all the band of souldiers.* Mar.15.16. iohn 19.1.

28 And when they had stripped him, they put on him a scarlet robe:

29 And when they had platted a crowne of thornes, they put it vpon his head, and a reede in his right hande: and when they had bowed the knee before him, they mocked him, saying, Haile King of the Iewes.

30 And when they had spit vpon him, they tooke the reed, and smote him on the head.

31 And after that they had mocked him, they tooke the robe off him, and put his owne raiment on him, and led him away to crucifie him.

*32 * And as they came out, they founde a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to beare his Crosse.* Mar.15.21. luke 23.26.

*33 * And when they were come vnto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull,* Mar.15.22. luke 23.32. iohn 19.16.

34 They gaue him vineger to drinke, mingled mingled with gall. And when he had tasted, he would not drinke.

35 And after they had crucified him, they deuided his garments, casting lottes: that it might bee fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, saying: They deuided my garments among them: and vpon my vesture they did cast lottes. Psa.22,19.

36 And they sate and watched him.

37 And they put ouer his head his cause written, THIS IS IESVS THE KING OF THE IEWES.

38 Then were crucified with him two theeues: one on the right hande, and one on the left.

39 And they that passed by, blasphemed him, wagging their heads,

40 And saying, Vah, thou that destroyest the temple of God, and in three dayes doest reedifie it: saue thine owne selfe: if thou be the Sonne of God, come downe from the Crosse.

41 In like maner also the chiefe Priestes with the Scribes and ancients mocking, said:

42 Hee saued other: himselfe hee cannot saue: if he be the King of Israel, let him now come downe from the Crosse, and wee will beleeue him.

43 *He trusted in God: let him now deliuer him if he will: for he said, That I am the sonne of God. Psa.21,9. Sap.2,18.

44 And the selfe same thing the theeues also that were crucified with him, reproched him withall.

45 And from the sixt houre, there was darkenes made vpon the whole earth, vntill the ninth houre.

46 And about the ninth houre IESVS cried with a mighty voyce, saying, Eli, Eli, lamma-sabacthani? that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

47 And certaine that stoode there and heard, said, He calleth Elias.

48 And incõtinent one of them running, tooke a sponge, and filled it with vinegre: and put it on a reed, and gaue him to drinke.

49 And other said, Let be, let vs see whether Elias come to deliuer him.

50 And IESVS againe crying with a mighty voyce, yeelded vp the ghost.

HORA NONA in the Churches Seruice.

51 And beholde the vele of the temple was rent in two peeces, from the top euen to the botome. and the earth did quake, and the rockes were rent,

52 And the graues were opened: and many bodies of the saincts that had slept, rose.

53 And they going forth out of the graues after his resurrection, came into the holy Citie: and appeared to many.

54 And the Centurion and they that were with him watching IESVS, hauing seene the earth-quake and the things that were done, were gled with gall: and when hee had tasted thereof, he would not drinke.

35 When they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots: that it might bee fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet. They parted my garments among them, and vpon my vesture did they cast lots. Mar.15.24. Psal.22.19.

36 And sitting downe, they watched him there:

37 And set vp ouer his head his accusation written, THIS IS IESVS, THE KING OF THE IEWES.

38 Then are there two theeues crucified with him: one on the right hande, and another on the left.

39 They that passed by, reuiled him, wagging their heads,

40 And saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three dayes, saue thy selfe: If thou bee the Sonne of God, come downe from the Crosse. Iohn 2.19.

41 Likewise also the high Priestes mocking him, with the Scribes and Elders, said, 42 Hee saued other, him selfe can hee not saue: If hee be the King of Israel, let him nowe come downe from the Crosse, and wee will beleeue him.

43 He hath trusted in God, let him deliuer him now if he will haue him: for he said, I am the sonne of God. Psal.22.9. wisd.2.18.

44 The theeues also which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

45 From the sixth houre was there darkenes ouer all the land, vnto the ninth houre.

46 And about the ninth houre, Iesus cried with a lowd voice saying, Eli, Eli, Lamasabachthani, that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Psal.22.1

47 Some of them that stoode there, when they heard that, sayde, This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ranne, and tooke a sponge, and when he had filled it full of vineger, and put it on a reede, hee gaue him to drinke. Psa.69.22.

49 The rest saide, Let be, let vs see whether Elias will come to saue him.

50 Iesus, when hee had cried againe with a lowd voyce, yeelded vp the Ghost.

51 And beholde, the vaile of the temple was rent in two partes, from the toppe to the bottome, and the earth did quake, and the stones rent, 1.Chr.3.14.

52 And graues were opened, and many bodies of saincts which slept, arose,

53 And after that they were come out of the graues after his resurrection, came into the holy Citie, and appeared vnto many.

54 When the Centurion, and they that were with him watching Iesus, sawe the earthquake and those things that were done, they feared greatly, were sore afraid, saying, Indeede this was the sonne of God.

HORA VESPERARVM, or, Euensong.

57 And when it was euening, there came a certaine rich man of Arimathæa, named Ioseph, who also himself was disciple to IESVS.

64 Command therefore the sepulchre to be kept vntill the third day: lest perhaps his disciples come, and steale him, and say to the people, He is risen from the dead: and the last errour shall be worse then the first.

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the bodie of Iesus: then Pilate commanded the body to bee deliuered.

59 And when Ioseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a cleane linen cloth, 60 And layd it in his newe tombe which he had hewen out in the rocke: and when hee had rolled a great stone to the doore of the sepulchre, he departed.

61 And there was Marie Magdalene, and the other Mary sitting ouer against the sepulchre.

62 The next day that followed the day of preparing, the high Priests and Pharisees came together vnto Pilate, 63 Saying, Sir, we remember that this deceiuer said while he was yet aliue, After three dayes I arise againe.

64 Command therefore, that the sepulchre bee made sure vntill the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steale him away, and say vnto the people, Hee is risen from the dead: and the last errour shall be worse then the first.

65 Pilate said vnto them, Ye haue the watch, goe your way, make it as sure as ye knowe.

66 So they went, and when they had sealed vp the stone, they made the sepulchre sure with the watch.

ANOTATIONS. CHAP. XXVII.

RHEM. 3. Repenting him.) Note howe speedily the plague of God falleth after sinne, and specially men must note what torment of conscience, and desperation often followeth the shedding of innocent blood. Horror of conscience.

5. Hung himselfe.) If he had rightly repented, notwithstanding his horrible treason, he might haue obtained mercie: but by hanging himselfe he tooke away all meanes of mercie and saluation, because he died finally impenitent. Desperation.

RHEM. 24. Innocent of his blood.) Though Pilate was much more innocent then the Iewes, and would haue bene free from the murder of our Sauiour, seeking all the meanes that he could (without offending the people and the Emperors Lawes) to dimisse him: Yet he is damned for being the minister of the peoples wicked will against his owne conscience, euen as all officers be, and specially the iudges and Iuries which execute lawes of temporall Princes against Catholike men: for all such bee guilty of innocent blood, and be nothing excused by that they execute other mens will according to the lawes, which be vniust. For they should rather suffer death themselues, then put an innocent man to death. They that execute lawes against their conscience, are like to Pilate.

FVLKE. 1. They that execute godly lawes, against popish traytours and heretikes, be in no danger of Pilates condemnation.

RHEM. 40. If thou be the Sonne.) Mariel not, when thou heares our Sauiour in the B. Sacrament mocked at, or seest him abused of wicked men, that he straight reuengeth not such blasphemies: or that he sheweth not himselfe there visibly and to the senses, when faithles Heretikes will say, Let me see him, taste him, &c. for he suffered here the like on the Crosse, when he might as his will haue come downe with as much ease as he rose when he was dead. Christ derided in the B. Sacrament, euen as vpon the Crosse.

FVLKE. 2. You must first proue, that Christ is as vetely present in your popish singing cake, as hee was present on the crosse, and had by many arguments approued himselfe to be the sonne of God, or els your comparison is vaine and ridiculous.

RHEM. 3. 46. Why hast thou forsaken me?) Beware here of the detestable blasphemie of Caluin and the Caluinists, who thinking not the bodily death of Christ sufficient, say, that he was also here so forsaken and abandoned of his Father, that he sustained in soule and conscience the very feares and torments of the damned. And to take away the Article of his descending into Hell after his death, (which was with triumph & not with paine) they say that his descending was nothing els, but that his soule suffred the very paines of Hel vpon the Crosse, whereas indeed by these words out of the Psalme, our Sauiour will signifie no more but that his paines (being now so long on the Crosse and ready to die) were very great, and therefore according to the infirmity of his humane nature, for very anguish (as before his the garden when he was but toward his passiõ) he saith he was forsaken, for two causes, first because it was the will of God not to deliuer him, but that he should die: secondly, because his diuine nature did so represse it selfe for the time, that he felt no cõfort therof at al, but was left to die in extreme paine as a mere man. Catechis. Cal. & Instit. lib. 2. 16. Caluins blasphemie.

FVLKE. 3. Caluine blaſphemeth not, but honoureth our Sauiour Chriſt, when hee ſayth that hee ſuffered in ſoule the wrath of God due for the ſinnes of the world: which alſo he began to ſuffer in the garden, when he felt no torment of body, but yet was in ſuch an extreme agonie, that his body did ſweate drops of blood, which was not feare of bodily paine or death onely, for then hee had bene of greater infirmitie, then many of his ſeruants, which through faith in him, haue reioiced in both. Therefore it was the burthen of ſinne, which he bare, and the curſe of God due vnto ſinne, which he tooke vpon him, to deliuer vs from ſinne, and the puniſhment thereof, and not onely the bodily paine of death that enforced him that was God, to complaine that hee was forſaken of God. As for the triumph ouer hell gained by his death, Caluine doth not denie, and what by Scripture you can proue, of the deſcent of his ſoule into hell after his death, it ſhall be yeelded vnto you.

RHEM. 4. 59. Wrapped.) *This honour and dueti'e done to Chriſtes body being dead, was maruelous gratefull and meritorious. And this wrapping of it in cleane ſindon may ſignifie by S. Hierome, that the body of our Lord is to bee wrapped not in golde, precious ſtones, and ſilke, but in pure linnen. And ſo in the whole Church it is obſerued by S. Silueſters conſtitution, that the Corporall whereupon our Lords bodie lieth on the altar, muſt be pure and fine linen. Reuerent vſing of our L. Body, Corporals. S. Hier. in hunc locum. *To. 1. Concil.

FVLKE. 4. The honour done to Chriſts dead bodie, was no doubt gratefull, as a token of their faith and loue towards him, but meritorious you cannot proue it. S. Hierome ſpeaketh not of the laying of the Sacrament on the altar in the corporall: for there was no ſuch laying and wrapping of it in S. Hieromes time. But he ſpeaketh of a ſpirituall vnderſtanding, which afterward he expreſſeth when he ſaith, He wrappeth Ieſus in a cleane ſindon, which ſhall receiue him in a pure mind. And of the miniſtration of the Lords Supper he ſaith, None is richer then hee which carieth the Lords body in a wicker basket, and his blood in a glaſſe. And if it be S. Silueſters cõſtitution (as you ſay) that the corporal whereon our Lords bodie lieth, muſt be pure linen: why do you lay it vpon a gilt patten, and cary his blood (which by concomitance you wot is his body alſo) in a gilt chalice? Againe, you haue a certain poke for reſeruation: whether you call it corporall, or corporax, lined indeede with linen, but the outſide is ſilke, gold, ſiluer, and pearles, &c. How doth that, and euen your Pixe and Canapie, agree with Silueſters conſtitution? I would alſo haue marueiled, why you lay the body of Chriſt, as it was buried, but that you told vs before, that he dieth in myſtery and Sacrament, and therefore belike he muſt be wrapped in the corporal and buried. But the decree is as truely S. Silueſters, as it is true that the ſame authors affirme, that Conſtantine was baptized by him after he was clenſed of a leproſie: which the ancient hiſtories proue to be falſe, Euſeb. in vita Conſtantini lib. 4. who was preſent at his baptiſme in Nicomedia, as ſeemeth by hiſt. tripartit. lib. 3. cap. 12. Apocalyps.

Doth not the Sepulcher of our Lord seeme vnto thee more honourable? Which as often as we enter into, so often doe we see our Sauiour lie in the sindon: and staying there a while, we see the Angel againe sit at his feete, and at his head the napkin wrapped together. The glory of whose Sepulcher, we knowe was long prophesied before Ioseph hewed it out, by Esay saying, And his rest shall be honour: to wit, because the place of our Lords buriall should be honoured of all men. And at this present, notwithstanding the Turkes dominion, yet doe the Religious Christian Catholike men by Gods mighty prouidence keepe the holy Sepulcher, which is within a goodly Church, and Christians come out of all the world in Pilgrimage to it. The holy Sepulcher, and Pilgrimage thereunto. Hieroms time, was not for merit, as merit is accompted of Papists, but by sight of the place, to stirre vp their minds to the consideration of the benefits of Christs death, buriall, and resurrection, as the place you cite out of S. Hierome doth testifie, little fauouring popish superstition. Pilgrimage to Ierusalem,

THE ARGVMENT OF S. MARKES GOSPEL.

RHEM. Saint Markes Gospell may be well diuided into foure parts.

The first part of the preparation that was made to the manifestation of Christ: chap.1. in the beginning.

The second, of his manifesting himselfe by preaching and Miracles, and that in Galilee: the residue of the 1. chap. vnto the 10. chap.

The third, of his comming into Iurie, towards his Passion: chap.10.

The fourth of the Holy weeke of his Passion in Hierusalem: chap.11 to the end of the booke.

Of S. Marke and his conuersation with the two Apostles S. Paul and S. Barnabee, we haue at large Act.12. and 15. somewhat also Col.4 and 2.Tim.4 and to Phil mon. Moreouer his familiaritie with the Prince of the Apostles S. Peter, we haue 1.Pet 5. For so it pleased our Lord, that onely two of the Euangelists should be of his twelue Apostles, to wit, S. Matthew and S. Iohn The other two, S. Marke and S. Luke, he gaue vnto vs of the Disciples of his two most principal and most glorious Apostles S. Peter and S. Paul. Whose Gospels therefore were of Antiquitie counted as the Gospels of S. Peter and S. Paul themselues. Marke the disciple and interpreter of Peter (saith S. Hierom) according to that which he heard of Peters mouth, wrote at Rome a briefe Gospel at the request of the Brethren (about 10. or 12. yeres after our Lords Ascension.) Which when Peter had heard, he approued it, and with his authoritie did publish it to the Church to be read, as Clemens Alexandrinus writeth li.6. hypotypos. In Catal. Script. Ecclesiast.

RHEM. 1. In the same place S. Hierom addeth how he went into Egypt to preach, and was the first Bishop of the chiefe Citie there, named Alexandria: and how Philo Iudæus at the same time seeing and admiring the life and conuersation of the Christians there vnder S. Marke, who were Monkes, wrote a booke thereof, which is extant to this day. And not only S. Hierom (in Marco, & in Philem) But also Eusebius Hist. li.2.ca.15, 16, 17. Epiphanius Secta 29. Nazareorum, li.1 to 2. Cassianus de Instit. Cœnobiorum li.2 c.5. Sozomenus li 1.c.12. Nicephorus li.2.c.15. and diuers doe make mention of the sayd Monkes out of the same Author. Finally, He died (saith S. Hierom) the 8. yere of Nero, and was buried at Alexandria, Anianus succeeding in his place. *But from Alexandria he was * translated to Venice, anno Dom 830.* Philo de Suppl. cibus. In Catalogo.

FVLKE. 1. The booke that Philo did write, is of a sect of Iewes, not Christians, such as Iosephus describeth the Esses. And S. Hieronym confesseth, that he writeth it as in praise of his owne nation. In Mar. Who also saith, the life of all Christians, at that time, was such as Monkes in his time endeuoured to be, so that they had no special order of Monkes in that time, except al Christians were Monkes. Epiphanius saith, this booke of Philo, was intituled, περὶ ἱκετῶν, which name, though he labour to draw to Christians, by his coniectures, as though it were deriued of Iessa Dauides father, or of Iesus, before the name of Christians was published from Antiochia: yet it is most like, that Philo ment the same, whom Iosephus calleth Essenos, and euen that description of them, which Eusebius transcribeth out of Philo, though he would draw it to Christians, is plaine enough for that sect of the Iewes, and vnlike to the profession of Christians, except in certaine ceremonies, of praying, fasting, and such like, which the Iewes and especially the sect of the Essenes, obserued. For they had (saith he) the writte bookes of men of old time, which being Auctors of their sect, left them many monuments of the forme of allegorical interpretations. Which though Eusebius doe vnderstand of the writings of the Apostles and Euangelists: yet it is certaine, that the Apostles and the Euangelists, being many then liuing, or not long before that time when Philo did write, could not be called by him πάλαιοι ἀνθρωποι, men of ancient time. Therefore as Epiphanius and Hierom saith, they were common Christians of that time, or els as it is most like, a sect of Iewish Essens, somewhat like indeede to Popish Cloisters. Antiquitie of Monkes.

RHEM. 2. It is also to be noted, that in respect of S. Peter, who sent S. Marke his scholer to Alexandria, and made him the first Bishop there, this See was esteemed next in dignitie to the See of Rome, and the Bishop thereof was accompted the chiefe Metropolitane or Patriarch of the East, and that by the first Councel of Nice. Wherof see S. Leo ep.53. S. Gregorie li.5.ep.60. & li.6.ep.37.

FVLKE. 2. The See of Alexandria, by the Councel of Nice, without any respect of S. Marke sent thither by Peter, was iudged equall to the See of Rome. For if they had had respect to Peter, they would haue preferred the See of Antioche where Peter himselfe sate, rather then Alexandria, where Marke sent by Peter, did sit. The sixt Canon is plaine. They decree, that the ancient custome be obserued, that the B. of Alexandria, haue the ouersight of the Churches of Egypt, Libya, and Pentapolis, because the Bishop of Rome hath the like authority of the Churches neere the Citie, Which Ruffinus called Suburbicarias li.1.cap.6. Indeede Leo bishop of Rome, could not brooke the decree of the generall Councel of Chalcedon, by which the bishop of Constantinople was not onely preferred before the bishop of Alexandria, but also made equal with the bishop of Rome, and therefore writeth to Anatolius bishop of Constantinople, to dissuade him, as also to Martian the Emperour, & to Pulcheria the Empresse, to haue the decree staied, but for all his gainesaying and labour against it, the Councel decreed it. For in matters of discipline and gouernment of the Church, the fathers of Chalcedon knew, they had as great authority as the fathers of Nice. Or as the fathers of Constantinople the first, where the like decree was made without any interruption or contradiction of the Romish See, which now in the time of Leo had gotten great stomacke, and therefore could not away with it. No marueile then if Gregorie, comming after Leo, did not well allow it. Yet lib.5.ep.60. he is content that in as much as Marke was sent to Alexandria by Peter, he himselfe being bishop of Rome, should seeme to haue authoritie ouer the seate of the disciple, for the masters sake, and the bishop of Alexandria, should haue authoritie ouer the seate of the master (that was Rome) for the disciples sake. This was greater modestie, then any of his successors would euer shewe. In the other Epistle, you quote lib.6 ep.37. He acknowledgeth three Sees of Peter, all equall in Principality, Antioche, Rome and Alexandria. And where as Eulogius bishop of Alexandria, had ascribed as much to himselfe, (as sitting in Peters chaire euen by Gregories confession) as hee did vnto Gregorie: hee answereth in these words, Et cum me specialis honor, &c. And whereas speciall honour by no meanes doth delight me, yet I reioyced greatly that you (most holy) gaue vnto your selfe, the same that you bestowed vpon me. Thus was Gregorie a more felowlike bishop then those that came after him, which can abide no man to sit in Peters Chaire, but themselues, no man to haue principalitie of dignitie, or speciall honour, but themselues. Thus while you will needes bring in the dignitie of Peters disciple for his sake, vnawares you haue giuen Peters Chaire of Rome a mate. *Naucler. genar. 28. Peters chaire. Præsidere.

10 And assoone as he was come vp out of the water, he saw heauen open, and the spirit descending vpon him like a Doue.

*12 And immediatly the spirit driueth him into wildernesse. Matth.4.1. luke 4.1.

17 And IESVS said to them, Come after me, and I wil make you to become fishers of men.

18 And immediatly leauing their nettes, they followed him.

19 And being gone thence a litle further, he saw Iames of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, and them repairing their nets in the ship:

20 And forthwith he called them. And leauing their father Zebedee in the ship with his hired men, they folowed him.

Mat.4,13. Lu.4,31. 21 And * they enter into Capharnaum, and he foorthwith vpon the Sabboths going into the Synagogue, taught them.

24 Saying, What to vs and to thee IESVS of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy vs? I know who thou art, the Sainct of God.

25 And IESVS threatned him, saying, Hold thy peace, and goe out of the man.

26 And the vncleane spirit tearing him, and crying out with a great voyce, went out of him.

27 And they marueled all, insomuch that they questioned among themselues, saying, What thing is this? what is this newe doctrine? for with power he commaundeth the vncleane spirits also, and they obey him.

28 And the bruite of him went forth incontinent into all the countrey of Galilee.

Mat.8,14. Lu.4,42. 29 And immediatly * going forth out of the Synagogue, they came into the house of Simon and Andrewe, with Iames and Iohn.

30 And Simons wiues mother lay in a fit of a feuer: and forthwith they tell him of her.

31 And comming neere he lifted her vp taking her by the hand: and incontinent the ague left her, and she ministred vnto them.

32 And when it was euening after sunne set, they brought to him al that were il at ease and that had deuils.

33 And all the citie was gathered together at the doore.

34 And hee cured many that were vexed with diuers diseases: and hee cast out many deuils, and he suffred not them to speake that they knew him.

35 And rising very early, and going forth he went into ‖ a desert place: and there hee prayed.

36 And Simon sought after him, and they that were with him.

17 And Iesus sayd vnto them, Followe me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsooke their nets, and followed him.

19 And when hee had gone a little further thence, he saw Iames the sonne of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, which also were in the ship mending their nets.

20 And anon hee called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the shippe with the hired seruants, and followed him.

*21 * And they came into Capernaum, and straightway on the Sabboth dayes, he entred into the Synagogue, and taught.* Matth.4.13. luke 4.31.

*23 * And there was in their Synagogue, a man vexed with an vncleane spirit, and he cried aloude,* Luke 4.32.

25 And Iesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 And when the vncleane spirit had torne him, and cried with a loud voyce, hee came out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, insomuch that they demanded one of another among themselues, saying, What thing is this? What newe doctrine is this? For with authoritie commandeth he the fowle spirits, and they doe obey him.

28 And immediatly his fame spread abroad throughout all the region bordering on Galilee.

*29 * And foorthwith, when they were come out of the Synagogue, they entred into the house of Simon, and Andrew, and Iames, and Iohn.* Matth.7.14. luke 4 32.

31 And hee came and tooke her by the hand, and lift her vp: and immediatly the feuer forsooke her, and she ministred vnto them.

32 And at Euen, when the sunne was downe, they brought vnto him all that were diseased, and them that were vexed with deuils:

33 And all the citie was gathered together at the doore.

34 And hee healed many that were sicke of diuers diseases, and cast out many deuils, and suffered not the deuils to speake, because they knewe him.

35 And in the morning very early before day, Iesus, when he was risen vp, went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 1 4 Vnto remiſſion.) Iohns baptiſme put them in hope onely of remiſſion of ſinnes as a preparatiue to Chriſts Sacrament by which ſinnes were in deede to be remitted. Aug. lib. 5. de bapt. c. 10.

FVLKE. 1 Forgiueneſſe of ſinnes is onely in Chriſt: yet was the baptiſme of Iohn, a true ſeale of forgiueneſſe of ſinnes by Chriſt, as the baptiſme of Chriſts diſciples was. As for the preparatiue to Chriſtes Sacrament, by which ſinnes were indeede to be remitted, be your owne words and none of S. Auguſtines: who was indeede deceiued, becauſe he ſuppoſed, that ſome were baptiſed againe by Paul, which had receiued Iohns baptiſme, which the text rightly tranſlated, doth not ſay: yet he concludeth the matter in theſe wordes: Tamen ne quiſquam, &c. Yet leſt any man ſhould contend, that euen in the baptiſme of Iohn, ſinnes were forgiuen, after ſome larger ſanctification to be giuen by the baptiſme of Chriſt, vnto thoſe whom Paul commanded to be baptized againe, I doe not greatly ſtriue. Iohns baptiſme. Acts 19.

RHEM. 2 15 Be penitent.) He doeth not preach beleefe or faith onely, but penance alſo.

FVLKE. 2 No Chriſtian man doeth preach faith onely without repentance, or voyde of good workes, though they preach, that faith without workes doth iuſtifie. Faith onely.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 3 5 Confeſſing their ſinnes.) A certaine confeſſion of ſinnes there was euen in that penance which Iohn preached, and which was made before men were baptized. Whereby it is cleare that Iohn made a preparation to the Sacrament of Penance which afterward was inſtituted by Chriſt, as well as he did by baptizing prepare the way to Chriſtes baptiſme. Confeſſion.

FVLKE. 3 You are neuer able to prooue, that Chriſt did inſtitute any Sacrament of penance. Iohn by his doctrine and baptiſme, which was the ſeale thereof, prepared a way to Chriſt, but not to the baptiſme of Chriſt, for he preached not his owne baptiſme, but the waſhing away of our ſinnes by Chriſt: therefore he alſo was a miniſter of the baptiſme of Chriſt. The popiſh Sacrament of penance.

RHEM. 4 5 Their ſinnes.) He doth not ſay that they confeſſed themſelues to be ſinners, which may be done by a generall confeſſion: but that they confeſſed their ſinnes, which is a particular confeſſion. Particular confeſſion.

FVLKE. 4 If he heard a particular confeſſion of ſinnes, of ſo many thouſands as he baptized, he needed to haue exerciſed his office more yeeres, then he did moneths. Confeſſion or ſhrift.

RHEM. 6 Clothed.) The holy Ghoſt thought it worthy of ſpeciall reporting how ſtraitly this Prophet liued, and how he abſtained from delicate meates and apparell. See Mat. c. 3. Iohns example of penance.

RHEM. 5 8 With water.) Iohn with water only, Chriſt with the holy Ghoſt, not only, as the Heretikes hold, that ſay water is not neceſſary, but with water and the holy Ghoſt, as it is plaine Io. 3. vnleſſe a man be borne againe of water and the holy Ghoſt, he ſhall not enter into the kingdome of heauen. Baptiſme in water. Calu. 4. inſt. c. 16.

FVLKE 5 Chriſt baptiſed none with water, Ioan. 4. 2. Notwithſtanding, the baptiſme with water by his miniſters, is neceſſary, if it may be had according to Chriſts inſtitution, neither doth Caluine teach otherwiſe. But if it cannot be had in them that are preuented by death, the lacke of water ſhall not depriue Gods children of their inheritance. Ambroſe de obitu Valentin. Imper. doubteth not of the ſalnation of the Emperour, which was ſlaine before he was baptized. Sed audiui vos dolere, &c. But I haue heard (ſaith he) that you are grieued, becauſe he receiued not the Sacrament of baptiſme. Tell me what other thing is there in vs but a will, but a requeſt? Further he citeth the ſaying of the wiſe man, The iuſt by what death ſo euer he be preuented his ſoule ſhalbe in reſt. And the example of Martyrs which were ſlaine before they were baptized, who if they be waſhed in their owne blood (ſaith he) this mans will hath waſhed him. And the text of Iohn 3, maketh no more for the neceſſitie of water, then the like Iohn 6. for giuing the communion to infants, Except ye eate the fleſh of the Sonne of man, &c. The neceſſitie of baptiſme. Slander.

9 Baptiſed

RHEM. 9 Baptised of Iohn.) The humility of Christ not disdaining his seruants baptisme, which is an example for all faithfull not to disdaine Christs Sacraments of any Priest be he neuer so simple, being by the Catholike Church lawfully called. Aug. lib. 5. de bapt. c. 9.

RHEM. 10 The Spirit.) Expresse mention of the B. Trinitie the Father speaketh from heauen, the holy Ghost appeareth in the likenesse of a dowe, the Sonne also is recommended vnto vs. Ambros. lib. 1. de Sacram. c. 5. — The B. Trinitie.

RHEM. 6 12 Desert.) Christ doing penance by long fasting, solitarinesse, and conuersing with wilde beasts, gaue example and instruction to the Church for Lent fast, and to holy Eremites of retyring themselues to the wildernesse and prayer. — Christs example of penance.

FVLKE. 6 Blasphemie: Christ was free from sinne, and therefore needed no repentance. But if to salue the matter you say, that doing penance is nothing but fasting and such exercises of an austere and streight life: then with you, there may be doing of penance without repentance and sorow for sinnes. And so your doing of penance is not that μετάνοια changing of the mind whereunto Iohn and Christ exhorted. For Lent fast, and Eremites, See Matth. 3. c. 4. the notes there. — Christ did no penance.

RHEM. 35 Desert place.) Christ vsed very often to retire into solitary places, no doubt for our example, to teach vs that such places are best for prayer and contemplation, and that we should often retire our selues from worldly matters to solitary meditation of heauenly things. — Solitary contemplation.

CHAP. II.

Against the Scribes and Pharisees he defendeth first his power to remit sinnes in earth, 23 and his eating with sinners (as being the Physicion of soules, signified in those his miraculous cures vpon bodies:) 18 then also he defendeth his Disciples, not hauing as yet any fasts by him prescribed vnto them, and plucking eares of corne vpon the Sabboth: signifying withall that he will change their ceremonies.

Mt. 9, 1. Lu. 5, 18. AND againe he entred into Capharnaum after some dayes, and it was heard that he was in the house,

2 And many came together, so that there was no place no not at the doore, and he spake to them the word.

3 And they came to him bringing one sicke of the palsey, who was caried of foure.

4 And when they could not offer him vnto him for the multitude, they ‖ vncouered the roofe where he was: and opening it they did let downe the couch wherein the sicke of the palsey lay.

‡ Our Lord is moued to be mercifull to sinners by other mens faith and desires, and not onely by the parties owne meanes alway.

5 And when IESVS had seene ‡ their faith, hee sayth to the ‖ sicke of the palsey, Sonne, ‖ thy sinnes are forgiuen thee.

6 And there were certaine of the Scribes sitting there and thinking in their hearts,

7 Why doth he speake so? hee blasphemeth. * who can forgiue sinnes but onely God?

Iob. 14, 5. Esa. 43, 25.

8 Which by and by IESVS knowing in his spirit, that they so thought within themselues, sayth to them, why thinke you these things in your hearts?

9 Whether is easier, to say to the sicke of the palsey, Thy sinnes are forgiuen thee: or to say, Arise, take vp thy couch, and walke?

10 But that you may knowe that ‖ the Sonne of man hath power ‖ in earth to forgiue sinnes (he saieth to the sicke of the palsey)

*7 Why doeth hee thus speake blasphemies? * Who can forgiue sinnes but God onely?* — Iob. 14. 4. esai. 43. 25.

8 And immediatly, when Iesus perceiued in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselues, he saith vnto them, Why reason ye such things in your hearts?

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. II.

RHEM. 4 Vncouered.) Such diligence ought to be vsed to bring sinners to Christ in his Sacraments, as was vsed to procure this man and others, by Christ, the health of their bodies.

RHEM. 5 Sicke of the palsey.) Such as this man was in body by dissolution of his limmes, such also was he in soule by the noisome desires of the world occupying his heart, and withdrawing him from all good workes. Aug. de Pastor. c. 6. to. 9.

RHEM. 1 5 Thy sinnes.) Hereby it appeareth that Christ healed this sicke man first in his soule, before he tooke away his bodily infirmitie: which may be an instruction for all men in bodily disease, first to call for the Sacraments, which be medicines of the soule. As hereby also may be gathered that many diseases come for sinne, and therefore cannot be healed till the sinnes be remitted. The Sacraments to be called for in sicknesse.

FVLKE. 1 Seeing sickneſſe commeth for ſinne, men in ſickneſſe ought firſt to repent of their ſinnes. For the Sacraments without repentance, doe nothing auaile, in them that be of yeeres of diſcretion. But when they are truely penitent of their ſinnes, to confirme their faith in the promiſes of God concerning the remiſſion of ſins, they may deſire the Sacrament of the Lords ſupper: other Sacraments, for men baptized, the Church of God doth not acknowledge. Sacraments, RHEM. 2 10 The Sonne of man.) As Christ proueth vnto them, that himselfe as man, and not as God onely, hath power to remit sinnes, by that in all their sights he was able to doe miracles and make the sicke man suddenly arise: so the Apostles hauing power graunted them to doe miracles, though they be not God, may in like maner haue authority from God to remit sinne, not as God, but as Gods ministers. Man hath power to remit sinnes.

FVLKE. 2 The Sonne of man did forgiue ſinnes properly, as he was God, his Apoſtles by aſſuring men of Gods forgiueneſſe as Gods miniſters, did alſo forgiue ſinnes. See the notes vpon Matth. 9. Remiſſion of ſinnes.

RHEM. 3 10 In earth.) This power that the Sonne of man hath to remit sinnes in earth, was neuer taken from him, but dureth still in the Sacraments, and ministers, by whom he remitteth sinnes in the Church, and not in heauen only. For concerning sinne, there is one court of conscience in earth, and another in heauen: and the iudgement in heauen followeth and approoueth this on earth: as is plaine by the wordes of our Sauiour to Peter first, and then to all the Apostles. Whatsoeuer you shall bind vpon earth, shalbe bound in heauen: Whatsoeuer you shall loose vpon earth, shall be loosed in heauen: whereupon S. Hierome saith, That Priests hauing the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, iudge after a sort before the day of iudgement. And S. Chrysost. lib. 3. Sacerd. paul. post princip. more at large. Christ remitteth sinnes by the Priests ministery, Mt. 16. 19. Mt. 18. 18. ad Heliod. ep. 1.

FVLKE. 3 God onely forgiueth ſinnes abſolutely and properly: his miniſters follow the ſentence of Gods word in binding and looſing, remitting and retayning of ſinnes, or elſe they looſe their labour. And though their ſentence be giuen before the day of iudgement, yet it is according to the ſentence that God before them, gaue in his holy word, by which they know, who is to be bound and who to be looſed. Hierom in Math. 16. See more the notes in Math 9.

RHEM. 25 In neceſſity.) *In necessity many things be done without sinne, which els might not be done: and so * the very chalices and consecrated iewels and vessels of the Church in cases of necessity are by lawfull authority turned to prophane vses: which otherwise to alienate to a mans priuate commoditie is sacriledge.* Amb. li. 2. off. c. 28.

The blind Phariſees ſeeking his death for doing good vpon the Sabboth, hee meekely goeth out of the way: where the people that flocke vnto him, and his Miracles, are innumerable. 13 Yea to his Twelue alſo (hauing neede of moe workemen) he giueth power to worke Miracles. 20 Hee ſo occupyeth himſelfe for ſoules, that his kinne thinke him madde. 22 The Scribes of Hieruſalem come ſo farre, and yet haue nothing but abſurdly to blaſpheme his caſting out of Diuels, to their own damnation. 31 That the Iewes ſhould not (after their maner) thinke it ynough, that he is of their blond, he telleth that ſuch rather are deare to him, as keepe Gods commandements.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. III.

RHEM. 1 10 To touch him.) The onely touching of Christs holy person, or any part of his clothes, or whatsoeuer belonged to him, did heale all diseases.

FVLKE. 1 Touching of Christ. Christ did heale them that touched him by faith, otherwise only touching of him, or his garments, was no benefit to any that were void of faith. Ambr. In Luc. lib. 6. c. 8. Iudas kissed him, the souldiers stripped him, the high priests seruants smote him, the people thronged and pressed him. But they touched him (saith S. Bede) which receiued his faith and loue in a true heart. In Marc. lib. 1. c. 3.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. III.

RHEM. 2 13 Thou art the Sonne.) The confession of the trueth is not gratefull to God, proceeding from euery person. The diuell acknowledging our Sauiour to be the sonne of God, was bidden hold his peace: Peters confession of the same was highly allowed and rewarded. Aug. tract. 10. in ep. Ioan. Ser. 30. 31. de verb. Apostoli. Therefore neither Heretikes sermons must be heard, no not though they preach the trueth. So is it of their prayer and seruice, which being neuer so good in it selfe, is not acceptable to God out of their mouthes, yea it is no better then the howling of wolues. Hiero. in 7. Osee. Sermons, Seruice, and prayer of Heretikes.

FVLKE. 2 Of them that preach the trueth, we may heare the sermons: and if their prayers be good, we may be partakers of their prayers. For why should we iudge them heretikes that preach the trueth and pray rightly? If they be heretikes closely to themselues, they hurt themselues and not vs, which communicate with the trueth which they professe openly, and not with heresie which they hold priuily. But if they preach heresie, though they preach some trueth among, as all heretikes doe, the weake shall doe well to forbeare their sermons, and all men ought to refuse communion or fellowship in prayers and sacraments with them. Communion with heretikes, RHEM. 14 Twelue.) *This number of twelue Apostles is mysticall and of great importance (as appeareth * by the choosing of Mathias into Iudas place to make vp againe this number) prefigured in the 12. Patriarkes,* Gen. 49. the 12. Princes of the children of Israel, Num. 1. the 12. fountaines found in Elim, Exod 15 the 12. precious stones in the Rationall of Aaron, Exo. 39. the 12. Spies sent by Moyses, Num. 13. the 12. stones taken out of Iordan whereof the Altar was made, Iosu. 4. the 12. loues of proposition, Leuit. 24. &c. Anselm. in Mt. c. 10. And these are the 12. foundations of heauenly Hierusalem. Apoc. 21. The number of twelue, mysticall. Act. 1.

RHEM. 3 16 Peter.) *Peter in numbering the twelue is alwayes the first, and his name is so giuen him for signification of his calling to be the * Rocke or Foundation of the Church vnder Christ: as here also the name* BOANERGES is giuen to other two Apostles for signification, and so names els where in the old Testament and in the new. Peters preeminence. Mt. 16.

FVLKE. 3 Peter is not alwayes named first, for S. Paul nameth Iames before him, Gal. 2. 9. and 1. Cor. 9. 5. he nameth him last of all the Apostles. And albeit when the twelue are named, Peter is named first, it prooueth no greater authoritie of Peter, then of the foreman of a Iewry who is called first for order sake, yet hath no power or authoritie ouer his fellowes. So was Peter a foundation stone, and all the twelue were the same, as you confesse, vpon the 14. verse of this chapter. But of Peters primacie, see more in the notes. Math. 16. Peters primacie RHEM. 24 Kingdome against kingdome.) As this is true in all Kingdomes and Common-weales where Ciuill dissension reigneth, so is it specially verified in heresies and heretikes, which haue alwaies diuisions among themselues as the plague of God, for diuiding themselues and others from the Church. Dissension of Heretikes. Greg. li. 4. ep. 3.

RHEM. 4 29 Eternall sinne.) That which is here called eternall, is (as S. Matthew expresseth it) that which shall neither be remitted in this life, nor in the life to come. Where we learne by S. Marke, that there are also sinnes not eternall: and by S. Matthew, that they are such as shall be forgiuen either here, or in the life to come. Mt. 12, 32. Venial sinnes forgiuen after death.

FVLKE. 4 That all sinnes are pardonable (except the sinne against the holy ghost) we see it plaine by the text: that any sinne shall be forgiuen after death, which is not forgiuen in this life, no Logitian in Rhemes, can conclude in a true syllogisme, either out of S. Marke, or S. Matth. See the notes vpon Matth. 12. 32. Purgatory.

RHEM. 5 33 Who is my mother?) Neither is it here said, that he had no mother, as some vpon these words falsly gather: nor ingratitude to our parents is taught vs by this answere: but we be hereby admonished to preferre the spirituall mother of the faithfull, which is the Church Catholike, and our brethren in her, and their spirituall good, aboue our carnall parents or kinne. For so our Maister being occupied here about heauenly things, accounted all them his mother and brethren, which did the will of his Father, in which number our Lady his mother was also included, for she did his fathers will. Aug. ep. 38. Yea and aboue all others, because she had so much grace giuen her that she neuer sinned not so much as venially in all her life. Aug. de nat. & grat. cap. 36. Spirituall kinred and busines preferred before carnall and worldly. The B Virgin without sinne.

FVLKE. 5 That the blessed virgin Mary the mother of God neuer sinned, not so much as venially in all her life, it is a blasphemous heresie against our Sauiour Christ Iesus: Who came to saue that was lost, and had his name for because he should saue his people from their sinnes, Matt. 1. Who did not vniustly reprehend her. Luke 2. 49. & Iohn 2. 4. It is contrary to the Scripture in many places, There is no man that sinneth not saith Salomon. 1. Reg. 8. 46. There is no difference sayth S. Paul. All haue sinned, and are depriued of the glory of God being iustified freely by his grace, through the redemption which is in Iesus Christ. Rom. 3. 23. what were the authoritie of S. Augustine, against The virgin Mary not free from all sinne.

theſe and many ſuch ſo cleere teſtimonies of the holy ſcripture? But in truth, you do falſly aſcribe this hereticall ſaying to S. Auguſtine, who hath no ſuch affertion. But when the Pelagians named a great manie holy men and women, who (as they ſaid) ſinned not, and laſt of all the mother of our Lord & Sauiour, which they ſayd, it was neceſſary vnto piety, to confeſſe, to be without ſinne, S. Auguſtine anſwereth: Except the holy virgin Mary, of whom I will haue no queſtion for the honour of our Lord when we talke of ſinnes. For whence know we that more grace was giuen to her to ouercome ſinne of all parts, which obtained to conceiue and to bring forth him whom it is certaine to haue had no ſinne. This virgin then excepted, if we could haue them together all thoſe holy men and women when they liued, and haue asked whether they were without ſinne, what thinke we they would haue anſwered? In this ſpeech we ſee, although S. Auguſtine will haue no queſtion of her ſinne, yet he doth not affirme that ſhe neuer ſinned. And elſe where, he vtterly ouerthrew the ground of this your hereſie, affirming that ſhee was conceiued in Originall ſinne. *Et quid incoinquinatius &c. And what is more vndefiled, then that wombe of the virgine, whoſe fleſh although it came of the propagation of ſinne, yet it conceiued not of the offspring of ſinne. CHAP. IIII.

The parables (in which he ſpeaketh to the Iewes, becauſe they were reprobate) he expounded to his Diſciples, ſhewing that in his ſowing, three parts of foure ſhall periſh, through the fault of the hearers. 21 and that his ſeruants muſt confeſſe their faith, 24 and vſe their gifts (contrary to thoſe ſtonie and thornie hearers.) 26 and that his Church (notwithſtanding the looſing of thoſe three parts of the ſeede) ſhall be brought by his prouidence to the harueſt, that is, to the end of the world: 30 growing ouer all in time, though in the beginning it be as the litle muſtard ſeede, 35 and though ſuch tempeſts of perſecution in the ſea of this world doe riſe againſt it.

Mt.13,1. Luc.8,4.

AND againe he began to teach at the ſea ſide: and a great multitude was gathered together vnto him, ſo that hee went vp into a boate, and ſate in the ſea, and all the multitude about the ſea was vpon the land:

3 Heare yee: Beholde, the ſower went foorth to ſow.

4 And whiles he ſoweth, ſome fell by the way ſide, and the foules of the aire came, and did eate it.

5 And other ſome fell vpon rockie places where it had not much earth: and it ſhot vp immediatly, becauſe it had no deepeneſſe of earth:

6 And when the ſunne was riſen, it parched, and becauſe it had not roote, it withered.

7 And ſome fell among thornes: and the thornes grew vp, and choked it, and it yelded not fruite.

8 And ſome fell vpon good ground: and it yeelded fruite that grew vp and increaſed, and it brought foorth, one thirtie, one ſixtie, and one an hundred.

9 And he ſaide, Hee that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

9 And he ſaide vnto them, He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelue, asked of him the parable.

14 He that soweth: soweth the word.

15 And they by the way side, are these: where the worde is sowen, and when they shall haue heard, immediatly commeth Satan, & taketh away the word that was sowen in their hearts.

16 And they likewise that are sowen vpon the rockie places, are these: who when they heare the worde, immediatly with ioy receiued it.

17 And they haue not root in themselues, but are temporall: afterward when tribulation is risen and persecution for the worde, forthwith they are scandalized.

18 And other there be that are sowen among thornes: these are they that heare the word,

19 And the cares of the worlde and the deceitfulnesse of riches, and concupiscences about other thinges entring in choke the word, and it is made fruitlesse.

20 And these are they that were sowen vpō the good ground, which heare the word and receiue it, and yeeld fruit one thirtie, one sixtie, and one an hundred.

Luc.8,16. 21 And he sayd to them, *Commeth a candle to be put ‡ vnder a bushell, or vnder a bed? and not to be put vpon the candlesticke?

16 And likewise they that receiue seede into the stonie ground, are they, which when they haue heard the worde, at once receiue it with gladnesse:

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. IIII.

RHEM. 1 ‡11 Them that.) Such as be out of the Church, though they heare and read neuer ſo much they cannot vnderſtand. Bed. in 4. Marc.

FVLKE. 1 You ſlander S. Bede, he ſaith not ſo. For how ſhould heretikes be brought to the Church, if they did not profit by reading and hearing? How was S. Auguſtine when he was an heretike, brought to be a catholike, but by reading, and hearing of S. Ambroſe; as he himſelfe confeſſeth? Bedes words are theſe: Illis ergo qui foris ſunt, &c. To them that are without, and come not neere to our Lords frete, that they may be partakers of his doctrine, all things are done in parables, both the workes and the words of our Sauiour, for neither in thoſe wonders which he wrought, nor in thoſe ſecrets which he preached, they are able to knowe God, therefore they are not meete to atteine to remiſſion of ſinnes, which is to be attained by grace of this faith. Of theſe wordes it is plaine, that Bede ſpake not of euery one that is out of the Church, but of obſtinate deſpiſers of the trueth, which will not become ſcholers to our Sauiour Chriſt.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. IIII.

RHEM. 2 12 Leſt they ſhould be conuerted.) Theſe ſpeeches here and els where, we muſt not ſo vnderſtand as though he ſpake in parables of purpoſe and to this end, that the hearers might not vnderſtande, leſt they ſhould be conuerted: which were as much to ſay as that he would not haue them vnderſtande, nor be conuerted: but we muſt learne the true ſenſe of this very place in S. Matthew and in the Actes, where our Sauiour and S. Paul ſpeake thus, They haue heard heauily, and haue ſhut their eyes, leſt perhaps they may ſee, and vnderſtand, and be conuerted, and I heale them. Whereby it is euident, that the ſpeaking in parables was not the cauſe (for many beſide the Apoſtles heard and vnderſtood) but themſelues would not heare, and vnderſtand, and be conuerted: and ſo were the cauſe of their owne wilfull and obſtinate infidelitie. And therefore alſo he ſpake in parables, becauſe they were not worthy to vnderſtand, as the other to whom he expounded them. God is not author of ſinne but mans owne will. Mt. 13. Act. 28.

FVLKE. 2 We neede not feare leſt in theſe ſpeeches God be made author of ſinne, for he withdraweth his grace from the wicked, and giueth them ouer to a reprobate mind, not as an euill author but as a righteous iudge: And both thoſe ſayings are true, They haue ſhut their eyes that they ſhould not ſee, &c. And to them without all things are in parables, that ſeeing they may ſee and not ſee, &c. For thoſe that maliciouſly and obſtinately refuſe his grace offered, God will not haue them to ſee that they may take it. And Chriſt reueiled the trueth to his diſciples, not becauſe they were worthy, but becauſe through Gods grace they were willing to learne. God is not author of euill.

RHEM. 27 And ſleepe.) *The Church, and Chriſts doctrine, (ſleepe we, wake we) increaſeth by the great prouidence of God, onely the preachers muſt ſow, and plant, and water, and * God will giue the increaſe, nouriſhing the ſeede in mens hearts. And therefore we may not giue ouer, or be impatient and ſolicitous, if we haue not alwayes good ſucceſſe: but doing our duetie, commit the reſt to God.* 1. Cor. 3.

RHEM. 3 31 Muſtard ſeede.) If the Church and Trueth had more and more decayed and beene obſcured after the Apoſtles time vnto ours, as the heretikes holde: then had it beene great in the beginning, and ſmall afterward: where this parable ſaith contrary, that it was a muſtard ſeede firſt, and afterward a great tree. Vide Chryſ. to. 5. contra Gentiles in vita S. Babylæ Mart. The Church viſibly increaſing.

FVLKE. 3 We holde not, that the Church hath more and more decayed, or beene obscured since the Apostles time vntill ours, for we know it was spred further and acknowledged in a greater compasse of the earth, foure or fiue hundred yeeres after the Apostles times, then it was in the Apostles age. But that it is drawen into a smaller number since Mahomet in the East, and the Pope in the West haue seduced great nations, he is wilfully blinde, that will not acknowledge. As for the trueth, it was most perfectly knowen in the Apostles times, albeit in matters necessary vnto saluation, it was neuer obscured from the faithfull members of the true church of Christ, in any age. Slander.

RHEM. 32 The birdes.) Of all sectes or doctrine, Christs religion at the beginning was the smallest, and most contemptible: but the successe thereof farre passed all mans doctrine: insomuch that afterward all the wisest and greatest of the world made their residence and rest therein.

‡ To Chriſt, that can more eaſily raiſe a dead man then we can doe one that is but a ſleepe, death is but ſleepe. Aug. de verb. Do. Ser. 44.

40 And they deryded him. But he hauing put forth all, taketh the father & the mother of the wench, and them that were with him, and they goe in where the wench was lying.

41 And holding the wenches hand, hee ſaith to her, Talitha cumi, which is being interpreted, ‖ wench (I ſay to thee) ariſe.

42 And foorthwith the wench roſe vp, and walked: and ſhe was twelue yeeres old: and they were aſtonied with great aſtoniſhment.

43 And he commaunded them earneſtly that no body ſhould know it: and he bad that ſome thing ſhould be giuen her to eate.

36 As ſoone as Ieſus heard the word that was ſpoken, he ſaith vnto the ruler of the ſynagogue, Be not afraid, onely beleeue.

37 And he ſuffered no man to follow him ſaue Peter, and Iames, & Iohn the brother of Iames.

38 And he commeth to the houſe of the ruler of the ſynagogue, and ſeeth the tumult, and them that wept and wailed greatly.

39 And when he was comen in, he ſaith vnto them, why make ye this ado, and weepe? the Damoſell is not dead, but ſleepeth.

40 And they laughe him to ſcorne: but he after that he had put them all out, taketh the father and the mother of the Damoſell, and them that were with him, and entreth in where the Damoſell lay.

41 And when hee had taken the Damoſell by the hande, he ſaieth vnto her, Talitha cumi, which is, being interpreted, Damoſell (I ſay vnto thee) ariſe.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. V.

RHEM. 1 3 Could bind him.) We ſee here that mad men which haue extraordinary ſtrength, are many times poſſeſſed of the diuell: as there is alſo a deafe and a dumme diuell, and ſuch like ſpirits, which worke theſe effects in men poſſeſſing their bodies. All which things infidels and carnall men following onely nature and reaſon, attribute to naturall cauſes: and the leſſe faith a man hath, the leſſe he beleeueth that the diuell worketh ſuch things. Profane and naturall men.

RHEM. 1 28 If I ſhall touch.) So the good Catholike ſaith, if I might but touch one of his Apoſtles, yea one of his Apoſtles napkins, yea but the ſhade of one of his Saincts, I ſhould be better for it. Act. 5. and 19. See S. Chryſ. to. 5. cont. Gent. in principio. in vit. Babylæ. Yea S. Baſill ſaith, He that toucheth the bone of a martyr, receiueth in ſome degree holineſſe of the grace or vertue that is therein. The touch of Relikes. Baſil. in pſ. 115.

FVLKE. 1 When Chriſt diſpenſeth the miraculous gift of healing by touching of his garment, or his Apoſtles, or their napkins, or their ſhadow, the good Catholike conceiueth hope to be healed by ſuch meanes. But ſince the gift of miracles is ceaſed, to looke for helpe or holineſſe of ſuch things, it is ſuperſtition, or tempting of God. Chryſoſtome in that place quoted, ſpeaketh of the miracles done in the Primitiue church by the Apoſtles, and other which had the gift of working miracles in thoſe times. That which S. Baſil ſaith is this: He ſheweth that the death of all the Saincts of God (that is of all true Chriſtians) is precious in the ſight of God, as the Pſalmiſt ſayth: And although by the Iewiſh law, he that touched a dead bodie, was vncleane, and muſt waſh his garments: Yet now (ſaith he) he that hath touched a martyrs bones, receiueth a certaine participation of ſanctification, of the grace, that reſted in the bodie: therefore precious in the ſight of the Lord is the death of his Saincts. By touching a martyrs bones, he meaneth not ſuperſtitious touching (for which you abuſe his words) but ſuch touching, as is neceſſarie in them, that burie the Saincts, or gather their bones together for buriall, after they be burnt or otherwiſe diſperſed by their perſecutors. As it is manifeſt, by the Iewiſh pollution by touching, which was the office of buriall, forbidden to the Prieſts. And the participation of ſanctification which hee nameth, is the holy communion or fellowſhip that Chriſtians haue, with the ſaincts departed in the grace of God, whereof they were partakers in their life. Whereof they declare themſelues to be partakers, whilſt they exerciſe ſuch offices of charitie, towards the bodies & bones of the Saincts and Martyrs departed. And this is the right meaning of Baſiles wordes, which you haue peruerted both in ſenſe and tranſlation. For what honour he thought meete to be giuen to the Martyrs, he teſtifieth in the Homily vpon the Martyr Gordius Hom. 48. It is the moſt ridiculous thing that can be (ſaith he) when the righteous deſpiſed the whole world, that we ſhould take vpon vs to ſet forth their full commendation, of a few things which they contemned. Therefore a remembrance is ſufficient for our perpetuall profit. For they haue no needs of any increaſe to their glory, but a remembrance is needfull for vs, that we may imitate or folow them. In theſe wordes Baſil declareth, that all other wayes of honouring the Martyrs and Saincts departed, then by imitation, are vaine and ſuperfluous. And that a remembrance for imitation, is ſufficient for vs to take perpetuall profite by them. As for grace or vertue that is in their bones, to communicate to them that ſuperſtitiouſly touch them, is farre, both from his words, and from his meaning. Honour of S. Incts. Reliques. Miracles. Holineſſe of creatures.

RHEM. 2 30 Vertue.) Vertue to heale this womans maladie, proceeded from Chriſt, though ſhe touched but his coate: ſo when the Saincts by their Relikes or garments doe miracles, the grace and force thereof commeth from our Sauiour, they being but the meanes or inſtruments of the ſame.

FVLKE. 2 While the gift of miracles continued in the Church, it is true that the grace and force of them, came from our Sauiour. But that by relikes or garments of Saincts, Chriſt worketh miracles at this day, it is more needfull to proue, then to ſhew whence the grace and force of them doth come. Except you will aduouch, all the fained miracles rehearſed in your Legendes, and the bookes of Saincts liues, to be true: by this argument. Chriſt can worke miracles by reliques and garments of Saincts, ergo there is no queſtion to be made, but all miracles of the Legend were as truely done, as thoſe that be recorded in the Goſpel. Reliques. Miracles.

RHEM. 36. Only beleeue.) It is a common speech, wherein we require nothing specially, though other things also bee as necessary, and more necessarie, of the Physicion to his patient. Only haue a good hart: when he must also keepe a diet, and take potions, things more requisite. So Christ in this great infidelitie of the Iewes, required only that they would beleeue he were able to do such a cure, such a miracle, and then he did it: otherwise it followeth in the next chapter, He could not doe miracles there because of their incredulitie. Againe, for this faith he gaue them here and in all the places both of body, which they desired, & therefore saith Saint Iames, They shall be healed that haue their sores both inward & outward, sick or whole. Againe, this was the faith of faith which could not iustifie the damned. whereby it is most euident, that his Scriptures, and the like are foolishly alleaged of the Heretikes to proue that onely faith iustifieth. Scripture fondly applied to proue onely faith. V.5.

FVLKE. 3. You would beare your scottish disciples the Papists in hand, that wee haue no better arguments to proue iustification by faith onely without the workes of the lawe, then these words of our Sauiour, Only beleeue. And therefore you draw our Sauiours wordes, to be like a common inconsiderate speech of ours, when the Phisitio on sayth, Only haue a good heart, where other things are necessary. But although the question of iustification in this place be not handled specially, nor directly, yet the wordes of our Sauiour Christ, declare generally, that to receiue any benefit from him, there is required at our hand nothing els but faith, that we may bee able to receiue it. And yet he meaneth not a dead and solitarie faith, but a faith liuing, and which is fruitful of good workes, yet not by the workes, but by the faith onely, his benefit is receiued. Hierome and Beda vpon this text, extend it to iustification by faith, as the very antilegie from the bodie to the soule, doth leade them. Iustification by faith onely.

RHEM. Aug. de verb. Dom. ser. 44. 41. Weuche arise.) Christ, miracles besides that they be wonders and myracles to shew his power, be also significatiue, as these which he corporally raised from death, put vs in minde of his raising our soules from sinne. The Scripture maketh speciall mention only of three raised by our Sauiour, of which three, this wench is one, within the house: an other, the yong man (whose sonne in Naim, now carried out couered the graue: the third, Lazarus hauing been in the graue foure dayes, and therefore stinking, which diuersity of dead bodies, signifie diuersitie of dead soules, some more desperate then other, some past all mans hope, and yet by the grace of Christ to be reuiued and reclaimed. By three dead, are signified three kind of sinners.

CHAP. VI.

In his owne countrey (signifying the reprobate Iewes) hee is contemned, and therefore worketh little in respect. 6 His Apostles preach euery where and worke miracles, so that King Herode (who shamefully killed Iohn Baptist) and others are striken with great admiration. 30 After Iohns death hee goeth into the Desert, where great multitudes being gathered vnto him, he feedeth 5000. with fiue loaues. 46 And after he had prayed long in the mountaine, he walketh vpon the sea. 53 And with the very touch of the garments hemme he healeth innumerable.

RHEM. 3. 3. The carpenter.) As his countrie-folkes seeing him not only to be a poore man, but also knowing (as they thought) his whole parentage to be but vulgar, not reaching to his Godhead and diuine generation, did take offence or scandale of him: so doe the Heretikes take like offence at his person in the B. Sacrament, saying, why, this is not God: for it is bread made of corne by such a baker, of the same mould that such a lofe is: not marking that it was not made Christ by baking, but by Consecration, and the vertue of Christs wordes.

FVLKE. 3. Christ was God manifested in the flesh, both by the Scriptures and his glorious workes. But the supposed presence of his body in the Masse cake, is contrary to the Scriptures, and the trueth of his naturall body. If you alleage the words of Christ, this is my bodie, the Iewes had many textes of Scripture, concerning the eternall generation of Christ, and his glorious kingdome, which seemed contrary to the infirmitie, and humilitie of his first comming, yet were not being rightly vnderstood. No more is that text of the presence of his body after a spirituall maner to the faith of the worthy receiuers, contrary to those Scriptures, which auouch the trueth of his humanitie: whereunto the popish imaginarie ptesence is contrary, and cannot bee reconciled without fables, and fained miracles, where none is, as S. FVLKE. 6 Saint Marke in declaring their commiſſion, expreſſeth not that they had power granted to heale the ſicke, yet it is manifeſt, both by S. Matthewe, and by that which S. FVLKE 7 They that haue the power granted of God, as the Apoſtles had, may doe as they did, but who bee they? or where be they nowe, that haue the power of working miracles? But when there was ſuch, theſe creatures were but externall tokens of the grace of God diſpenſed by the vſe of them, they had no miraculous medicinal vertue in them. For none could cure diſeaſes by the ſame oyle that the Apoſtles occupied but they that had the ſame gift of healing that the Apoſtles had, and faith as the Apoſtles had. Whereas if the oyle had a maruelous medicinal vertue in it, euery one without faith might haue done the ſame as with a naturall ſalue. Miracles.

The maſters of Ieruſalem comming ſo farre to carpe him. 6 he chargeth with traditions, partly friuolous, 9 partly alſo contrarie to Gods commandements. 14 And to the people he yeeldeth the reaſon of that which they carped, 17 and againe to his Diſciples, ſhewing the ground of the Iewiſh waſhing (to wit, that meates otherwiſe defile the ſoule) to bee falſe. 24 But by and by among the Gentiles, in a woman he findeth wonderfull faith, vpon her therefore he beſtoweth the crumme that ſhe asked, 32 returning (becauſe the time of the Gentiles was not yet come) to the Iewes with the loafe. 32 Where hee ſheweth his compaſſion towards mankinde ſo deafe and dumbe, 36 and of the people is highly magnified.

3 For the Phariſees and all the Iewes, vnleſſe they often waſh their handes, eate not, holding the tradition of the Ancients:

4 And from the market, vnleſſe they be waſhed, they eate not: & many other things there bee that were deliuered vnto them to obſerue, the waſhings of cuppes and cruſes, and of braſen veſſels and beddes.

5 And the Phariſees and Scribes asked him, why doe not thy diſciples walke according to the tradition of y Auncients, but they eate bread with common hands?

4 And when they come from the market, except they waſh, they eate not. And many other things there be, which they haue taken vpon them to obſerue, as the waſhing of cups and pots, braſen veſſels, and of tables.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. VII.

RHEM. 2. Common.) Common and vncleane is all one. For the Iewes were commaunded by the Lawe to eate certaine kindes of meates onely, and not all indifferently: and because these were separated from other meats, and as it were sanctified to their vse, they called the other common and prophane: and because the Lawe calleth those cleane and these vncleane, hereof it is, that vncleane and common is all one, as in this Chapter often, and Acts. 10.

RHEM. 1 7. Precepts of men.) Mens ordinances which be repugnant to Gods commandements, be here condemned: as all obseruations not edifying nor profitable to the fulfilling of Gods commaundements, be vaine and superfluous: as many obseruations of the Pharisees were then, and the like traditions of Heretikes be now. for howsoeuer they bragge of Scriptures, all their maner of administration and ministerie is their owne tradition and inuention without all Scripture and warrant of Gods word. But the traditions of the Apostles and Ancients, and all the precepts of holy Church wee are commaunded to keepe, as things not prescribed by man, but by the holy Ghost. Act. 15, 28. 41. 2. Thessal. 2, 15.

Commandements of men.

Traditions.

FVLKE. 1 Precepts of men be not onely such, as be repugnant to Gods commandements, but euen such as are beside Gods commandements, wherein any part of Religion or the seruice of God is placed. As this washing of hands before meate, and such like of them selues, are not repugnant to Gods commaundements, and may be vsed for cleanlinesse, but not for Religion. So the Popish traditions, which they call the traditions of the Apostles and auncients, and precepts of the holy Church, are either manifestly repugnant to Gods commandements, or els superstitious inuentions of men, by which God is worshipped in vaine. And are nothing like to the decrees of the Councell of the Apostles Acts. 15. nor to the doctrine which S. Paul deliuered 2. Thess. 2. 15. See the notes vpon Matth. 15. the Sect. 2. and 3. That our ministerie and ministration are agreeable to the Scriptures, let the Scriptures beare witnesse, yea your owne conscience and confession by silence: for if any thing could haue bene alledged out of the Scripture against vs, it should not haue bene spared.

Mans precepts.

Traditions.

RHEM. 2 11. Gift.) To giue to the Church or Altar is not forbidden, but the forsaking of a mans parents in their necessitie, pretending or excusing the matter vpon his giuing that which should relieue them, to God or to the Altar, that is impious and vnnaturall. And these Pharisees teaching children so to neglect their duties to their parents, did wickedly.

Dutie to parents.

FVLKE. 2 Christ speaketh of the Iewish altar. The Church of Christ hath none such: therefore it is sinne to giue to the idolatrous altar of Poperie. But to the maintenance of Gods religion, it is not forbidden to giue, so we neglect not vnder that pretence, other necessarie duties commaunded by God.

Popish altars.

RHEM. 3 15. Nothing entring into a man.) As these wordes of our Sauiour do not import, that the Iewes then might haue eaten of those meates which God forbade them: no more doe they now, that we Christians may eate of meats which the Church forbiddeth vs. And yet both then and now all meates are cleane, and nothing entering into a man, defileth a man. For neither they then, nor we now abstaine, for that any meats are of their nature abominable, or defile the eaters, but they for signification, we for obedience and chastisement of our bodies.

Abstinence from certaine meats.

FVLKE. 3 The Church of Christ forbiddeth not meats for religions sake: but Antichrist attending to lying spirits, and the doctrine of deuils, forbiddeth meates and mariages for religion, and in the abstinence placeth Religion, and holinesse. As for your pretence of obedience, and chastisement, is but lying in hypocrisie, for that there is no chastisement of the body, in change of the meate. And those things which of you are not forbidden, as wines, spices, fruites, &c. are more incentiue of lust, then common flesh, which you doe forbid. Durande also (howsoeuer you would cloke the matter) saith flesh is forbidden, and fish allowed, because God cursed the earth, but not the waters. See more vpon Matth. Chap. 15. Sect. 4. and 5.

Forbidding of meates and mariage.

RHEM. 4 33. Spitting.) Not only by Christs word and will, but also by ceremonie and by application of external creatures which be holy, miracles are wrought, as by Christs spittle, which was not part of his person, being a superfluitie of his body, but yet most holy. Theophyl. in 7. Marci.

Christs spittle worketh miracles.

FVLKE. 4 Christes spittle worketh not miracles, but Christ by it, or any other thing whatsoeuer it pleaseth him, or without any thing, but by his owne word or will worketh miracles. Therefore wee must not imagine any power or holinesse in ceremonies or creatures vnsensible, to doe any thing of them selues, but when it pleaseth our Sauiour Christ to vse them to such purposes, as in his Sacraments vsually, or in his miracles extraordinarily.

Miracles. Holines in ceremonies or creatures.

RHEM. 5 34. Ephphetha.) The Church doeth most godly imitate and vse these very wordes and ceremonies of our Sauiour in the Exorcismes before Baptisme, to the healing of their soules that are to be baptized, as Christ healed the bodily infirmitie and the disease of the soule together. Ambros. li. 1. de Sacram. c. 1.

Exorcismes and other ceremonies in Baptisme.

FVLKE. 5

The Popish Church doeth apishly and ridiculously imitate our Sauiour Christ, in coniuring out of the diuels there, where there is none, and abuseth his holy wordes and actions, to a superstitious purpose. Neither doeth S. Ambrose speake of exorcisme vsed in the ministration of Baptisme, although hee name a ceremonie needlesse, and not vsed of you Papists, namely the touching of the eares of him that was baptized, to signifie that his eares should be open to heare the doctrine of the Priest: and of his nostrels, that hee might receiue the good sauour of eternal pietie. But shew [illegible]th (saith he) the Bishop toucheth not, adding a reason, why they folowed not Christ in touching the mouth, as well as the eares. But that they vsed spittle or the Syrian word Ephphata S. Ambrose saith not. They had in that time many superfluous and burthenous ceremonies of mans presumption, about baptisme and other rites, whereof S. Augustine complained, and wished that they might bee aboolished. Epist. 118. Ianuario.

Of compassion he feedeth the people, 4000. with seuen loaues. 10 After al which miracles as though they were yet vnsufficient to proue him to be Christ, the obstinate Pharisees doe require some miracle from heauen. 13 Whereupon forsaking them, he warneth his Disciples to beware of the leauen of their doctrine, neither to feare want of necessaries. 22 He healeth a blinde man by degrees and with ceremonies. 27 Peter confesseth him (though men all this while had not learned so farre) to be Christ. 31 and by and by he reuealeth to them his passion, 32 rebuking also Peter for dissuading it, 34 and shewing that it is a thing wherein al that wil be saued (namely in time of persecution) must follow him.

31 And he beganne to teach them that the Sonne of man must suffer many things, and bee reproued of the Elders, and of the high Priestes and Scribes, and be killed, and after three dayes rise againe.

32 And hee spake that saying openly. And Peter tooke him aside, and began to rebuke him.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. VIII.

RHEM. 1 21. Touch him.) Our Sauiour vsed to worke much by touching: that wee may learne not to contemne the corporal and external application of holy things, not to chalenge by the spirit and faith onely, as Heretikes doe.

FVLKE. 1 When our Sauiour worketh miracles by touching, we are reuerently & faithfully to esteeme of it. But superstitious touching of any thing, where we haue no word or promise of God, to receiue benefit by such touching, we learne not of our Sauiour Christ. By faith & the spirit of God, we chalenge to obteine that which God hath promised in his holy word. But further to presume, by corporall touching or externall application, of (I cannot tell, and you are belike ashamed to expresse, what) holy things, without faith grounded vpon Gods word, and his spirit tried and proued by the same word, we know it is vaine superstition, yea wicked presumption. Superstitious touching.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. VIII.

RHEM. 6. Gaue to his disciples.) He serueth the people not immediatly himself, but by the Apostles ministerie: so teach vs that we must receiue Christs Sacraments and doctrine, not at our owne hand, but of his Priests and our Pastours.

RHEM. 2 7. Blessed them.) So is it in some antient Greeke copies, agreeable to our Latin, and in S. Luke expresly in the common Greeke text, that he blessed the fiue loaues and the two fishes: which must be alwayes marked against the Heretikes, which deny this blessing to pertaine to the creatures, but feine it alwayes to be referred to God for thankesgiuing. For if it were so, he would haue said grace but once for that whole refection: but he did seuerally blesse both the bread first, and afterward the fishes also, multiplying them by his said blessing (as he did mankinde and other creatures in the beginning by blessing them) and so working effectually some change or alteration in the very creatures themselues.* Luc.9,16. Λαβὼν τοὺς ἄρτους, Blessing of creatures worketh an effect in them. Gen.1,22,28.

FVLKE. 2 That Christ by his blessing multiplied the loaues and fishes, it is alwayes acknowledged of vs. But that Popish blessing of bread, water, candles, floures, and such like, whereof we haue no commandement, nor warrant in the holy Scriptures, wee say still, worketh no effect in them: but argueth an antichristian arrogancie in the blessers, which take vpon them to adde greater vertue or holinesse vnto them, then God hath giuen in the right vse of them. Popish blessing of bread, candles, water, floures, &c.

RHEM. 3 35. For me and the Gospel.) By the Gospel is signified not only the foure Euangelists, but al Scriptures, and whatsoeuer Christ said that is not in Scripture: for he saith in this very place, He that shal be ashamed of my wordes, the Sonne of man wil be ashamed of him, &c. Neither his owne words onely, but whatsoeuer the Apostles taught in word or writing: for our Sauiour saith, He that despiseth you despiseth me. For defence of any of al these and of euery Article of the Catholike faith, we ought to die, and this is to lose our life for Christ and his Gospel. What is to suffer for the Gospel. Luc.9.

FVLKE. 3 All the words of Christ & his Apostles, that perteine to the saluation of Gods children, though not in number and sound, yet in weight and substance, are comprehended and expressed in the holy Scriptures: which are able to make vs wise vnto saluation. 2. *Tim.*3.15. The Lord of vs all, gaue to his Apostle (saith Irenæus) *power of the Gospel, by whom we haue knowen the truth, that is, the doctrine of the Sonne of God, to whom also the Lord saide: He that heareth you heareth me: and he that despiseth you despiseth me and him which sent me. We haue not knowen the disposition of our saluation by any other, then by them, by whom the Gospel came vnto vs, which then in deed they preached, and afterward by the will of God, deliuered it in the Scriptures, to be a foundation and pillar of our faith. Lib.*3. *cap.*1. If any thing therefore be alledged, as the Gospel, which is not conteined in the holy Scriptures, we may safely say, with *S. Hierom. This because it hath no authoritie of the Scriptures, may as easily be contemned, as it is alledged for proofe. In Matth.*23. The sufficiencie of the Scripture.

RHEM. 36. Gaine the whole world.) Let such note this, that for feare or flattery of the world condescend to obey the vniust Lawes of men touching religion, against their owne consciences: and be content for the rest of a few dayes of this life, and for saueing their temporal goods, to lose their soule and the ioyes of heauen. Doing against our owne conscience.

CHAP. IX.

The more to confirme them, he giueth them in his Transfiguration a sight of his glory, whereunto Suffering doth bring, 9 and then againe doth inculcate his Passion. 14 A diuel also he casteth out, which his Disciples (vpon whom therefore the peruerse Scribes triumphed in his absence) could not, for lacke of fasting and praying. 30 Being yet in Galilee, he reuealeth more about his passion. 33 And (because in the way to Capernaum they contended for the Primacie) he teacheth them that humilitie is the way to Primacie before God: 38 bidding them also, not to prohibit such as be not against them: nor to giue scandal to any one of the faithful. and on the other side, the faithfull to auoyd them by whom they may be scandalized and fall, be they neuer so neere vnto them.

7 And there was a cloude ouershadowing them, and a voyce came out of the cloud, saying, This is my Sonne most deere: heare ye him.

8 And immediatly looking about, they saw no man any more but IESVS only with them.

9 And as they descended frō the mountaine, he commanded them that they should not tell any man what things they had seen: but when the Sonne of man shall be risen againe from the dead.

10 And they kept in the word with themselues: questioning together what that should be, when he shalbe risen from the dead.

20 And they brought him. And when he had seene him, immediatly the spirit troubled him: and being throwen vpon the ground, he tumbled foming.

24 And incontinent the father of the boy crying out, with teares saide, I doe beleeue Lord: helpe my incredulity.

25 And when IESVS saw the people running together, he threatned the vncleane spirit, saying to him, Deafe and dumme spirit, I commaund thee, goe out of him, and enter not any more into him.

26 And crying out, and greatly tearing him, hee went out of him, and he became as dead, so that many said, That he is dead.

27 But IESVS holding his hand, lifted him vp: and he rose.

FVLKE. 1 There may be personall entercourse betwixt the liuing and the dead, when it pleaseth God, for some speciall purpose, as in this singular example, and when the dead rose againe, at the resurrection of Christ, and appeared to many at Ierusalem, Matth.27.53. but not when the dead will, Luk.16.26. Entercourse betweene the dead and the liuing.

FVLKE. 2 Reward for almes deeds, prooueth them not meritorious. For the reward is giuen according to Gods promise, and his promise is according to his grace and mercie, and not according to the worthines of the worke: which also is Gods gift, and not our merit: and therefore S. Augustine saith often times, God in rewarding our works, doth crowne his gifts, not our merits. In Psal.70. Con.2. in Psal.101. Merits.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. IX.

RHEM. 4. Elias with Moyses.) Moyses representeth the persons of all the Saints that shall be departed this life when Christ commeth in his Maiesty to iudgement: And Elias (who was then liuing) figureth the holy men that shall then be found aliue when he commeth in glorie, who both shall then begin to reigne with Christ in glory. Beda in 9. Marc. Elias. Moyses.

RHEM. 3 13. Elias also is come.) Elias was Zealous for Gods Law, a great reprehender of sinne, and an Eremite, and shall be the Precursor of Christ in his second Aduent: So was Iohn before his first Aduent, a Zealot, a Corrector, an Eremite, and his Precursor. Theod. in caten. Thomæ super hunc locum. See S. Hierom in the life of Paul the Eremite, that both Elias and Iohn Baptist were counted principall professours of that life. Elias and Iohn Baptist Eremites.

FVLKE. 3 That Elias shal be a Precursor of Christ in his second comming to iudgement, it is boldly affirmed without authoritie of the Scriptures. That he was in the desert some time, we finde in the Scriptures, but continually he did not remaine in the wildernes. And if he had, by so much he had bene more vnlike to Popish Eremites, of whom many neuer came in the wildernesse, except you count that place, which is a quarter of a mile from a great citie, or a populous towne, a wildernesse. S. Hierom saith: It hath bene doubted among many, by which of the Monkes or solitary men chiefly, the wildernesse became to be inhabited. For some fetching the matter a farre off, haue taken the beginning from blessed Helias and Iohn. Of which Helias seemeth to vs to haue bene more then a Monke, and Iohn to haue prophesied before he was borne. But other, vnto which opinion all the common sort doth agree, doe affirme that Antony was the head or the beginning of this profession, which is partly true, for he was not so much before all, as by him the desires of all haue bene stirred vp. But Amathas and Macarius the disciples of Antony, of which the former buried his masters body, doe yet still affirme, that one Paul a Theban, was the prince or first beginner of this matter, which we also not so much in the name, as in opinion do approue. In these words you may see, what principall professors of Heremites life, Elias and Iohn Baptist were accounted by S. Hieronym. Yet the Eremites of his time, were nothing like Popish Eremites but onely in name. Elias. Eremites.

doe miracles among the heathen, to proue any article of the Christian faith: but they neuer did nor euer shall worke any miracle to proue any of their erronious opinions. as, to proue that Christ is not really in the B. Sacrament.

FVLKE. 4 Heretikes may worke miracles, to confirme their erronious opinions, but they can not proue their erronious opinions by the Scriptures, Deut. 13. August. de vnitat. eccles. cap. 16. It is sufficient, that we proue by the Scriptures, which testifie of the trueth of Christes naturall body, that it is not present in the Sacrament, according to the Popish imagination, which is contrarie to the Scriptures, and the iudgement of the ancient Fathers. As for lying miracles, such as Papists worke, to proue it by pricking their fingers to make it appeare bloudy, or by sorcery as Marcus the heretike iugled with the cup to make it appeare purple & red, that Christ might seeme to drop his blood into his cup: we leaue to Popish heretikes. The word of God is a sufficient warrant for our doctrine, against all false and counterfet miracles. Miracles. Iren. lib. 1. c. 9.

22 But he was discomforted because of that saying, & went away mourning: for he had great possessions.

23 And when Iesus had looked round about, hee sayeth vnto his disciples, Howe hardly shall they that haue riches, enter into the kingdome of God?

24 And the disciples were astonied at his wordes. But Iesus answereth againe, and sayeth vnto them, Children, howe hard is it for them that trust in riches, to enter into the kingdome of God?

38 And IESVS sayd to them, You wote not what you aske. can you drinke the cuppe that I drinke: or bee baptized with the baptisme wherewith I am baptized?

39 But they sayd to him, Wee can. And IESVS sayd to them, The cup in deed which I drinke, you shall drinke: and with the baptisme wherewith I am baptized, shall you be baptized:

40 But to sit on my right hand or on my left, is not mine to giue vnto you, but to whom it is prepared.

41 And the ten hearing, began to be displeased at Iames and Iohn.

Mt.20,25. Lu.22,25. 42 And IESVS calling them, sayeth to them, * You know that they which seeme to rule ouer the Gentiles, ouerrule them: and their Princes haue power ouer them.

48 And many rebuked him, that hee should holde his peace: but hee cried the more a great deale, Thou sonne of Dauid, haue mercie on me.

49 And Iesus stood still, and commaunded him to be called: and they call the blinde, saying vnto him, Be of good comfort, rise, he calleth thee.

50 And when he had thrown away his cloke, he rose, and came to Iesus.

51 And Iesus answered, and sayd vnto him, What wilt thou that I doe vnto thee? The blinde sayd vnto him, Maister, that I might see.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. X.

RHEM. 1 9. Let no man separate.) The obligation betwixt man and wife is so great, that during life it cannot be broken.

FVLKE. 1 Except in the case of fornication. Matth. 5. 32. 19. 9.

RHEM. 2 19. Commandements.) Note that the keeping of Gods commandements procureth life euerlasting.

FVLKE. 2 The perfect keeping of Gods commandements procureth euerlasting life, but euery breach of them deserueth the curse of God. Galath. 3. 10. Therefore no man attaineth to euerlasting life by keeping of Gods commaundements, but by the mercie of God in Christ, apprehended by faith without respect of workes or merits.

RHEM. 3 21. Goe, sell whatsoeuer.) This is counsell of perfection (not a precept) which the religious professing and keeping voluntary powerty, do follow.

FVLKE. 3 This was a speciall precept to this one person, in obseruing whereof, he should haue declared in part, that hee had kept the commandements with such affection as the law of God requireth. But in neglecting this precept, he declared that he was a carnall worldly man, farre from the true loue of God and his neighbours: preferring temporall things before the reward of eternall life. As for the superstitious profession of Popish Monkes and Friers, with their blasphemous opinion, to merit for themselues and for others that will pay for it: was farre from the meaning of our Sauiour Christ. Beside that, not one among a thousand of them, if they haue any goods or lands before their profession, doe sell them and giue them to the poore, but rather to their friends and kinsefolks, or vnto the abbeyes, where they know they shall be wealthily and daintily mainteined. The Pope also is good to many, and granteth them capacities to possesse temporall goods and benefices, contrary to their former vow. Popish Monks.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. X.

RHEM. 4 4. Permitted.) Some things are permitted, though not approoued or allowed, to auoid greater inconueniences. No man may do euill for any cause, but he may permit other mens euils for diuers causes: as God himselfe doth, who can doe no euill. So doth the Prince and Common wealth permit lesser euils to eschew greater, and so may the Holy Church much more (as S. Augustine saith she doth) being placed among much chaffe and much cockle, tolerate many things: and yet whatsoeuer is against faith and good life, she neither approueth, nor dissembleth with silence, nor committeth. Toleration and permission of euill. Aug. ep. 219. c. 19.

FVLKE. 4 The Christian Magistrate or Common-wealth, ought to permit no wickednesse, which he knoweth and can punish: neither doth the holy Church tolerate any thing that is against faith and good life, as S. Augustine sayth. Therefore the Church of Rome, and those Princes and Common-wealths that permit open whoredome in Stewes, are not the Church of Christ, nor they godly Princes and Common-wealths, that suffer such grosse wickednesse, openly and dayly committed. Stewes permitted in Poperie.

RHEM. 5 11. And marrieth another.) That which S. Matthew vttered more obscurely, and is mistaken of some, as though he meant that for fornication a man might put away his wife and marry another, is heere by this Euangelist (as also by S. Luke) put out of doubt, generally auouching, that whosoeuer putteth away his wife and marrieth another, committeth adultery. Aug. li. 1. de adult. coniug. c. 11. & sequentibus. Mariage after diuorce vnlawfull. Lu. 16, 18.

FVLKE. 5 S. Marke, S. Luke, and S. Matthew did write all by one spirit, therefore the exception expressed in the one, must be needs vnderstood in the other. Els you may aswell say, there can be no separation for any cause as you say, there can be no marriage after diuorce for any cause. Mariage after diuorce.

RHEM. 18. None is good.) None is entirely, substantially, and of himselfe good, but God: though by participation of Gods goodnesse, men are truely also called good.

23. A rich man.) He is here called a rich man that hath his confidence (as here is expressed) in his treasure, and had rather forsake his faith and duety to God, then lose them. as all they which liue in schisme or heresie to saue their goods.

30. An hundred times so much.) *Sometime God doth so blesse men also in worldly benefits that haue forsaken all for him, as S. Gregory, S. Augustine, and S. Paulinus: but the principall meaning is, * that he will giue to such men in this life abundance of grace and spirituall comfort and contentation and ioy of conscience (as they feele which haue experience) the which spirituall gifts exceed the temporall commodities more then an hundred fold. insomuch that he that hath fully forsaken but small things for religion, would not forsake religion to haue all the world.* Their reward in this life that forsake ought for Gods sake. Hiero. in 19. Mat.

RHEM. 3 16. Vessell thorow the Temple.) He could not abide to see the Temple of God prisoned, no nor suffered those things to be done in it, which otherwise were not vnlawfull but honest, if they had bene done in due place. How much lesse can be abide the profaning of the Churches now with heretical seruice and preaching of heresie and blasphemie. Profaning of Gods Church.

FVLKE. 3 God can not abide the prophaning of the Church with heretical seruice, and preaching of heresie and blasphemie, therefore he abhorreth the Popish seruice and preaching, which is full of heresie and blasphemie. As for our Church seruice and preaching, being iustified by the word of God expressed in the Scriptures, and referring all honour and glorie of our saluation, to God and Christ onely, must needs be far from blasphemy. But Popery giuing part of the honour of God and Christ to creatures, and part to their owne merits, and ceremonies of their owne inuention, is both heretical and blasphemous. Slander.

RHEM. 4 17. Den of thieues.) If the Temple was then a den of thieues, because of prophane and secular merchandise: how much more now, when the house appointed for the Holy Sacrifice and Sacrament of the Bodie of Christ, is made a den for the Ministers of Caluins bread.

FVLKE. 4 The sacrifice of Christes Bodie, was performed once by himselfe, to the eternall saluation of all his chosen. Heb.9.& 10. And therefore, the repetition thereof, supposed in the Popish Masse, is a most horrible blasphemie against the sacrifice and eternall Priesthood of our Sauiour Christ. We minister the Lords Supper, according to his owne institution. Wee haue nothing to doe with Caluins bread, or any mans inuention in celebration of the blessed Sacrament. The bread which we breake is the participation of the Body of Christ. 1.Cor.10. CHAP. XII.

He foretelleth to the Iewes in a parable their reprobation most worthy, and the vocation of the Church of the Gentiles in their place, 10 himselfe being the head stone thereof. 13 He defeateth the snare of the Pharisees and Herodians about paying tribute to Cæsar: 18 answereth also the invention of the Sadducees against the resurrection: 28 also the opposition of a Scribe. 35 And so having put all the baste sects to silence, he turneth and poseth them on the other side, because they imagined Christ should be no more but a man. 38 Bidding the people to beware of the Scribes, being ambitious and hypocrites, 41 He commendeth the poore widow for her two mites, above all.

Esa.5,1. Mt.21,33. Luc.20,9.

AND he began to speake to them in parables, ‡ A man planted a vineyard and made a hedge about it, and digged a trough, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen: and went forth into a strange countrey.

‡ This man, is GOD the Father. This vineyard, is (as Esay sayth 5, 1.) the house of Israel. The seruants sent, are Moyses and the Prophets whom the Iewes did diuersly afflict and persecute.

2 And he sent to the husbandmen in season a seruant, to receiue of the husbandmen, of the fruit of the vineyard.

3 Who apprehending him, beat him: and sent him away emptie.

4 And againe hee sent to them another seruant: and him they wounded in the head, and vsed him reprochfully.

5 And againe he sent another, and him they killed: and many other, beating certein, and killing others.

‡ His sonne, ‖ CHRIST our Sauiour, whom the Iewes crucified out of the citie of Ierusalem, as it were casting him out of the vineyard.

6 Therefore hauing yet one ‡sonne most deere: him also hee sent vnto them last saying, That they will reuerence my sonne.

7 But the husbandmen said one to another, This is the heire: come, let vs kill him: and the inheritance shalbe ours.

8 And apprehending him, they killed him, and cast him forth out of the vineyard.

‡ The Iewes and their guides to whom the vineyard was set, destroyed: & Gods vineyard giuen to the Apostles and their Successours in the Gentils, Ps.117,22. ‡ CHRIST is become the corner stone of the Synagogue, and the Church in which the faithfull both of the Iewes and Gentiles are conteined. Mt.22,15. Lu.20,20.

9 What therefore will the lord of the vineyard doe? ‡ He wil come and destroy the husbandmen: and will giue the vineyard to others.

10 Neither haue you read this Scripture, The ‡stone which the builders reiected, the same is made the head of the corner:

11 By our Lord was this done, and it is marueilous in our eyes?

12 And they sought to lay hands on him, and they feared the multitude. for they knew that he spake this parable to them. And leauing him they went their way.

13 *And they send to him certaine of the Pharisees and of the Herodians: that they should intrap him in his word.

14 Who comming, say to him, Maister, we know that thou art a true speaker, and carest not for any man: for thou doest not looke vpon the person of men, but teachest the way of God in truth. is it lawfull to giue tribute to Cæsar: or shall we not giue it?

15 Who knowing their subtilty, sayde to them, Why tempt you me? bring me a penie that I may see it.

16 But they brought it him. And he saith to them, Whose is this image and inscription? They say to him, Cæsars.

17 And IESVS answering, sayd to them, Render therefore the things that are Cæsars, to Cæsar: and that are Gods, ‖ to God. And they maruelled at him.

18 And

And he began to speake vnto them by parables. A certein man planted a vineyard, and he set an hedge about it, and digged a winepresse, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a strange countrey. Matt.21.33. luke 20.9. esay 5.1. iere.2.21.

2 And when the time was come, he sent to the husbandmen a seruant, that he might receiue of the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard.

3 And they caught him, and beat him, and sent him away emptie.

4 And againe he sent vnto them another seruant: and at him they cast stones, and brake his head, and sent him away all to reuiled.

5 And againe he sent another, & him they killed: and many other, beating some, and killing some.

6 And so when hee had yet but one beloued sonne, he sent him also at the last vnto them, saying, They will stand in awe of my sonne.

7 But the husbandmen sayd amongst themselues, This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, and the inheritance shalbe ours.

8 And they tooke him, and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard.

9 What shall therefore the Lord of the vineyard do? He shall come and destroy the husbandmen, and will giue the vineyard vnto other.

*10 Haue yee not read this Scripture? * The stone which the builders disallowed, is become the chiefe stone of the corner?* Psal.118.22. matth.21.42. act.4.11.

11 This was the Lords doing, and it is marueilous in our eyes.

12 They went about also to take him, & feared the people: for they knew that hee had spoken the parable against them: and they left him, and went their way.

*13 * And they sent vnto him certeine of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, to take him in his words.* Matth.22.15. luke 20.20.

14 And when they were come, they say vnto him, Master, wee know that thou art true, and carest for no man: for thou considerest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God in trueth: Is it lawfull to giue tribute to Cæsar, or not?

15 Shall wee giue, or shall wee not giue? But hee knowing their hypocrisie, sayde vnto them, Why tempt ye me? Bring me a penie, that I may see it.

16 And they brought it: and he sayeth vnto them, Whose is this image & superscription? And they sayd vnto him, Cæsars.

Mt.22,23. Lu.20,27. 18 And *there came to him the Saducees that say there is no resurrection: and they asked him saying, Master, Act.23,6. Deu.25,5. 19 *Moyses wrote vnto vs, that if any mans brother die, & leaue his wife, and leaue no children, ‖ his brother shall take his wife and raise vp seed to his brother.

20 There were therefore seuen brethren: and the first tooke a wife, and died leauing no issue.

21 And the second tooke her, and died: and neither this left issue. And the third in like maner.

22 And the seuen tooke her in like sort: and did not leaue issue. Last of all the woman also died.

23 In the resurrection therefore when they shall rise againe, whose wife shall she be of these? for the seuen had her to wife.

24 And IESVS answering, said to them, Do ye not therefore erre ‖, not knowing the Scriptures, nor ‖ the power of God?

25 For when they shall rise againe from the dead, they shal neither marry nor be married, but are as the Angels in heauen.

26 And as concerning the dead, that they do rise again, haue you not read in the booke of Moyses, howe in the bush God spake to him, saying,

Exo.3,6. I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob?

27 He is not the God of the dead, but of the liuing. You therefore are much deceiued.

Mt.22,34. 28 And *there came one of the Scribes that had heard them questioning, and seeing that hee had well answered them, asked him which was the first commandement of all.

29 And IESVS answered him, That the Deu.6,5. first commandement of all is, Heare Israel: the Lord thy God, is one God.

30 And thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God from thy whole heart, & with thy whole soule, and with thy whole minde, and with thy whole power. This is the first commandement.

Leui.19,18. 31 And the second is like to it, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. Another commandement greater then these there is not.

32 And the Scribe said to him, Well Master, thou hast said in trueth, that there is one God, and there is none other besides him.

33 And that he be loued from the whole heart, and with the whole vnderstanding, and with the whole soule, and with the whole strength: and ‡ to loue his neighbour as himselfe is a greater thing then all holocaustes and sacrifices.

34 And IESVS seeing that hee had answered wisely, said to him, Thou art not farre from the kingdome of God. And no man now durst aske him.

Mt.22,41. Lu.20,41. 35 And *IESVS answering, said teaching in the temple, How doe the Scribes say, that Christ is the sonne of Dauid?

36 For

18 There come also vnto him the Saducees, which say there is no resurrection, and they asked him, saying, Matth 22.23. luke 20.27.

19 Master, Moyses wrote vnto vs, If any mans brother die, and leaue his wife behinde him, and leaue no children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise vp seede vnto his brother.* Deut.25.5.

20 There were seuen brethren: and the first tooke a wife, and when he died, left no seed behind him.

21 And the second tooke her, and died, neither left he any seed: and the third likewise.

22 And seuen had her, and left no seed behinde them: last of all the wife died also.

23 In the resurrection therefore when they shall rise, whose wife shall she be of them? for seuen had her to wife.

24 And Iesus answering, said vnto them, Doe yee not therefore erre, because yee know not the Scriptures, neither the power of God?

25 For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marrie, nor are giuen in marriage: but are as the angels which are in heauen.

26 As touching the dead that they rise: Exod.3.6. haue yee not read in the booke of Moyses, matth.22.32. how in the bush God spake vnto him, saying, * I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isahac, & the God of Iacob?

27 He is not the God of the dead, but God of the liuing: ye therefore do greatly erre.

*28 * And when there came one of the* Matth.22.35. Scribes, and had heard them disputing together, and perceiued that hee had answered them well, hee asked him which is the first commandement of all.

29 Iesus answered him, The first of all the commaundements is, Heare, O Israel, the Lord Deut.6.4. our God is one Lord:

30 And thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soule, and with all thy minde, and with all thy strength. This is the first commandement:

31 And the second is like vnto this, Thou Leuit.19.18. shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe: there is none matth.22.39. other commandement greater then these. rom.13.9. gala.5.14. iacob.2.8.

32 And the Scribe sayd vnto him, Well master, thou hast sayde the trueth: for there is one God, and there is none other but he.

33 And to loue him with all the heart, and with all the vnderstanding, and with all the soule, and with all the strength, and to loue a mans neighbour as himselfe, is greater then all the burnt offerings and sacrifices.

34 And when Iesus sawe that hee answered discreetly, he sayd vnto him, Thou art not farre from the kingdome of God. And no man after that durst aske him any question.

*35 * And Iesus answering, sayd, teaching in* Matth.22.41. the Temple, How say the Scribes that Christ is luke 20.41. the sonne of Dauid?

Ps.109,1. 36 For Dauid himselfe saith in the holy Ghost: Our Lord said to my Lord, sit on my right hand, vntill I put thine enemies the footstoole of thy feet.

37 Dauid therefore himselfe calleth him Lord, and whence is hee his sonne? And a great multitude heard him gladly.

38 And hee sayd to them in his doctrine, * Take heede of the Scribes that will walke in long robes, and be saluted in the market-place,

39 And sit in the first chaires in the Synagogs, and loue the highest places at suppers:

40 Which deuoure widowes houses vnder the pretence of long prayer: these shall receiue larger iudgement.

Lu.21,2. 41 * And IESVS sitting ouer against the treasurie, beheld how the multitude did cast money into the treasurie, and many rich men did cast in much.

42 And when there came a certeine poore widow, shee cast in two mites, which is a farthing.

43 And calling his Disciples together, he saith to them, Amen I say to you, that this poore widow hath cast in ‡ more then all that haue cast into the treasurie.

44 For all they of their abundance haue cast in: but she, of her penury hath cast in all that she had, her whole liuing.

37 Dauid himselfe calleth him Lord: and whence is he then his sonne? And much people heard him gladly.

38 And hee *sayd vnto them in his doctrine, * Beware of the Scribes, which desire to walke in long clothing, & loue salutations in the market places,* Matth.23.6. luke 11.43.

39 And the chiefe seats in the Synagogues, and the vppermost roomes at feasts.

*41 * And when Iesus sate ouer against the treasurie, he beheld how the people put money into the treasurie: and many that were rich, cast in much.* Luke 21.1.

42 And there came a certeine poore widow, and shee threwe in two mites, which make a farthing.

43 And when he had called vnto him his disciples, he sayth vnto them, Verily I say vnto you, that this poore widow hath cast more in, then all they which haue cast into the treasurie.

44 For all they did cast in of their superfluity: but shee of her want, did cast in all that shee had, euen all her liuing.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XII.

RHEM. 2 17. To God.) These men were very circumspect and wary to doe all dueties to Cæsar, but of their duety to God they had no regard. So heretikes to flatter temporall Princes, and by them to vpholde their heresies, doe not onely inculcate mens duety to the Prince, dissembling that which is due to God: but also giue to the Prince more then due, and take from God his right and duety. But Christ allowing Cæsar his right, warneth them also of their duety toward God. And that is it which Catholiks inculcate, Obey God, doe as he commandeth, Serue him first, and then the Prince. God first to be serued, and then the Prince.

FVLKE. 2 This is a meere slander of godly Preachers, who aswell teach the Princes duety to God, as the subiects duty to the Prince. But Papists forbid Princes to yeeld that duety to God, which they owe to him as Princes; namely to set forth and mainteine his religion by their lawes, and to punish all contemners thereof. *Aug. Epist. ad Bonifac.*50. And the Pope forbiddeth subiects to yeeld their obedience to their Princes if they displease him: not onely those that renounce his heresie, but euen them that agree with him in religion: yea hireth deuillish Monks and Friers to murther them, as the example is manifest in France at this day. Slander.

For here the same Law sayth, that in some case, the brother not onely might, but then was bound to marry his brothers wife.* Marrying the brothers wife.

FVLKE. 3 A traitourous and hereticall note, confuted before, Chap.6.sect.2.

RHEM. 4 24. Not knowing the Scriptures.) Who would haue thought that by this place of Scripture alledged by Christ, the Resurrection were prooued? and yet we see that Christ doth hereby deduce it, and chargeth these great Doctours and Maisters (which arrogated to themselues the knowledge of Scriptures) that it is their ignorance, that they knew not so to deduce it. No marueil then if the holy Doctours and Catholike Church make the like deductions sometime and proofs, where the heretike doeth not or will not see so much, therefore no doubt, because he knoweth not the Scriptures, whereof hee boasteth so much, nor the sense of the Holy Ghost in them. For example, when of that place, It shall not be forgiuen in this world nor in the world to come, ancient Fathers deduce, that there are sinnes remitted after this life in Purgatorie. See Mat.12.32. Many truethes deduced out of Scripture, which heretikes see not,

FVLKE. 4 Whensoeuer the Doctours deduce any argument out of the Scriptures, as rightly as this is deduced by our Sauiour Christ, that it may be concluded in true and lawfull syllogismes, out of the words of the Scripture, we acknowledge it to be the word of God, aswell as that which is expressed in the text. But not euery surmise, or vnnecessary collection, is warranted by this deduction. Neither would the doctours themselues be otherwise credited in their collections, then if they be consonant to the holy Scriptures. In all my writings (sayth S. Augustine) I desire not onely a godly reader, but also a free corrector. De Trinit lib.3.cap.7. Againe, We ought not to account the disputations of any men, though they be Catholike and praise-worthy men, as Canonicall Scriptures, so that we may not, sauing the reuerence due to those men, disallow or refuse any thing in their writings, if perhaps we finde that they thought otherwise The word of God.

otherwise then the trueth is, being vnderstood by Gods helpe, either of other men, or of our selues. Such am I in other mens writings, such will I that other men be vnderstanders of my writings. RHEM. 5

24. The power of God.) Euen so doe heretikes erre two wayes: because they know not the Scriptures, which they interpret contrary to the sense of the whole Church and of all the ancient Fathers: and because they know not the power of God, that as he is able to raise the selfe same bodies againe, so he can make his body present in many places: but being altogether faithlesse and not beleeuing his power, they dispute of all such matters onely by reason and their owne imaginations. Heretikes ignorant and without faith.

FVLKE. 5

We interpret the Scriptures, according to the analogie of faith, and confirme our interpretation by authoritie of the Scriptures themselues, taking the sense of the Scriptures out of the Scriptures themselues, as all true Catholikes ought to doe, by the iudgement of Clemens, cited in the decrees. Dist. 37. c. relatum. When the Law of God is read, let it not be read or taught according to the power of vnderstanding of our owne wit. For there are many words in the holy Scriptures, which may be drawen to that sense, which euery man shall presume of his owne head: but it may not be so. For you ought not to seeke a forreigne and strange sense without the Scriptures; that you may confirme it by any meanes by authority of the Scriptures: but you must take their sense of trueth, or the true sense out of the Scriptures themselues. And in the chiefe matters of controuersie betweene vs and the Papists, we haue the consent of the whole Primitiue Church, and the most ancient and approoued Fathers of the same, as may appeare in many of our writings, and namely in confutation of these Popish notes. The power of God how great it is, wee know: but wee doe not acknowledge that hee will doe any thing contrary to his will and his word. Therefore we doe not beleeue, that his bodie is present in many places at once, for then hee should not be like his brethren in all things, except sinne, Heb. 2. 17. He should not reteine a true bodie, whereunto our bodies in the resurrection, should be made conformable Philip. 3. 21. yea he should haue no bodie at all. August. Epist. 57. Dardano. Interpretation of the Scriptures. The body of Christ.

26 And then they shall see the * Sonne of man comming in the cloudes, with much power and glorie.

27 And then shal he send his Angels, and shall gather together his elect from the foure windes, from the vttermost part of the earth to the vttermost part of heauen.

28 And of the figge tree learne ye a parable. When now the bough thereof is tender, and the leaues come foorth, you know that Summer is very nigh.

29 So you also when you shall see these things come to passe, know ye that it is verie nigh, at the doores.

30 Amen I say to you, that this generation shall not passe, vntill all these things be done.

31 Heauen

for it is not ye that speake, but the holy Ghost.

12 The brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the sonne: and the children shall rise against their fathers and mothers, and shall put them to death.

13 And yee shall be hated of all men for my names sake: but hee that shall endure vnto the end, the same shalbe safe.

*14 * Moreouer when ye see the abomination of desolation, whereof is spoken by Daniel the Prophet, standing where it ought not (let him that readeth, vnderstand) then let them that be in Iurie, flee to the mountaines:* Mat.14.15. luk.12.11. and 21.14.

15 And let him that is on the house top, not goe downe into the house, neither enter therein, to fetch any thing out of his house.

16 And let him that is in the field, not turne backe againe for to take his garment with him.

17 Woe shall be then to them that are with childe, and to them that giue sucke in those dayes.

18 But pray yee that your flight be not in the Winter:

19 For there shall be in those dayes such tribulation, as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created, vnto this time, neither shall be in any wise.

20 And except that the Lord had shortened those dayes, no flesh should be saued: but for the elects sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened those dayes.

*21 * And then, if any man shall say to you, Loe heere is Christ, or, loe he is there: beleeue him not.* Matth.24.23. luke 21.8.

22 For false christs, and false prophets shall rise, and shal shew signes and wonders, to deceiue, if it were possible, euen the elect.

23 But take ye heed: beholde, I haue shewed you all things before.

*24 * Moreouer, in those dayes, after that tribulation, the Sunne shall be darkened, and the Moone shall not giue her light:* Ezech.32.7. esay 13.10. ioel.2.10.

25 And the Starres of heauen shall fall, and the powers which are in heauen shall be shaken.

26 And then shall they see the Sonne of man comming in the cloudes, with great power and glorie.

27 And then shall hee send his Angels, and shall gather together his elect from the foure windes, from the end of the earth, to the vttermost part of heauen.

28 Learne a parable of the figge tree. When her branch is yet tender, and hath brought forth leaues, ye know that Summer is neere:

29 So ye in like maner, when ye shall see these things come to passe, vnderstand that it is nigh, euen at the doores.

30 Verely I say vnto you, that this generation shall in no wise passe, till all these things bee done.

31 Heauen and earth ſhall paſſe, but my wordes ſhall not paſſe.

32 But of that day or houre no mã knoweth, neither the Angels in heauen, nor the ‡ Sonne, but the Father.

33 Take heede, watch, and pray. for you know not when the time is.

34 Euen as a man who being gone into a ſtrange countrey, left his houſe: and gaue his ſeruants authoritie *ouer ech worke, and commaunded the porter to watch.

35 Watch yee therefore (for you know not when the Lorde of the houſe commeth: at euen, or at midnight, or at the cocke crowing, or in the morning)

36 Leſt comming vpon a ſudden, he finde you ſleeping.

37 And that which I ſay to you, I ſay to all, watch.

31 Heauen and earth ſhall paſſe away: but my words ſhall in no wiſe paſſe away.

32 But of that day and that houre knoweth no man, no not the Angels which are in heauen, neither the Sonne himſelf, ſaue the Father only.

*33 Take yee heede, watch and pray: for yee know not when the time is. Matth. 24. 13.

34 ‖ As a man which is gone into a ſtrange countrey, and hath left his houſe, and giuen authoritie to his ſeruants, and to euery man his worke, and commanded the porter to watch:

36 Leſt if hee come ſuddenly, hee finde you ſleeping.

37 And that I ſay vnto you, I ſay vnto all, Watch.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIII.

RHEM.

4. When ſhal theſe things be?) The miſeries which did fall before the deſtruction of the Temple and citie of Hieruſalem, were a reſemblance of the extreme calamitie that ſhall befall before the latter day at the time of Antichriſt: whereupon Chriſt ſpeaketh indifferently of both.

6. I am he.) As before the deſtruction of Hieruſalem, diuers Seducers aroſe, and called them ſelues Chriſtes, promiſing the people deliuerance from the feares and dangers they were in of forraine ſouldiars: ſo ſhall there come many towards the end of the world, and make them ſelues Chriſtes and Authors of Sectes, and ſhal gaine many Diſciples: as in plaine wordes foloweth in this chapter v. 22. There ſhal riſe Falſe-Chriſtes and Falſe-Prophets, &c. Arch-heretikes be Falſe-Chriſtes and Falſe-Prophets.

14. The abomination of deſolation.) *No hereſie doth ſo properly and purpoſely tend to this abomination of deſolation which by Antichriſt ſhalbe atchieued, as this Caluin ſme: which taketh away with other Sacraments & external worſhip of God, the very ſacrifice of Chriſts Body and blood, which being taken away (as S. Cyprian ſaith) no religion can remaine. Caluiniſme tendeth to the abomination of deſolation.

FVLKE. 2

Caluines doctrine tendeth to none other ende, but that God and Chriſt only, might ſtand in the holy place, and haue all that honour and ſeruice, which is due to him alone. The Sacraments of the Church, which be of Chriſts inſtitution, he acknowledgeth. As for the ſacrifice of the Maſſe, as an horrible blaſphemie againſt the onely ſacrifice of Chriſts death, once offered for euer, he doeth worthily abhorre. And more properly is the ſacrifice of the Maſſe, the abomination of deſolation, which ouerthroweth the effect of Chriſtes onely ſacrifice, and maketh it like the ſacrifices of the Law, which being often repeated, could neuer take away ſinnes. Heb. 10. 11. Concerning the teſtimony of Hippolytus, ſee Math. 24. Sect. 5. Cyprian, or whoſoeuer was auctor of that Treatiſe, ſpeaketh not a word of the ſacrifice of the Maſſe, but the wordes you take hold of, be theſe, againſt the Capernaites, which thought they ſhould eate the fleſh of Chriſt, ſodde or roſted and chopped in pieces, where as (ſaith he) the fleſh of his perſon, if it were parted in gobbets, could not ſuffice all mankinde, which being once ſpent, yet religion might haue ſeemed to haue bene loſt, ſeeing he ſhould haue nothing left for ſacrifice. His meaning is plaine, if the fleſh of Chriſt had bene conſumed before his paſſion, hee ſhould not haue had his body to be offered in ſacrifice, for the redemption of the world, and ſo the Religion of Chriſt ſhould haue come to nothing. For that he knew not your tranſubſtantiation, his wordes following a little after doe teſtifie, where he ſaith: The bread is meate, blood, life, fleſh, ſubſtance, his body, the Church, which muſt needes be vnderſtood ſpiritually and ſacramentally, or els you muſt make more tranſubſtantiations then one. Slander. Sacrifice of the Maſſe.

RHEM. 3

22. Signes and wonders.) Falſe-Chriſts and Falſe-Prophets be ſeducers, who in the later day by the power of the diuel ſhal ſeeme to worke wonders, and yet men muſt not beleeue them. Much leſſe theſe, which for their falſe faith can not ſhew ſo much as one falſe miracle.

FVLKE. 3

We know the ordinary gift of working miracles, is long ſince ceaſed in the Church, and we meane not to counterfait as you do, and long haue done. Our faith being approued by the Scriptures, is confirmed by all the miracles of Chriſt and his Apoſtles. Miracles.

CHAP. XIIII.

*Iudas by occaſion of Mary Magdalens oyntment, doth ſell him to the Councel of the Iewes. 12 After the Paſchal Lambe he giueth them the bread of life (10.6.) in a myſtical ſacrifice or ſeparation of his body and blood. 27 and that night, is after his prayer, 43 taken of the Iewes men, Iudas being their Captaine: is forſaken of the other eleuen for feare: 53 is falſly accuſed, and impiouſly condemned of the Iewes Councel, 65 and ſhamefully abuſed of them: 66 and thrise denied of Peter. Al euen as the Scriptures and him ſelfe had often foretold.

* FVLKE. There is no word of ſacrifice in the text.

16 And his Disciples went their wayes, and came into the citie: and they founde as hee had tolde them, and they prepared the Pasche.

17 And when euen was come, hee commeth with the Twelue.

18 And when they were sitting at the table and eating, IESVS saide, Amen I say to you, that one of you shall betray me, hee that eateth with me.

19 But they began to be sad, and to say to him seuerally, Is it I?

29 And Peter saide to him, Although all shall be scandalized: yet not I.

30 And IESVS saith to him, Amen I say to thee, that thou this day in this night, before the cocke crowe twise, shalt thrise denie mee.

31 But hee spake more vehemently, Although I should die together with thee, I will not denie thee. And in like maner also said they all.

32 And they come into a farme-place called Gethsemani. And he saith to his Disciples, Sit you here, vntil I pray.

33 And hee taketh Peter and Iames and Iohn with him: and he began to feare and to be heauie.

34 And hee saith to them, My soule is sorowful euen vnto death: stay here, & watch.

35 And when he was gone forward a litle, he fell flat vpon the ground: and he prayed that if it might bee, the houre might passe from him:

36 And hee said, Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee, transferre this chalice from mee. but not that which I will, but that which thou.

37 And hee commeth, and findeth them sleeping. And hee saith to Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? couldst thou not watch one houre?

38 Watch ye, & pray that you enter not into tentation. The spirit in deede is prompt, but the flesh infirme.

45 And when hee was come, immediatly going to him, hee saith, Rabbi, and hee kissed him.

46 But they layde handes vpon him: and held him.

47 And one certaine man of the standers about, drawing out a sworde, smote the seruant of the chiefe Priest, and cut of his eare.

48 And IESVS answering, said to them, As to a theefe are you come out with swords and clubs to apprehend me?

49 I was dayly with you in the temple teaching, and you did not lay hands on mee. But, that the Scriptures may be fulfilled.

50 Then his disciples leauing him, al fled.

51 And a certaine yong mā folowed him clothed with sindon vpon the bare: and they tooke him.

52 But he casting of the sindon, fled from them naked.

53 And they brought IESVS to the chiefe Priest: and all the Priests and the Scribes and the Auncients assembled together.

54 And Peter folowed him a farre of euen in vnto the court of the high Priest: and hee sate with the seruants at the fire, and warmed him selfe.

55 And the chiefe Priestes and all the Councell sought testimony against IESVS, that they might put him to death, neither found they.

56 For many spake false witnesse against him: & the testimonies were not conuenient.

57 And certaine rising vp, bare false witnesse against him, saying, 59 And their testimonie was not conuenient.

60 And the high Priest rising vp into the middes, asked IESVS, saying, Answerest thou nothing to these things that are obiected to thee of these?

61 But hee held his peace and answered nothing. Againe the high Priest asked him, and saith vnto them, Sleepe henceforth, & take your ease: it is ynough, the houre is come, beholde, the Sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of sinners.

45 And as soone as hee was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith vnto him, Master, master: and kissed him.

46 And they layd their handes on him, and tooke him.

47 And one of them that stoode by, when he had drawen out his sworde, smote a seruant of the high Priest, and cut off his eare.

48 And Iesus answered, & said vnto them, Yee be come out as vnto a thiefe with swordes and with staues, for to take me.

49 I was dayly with you in the Temple, teaching, and yee tooke mee not: but these things come to passe that the Scriptures shoulde bee fulfilled.

50 And they all forsooke him, and ranne away.

52 And he left his linnen garment, and fled from them naked.

59 But yet their witnesse agreed not so together.

60 And the high Priest stood vp in the mids, and asked Iesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? Howe is it that these beare witnesse against thee?

61 But hee helde his peace, and answered nothing. Againe the high Priest asked him, and 65 And certaine began to spit vpon him, and to couer his face: and to beate him with buffets, and to say vnto him, Prophecie: and the seruants gaue him blowes.

66 And when Peter was in the court beneath, there commeth one of the woman seruants of the high Priest.

67 And when shee had seene Peter warming him self, beholding him she saith, And thou wast with IESVS of Nazareth.

68 But he denied, saying, Neither know I, neither wote I what thou sayest. And hee went foorth before the court: and the cocke crew.

69 And againe a wench seeing him, began to say to the standers about, That this fellow is of them.

70 But hee denied againe. And after a while againe they that stood by, saide to Peter, Verily thou art of them: for thou art also a Galilæan.

71 But he ‖ began to curse and to sweare, That I know not this man whom you speake of.

72 And immediatly the cocke crewe againe. And Peter remembred the worde that IESVS had saide vnto him, Before the cocke crow twise, thou shalt thrise deny me. And he began to weepe.

saide vnto him, Art thou Christ the Sonne of the blessed?

63 Then the high Priest, hauing rent his clothes, saith, What neede wee any further witnesses?

64 Yee haue heard the blasphemie: what thinke yee? And they all condemned him to bee worthy of death.

65 And some began to spit at him, and to couer his face, and to beate him with fistes, and to say vnto him, Prophecie: And the seruants did beate him with roddes.

69 And a damosell, when she saw him, began againe to say to them that stoode by, This is one of them.

70 And he denied it againe. And anon after they that stood by said againe to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art of Galilee, and thy speach agreeth thereto.

The cheefe of the Iewes accuse him to Pilate the Gentil. 6. And (hee seeking to deliuer him) they persuade the common people (who hitherto were alwayes ready to defend him) not only to preferre the murderer Barabbas, but also to cry CRVCIFIGE (to the reprobation of the whole nation.) 16 After many illusions, 20 he is crucified by the Gentiles. 29 Which the Iewes seeing, doe triumph as if they had now the victory. 33 But euen then by many wonderfull workes hee declareth his might, 42 and finally is buried honourably.

GOOD FRIDAY. Mt. 27, 1. Luc. 23, 1. Io. 18, 28.

AND foorthwith in the morning the cheefe Priestes with the auncients and the Scribes and the whole Councel, consulting together, binding IESVS led and deliuered him to Pilate.

2 And Pilate asked him, Art thou the king of the Iewes? but he answering, said to him, Thou sayest.

3 And the cheefe Priestes accused him in many things.

4 And Pilate againe asked him, saying, Answerest thou nothing? see in howe many things they accuse thee.

5 But IESVS answered nothing more: so that Pilate marueled.

6 And vpon the festiual day he was wont to release vnto them one of the prisoners whomsoeuer they had demaunded.

7 And there was one called Barabbas, which was put in prison with seditious persons, who in a sedition had cõmitted murder.

8 And when the multitude was come vp, they began to require according as alwayes he did vnto them.

9 And Pilate answered them, and saide, Wil you that I release to you the King of the Iewes?

2 And Pilate asked him, Art thou the king of the Iewes? And he answering, said vnto him, Thou sayest it.

3 And the high priests accused him of many things, but he answered nothing.

*4 So Pilate asked him againe, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witnesse against thee. — Matth. 27. d luke 23. 3. iohn 18. 33.

5 Iesus yet answered nothing at all, so that Pilate marueiled.

6 At that feast Pilate did deliuer vnto them one prisoner, whomsoeuer they desired.

7 And there was one that was named Barabbas, which lay bounde with them that made insurrection with him, which men had committed murder also in the insurrection.

8 And the people crying alounde, began to desire that he would doe according as hee had euer done vnto them.

9 Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye that I let loose vnto you the King of the Iewes?

10 (For

10 For he knew that the chiefe Priests for enuy had deliuered him.

11 But the chiefe Priests moued the people, that he should release Barabbas rather to them.

12 And Pilate againe answering, sayd to them, What will you then that I doe to the King of the Iewes?

13 But they againe cried, Crucifie him.

14 And Pilate said to them, Why, what euil hath he done? But they cried the more, Crucifie him.

15 And Pilate willing to satisfie ý people, released to them Barabbas, and deliuered IESVS, hauing whipped him, for to be crucified.

Io.19,2. 16 And *the souldiers led him into the court of the Palace, and they cal together the whole band:

18 And they began to salute him, Haile King of the Iewes.

19 And they smote his head with a reede: and they did spit on him. and bowing the knees, they adored him.

20 And after they had mocked him, they stripped him of the purple, and put on him his own garments, and they leade him forth to crucifie him.

21 And they forced a certaine man that passed by, Simon a Cyrenêan comming from the countrie, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to take vp his crosse.

22 And they bring him into the place Golgotha, which being interpreted is, The place of Caluarie.

23 And they gaue him to drinke wine mingled with myrrhe: and he tooke it not.

24 And crucifying him, they deuided his garments, casting lottes vpon them, who should take which.

25 And it was the thirde houre, and they crucified him.

26 And the title of his cause was superscribed, KING OF THE IEVVES.

27 And with him they crucifie two theeues: one on the right hand, and an other on his left.

†Thou that destroyest. †buildest.

30 ‡Saue thy selfe, comming downe from the crosse.

31 In like maner also the chiefe Priests mocking, said with the Scribes one to an other, He saued others, himself he cannot saue.

10 (For he knew that the high priests had deliuered him for enuie.)

11 But the high Priests moued the people, that hee should rather deliuer Barabbas vnto them.

12 Pilate answering againe, said vnto them, What will ye then that I shall doe vnto him whom ye call the King of the Iewes?

13 And they cried againe, Crucifie him.

14 Pilate sayd vnto them, What euill hath he done? And they cried the more fermently, Crucifie him.

15 And so Pilate, willing to content the people, let loose Barabbas vnto them, and deliuered vp Iesus, when hee had scourged him, for to bee crucified.

16 And the souldiers led him away into the hall, called Prætorium, and they call together the whole bande †. †Of, souldiers.

20 And when they had mocked him, they tooke off the purple from him, and put his owne clothes on him, and led him out to crucifie him.

26 And the title of his accusation was written ouer, THE KING OF THE IEVVES.

27 And they crucified with him two theeues; the one on the right hand, and the other on his left.

28 And the Scripture was fulfilled, which sayth, * He was counted among the wicked. Esa.53.12.

29 And they that went by, rayled on him, wagging their heads, and saying, * A wretch, Iohn 2.19. thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three dayes.

30 Saue thy selfe, and come downe from the crosse.

31 Likewise also the high Priestes mocking him among themselues, with the Scribes, said, He saued other men, himselfe he cannot saue.

32 Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the crosse, that we may see, and beleeue:

see and beleeue. And they that were crucified with him, railed at him.

33 And when it was the sixt houre, there was made darknes vpon the whole earth vntil the ninth houre.

34 And at the ninth houre IESVS cryed out with a mighty voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabachthani? Which is being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou ‡ forsaken me? Psal.21.

35 And certaine of the standers about hearing, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

36 And one running and filling a spunge with vinegre, and putting it about a reede, gaue him drinke, saying, Let be: let vs see if Elias come to take him downe.

37 And IESVS putting foorth a mightie voice, gaue vp the ghost.

38 And the vele of the temple was rent in two, from the toppe to the bottome.

39 And the Centurion that stoode ouer against him, seeing that so crying he had giuen vp the ghost, said, In deede this man was the Sonne of God.

42 And when euening was come (because it was the Parasceue, which is the Sabboth-eue)

43 Came Ioseph of Arimathæa a nohle Senatour, who himselfe also was expecting the kingdom of GOD: and he went in boldly to Pilate, and asked the body of IESVS.

44 But Pilate marueled if he were nowe dead. And sending for the Centurion, asked him if he were now dead.

45 And whē he vnderstood by the Centurion, he gaue the body to Ioseph.

46 And Ioseph ‖ bying sindon, and taking him downe, wrapped him in the sindon, and laid him in a monument, that was hewed out of a rocke. And he rolled a stone to the doore of the monument.

47 And Marie Magdalene and Marie of Ioseph beheld where he was laid.

And they that were crucified with him, checked him also.

33 And when the sixth houre was come, darknes arose ouer all the earth, vntill the ninth houre.

34 And at the ninth houre, Iesus cried with a loude voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lamasabachthani? which is, if one interprete it, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Matth.27.46. psal.21.2.

35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard that, sayd, Behold, he calleth for Elias.

37 But when Iesus had cried with a loude voice, he gaue vp the ghost.

38 And the vaile of the temple was rent into two pieces, from the toppe to the bottome.

39 And when the Centurion, which stoode ouer against him, saw, that when he had so cried, he gaue vp the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Sonne of God.

40 There were also women a good way off, beholding him, among whom was Marie Magdalene, and Marie the mother of Iames the litle, and Ioses, and Salome:

44 And Pilate marueiled if he were already dead, and when he had called vnto him the Centurion, asked of him whether hee had bene any while dead.

45 And when he knew the trueth of the Centurion, he gaue the body to Ioseph.

The Prieſthod of the new Teſtament.

FVLKE. 3a

When the Pope and his Prelates, folow the tyranny of the Iewiſh high Prieſts, in perſecuting Chriſt in his members, they are rightly compared vnto them. And yet the name and office remaineth honourable, as of Gods inſtitution. For we acknowledge the ſingular ſacrificing Prieſthod of our Sauiour Chriſt, & the ſpirituall Prieſthod of all true Chriſtians. And according to right Etymologie, the Prieſthod of the Law of Chriſt, and of his members, ſhould haue another name then that which in the newe Teſtament, is giuen to the Miniſters of the Church: as in Hebrew, Greeke and Latin it hath. But ſeeing vſe hath otherwiſe gotten the vpper hand, we contend not about the name. But where you ſay, the new Prieſthod after the order of Melchiſedec, was begun when the old Prieſthod of Aaron ceaſed, it is true, if you vnderſtand it rightly, of the ſingular Prieſthod of our Sauiour Chriſt, which neuer paſſeth from his perſon, and of which order there is no more, but he. Heb. 7. But when you meane thereby, your popiſh ſacrificing Prieſthod, and that euery popiſh prieſt, is a Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec, it is moſt horrible blaſphemie againſt the Sonne of God, who only is a Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec. Becauſe as he only is the King of peace, and King of righteouſnes, ſo onely is without father of his manhod, and mother of his Godhead, without genealogie of his Godhead, hauing neither beginning of his dayes nor end of his life, and therefore continueth a Prieſt for euer, and hath no ſucceſſors in this Prieſthod, being confirmed to him by othe of the Lord himſelfe, after he hath ſaid vnto him: Sit thou on my right hand vntill I make thine enemies thy footſtoole. Reade the whole 7. chapter of the Epiſtle to the Hebrewes, and the 110. Pſalme, and I marueil if you will not ſpit in the face of euery popiſh Prieſt, that dare open his blaſphemous mouth, and ſay he is a Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec. That the miniſtery, elderſhip, or prieſthod of the new Teſtament ſhall continue to the end of the world, we doe acknowledge, and ſhall haue the aſſiſtance of the holy Ghoſt to teach it all trueth, as euery true Chriſtian man hath the ſame promiſe. Ioh. 16. 13. Ioh. 14. 16. and Ioh. 15. 26. But thereof it followeth not that euery Prieſt ſhall alwayes hold the trueth, nor that euery one that is called a Chriſtian ſhall continue in true doctrine.

The name of Prieſts.

The Popiſh Prieſthod.

The prayer of Chriſt was performed in Peter, that in his great and grieuous fall, his faith failed not, but brought him to repentance. Our Sauiour Chriſt prayed for all his Apoſtles, that God would ſanctifie them in his trueth, and for all that ſhould beleeue in him through their preaching. Ioh. 17. Yet no man gathereth thereof, that euery ſucceſſor of the Apoſtles, and euery true Chriſtian hath a priuilege hereby, that hee can not erre, as you would inſinuate by Chriſts prayer for Peter, that the Pope hath as Peters ſucceſſor. Whereas that prayer ſpecially concerneth Peters perſon, in reſpect of his particular danger though his fall: and by analogie all Chriſtians, as well as Peters ſucceſſors, who by Chriſtes interceſſion are holden, that their faith faileth not in temptation. See Luke 22. ſect. 11. And that Chriſt ſaith to all the Apoſtles, and in them to all true preachers: He that heareth you, heareth me: it is true while they preach nothing but that they haue learned of Chriſt. For otherwiſe Chriſt ſpeaketh not in them, nor by them.

The Pope not priuileged from erring.

FVLKE. 4. If it be the faith of Popiſh Catholikes (for all Chriſtian Catholikes abhorre it) to conſpire to murther their Prince, to inuade their countrey with forreine power, to acknowledge the authoritie of an Italian Prieſt, that hath ſet forth his Antichriſtian bull, to depriue their naturall and moſt lawfull Prince of her royall eſtate, crowne and dignitie, life and allegiance of her ſubiects: No Chriſtian iudge neede to feare, to giue ſentence againſt ſuch Popiſh Catholikes, for their hereticall and traiterous faith.

Religious duetie toward the bodies of Chriſt and his ſaincts.

FVLKE. 5. This ductie was acceptable before God, as proceeding from faith, and loue towards our Sauiour Chriſt, but not meritorious. Neither is it commended as an example to faithfull men, to vſe all honour and deuotion towards the bodies of Saincts, and holy perſons, for that were horrible Idolatrie, to vſe all honour and deuotion, (which is due onely to God) towards dead thens bodies. But it is an example to vſe ſuch reuerent handling and laying of them vp, as is a duety of charitie towards the departed, and of faith in the reſurrection, without any ſuperſtitious worſhipping of the bodies. From which Ioſeph and Nicodemus abſteined, though they buried the bodie of Chriſt himſelfe, infinitely much more precious then the bodie of any other holy perſon. By this ſimple buriall of our Lord (ſaith Beda) the ambition of rich men is condemned which cannot be without their riches, no not in their graues.

HOLY WEEKE. The third day, to three women at his Sepulcher, an Angel telleth that he is riſen, and will (as he promiſed Mat. 14. 28.) ſhew himſelfe in Galilee. 9 The ſame day he appeareth to Mary Magdalene, afterward to two Diſciples: yet the Eleuen will not beleeue it, vntill to them alſo he appeareth. 15 To whom hauing giuen commiſſion into all nations, with power alſo of Miracles, he aſcendeth, and they plant his Church euery where.

THE GOSPEL vpon Easter day. Mt. 28, 1. Lu. 24, 1. Io. 20, 1.

AND when the Sabboth was paſt, Marie Magdalene and Marie of Iames, and Salôme ‖ bought ſpices, that comming they might anoint IESVS.

AND when the Sabboth day was paſt, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Iames & Salome, bought ſweete ſmelling † oinments, that they might come and anoynt him.

† Or, ſpices.

EASTER DAY 2 And very early the firſt of the Sabboths, they come to the monument: the ſunne being now riſen.

2 * And very early in the morning, the firſt day of the Sabboths, they come vnto the ſepulchre, when the ſunne was riſen:

Luke 24. 1. Iohn 20. 1.

3 And they said one to another, who shall roll vs backe the stone from the doore of the monument?

4 And looking, they saw the stone rolled backe. for it was very great.

5 And entring into the monument, they sawe a yong man sitting on the right hand, couered with a white robe: and they were astonied.

6 Who saith to them, Be not dismayed: you seeke IESVS of Nazareth, that was crucified: he is risen, he is not here, behold the place where they laid him.

7 But goe, tell his Disciples and ‡ Peter that hee goeth before you into Galilee: there you shall see him, *as hee tolde you.

Mr.14,28.

8 But they going foorth, fled from the monument. for trembling and feare had inuaded them: and they said nothing to any body. for they were afraid.

9 And he rising early the first of the Sabboth, *appeared first to Marie Magdalene, *out of whom he had cast seuen deuils.

Io.20,16. Lu.8,2.

10 She went and told them that had been with him, that were mourning and weeping.

11 And they hearing that hee was aliue and had bene seen of her, did not beleeue.

12 And *after this he appeared in an ‖ other shape to two of them walking, as they were going into the countrey.

Lu.24,13.

13 And they going told the rest: neither them did they beleeue.

THE GOSPEL vpon the Ascension day.

14 Last *he appeared to those eleuen as they sate at the table: and hee exprobrated their incredulity and hardnesse of hart, because they did not beleeue them that had seen him risen againe.

Lu.24,36. Io.20,19.

15 And hee said to them, *Going into the whole world preach the Gospel to all creatures.

Mt.28,19.

16 He that ‖ beleeueth and is baptized, shal be saued: but he that beleeueth not, shall be condemned.

17 And them that beleeue ‖ these signes shal folowe: In my name shall they cast out deuils, They shall speake with new tongues, 18 Serpents shall they take away, And if they drinke any deadly thing, it shal not hurt them, They shall impose handes vpon the sicke: and they shall be whole.

The Ascension, Lu.24,51.

19 And so our Lord IESVS after he spake vnto them, was assumpted into heauen, and sate on the right hand of God.

20 But they going forth preached euery where: our Lord working withall, and confirming the word with signes that folowed.

3 And they sayd among themselues, who shall roll vs away the stone from the doore of the sepulchre?

4 (And when they looked, they see howe that the stone was rolled away) for it was very great.

*5 And when they went into the sepulchre, they sawe a yong man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment, and they were greatly amazed. Matth.28.1. iohn 20.12.

6 And he sayth vnto them, Be not greatly amazed, yee seeke Iesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, he is risen, he is not here, beholde the place where they had put him.

7 But goe your way, and tell his disciples, and Peter, that hee goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him, as he sayd vnto you.* Matth.26.32. marke 14.28.

8 And they went out quickely, and fled from the sepulchre, for they trembled, and were amazed, neither said they any thing to any man, for they were afraide.

*9 When Iesus was risen early, the first day after the Sabboth, * he appeared first to Marie Magdalene, * out of whom hee had cast seuen deuils.* Ioh.20.16. Luke.8.2.

10 And shee went and told them that were with him, as they mourned and wept,

11 And they, whē they had heard that he was aliue, and had bene seene of her, beleeued it not.

*12 After that, hee appeared in another fourme, vnto * two of them, as they walked, and went into the countrey.* Luke 24.13.

13 And they went and told it vnto the residue: and they beleeued not these also.

*14 Afterward, he appeared vnto the eleuen as they sate at meate, and cast in their teeth their vnbeliefe and hardnesse of heart, because they beleeued not them, which had seene that he was risen. Luke.24.36. iohn 20.19.

*15 * And he said vnto them, Goe yee into all the world, and preach the Gospel to all creatures.* Matth.28.19.

*20 And they went forth, and preached euery where, the Lord working with them, * and confirming the word with signes following.* Heb.2.4.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XVI.

RHEM. 7 Peter is named.) Peter is named in speciall (as often els where) for prerogatiue.

FVLKE. 7 A poore prerogatiue in naming Peter, to build vp the kingdome of Antichrist. Although Peter be here named specially, not in respect of dignitie, but in respect of his infirmitie, because he hauing most shamefully fallen, was nowe especially to reioyce at the resurrection of his Master, by whom he obteined recouery from his fall.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVI.

RHEM. 2. 1. Bought spices.) As she did bestow and consume a costly ointment vpon his body being yet aliue (c.14.3.) Christ himself defending and highly commending the fact against Iudas and other who accounted it to be superfluous & better to be bestowed otherwise: So not without great deuotion and merit, she and these other women seeke to anoint his body dead (though Heretikes or other simple persons may pretend such things to be better bestowed vpon the poore) and therefore, she first before all other,* and they next saw him after his Resurrection.* The womens deuotion toward Christs body now dead. Mt.16.9. Mt.28.9.

FVLKE. 2. Still you pleade for Corban your offring boxe; vpon which foundation your Church is builded. These womens good wil was commendable, but voide of merit. And their faith had bene a great deale more commendable, if they had not bestowed this cost, as vpon one that was dead, but had waited for his resurrection the third day, according to his promise. There were other causes in his appearing first vnto the women, then their charges bestowed in spices for his funerall. Merits.

RHEM. 3. In another shape.) Christ though he haue but one corporall shape naturall to his person, yet by his omnipotencie he may be in whatsoeuer forme, and appeare in the likenesse of any other man or creature, as hee list. Therefore let no man thinke it strange, that he may be vnder the forme of bread in the B. Sacrament. Christs body vnder diuers formes FVLKE. 3 Christ tooke vpon him none other shape, but the disciples eyes were holden, that they did not know him, as it is manifest. Luc.24.16. so that the alteration of shape, was in their eyes, not in his bodie. Beda in Marc.16. & Luc.24. What Christ can doe in altering his shape, we doubt not, but what he will do or hath done, we must learne out of his word. The bodie of Christ.

RHEM. 4. 16. He that beleeueth.) Note wel, that whereas this Euangelist mentioneth only faith and baptisme, as though to beleeue and to be baptized were ynough, S. Matthew addeth these words also out of our Sauiour, teaching them to obserue al things whatsoeuer I haue commanded you, which conteineth all good workes and the whole iustice of a Christian man. Not only faith.

FVLKE. 4. A fond argument against iustification by faith onely, so often repeated. That faith which God respecteth only in iustifying the vngodly man, is afterward fruitfull of good workes, which as S. Augustine saith, goe not before iustification but follow him that is iustified. De fide, & oper. cap.14.

RHEM. 5 17. These signes shall folow.) It is not meant, that al Christians or true beleeuers should doe miracles: but that some for the proofe of the faith of all, should haue that gift. The which is the grace or gift of the whole Church, executed by certaine for the edification and profit of the whole. The gift of miracles.

FVLKE. 5 You are in hope so delude the world againe with fained miracles, and therefore you speake of the gift of miracles, as though it were still executed by certaine. But if you will obtaine credite by working of miracles, you must not bring in counterfeit crankes, out of whom you haue cast out deuils, or whom you haue made whole, as of late Margaret Iesop, an honest woman of your religion: But you must bring them, that speake with new tongues, that take away Serpents, that drinke any deadly thing and it shall not hurt them, so shal you declare, that your former workes are not fained and lying miracles, but such as Christ gaue power to his disciples to worke in his name. And yet if you could doe these things indeede, except your doctrine were agreeable to the holy Scriptures, we would hold you accursed.

THE ARGVMENT OF S. LVKES GOSPEL.

RHEM. SAint Lukes Gospel may be deuided into fiue parts.

The first part is of the Infancie both of the precursor, and of Christ himselfe: chap.1. and 2.

The second, of the preparation that was made to the manifestation of Christ: chap.3 and a piece of the 4.

The third, of Christs manifesting himselfe, by preaching and miracles, specially in Galilee: the other piece of the fourth chapter to the midder of the 17.

The fourth, of his comming into Iewrie towards his passion: the other part of the 17.chap. vnto the middes of the 19.

The fift, of the Holy weeke of his passion in Hierusalem: the other part of the 19.chap. vnto the end of the booke.

S. Luke was sectator (saith S. Hierome) that is a disciple of the Apostle Paul, and a companion of al his peregrination. And the same we see in the Acts of the Apostles: Where from the 16. chapter S. Luke putteth himselfe in the traine of S. Paul, writing thus in the story. Forthwith we sought to goe into Macedonia, and in like maner, in the first person, commonly through the rest of that booke. Of him and his Gospel, S. Hierome vnderstandeth this saying of S. Paul: We haue sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the Gospel through all Churches. where also hee addeth: Some suppose so often as Paul in his Epistles saith, According to my Gospel, that hee meaneth of Lukes booke. And againe: Luke learned the Gospel not onely of the Apostle Paul, who had not bene with our Lord in flesh, but of the other Apostles: which himselfe also in the beginning of his booke declareth, saying, As they deliuered to vs who themselues from the beginning saw, and were ministers of the worde. It followeth in S. Hierome: Therefore he wrote the Gospel, as he had heard, but the Actes of the Apostles he compiled as he had seen. S. Paul writeth of him by name to the Colossians: Luke the Physicion saluteth you. and to Timothie: Luke alone is with me. Finally of his end thus doth S. Hierome write: He liued foure score and foure yeeres, hauing no wife. Hier. in Catalogo. 2.Cor.8,8. Luk.1,1. Col.4,11. 2.Tim.4,11. Hier. in Catalogo.

RHEM. 1. He is buried at Constantinople: to which citie his bones with the Reliques of Andrew the Apostle were translated out of Achaia the twentieth yeere of Constantinus. And of the same Translation also in another place against Vigilantius the Heretike: It grieueth him that the reliques of the Martyrs are couered with precious couering, and that they are not either tied in cloutes or throwen to the dunghil. why, are we then * sacrilegious, when we enter the Churches of the Apostles? was ‡ Constantinus the Emperour sacrilegious, who translated to Constantinople the holy Relikes of Andrew, Luke, and Timothee: at which the deuils rore, and the inhabiters of Vigilantius confesse that they feele their presence? His sacred bodie is now at Padua in Italy, whither it was againe translated from Constantinople. Hier. cont Vigil.2. The Heretike so counted the Catholikes for their honouring of Saints & Relikes.

FVLKE. 1. The estimation of Saintes reliques, in S. Hieromes time, though it was somewhat excessiue, yet it was farre from the Idolatrie, and superstition of the Papists. For this he writeth ad Riparium contra Vigilant. Nos autem, &c. But we doe not worship and adore, I say not, the Reliques of Martyrs, but neither the Sunne and Moone, not Angels Reliques.

and Archangels, not Cherubin, not Seraphin, or any name that is named in this world or in the world to come, leſt we ſhould ſerue the creature, rather then the Creatur which is bleſſed for euer. But we honour the Reliques of the Martyrs, that wee might worſhip him, whoſe Martyrs they are. You ſee by theſe wordes that he alloweth honour, that is a reuerent eſtimation, but no worſhip, adoration or ſeruice, to bee done to the bodies or Reliques of Saincts: when yet it is to be thought, they had the true Reliques of the Saincts. Where as yours are for the moſt part, falſe, and counterfeit, to deceiue the people and to procure full offerings. And where you ſay S. Lukes bodie is nowe at Padua, whither it was againe tranſlated from Conſtantinople, howe are you able to proue it? or howe is it like, the Emperours of Conſtantinople, would ſuffer it to be brought into Italy? The ſixt leſſon vpon S. Lukes day in your Popiſh Portuis, ſayth it is ſtill working miracles at Conſtantinople. But Blondus ſayth it is at Padua, with S. Mathias bodie, and as like the one as the other. For S. Mathie hath another bodie at Rome, ad Maria maiorie, and a third at Triers, beſides parts in other places. And a little to touch the report of Hierome, concerning S. Lukes bones, (Gaudentius biſhop of Brixia ſomewhat elder then he, was perſwaded that they were in a Church which he dedicated at Fundi, (as appeareth by his ſermon made at the dedication) and ſo was Paulinus biſhop of Nola. epiſt. 12.) he ſayth they were brought out of Achaia, where Gaudentius ſayth, he ended his life with Andrew in the citie of Patræ: your Portius ſayth, hee was buried in Bithinia: Hierome ſaith this tranſlation was in the 20. yere of Conſtantius, you ſay of Conſtantinus. And although in his ſecond inuectiue, againſt Vigilantius, Conſtantinus is named in ſteede of Conſtantius, through the Printers fault, yet the error is eaſily diſcouered, by the ancient Chronicle, that goeth vnder the name of S. Hierom: referring this tranſlation plainly, to the time of Conſtantius, though not agreeing with S. Hierom in the twentieth yere, but noting it in the 22. yeere of Conſtantius. And might not Vigilantius haue replied that Conſtantius was a ſacrilegious Arian? of whoſe tranſlation, Hierom taketh ſo great authoritie, whatſoeuer the Reliques were, and whether the deuils did rore at their preſence or no.

10 And * all the multitude of the people was ‡ praying without at the houre of the incense.

11 And there appeared to him an Angel of our Lord, standing on the right hande of the altar of incense.

12 And Zacharie was troubled, seeing him: and feare fell vpon him.

13 But the Angel saide to him, Feare not Zacharie, for thy prayer is heard: and thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iohn:

14 And thou shalt haue ‖ ioy & exultation, and many shall reioyce in his natiuitie.

15 For he shal be great before our Lord: ‡ and wine and sicer he shall not drinke: and he shall be repleniſhed with the holy Ghost euen from his mothers wombe.

‡ This abstinence foretold and prescribed by the Angel, sheweth that it is a worthy thing, and an act of religion in S. Iohn, as it was in the Nazarites, Mal.4,6. Mt.11,14.

16 And he shall * conuert many of the children of Israel to the Lord their God.

17 And he shall goe before him * in the spirit and vertue of Elias: that he may conuert the hearts of the fathers vnto the children, & the incredulous to the wisdom of the iust, to prepare vnto the Lord a perfect people.

18 And Zachary said to the angel, Wherby shall I know this? for I am olde: and my wife is well stricken in her dayes.

19 And the angel answering said to him, I am Gabriel that assist before God: and am sent to speake to thee, & to euangelize these things to thee.

‡ Zacharie punished for doubting of the Angels word.

20 And behold, ‡ thou shalt bee dumme, and shalt not be able to speake vntill the day wherein these things shall be done: for because thou hast not beleeued my wordes, which shall be fulfilled in their time.

21 And the people was expecting Zacharie: and they marueled that he made tariance in the temple.

22 And comming foorth hee could not speake to them, and they knewe that he had seene a vision in the temple. And he made signes to them, and remained dumme.

23 And it came to passe, after the daies of his office were expired, ‖ hee departed into his house.

28 And

9 According to the custome of the Priestes office, his lot was to burne incense when hee went into the temple of the Lord.

11 And there appeared vnto him an Angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias sawe him, he was troubled, and feare fell vpon him.

13 But the Angel said vnto him, Feare not, Zacharias, for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shal beare thee a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iohn.

17 And he shall goe before him with the spirit and power of Elias, to turne the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisedome of the iust men, to make ready a perfect people for the Lord.

18 And Zacharias said vnto the Angel, By what token shall I know this? For I am olde, and my wife well striken in yeeres.

19 And the angel answering, said vnto him, I am Gabriel that stande in the presence of God, and was sent to speake vnto thee, & to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And behold, thou shalt be dumbe, and not be able to speake, vntill the day that these things shall be performed, because thou beleenedst not my words, which shalbe fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marueiled that he taried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, hee could not speake vnto them: and they perceiued that he had seene a vision in the temple: for he beckened vnto them, and remained speechlesse.

23 And it came to passe, that assoone as the dayes of his office were out, hee departed into his owne house.

24 And after those dayes, his wife Elizabeth conceiued, and hid her selfe fiue moneths, saying,

25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the dayes wherein he looked on me, to take from mee my rebuke among men.

26 And in the sixth moneth, the Angel Gabriel was sent from God, vnto a citie of Galilee, named Nazareth, 27 To a virgin, spoused to a man whose name was Ioseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary.

28 And

28 And the Angel being entred in, sayd vnto her, ‖ HAILE ‖ full of grace, our Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

35 And the angel answering, said to her, The holy Ghost shall come vpon thee, & the power of the most High shall ouershadowe thee. And therefore also that which of thee shall be borne Holy, shall be called the sonne of God.

‡ At this very moment: when the B. Virgin gaue consent, she conceiued him perfect God and perfect man.

‡ Iohn the Baptist being yet in his mothers wombe, reioyced and acknowledged the presence of Christ and his mother.

41 And it came to passe: as Elisabeth heard the salutation of MARIE, the ‡ infant did leape in her wombe. and Elisabeth was replenished with the holy Ghost:

42 And she cried out with a loude voice, and said, ‖ BLESSED art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy wombe.

36 And beholde, thy cosin Elizabeth, she hath also conceiued a sonne in her olde age, and this is her sixth moneth, which was called barren.

37 For with God shall no werde be vnpossible.

40 And entered into the house of Zacharie, and saluted Elizabeth.

41 And it came to passe, that when Elizabeth heard the salutation of Marie, the babe sprang in her wombe, and Elizabeth was filled with the holy Ghost.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 1 10 Praying without.) We ſee here that the Prieſt did his duetie within, the people in the meane time praying without: and that the Prieſts functions did profite them, though they neither heard nor ſaw his doings.

FVLKE. 1 The condition of the Church of Chriſt is otherwiſe then it was then vnder the law. For now all things muſt be done in the congregation to the vnderſtanding and edifying of the people, in ſo much, as if a man had the miraculous gift of tongues, he might not ſpeake in the Church without an interpretor. 1.Cor.14. Vnknowen tongues.

RHEM. 2 28 HAILE.) The beginning of the AVE MARIE. See the reſt. v.42.

FVLKE. 2 The holy wordes of the Angell are prophanely, ſuperſtitiouſly, and idolatrouſly abuſed by the ignorant Papiſts, as a prayer when they are none, mumbled in Latine whereof they know not the ſenſe, ſaid vnto ſtocks and ſtones, yea to God himſelfe: the learned ſort, if not approouing, yet winking at ſuch ſhamefull abſurdities. The Aue Marie.

RHEM. 3 48 All generations.) Haue the Proteſtants had alwaies generations to fulfill this propheſie? or do they call her bleſſed, that derogate what they can from her graces, bleſſings, and all her honour?

FVLKE. 3 The Church of God, whereof we are members, hath alwayes had, and alwayes ſhall haue generations, in which the virgine Mary hath beene and ſhall be called bleſſed: Neither doe wee derogate from her graces, bleſſings, or honor that is due vnto her, when we cannot abide, that of a moſt bleſſed and holy virgine, the honourable mother of our Lord and Sauiour Chriſt, ſhe ſhould be made an idole, as ſhee was of your forefathers the Collyridian heretikes, and as euill, if not worſe of you papiſts. For the Collyridians neuer deſired her to command her ſonne, now ſitting at the right hand of God the Father, as your blaſphemous prayer doth. The perpetuity of the church. Idolatry. Honour of the B. virgine Marie.

RHEM. 4 80 In the deſerts.) Marke that he was a voluntarie Eremite, and thoſe to be ſolitary from a childe, till he was to preach to the people, in ſo much that antiquitie counted him the firſt Eremite. Hiero. in vit. Pauli.

FVLKE. 4 The office of Iohn the Baptiſt was ſingular, and therefore his liuing in the deſert is no example for other men, leaſt of all for popiſh Eremites, who liue not at all in the deſert, but neerer to cities and places frequented, then many husbandmen in the countrey. Neither doth Hierom allow the opinion of them that counted Iohn to be the firſt Eremite. See the note vpon S.Marke, chap.9.ſect.3. Eremites.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 5 3 Hauing diligently atteined.) Hereby we ſee that, though the holy Ghoſt ruled the pen of holy writers that they might not erre, yet did they vſe humane meanes to ſearch out and finde the trueth of the things they wrote of. Euen ſo doe Councels, and the Preſident of them, Gods vicar, diſcuſſe and examine all cauſes by humane meanes, the aſſiſtance of the holy Ghoſt concurring and directing them into all trueth, according to Chriſts promiſe, Io.16.13. as in the very firſt Councell of the Apoſtles themſelues at Hieruſalem is manifeſt, Act.15.7. and 28. *Againe here we haue a familiar preface of the author as to his friend, or to euery godly Reader (ſignified by Theophilus) concerning the cauſe and purpoſe and maner of his writing, and yet the very ſame is confeſſed Scripture, with the whole booke following. Maruell not then if the author of the ſecond booke of the Machabees * vſe the like humane ſpeeches both at the beginning and in the later end, neither doe thou therefore reiect the booke for no Scripture, as our heretikes doe: or not thinke him a ſacred writer.* Sacred writers and holy Councels. The ſecond booke of the Machabees.

2.Mach.2. & 15.

FVLKE 5 Ordinarie meanes are not to be neglected, but vſed for the diſcuſſing of controuerſies in Councels, but the holy ſcripture is the rule whereby the definition muſt be made, if it be true, as in the Councell of the Apoſtles, Act.15. But that the Pope is Gods vicar, or preſident of generall Councels, or hath any promiſe, that he can not erre, or any ſpeciall direction of Gods ſpirit, as the holy men of God had, which did endite the Scriptures, it is neuer able to be proued. Neither is the preface nor concluſion of the author of the ſecond booke of Maccabies, any thing like to this preface of S.Luke. Which though it be directed to one ſpeciall perſon, yet it conteineth nothing vnworthy of the maieſtie of the holy Ghoſt, as thoſe of the Maccabies doe. Where the author acknowledgeth his infirmitie, asketh pardon if he haue not done ſufficiently, writeth to ſerue the vaine delight of men by varietie of ſtory. Whereas S.Luke as the pen of the holy Ghoſt, doubteth not to ſay, that he hath exactly atteined to the trueth of all things, and ſet forth the ſame to the certaine confirmation of the faith, wherin Theophilus had bene inſtructed, which is neceſſary for euery Chriſtian, though it was firſt written vnto Theophilus. Beſide, that ſecond booke of ſtories hath many things falſe, that are diſproued by the firſt booke of the Maccabies, and by Ioſephus, but ſpecially matter contrary to the canonicall Scriptures, as a commendation of Razis for killing himſelfe, 2.Macc.14. It is therefore falſe and blaſphemous againſt Gods word, to ſay, that S.Luke vſeth like humane ſpeeches, to the author of that booke. The Popes authoritie in Councels. The booke of Maccabies.

RHEM. 6 6 Iuſt before God.) Againſt the Heretikes of this time, here it is euident that holy men be iuſt, not onely by the eſtimation of men, but in deed and before God. — True iuſtification by obſeruing the commandements.

FVLKE. 6 Chriſtian men are iuſt in deed before God, though not by their owne merite, but by the iuſtice of Chriſt imputed to them through faith. Quia quicquid in eis erat iuſtitiæ, non erat ad homines ſimulatum, ideo dictum eſt ante Deum. Auguſt. de pecc. mer. & re. lib. 2. c. 13. — Iuſtice imputed.

RHEM. 7 6 In all the commandements.) Three things to be noted directly againſt the Heretikes of our time. firſt, that good men doe keepe all Gods commandements. which (they ſay) are impoſſible to be kept. Againe, that men be iuſtified not by only imputation of Chriſts iuſtice, nor by faith alone, but by walking in the commandements. Againe, that the keeping and doing of the commandements is properly our iuſtification.

FVLKE 7 Neither of thoſe three things can be prooued out of the text. For good men may walke in all the commandements of God, though they can keepe neuer a one perfectly. And faith onely in the merites of Chriſt, is imputed for righteouſneſſe to all thoſe that are iuſtified by God without reſpect of works. Rom. 4. Therefore keeping and doing of Gods commandements, is not the cauſe of our iuſtification before God, but the effect and fruit thereof. Gaudent. Brixi. epiſt. ad Paulum. Nemo ſanctorum medicina Chriſti non indiguit, cum ſanctos eius non niſi fides eius effecerit. So were Zacharie and Elizabeth iuſtified before God by faith, as Abraham was, and as a fruite of true iuſtification, walked in all the commandements of God, in the ſight of men blameleſſe. For otherwiſe no man can ſay, his heart is cleane. If God ſhould examine our iniquities, who were able to abide it? Zacharie and Elizabeth were holy, and iuſt perſons, yet not free from ſinne. For Zacharie as one of Goda people looked to haue remiſſion of his ſinnes, & ſaluation by Chriſt and not by his works. Luc. 1. 77. Quod de Zacharia & eius coniuge ſcriptum eſt, In omnibus mandatis & iuſtificationibus Domini. Hoc ille (Paulus) breuiter dixit in lege. Non fuit alia lex illis, alia iſtis fuit ante euangelium, ſed via atque eadem quam legimus per Moſen data patribus eorum, ſecundum quam etiam ſacerdos erat Zacharias & vice ſua ſacrificabat. Et tamen Apoſtolus qui ſimili tunc iuſtitia præditus fuit, ſequitur & dicit: Quæ mihi lucro fuerunt, hæc propter Chriſtum damna eſſe non ſolum duxi, Verùm etiam & arbitror omnia damnum eſſe propter eminentem ſcientiam Domini noſtri Ieſu Chriſti, propter quem omnia non ſolum detrimenta credidi, verùm etiam & ſtercora æſtimaui eſſe, vt Chriſtum lucrifaciam, & inueniar &c. in reſurrectione mortuorum. Tantum ergo longè eſt vt propter illa verba Zachariam & Elizabeth ſiue vllo peccato credamus perfectam habuiſſe iuſtitiam, vt nec ipſum Apoſtolum ad eiuſdem regulæ ſummitatem arbitremur fuiſſe perfectum, nõ ſolum in illa legis iuſtitia, quam ſimilem iſtis habuit, quam inter damna & ſtercora deputat in comparatione eminentiſſimæ iuſtitiæ quæ in fide Chriſti eſt: Verùm etiam in ipſo quoque euangelio, vbi & tanti apoſtolatus meruit principatum, quod dicere non auderem, niſi ei non credere nefas ducerem. Auguſt. de pecc. mer. & remiſſ. lib. 2. cap. 13. — None keepeth the law. Iuſtification by faith onely.

RHEM. 8 6 Iuſtifications.) This word is ſo vſuall in the Scriptures (namely in the Pſal. 118.) to ſignifie the commandements of God, becauſe the keeping of them is iuſtification, and the Greeke is alwayes ſo fully correſpondent to the ſame, that the Heretikes in this place (otherwiſe pretending to eſteeme much of the Greeke) bluſh not to ſay, that they auoid this word of purpoſe againſt the iuſtification of the Papiſts. And therefore one vſeth Tullies word forſooth, in Latin conſtituta: and his ſcholers in their Engliſh Bibles ſay, Ordinances. — Corrupt tranſlation of heretikes. δικαιώματα. Beza in Annot. noui Teſt. 1556.

FVLKE. 8 The worde vſed by the Prophet in the 119. Pſalme is חקים Chuckim which ſignifieth properly ordinances and ſtatutes, as all that are meanely learned in the Hebrew, doe knowe. And although the Greeke interpreter in that Pſalme, tranſlated it δικαιώματα, your vulgar Latine interpreter, doeth moſt commonly in the lawe, tranſlate it Ceremoniæ, ceremonies, Deut. 4. 5. 6. 9. and ſo commonly almoſt in euery chapter. The Greeke interpreter, not alwayes δικαιώματα, but ſometimes νόμοι, ἐντολαὶ, ἐντάλματα, that is, the lawe, ordinances, commaundements. And in the ſame chapter he tranſlateth it both δικαιώματα and ἐντάλματα. Deut. 11. verſ. 32. by which it is euident, that the one word ſignifieth no more then the other. And that in δικαιώματα, we muſt ſeeke no greater myſterie of iuſtification, then in ἐντάλματα, which ſignifieth ordinances, commaundements, decrees, or ſtatutes. Sauing that the Hebrew word is many times referred to precepts which be of ceremonies, as the vulgar Latine interpreter doeth commonly tranſlate it. And ſo it is moſt like, that S. Luke vſeth the worde δικαιώματα, as it is commonly vſed in the Greeke text of the lawe. Therefore, ſeeing you cauill about the ſound of a worde, contrary to the vſe thereof, our interpreters did well to auoide the terme iuſtifications, whereabout you quarrell, and to tranſlate it according to the meaning of the Greeke writer, and the vſuall acceptation of the Greeke worde. And why ſhould not a Latine interpreter vſe Tullies word (forſooth) being apt for the Greeke, rather then any barbarous terme, not ſo fit or agreeable vnto it? But this matter you may ſee more at large diſcuſſed in the defence againſt Martines diſcouerie, cap. 8. ſect. 1. 2. & 3. — Iuſtification. Exod. 18. 20. Num. 9. 3. 1. Reg. 2. 3.

RHEM. 9 14 Ioy and exultation.) This was fulfilled, not onely when he was borne, but now alſo through the whole Church for euer, in ioyfull celebrating of his Natiuitie.

FVLKE. 9 Belike S. Iohn is borne againe with you euery Midſommer day. The ioy that was at the birth of Iohn, (though it were great) yet it was obſcured by the glorious birth of Chriſt. And ſeeing Chriſt is not onely borne, but alſo hath ſuffered death, is riſen againe, and aſcended into heauen: The ioy of Iohns birth in the Catholike Church of Chriſt, is hidden and dimmed, as the light of a ſtarre, by the ſunne ſhining at noone dayes. Iohn himſelfe acknowledged that he was to diminiſh, as Chriſt increaſed. Ioan. 3. 30. The angel therefore, did not prophecie of your popiſh celebrating of his Natiuity, but of the ioy, that many ſhould haue, which looked for the redemption of Iſrael which was at hand, when Iohn the forerunner of Chriſt was borne. Otherwiſe the Church of God communicateth with the ioy of Gods Saincts at that time, not onely not chiefly, in celebration of the memorie of Iohns Natiuitie, but in contemplation of the performance of Gods promiſes, at all times of the yeere. — The feſtiuitie of S. Iohn Baptiſt.

RHEM. 10 23 He departed.) In the old Law (ſaith S. Hierome) they that offered hoſtes for the people, were not onely not in their houſes, but were purified for the time, being ſeparated from their wiues, and they dranke neither wine nor any ſtrong drinke, which are wont to prouoke concupiſcence. Much more the Prieſts of the new Law that muſt alwayes offer ſacrifices, muſt alwayes be free from matrimonie. Li. 1. c. 19. adu. Iouin. and ep. 50. c. 3. See S. Ambroſe in 1. Tim. 3. And therefore if there were any religion in Caluins Communion, they would at the leaſt giue as much reuerence in this point, as they in the old Law did to their ſacrifices, and to the loaues of propoſition. 1. Reg. 21. — The continencie of Prieſts.

FVLKE. 10 S. Paul, who alloweth a biſhop and elder to be the huſband of one wife, is to be credited, what is meete for the miniſters of the Church, rather then S. Hieronym and S. Ambroſe. Againſt whom I oppoſe Clemens Alexandrinus and Paphnutius, with the whole generall councell of Nice, who thought it not expedient that the miniſters of the Church ſhould abſteine from their lawful wiues. See the notes vpon Matth. cap. 8. ſect. 14. And ſeeing the holy Ghoſt hath made no ſuch law for them that receiue the communion, to abſteine from their wiues, we take not vpon vs to be wiſer then God. Otherwiſe all men are exhorted to liue in marriage, ſoberly, — 1. Tim. 3. 2. tit. 1. 6. Strom. lib. 3. Socrat. lib. 1. cap. 11. The marriage of miniſters of the Church.

soberly, and temperatly: but not to separate themselues one from another, except it be for a time, by consent, that they may be exercised in fasting and prayer, and then to come together againe, lest Sathan tempt them for their incontinencie. 1. Cor. 7. 5.

RHEM. 11 28 Haile full of grace.) Holy Church and all true Christian men doe much and often vse these wordes brought from heauen by the Archangel, as well to the honour of Christ and our B. Lady, as also for that they were the wordes of the first glad tidings of Christs Incarnation and our Saluation by the same, and le the very abridgement and summe of the whole Gospel. In so much that the Greeke Church vsed it daily in the Masse. Often saying of the AVE MARIE.

Liturg. S. Iacobi & Chrys.

FVLKE, 11 Papistes in often repetition of these wordes (though excellent good of themselues) doe shamefully abuse them, seeing they say them not, nor can say them, in that sense they were vttered by the Angel and Elisabeth: Seeing they doe so often, and so vainely repeat them vpon their beades, like the heathen, rather in derision, then honour of Christ and the blessed virgine, Matth. 6. 7. And what mysterie or summe of the gospel soeuer be conteined in them, the ignorant people vnderstand nothing at all, who by your good wils, should not vnderstand the wordes in their mother tongue. If the Grecians vse them well in their Masse, why doe not you vse them in yours? If they vse them superstitiously, why doe you alleage their example? The liturgies that you quote, be counterfect vnder the names of Iames and Chrysostome. And the one of them is a good confutation of the other. For if the Greeke church had a liturgie written by Iames the Apostle, who would thinke that Chrysostome would make a new? Againe if Chrysostome had made a liturgie, hee would not haue made a prayer for Pope Nicholas, that liued almost fiue hundred yeeres after him, nor for the Emperour Alexius, who liued seuen hundred yeeres after him. This stuffe therefore is much later then the Apostle Iames, or Chrysostomes age. The abuse of the angels saluation.

FVLKE 12 First it is a slander, that wee make the virgine Marie no better then other vulgar women. For we acknowledge that shee was blessed aboue all other women, in that shee was chosen to be the mother of our Sauiour Christ, and that shee was full of the graces of the holy Ghost, but yet a woman, no goddesse, a sinner, no Sauiour, and yet as free from sinne, as the infirmitie of mans nature could be. Secondly, concerning our translation, we say, the Greeke word signifieth, freely beloued, not full of grace: both in this place, and in the Ephesians the first: by the testimonie of all Greeke Dictionaries: by Chrysostomes iudgement, whose wordes are these: ἐκ τίνων, he sayth not ἐχαρίσατο, which he hath giuen, but ἐκεχάρικεν, but whereby he hath made vs freely beloued, that is, he hath not onely deliuered vs from our sinnes, but also hath made vs his beloued friendes, as if one had gotten a certaine scabbed fellow, rotten through pestilent sickenesse, age, powertie, and famine, and should by and by make him a beautifull young man, which shall exceede all other in beautie, &c. what clearer testimonie can we haue, that the Greeke word doth signifie freely beloued? And yet it is true, that the virgine Marie especially, and all other Christians generally, was, and are endued with excellent giftes of Gods grace: as Chrysostome sayth of all, and the rest of the Fathers, whom you quote, say of the virgine Marie. But our question is, whether the virgine Marie had these graces of her selfe, or of the free gift and loue of God, without her merites. And what the Greeke worde signifieth properly, not how it hath of some heretofore beene vnperfectly translated into Latine. Chrysostome Ex Luc. cap. 1. De natiuitate Iohannis Baptistæ, rehearseth these wordes of the Angel in this sort: Pax tecum, quæ inuenisti gratiam apud Dominum: Peace be to thee, which hast found fauour with the Lord. That ἀλκήρον. Luke 16. is translated, full of sores, it prooueth not, that all such participles deriued of such verbes, must signifie such a fulnesse as you imagine, whereof I referre the reader to the answere of your preface sect. 53. and to the defence against Martines discouerie c. 1. sect. 43. and chap. 18. sect. 4. 5. 6. Slander. The B. virgin Mary.

RHEM. 13 34 I know not man.) These wordes declare (saith S. Augustine) that she had nowe vowed virginitie to God. For otherwise neither would she say, How shall this be done? nor haue added, because I know not man. Yea if she had said onely the first wordes, How shall this be done? it is euident, that she would not haue asked such a question, how a woman should beare a sonne promised her, if she had married meaning to haue carnall copulation. c. 4. de virgin. As if he should say, If she might haue knowen a man and so haue had a childe, she would neuer haue asked, How shall this be done? but because that ordinarie way was excluded by her vow of virginitie, therefore she asketh, How? And in asking, How? she plainely declareth that she might not haue a childe by knowing man, because of her vow. See S. Grego. Nyssene de sancta Christi Natiuitate. Our B. Lady vowed virginitie.

FVLKE. 13 Though S. Augustine gather that she had vowed virginitie, yet it followeth not of the wordes of the text. Therefore S. Ambrose bringeth another cause, why she asked how shall this be? &c. She had read (saith he) the Prophecie of Esay. Behold a virgine shall conceiue and bring foorth a sonne, therefore she beleeued that it should be, but she had not read how it should be. For how it should be, is was not reuealed to that great Prophet. For so great a mysterie of message was not to be vttered by the mouth of a man, but of an angel. Therefore now it is first heard: The holy Ghost shall come vpon thee. It is both heard and beleeued. The like sayings are in Euthymius and Theophylact: Euch. Non est virginis Mariæ diffidentia quod ait: Quomodo fiet istud quoniam virum non cognosco? Quod enim futurum erat certa erat: modum quo fieret inquirebas, & hoc cùm quæsisset, audiuit. In Gen. lib. 2. cap. 20. Euseb. Emiss. Non dubitat fieri quod Angelus fieri promittit, interrogat tantùm quomodo fiat, quoniam quamuis virginum aliquando partum audierat, quomodo tamen pareret, non audierat. Dicit enim Esaias, Ecce virgo concipiet & pariet filium: quomodo tamen paries non dicis: Quia igitur virgo est, & virum non cognoscit, quomodo pariat & virgo maneat, interrogat, quia nulli adhuc reuelatum erat. Although Gregorie Nyssene bee of Saint Augustines opinion concerning her purpose of virginitie: which is not like, seeing she promised to marrie with Ioseph, as it is plaine by the text. Whether the B. virgine vowed virginitie.

RHEM. 36 Elisabeth thy Cosin.) By this that Elisabeth and our Lady were cosins, the one of the tribe of Leui, the other of Iuda, is gathered that Christ came of both tribes, Iuda and Leui, of the kings and the priests: himselfe both a king and a priest, and the Anoynted (to wit) by grace spiritually, as they were with oyle materially and corporally. August. 2. de Consens. Euang. cap. 1. Christ came of both tribes, Iuda and Leui.

RHEM. 14 42 Blessed art thou.) At the very hearing of our Ladies voyce, the infant and she were repleniished with the holy Ghost, The blessed virgine MARIE

Ghost, and she sang prayses not onely to Christ, but for his sake to our B. Lady, calling her blessed and her fruit blessed, as the Church doeth also by her words and example in the AVE MARIE.

FVLKE. 14 Elisabeth acknowledgeth Marie to be the mother of our Lord, but not to be our Ladie, neither doeth the text say, that she sang, but with a loud voice she said. And the praise which she gaue to the virgine Marie, was the praise of God, who blessed her aboue all women: but yet made her not equall with Christ, that she might be called by those names, which are proper to God and to Christ onely: but of you papists are applied to the virgine Marie, to the dishonor of her sonne, when you call her our life, our salvation, and our sweetnesse, the mother of mercie, queene of heauen, ladie of the world, &c. Vita, salus, & dulcedo, &c.

RHEM. 43 Mother of my Lord.) Elisabeth being an exceeding iust and blessed woman, yet the worthinesse of Gods mother doth so farre excell her and all other women, as the great light the little starres. Hiero. Præf in Sophon. Her excellencie.

RHEM. 15 48 Shall call me blessed.) This Prophecie is fulfilled, when the Church keepeth her Festiuall daies, and when the faithfull in all generations say the AVE MARIE, and other holy Antems of our Lady. And therefore the Caluinists are not among those generations which call our Lady blessed. Her honour in all the world.

FVLKE 15 The blessed virgine Marie is neuer more dishonored, then in your festiuall dayes, with those blasphemous Antems, Salue regina, Aue Maris stella, O regina mundi, Scala cœli, Tronus Dei, Ianua paradisi, O queene of the world, ladder of heauen, throne of God, gate of paradise, O beate Maria, &c. O blessed Marie, who is able to bestow vpon thee worthily the rites of thankesgiuing and celebration of prayses, which by thy singular assent, hast succoured the world, that was lost? What prayses can the frailtie of mankind pay vnto thee, which hath found the way to recouer life, by the only company, &c. These and like blasphemies, against our Sauiour Christ, be the chiefe flowers of your festiuities. Iure natum, Command thy sonne: and Bonauenture doubteth not to say, Iure matris impera filio, Command thy sonne by the right of a mother: and Coge Deum, Compell God to be mercifull to sinners, beside the whole Psalter, Benedictus, Te Deum, Quicunque vult, all peruerted, not to the honour, but to the dishonor of the virgine Marie, whose greatest honor is, that Christ her sonne and sauiour, should haue all honor ascribed wholly vnto him, which properly appertaineth vnto him. And this prophecie was fulfilled before there was any festiuall day of the virgine Marie, and long before the people were taught to say the Aue Marie, or before any of your Anthems were made. For none of these be of any great antiquitie. See Act. 1. sect. 7. Popish holidaies. Seruitium beatæ Mariæ.

RHEM. 16 63 Iohn is his name.) We see that names are of signification & importance, God himselfe changing or giuing names in both Testaments: as, Abraham, Israel, Peter, and the principall of all others, IESVS: and here IOHN, which signifieth, Gods grace or mercie, or, God will haue mercie. For he was the Precursor and Prophet of the mercie and grace that ensued by CHRIST IESVS. *Note also that as then in Circumcision, so now in Baptisme (which answereth thereunto) names are giuen. And as we see here and in all the old Testament, great respect was had of names: so we must beware of strange, prophane, and secular names (now a dayes to common) and rather according to the * Catechisme of the holy Councell of Trent, take names of Saints and holy men, that may put vs in minde of their vertues.* Mysterie and signification in names.

de bapt. in fine. What names to be giuen in Baptisme.

FVLKE. 16 Strange and profane names, are no where so common, as in Italie and Rome, where euen the holy Cardinalles, tarie the names of heathen Romans, and Grecians. Yea your holy fathers the popes after they haue like antichrists, renounced the names giuen them in baptisme, by which they were first dedicated to Christ, doe often times chuse vnto themselues profane names, as Sergius, Leo, Iulius, Sixtus, that I speake nothing of the names receiued from the hethenish Saxons and Normans, better liked in popery, and preferred by popish bishops in confirmation, before names of godly signification taken out of the scripture, and giuen to children at their baptisme.

RHEM. 17 75 Iustice before him.) Here also we see that we may haue true iustice, not onely in the sight of men, or by the imputation of God, but in deede before him and in his sight: and that the comming of Christ was to giue men such iustice. True iustice not imputatiue.

FVLKE. 17 We may haue true iustice before God, and true holinesse also in his sight, but not perfect iustice, nor perfect holinesse in our selues. And the end of our redemption by Christ, is that we should serue God in true holinesse, and righteousnesse all the dayes of our life, and this grace we haue also by our Sauiours Christs gift, as in the verse 13. being iustified by faith, as a fruite thereof, not as the cause of our iustification before God. True iustice.

RHEM. 18 78 The orient.) Marueil not if Heretikes controule the old authenticall translation, as though it differed from the greeke: whereas here they make much a doe to controule not only all the greeke interpreters of the old testament, but also S. Luke himselfe, for the word ἀνατολὴ, as differing from the Hebrew. The Heretikes controule both Greeke and Latin text.

Beza.

FVLKE. 18 This is nothing but a malicious slander. Beza only enquireth vnto what prophecies Zacharie had respect, where the greeke interpretor vseth this word, which S. Luke vseth in this place. Slander.

8 And there were in the same countrey shepheards watching, and keeping the night watches ouer their flocke.

9 And beholde, an Angell of our Lorde stood beside them, and the brightnes of God did shine round about them, and they feared with a great feare.

10 And the Angel said to them, Feare not: for beholde I euangelize to you great ioy, that shall be to all the people:

11 Because this day is borne to you a SAVIOVR which is Christ our Lord, in the citie of Dauid.

12 And this shall be a signe to you, You shall finde the infant swadled in clothes: and laid in a manger.

13 And sodenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the heauenly armie, praysing God, and saying,

16 And they came with speede: and they found MARIE and Ioseph, and the infant laid in the manger.

17 And seeing it, they vnderstood of the word that had beene spoken to them concerning this child.

18 And all that heard, did maruell: and concerning those things that were reported to them by the shepheards.

19 But MARIE ‖ kept all these wordes, conferring them in her heart.

20 And the shepheards returned, glorifying and praysing God in all things that they had heard, and seene, as it was said to them.

11 For vnto you is borne this day, in the citie of Dauid, a Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And take this for a signe, Ye shal find the child swadled, laid in a manger.

27 And he came in spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the childe IESVS, to doe according to the custome of the Law for him:

28 He also tooke him into his armes, and blessed God, and said,

NVNC DIMITTIS, at Complin.

29 NOW THOV doest dimisse thy seruant O Lord, according to thy word in peace.

30 Because mine eies haue seene thy SALVATION,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples:

32 A light to the reuelation of the Gentils, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And his father and mother were marueling vpon those thinges which were spoken concerning him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said to MARIE his mother, Behold this is set ‖ vnto the ruine, and vnto the resurrection of many in Israel, and for a signe which shall be contradicted,

26 And a reuelation was giuen him of the holy Ghost, not to see death, before he had seene the Lords Christ.

27 And he came by inspiration into the temple: and when the parents brought in the childe Iesus, to doe for him after the custome of the lawe,

28 Then tooke he him vp in his armes, and praysed God, and sayd,

29 Lord, now lettest thou thy seruant depart in peace, according to thy promise.

30 For mine eyes haue seene thy saluation.

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people.

32 A light to be reuealed to the Gentils, and the glorie of thy people Israel.

33 And his father and his mother marueiled at those thinges which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said vnto Marie his mother, Behold, this child is set to be the fall and vprising againe of many in Israel, and for a signe which is spoken against.

35 (And moreouer, the sword shall pearce thy soule) that the thoughts of many hearts may be opened.

36 And there was a prophetisse, one Anna, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser, which was of a great age, and had liued with an husband seuen yeres from her virginitie.

37 And she had bene a widowe about foure score and foure yeeres, which departed not from the Temple, but serued God with fastings and prayers night and day.

38 And shee comming at the same instant vpon them, gaue thanks likewise vnto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Hierusalem.

39 And when they had performed all things according to the lawe of the Lorde, they returned into Galilee, to their owne citie Nazareth.

44 And thinking that he was in the companie, they came a dayes iourney, & sought him among their kinsfolke and acquaintance.

45 And not finding him, they returned into Hierusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to passe, after three daies they found him in the temple sitting in the middes of the Doctors, hearing them, and asking them.

47 And al were astonied that heard him, vpon his wisedome and answeres.

48 And seeing him, they wondered. And his mother said to him, Sonne, why hast thou so done to vs? beholde thy father and I sorowing did seeke thee.

49 And he saide to them, What is it that you sought mee? did you not knowe, that I must bee about those things which are my fathers?

50 And they vnderstood not the worde that he spake vnto them.

51 And he went downe with them, and came to Nazareth: & was ‖ subiect to them. And his mother kept all these wordes in her heart.

52 And IESVS proceeded in wisedome and age, and grace with God and men.

44 But they supposing him to haue beene in the companie, came a dayes iourney, and sought him among their kinsfolke and acquaintance.

45 And when they found him not, they turned backe againe to Hierusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to passe, that after three dayes, they founde him in the Temple, sitting in the middes of the Doctors, hearing them, and posing them.

47 And all that heard him, were astonied at his vnderstanding and answeres.

48 And when they sawe him, they were amazed: and his mother saide vnto him, Sonne, why hast thou thus dealt with vs? Behold, thy father and I haue sought thee sorowing.

49 And he said vnto them, How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must goe about my fathers businesse?

50 And they vnderstoode not that saying which he spake vnto them.

51 And he went downe with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient vnto them: But his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.

52 And Iesus encreased in wisedome and stature, and in fauour with God and man.

RHEM. 2 14 Men of good will.) The birth of Christ giueth not peace of minde or saluation but to such as be of good will, because he worketh not our good against our wils, but our wils concurring. Aug. quæst. ad Simplic. li. 1. q. 2. to. 4. Free will.

FVLKE. 2 S. Augustine in the same place citeth the text: *Deus est, &c. Againe in the same place, Deus præstat vt velimus, &c. God bringeth to passe that wee be willing. Therefore man hath no free will to accept Gods benefits before God of vnwilling, by his only grace maketh him willing. Without me, saith Christ, you can doe nothing. Ergo, not so much as to be of good will to receiue him, when he offereth himselfe, but haue this good will wrought by his grace in vs. Free will. Ioh. 15. 5.

RHEM. 3 19 Kept all.) Our Lady though little be spoken of her concerning such matters in the Scriptures, because she was a woman, and not admitted to teach or dispute in publike of high mysteries: yet she knew all these mysteries, and wisely noted and contemplated of all those things that were done and said about Christ, from the first houre of his conception till the end of his life and his Ascension. Our B. RHEM. 4 37 By fasting and praiers seruing.) Serving, in the Greeke is λατρεύουσα, that is, doing diuine worship vnto God, as by prayer, so also by fasting. so that fasting is λατρεία, that is an act of religion whereby we doe worship God, as we doe by prayer, and not vsed only to subdue our flesh, much lesse (as Heretikes would haue it) as a matter of pollicie. Fasting an act of religion.

FVLKE. 4 There is no doubt, but fasting though of it self it be not a part of Gods worship, which consisteth in spirit and trueth, being also, as Hierome saith, not a perfect vertue, but a foundation of vertues, yet it may, and ought to be exercised, to the glory and seruice of God, while by humbling our flesh, we are made more apt to worship him in spirit. That fasting is a matter of pollicie, we neuer held. But that abstinence from flesh may be commanded Ioh. 4. Ad Demet. Fastings. Slander.

Idolatry.

RHEM. 61 Subiect to them.) All children may learne hereby, that great ought to be their ſubiection and obedience to their Parents, when Chriſt himſelfe, being God, would be ſubiect to his parents being but his creatures. Dutifull obedience to parents.

Mt.3,7. 7 He ſaid therefore to the multitudes that went foorth to be baptized of him, * Ye vipers broodes, who hath ſhewed you to flee from the wrath to come?

8 Yeeld therefore ‡ fruites worthy of penance. and doe ye not begin to ſay, We haue Abraham to our father. For I tell you, that God is able of theſe ſtones to raiſe vp children to Abraham.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. III.

RHEM. I. 3. Penance vnto remiſſion.) Penance prepareth the way to Chriſt.

FVLKE. I. Iohn by preaching repentance, prepared a way to Chriſt.

RHEM. 2. 8. Fruites worthy of penance.) Fruits of penance be workes ſatisfactorie.

FVLKE. 2. The fruites of repentance, being good workes, declare the repentance to be true and vnfained: If the repentance be true, the ſinnes are forgiuen, therefore the workes are not ſatisfactory: for ſatisfaction pertaineth to iuſtice, forgiuenes ſe to mercie. Satisfaction.

FVLKE. 3 Almes commanded as a true fruit of repentance, which he that is able and will not giue, ſhall not auoide damnation. Counſels and precepts.

RHEM. 4. 15. The people imagining.) Iohn was ſo holy that many might by errour eaſily thinke he was Chriſt.

FVLKE. 4. There was infinite difference, betweene the holineſſe of Iohn, and of Chriſt, therefore Iohns holineſſe was no occaſion of mens error, but their owne negligence, which did not know the Scriptures, concerning Chriſt. But this is your maner, to make ſmall difference betweene the Lord, and his ſeruants. Yet it was moſt certainly knowen (ſaith Beda) to the Iewes by the Scriptures, that the time of our Lords incarnation was at hand. But it was marueilous blindnes that they beleeued of Iohn of their own accord, not to beleeue of our Sauiour who was appproued by ſo great ſignes and wonders, and teſtified by Iohn himſelfe alſo.

RHEM. 5 16. But there ſhall come.) How ſay then the Heretikes that the Baptiſme of Chriſt is of no greater vertue then Iohns?

FVLKE. 5 Onely Chriſtes office and power it is, to baptize with the holy Ghoſt and with fire, nowe in the baptiſme miniſtred by his ſeruants in the Church: and then in the baptiſme that was miniſtred by Iohn. The baptiſme in both, is from heauen, as Gods inſtitution. Baptiſme.

RHEM. 6. 36. Who was of Cainan.) Beza boldly wipeth out of this Goſpel, theſe wordes, who was of Cainan: though all the Greeke copies both of the olde Teſtament and of the newe, haue the wordes with full conſent. whereby we learne the intolerable ſaucines of the Caluiniſts, and their contempt of holy Scripture, that dare ſo deale with the very Goſpel it ſelfe.

FVLKE. 6 That which is a manifeſt error, not of the Euangeliſt, but of ſome writer that would correct the Euangeliſt, according to the errour of the Greeke tranſlation of Geneſis, being contrary to the trueth of the Hebrew text, and an auncient copie of S. Luke in Greeke, why ſhould he doubt to omitte? But of this matter ſee more at large in the defence againſt Martines diſcouerie, anſwere to the preface, Sect. 18, 19, 20, 21, 22. Slander. Cauill.

RHEM. 7 23. Of Heli.) *Whereas in Saint Matthewe, Iacob is father to Ioſeph, and here Heli, the caſe was thus. Mathan (named in Saint Matthewe) of his wife called Eſcha begate Iacob: and after his death, Melchi (named here in S. Thus Heli therefore marrying and dying without iſſue: Iacob his brother, according to the Law married his wife, and begate Ioſeph, and ſo raiſed vp ſeede to his brother Heli, whereby it came to paſſe, that Iacob was the naturall father of Ioſeph, which (as S. ther or kinseman should marrie the wife of him that died without issue, whereby it appeareth that by the brother, he vnderstandeth not the naturall brother, but according to the Hebrewe custome, such kinseman, as was not forbidden by the Lawe, Leuit.18. Onely Eusebius out of Africanus an Historiographer, supposeth that Iacob and Heli were brethren by the mother, and maried both the mother of Ioseph: which is not like, because such marying, is incestuous by the Lawe, Leuit.18.16. Except we should say, that their mariage was like the incest of Iuda with Thamar, which is also in the genealogie of Christ.

Christ going into the Desert to prepare himselfe before his manifestation, ouercommeth the tentations of the deuill. 14 Then beginning gloriously in Galilee, 16 he sheweth to them of Nazareth his commission out of Esay the Prophet, 23 Insinuating by occasion the Iewes his countriemens reprobation. 31 In Capharnaum his doctrine is admired, 33 specially for his miracle in the Synagogue. 38 from which, going to Peters house, he sheweth there much more power. 42 Then retiring into the wilderneſſe, he preacheth afterward to the other cities of Galilee.

Mat.4,1. Mar.1,12. AND IESVS full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Iordan, and was driuen in the spirit into the desert, Deut.8,3. 4 And IESVS made answere vnto him, It is written, That not in bread alone shall man liue, but in euery word of God.

5 And the deuill brought him into an high mountaine, and shewed him all the kingdomes of the whole world in a moment of time:

6 And he said to him, To thee will I giue this whole power, and the glory of them: for to me they are deliuered, and to whom I will, I doe giue them:

had throwen him in the middes, hee came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 And feare came on them all, and they spake among themselues, saying, What maner of saying is this? For with authoritie and power he commandeth the fowle spirits, and they come out.

37 And the fame of him went out into euery place of the countrey round about.

*38 * And when he was risen out of the synagogue, he entred into Simons house: and Simons wiues mother was taken with a great feuer, and they made intercession to him for her.* Matth.8.14. marke 1.29.

30 And he stoode ouer her, and rebuked the feuer, and it left her. And immediatly she arose, and ministred vnto them.

40 When the sunne was downe, all they that had any sicke with diuers diseases, brought them vnto him: and when he had laid his hands on euery one of them, he healed them.

*41 * And deuils also came out of many, crying, and saying, Thou art that Christ the sonne of God. And he rebuking them, suffered them not to speake: for they knewe that hee was Christ.* Marke 1.34.

42 And when it was day, hee departed, and went into a desert place: and the people sought him, and came to him, and kept him, that he should not depart from them.

43 And he said vnto them, I must preach the kingdome of God to other cities also: For therefore am I sent.

44 And he was preaching in the Synagogues of Galilee.

Sect. 2. except Clemens constitution, which is a counterfeit booke, lately brought to light, reiected of the ancient fathers of the Primitiue Church, as conteining many things heretical, false and friuolous, and yet altered since the ancient fathers age. For example let these suffice. That he bringeth in Iames the brother of Iohn, writing and speaking with the rest of the Apostles, many yeeres after his death. Lib. 6 c. 14. And in the 18. chap. of the fifth booke, the celebration of Easter is prescribed, cleane contrarie to that, which Epiphanius testifieth to haue bene the constitution of Clemens, the pretended author of this booke. *Contra Audian. But in this verse Christ alleageth scripture against the deuil, not the deuil against Christ. And this scripture is as rightly alleaged against the church of Antichrist for adoring of creatures, as it was by Christ against the deuil himselfe. Authoritie of the Scriptures.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. IIII.

FVLKE. 4. There is no neede to faine any monstrous vnprofitable miracles in this place. He might passe through the midst of his enemies, without any alteration of his body, by striking them with blindnes, that they could not see him, or by terrifying their hearts, that they durst not touch him. And so saith S. Ambrose, Per medium illorum mutata subito vel obstupefacta furentium mente descendit. He went downe through the midst of them, the minde of those raging people, being suddenly either changed, or astonished. The same sayth Beda. Euseb. Emiss. Hom. fer. 3. post 2. domi. in quadrag. Sanè ut homines quantum velint, fremant & irascantur, securus est Dominus, nihil timet, omnia in potestate habet, & nisi ipse velit, teneri non potest. Non tamen resistit, sed per medium inimicorum transiens, canes contemnit hinc inde latrantes. Neither is there any ancient writer, that fauoureth your monstrous imagination, that he went through mens bodies. For neither is it said, that he went through a doore: neither will he make his body to be without space of place, for then his body should cease to bee a bodie, as S. Augustine sheweth Epist. 57. Dardano. And though Christ by the absolute power of his diuinitie, can doe all things, yet will hee doe nothing contrary to his owne will, his word, his glory. That his humanitie in all naturall qualities, is like ours, his word beareth witnes. Heb. 2. 17. The body of Christ.

Hauing taught the people out of Peters ship, 4 he sheweth in a miraculous taking of fishes, how he will make him the fisher of men. 12 Hee cureth a leper by touching him, and sendeth him to the Priest in witnesse that he is not against Moyses. 15 The people flocking vnto him, he retireth into the wildernesse. 17 To the Pharisees in a solemne assembly hee proueth by a miracle his power to remit sinnes in earth. 27 He defendeth his eating with sinners, as being the Physician of soules, 33 and his not prescribing as yet of any fastes to his Disciples.

THE GOSPEL vpon the 4. Sunday after Pentecost.

AND it came to passe, whē the multitudes pressed vpon him to heare the word of God, and himselfe stoode beside the lake of Genesareth.

Mt. 4, 18. Mar. 1, 16.

2 *And he saw two ships standing by the lake: and the fishers were gone downe, and washed their nets.

3 And hee going vp into ‖ one ship that was Simons, desired him to bring it backe a litle from the land. And sitting, he taught the multitudes out of the ship.

4 And as he ceased to speake, he said to Simon, Launch forth into the deepe, and let loose your nettes to make a draught.

5 And Simon answering, said to him, Master, labouring all the night, we haue taken nothing: but in thy word I will let loose the nette.

6 And when they had done this, they inclosed ‖ a very great multitude of fishes, and their nette was broken.

7 And they ‖ beckened to their fellowes that were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came and filled both ships, so that they did sinke.

8 Which whē Simon Peter did see, he fell downe at IESVS knees, saying, Goe forth from me, because I am a sinfull man, O Lord.

9 For hee was wholy astonished and all that were with him, at the draught of fishes which they had taken.

10 In like maner also Iames and Iohn the sons of Zebedee, who were Simons felowes. And IESVS said to Simon, Feare not: from this time now, ‖ thou shalt be taking men.

11 And hauing brought their ships to land, leauing al things they folowed him.

Mt. 8, 2. Mar. 1, 40.

12 *And it came to passe when he was in one of the cities, and behold a man full of leprosie, and seeing IESVS, and falling on his face, besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me cleane.

13 And stretching forth the hand, he touched

IT *came to passe, that when the people preassed vpon him, to heare the worde of God, hee was standing by the lake of Genezareth. Matth. 4. 18. marke 1. 16.

2 And he sawe two shippes stand by the lakes side: but the fishermen were gone out of them, and were washing their nets.

3 And when hee was entred into one of the shippes which perteined to Simon, hee prayed him that he would thrust out a little from the lande: and he sate downe, and taught the people out of the ship.

4 When he had left speaking, he said vnto Simon, Launch out into the deepe, and let slip your nets to catch.

5 And Simon answering, sayd vnto him, Master, we haue laboured all night, and haue taken nothing: neuertheless, at thy commaundement I will loose forth the net.

6 And when they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes, but their net brake:

7 And they beckened vnto their partners, which were in the other shippe, that they should come and helpe them. And they came, and filled both the shippes that they sunke againe.

8 When Simon Peter sawe this, he fell downe at Iesus knees saying, Goe out from me, for I am a sinfull man, O Lord.

9 For hee was vtterly astonied, and all that were with him, at the taking of the fishes, which they had caught together.

10 And so was also Iames & Iohn the sonnes of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Iesus sayd vnto Simon, Feare not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

11 And when they had brought vp their boates to the shore, they forsooke all, and folowed him.

12 And it came to passe, that when he was in a certaine citie, behold,* there was a man full of leprosie: and when he had spied Iesus, he fel flat on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. Matth. 8. 2. marke 1. 40.

13 And when hee had stretched foorth his hande, ched him, saying, I wil. be thou made cleane. And immediatly the leprosie departed from him.

14 And hee commaunded him that hee should tell no body, but, Goe, ‡shewe thy selfe to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing *as Moyses commaunded, for a testimonie to them.

Leu. 14, 2.

15 But the bruit of him went abroad the more. and great multitudes came together to heare, and to be cured of their infirmities.

16 And hee retired into the desert, and prayed.

17 *And it came to passe one day, and he sate teaching. And there were Pharisees sitting and Doctors of Lawe that were come out of euery towne of Galilee and Iewrie and Hierusalem: and the vertue of our Lord was to heale them.

Mt. 9, 2. Mr. 2, 3. THE GOSPEL vpon Friday in Whitsonweeke.

18 And beholde men carying in a bed a man that had the palsey: and they sought to bring him in, and to lay him before him.

19 And not finding on which side they might bring him in for the multitude, they ‖ went vp vpon the roofe, & through the tiles let him downe with the bed into the middes, before IESVS.

20 ‖Whose faith when he saw, he saide, Man, thy sinnes are forgiuen thee.

21 And the Scribes and Pharisees began to thinke, saying, Who is this that speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgiue sinnes, but only God?

22 And when IESVS knew their cogitations, answering he said to them, What doe you thinke in your hearts?

23 Which is easier to say, Thy sinnes are forgiuen thee: or to say, Arise, and walke?

24 But that you may knowe that ‖ the sonne of man hath power in earth to forgiue sinnes (he said to the sicke of the palsey) I say to thee, Arise, take vp thy bed, and goe into thy house.

25 And forthwith rising vp before them, he tooke that wherein he lay: and hee went into his house, magnifying God.

26 And all were astonied: and they magnified God. And they were replenished with feare, saying, That we haue seene maruelous things to day.

Mt. 9, 9. Mr. 2, 14. THE GOSPEL vpon S. Matthewes eue Septemb. 20.

27 *And after these things he went forth, and saw a Publican called Leui, sitting at the Custome-house, and he said to him, Folowe mee.

28 And ‖ leauing al things, he rose and folowed him.

29 And Leui made him a great feast in his house: and there was a great multitude of Publicans, and of others that were sitting at the table with them.

30 And hande, hee touched him, saying, I will: bee thou cleane. And immediately the leprosie departed from him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but, Goe saith hee, and shewe thy selfe to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto them.* Leuit. 14.

15 But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him, and much people came together to heare, and to bee healed of him from their infirmities.

16 And he kept himselfe apart in the wildernesse, and prayed.

17 And it came to passe on a certaine day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees, and Doctours of the Lawe sitting by, which were come out of all the townes of Galilee, and Iurie, and Hierusalem: and the power of the Lord was present, to heale them.

*18 * And beholde, men brought in a bed a man which was taken with a palsie: and they sought meanes to bring him in, and to lay him before him.* Matth. 9. 2. marke 2. 3.

19 And when they could not finde on what side they might bring him in, because of the preasse, they went vpon the toppe of the house, and let him downe through the tyling with his couch, euen into the middest before Iesu.

20 When he saw their faith, he said vnto him, Man, thy sinnes are forgiuen thee.

21 And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to † thinke, saying, What felow is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgiue sinnes, but God onely? †Or, reason.

22 But when Iesus perceiued their thoughts, he answering, sayd vnto them, What thinke ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier to say, Thy sinnes be forgiuen thee: or to say, Rise vp and walke?

24 But that ye may know that the Sonne of man hath power to forgiue sinnes on earth (hee said vnto the sicke of the palsie,) I say vnto thee, Arise, and when thou hast taken vp thy couch go vnto thine house.

25 And immediately hee rose vp before them, and when he had taken vp his couch, whereon he lay, hee departed to his owne house, glorifying God.

26 And they were all amazed, and they gaue the glory vnto God, and were filled with feare, saying, Doubtlesse we haue seene strange things to day.

*27 * And after these things hee went forth, and sawe a Publicane, named Leui, sitting at the receit of custome: and he sayd vnto him, Folowe me.* Matth. 9. 9. marke 2. 14.

28 And when he had left all, he rose vp, and folowed him.

29 And Leui made him a great feast in his owne house: and there was a great company of Publicanes, and of other that sate at meate with them.

30 But

30 And their Pharisees and Scribes murmured, saying to his Disciples, Why doe you eate and drinke with Publicanes and sinners?

31 And IESVS answering saide to them, They that are whole, neede not the Physicion: but they that are ill at ease.

32 ‡I came not to call the iust, but sinners to penance.

‡Christ came not to call those, who presume of their owne iustice, and that compt them selues to haue no need of Christ. Mat.9,14. Mar.2,18. Luc.5,33. ‡See S. Matt. Anno.c.9.14.

33 But they saide to him, *Why doe the disciples of Iohn ‡ fast often, and make obsecrations, and of the Pharisees in like maner: but thine doe eate and drinke?

34 To whom he said, Why, can you make the children of the bridegrome fast whiles the bridegrome is with them?

35 But the daies wil come: and when the bridegrome shall be taken away from them, then they shal fast in those dayes.

36 And hee saide a similitude also vnto them, That no man putteth a peece from a newe garment into an olde garment: otherwise both hee breaketh the newe, and the peece from the newe agreeth not with the olde.

37 And no body putteth newe wine into olde bottels: otherwise the newe wine will breake the bottels, and it selfe will bee shed, and the bottels wil be lost.

38 But newe wine is to be put into new bottels: and both are preserued together.

39 And no man drinking old, wil new by and by. for he saith, The old is better.

30 But they that were Scribes and Pharisees among them murmured against his disciples, saying, Why doe yee eate and drinke with Publicanes and sinners?

31 And Iesus answering, saide vnto them, They that are whole neede not a Physicion: but they that are sicke.

32 I came not to call the righteous: but sinners to repentance.* 1.Tim.1.13.

33 And they say vnto him, Why doe the disciples of Iohn fast often, and make prayers and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees: but thine eate and drinke?

34 Hee saide vnto them, Can yee make the children of the wedding chamber fast, while the bridegrome is with them?* Matth.9.14. marke 3.18.

35 But the dayes will come: and when the bridegrome shalbe taken away from them, then shall they fast in those dayes.

36 He spake also vnto them a similitude, No man putteth a piece of a new garment into an old vesture: for then the newe renteth the olde, and the piece that was taken out of the newe, agreeth not with the olde.

37 And no man powreth newe wine into olde vessels: for if he doe, the newe wine will burst the vessels, and runne out it selfe, and the vessels shall perish.

38 But newe wine must be put into new vessels, and both are preserued.

39 No man also hauing drunke old wine, will straightway haue newe: for hee saith, the olde is better.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. V.

RHEM. 1 3. One ship Simons.) It is purposely expressed that there were two ships, and that one of them was Peters, and that Christ went into that one, and sate downe in it, and that sitting he taught out of that ship: no doubt to signifie the Church resembled by Peters ship, and that in it is the chaire of Christ, and onely true preaching. Peters ship.

FVLKE, 1 Although it be true, that Christes chaire is in the Church, yet this is a fond collection. For if the ship were here the Church, then al to whom Christ preached that were on the shore and in the other shippe, were out of the Church. The Church.

RHEM. 2 6. A great multitude of fishes.) Likewise by this figuratiue miracle wrought about Peters fishing, is euidently foreshewed what wonderful successe Peter should haue in conuerting men to Christ, both Iewes and Gentiles. as when at one draught, that is to say, at one Sermon he drew into his ship, which is Christes Church, a great number of men, as hee did many fishes: and so continually by him selfe and his successors vnto the worlds end. Peters fishing. Acts.2.41.4.4.

FVLKE, 2 Peters successors be true preachers of the Gospel, as for the Pope that neuer preacheth the Gospel, neuer casteth out Peters net, to fish for men as he did. Successors of Peter.

RHEM. 7. Beckened to their fellowes.) Peter had so much worke that hee called for helpe and ioyned vnto him the other ship, representing to vs his Copartiners in the preaching of the Gospel, and the coniunction of the Synagogue and the people of Gentilitie vnto Peters ship, that is, to the Church of Christ. Ambro.li.4.in Luc c.vlt. Peters coadiutors.

RHEM, 3 10. Thou shalt be taking men.) That al this aforesaid did properly meane Peters trauailes to come, in the conuersion of the world to Christ, and his prerogatiue before al men therein, it is euident by Christs special promise made to him seuerally and apart in this place, that he should be made the taker of men, though to other he giueth also, as to Peters cooperators and coadiutors, the like office. Mat. 4,19. Peters preeminence in fishing for mens soules.

FVLKE. 3 By S. Matthew and S. Marke, it is euident, that Christ spake ioyntly to Peter and Andrew, I will make you fishers of men. Matth 4.19 Marke 1.17. Therefore it is a brutish collection, to gather Peters prerogatiue, before all men in the office of fishing. Peters primacie.

RHEM. 19. Went vp vpon the roofe.) A strange diligence in procuring corporal health of and by Christ: and an example for vs of the like or greater, to obteine saluation of him either for our selues or our friends, and to seeke to his Church and Sacraments with what extraordinary paine so euer. Zeale of soules, RHEM. 4 20. Whose faith.) Great is God (saith S. Ambrose) and pardoneth one sort through the merits of others, therefore if thou doubt to obtaine forgiuenes of thy great offences, ioyne vnto thy self intercessors, vse the Churches helpe, which may pray for thee and obtaine for thee that which our Lord might deny to thy selfe. Amb. lib 5 in Luc. The intercession of others.

FVLKE. 4 The wordes of Ambrose be otherwise then you cite them, Magnus Dominus, qui aliorum meritis ignoscit alijs. The Lord is great, which for other mens sake forgiueth other men: and while he alloweth some, he releaseth the faultes of other, why should not a man thy fellowe prouaile with thee, when with God the seruant hath the meane of intercession and the right of obteyning? Learne thou that iudgest, to forgiue, learne thou that art sicke, to obteine forgiuenes. If thou doubtest to obteine pardon of grieuous sinnes: take to the intreators, take to thee the Church which may pray for thee, by contemplation whereof the Lord forgiueth that which he might deny thee. There is nothing hard in this speech, but the name of merite, merite, which the Fathers vse oftentimes, when they signifie any meane of obtaining, and not as Papists take it, for deserts. And the argument that he draweth from hence, that one man should be intreated by an other to forgiue, declareth that he meaneth not worthines, or merit of workes, to preuaile with God: as he expresseth most plainely in other places, where he saith, Whence should I haue so great merit, seeing mercy is my crowne? Exhort. ad Virgin. Affirming also, that a man is iustified and saued by faith alone, very often times. In ep. ad Rom. cap. 2. & 3. 4. 9. 10. 11. 1. Cor. 1. Gal. cap. 3. 5. and elsewhere. Faith only.

RHEM. 5 24. The sonne of man in earth.) *By which acte (saith Cyril) it is cleere that the Sonne of man hath power in earth to remit sinnes: which he said both for himselfe and vs. For he, as God being made man and Lord of the Law, forgiueth sinnes. And we also haue obtained by him that wonderful grace. for it is said to his Disciples,* Whose sinnes you shal remit, they are remitted to them. And how should not he be able to remit sinnes, who gaue other power to do the same. Priests do remit sinnes. In cap. S. Thomæ. Io. 20. 23.

FVLKE. 5 Christ as God forgiueth sinnes properly, here to the sicke of the palsey. But Matth. 9. Sect. 6. you holde, that Christ as man, forgaue sinnes to this man. The power that Christ gaue to his disciples to forgiue sinnes, is to declare them to be forgiuen by God, S. Hieronym. in Matth. 16. Forgiuenes of sinnes.

RHEM. 6 28. Leauing all folowed him.) *The profane Iulian charged Matthew of too much lightnes, to leaue al and folow a stranger, at one word. but in deed hereby is seene the maruelous efficacie of Christes word and internal working, that in a moment can alter the hart of man, and cause him nothing to esteeme the things most deere vnto him. which he did not only then in presence, but also dayly doth in the Church. For so S. Antonie, S. Francis, and others, by hearing onely the word of our Sauiour read in the Church, forsooke al and folowed him. Hiero. in Mat. Athan. in vit. Antonij. August. conf. lib. 8. c. 12. Bonau. in vit. Francisci.

Forsaking al, and folowing Christ.

FVLKE. 6 Francis folowed not Christ in preaching the Gospel, but did set vp a new sect of his owne religion, of whom they be called Franciscanes, as of Christ Christians haue their name. Yea Francis was crucified for his sect, if we may beleeue his disciples writings and paintings of him. Who also with the rest of begging Friers, go about to abolish the Gospel of Christ, and therefore did write a new Gospel, and called it the Gospel of the spirit, and eternall Gospel, which was expounded openly in Paris, and had bene preached 35. yeeres without controlement, till at last it was burnt secretly, at the importunate request and outcrying of Guilielmus de sancto Amore, and others of Paris: Guil. de sanct. Amore de periculo nouissimi temporis, cap. 8. Matthæus Paris: Anno Domi. 1256. Liber conformitatum. Friers.

7 And the Scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether hee woulde heale on the Sabboth day: that they might finde how to accuse him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise vp, and stand foorth in the middes. And hee arose, and stood foorth.

9 Then said Iesus vnto them, I will aske you a question, Whether is it lawfull on the Sabboth dayes to do good, or to do euill? to saue ones life, or to destroy it?

10 And when hee had beheilde them all in compasse, he said vnto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And hee did so: and his hand was restored againe as whole as the other.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. VI.

RHEM. 1 1. Sabboth second first.) S. Hierom (ep. 2. ad Nepotian.) writeth of himself, that being at Constantinople, he asked his master Gregory Nazianzene, the famous Doctor, then Bishop there, what Sabboth this was, who by his answere declared that it was very hard to tel, neither is it yet knowen to the best learned. Yet the Protestants are wont to say, All is very easie.

FVLKE. 1 A false slaunder: we say not, that all things in the Scripture are very easie. But we say with S. Augustine, that God hath gratiously, and wholesomely so tempered the Scriptures, that by euident or plaine places, he might prouide for hunger, and by darke places, wipe away loathsomnes. For nothing almost is taken out of those obscurities, which is not founde else where, vttered most plainely. De Doctr. Christ. lib. 2. cap. 6. And as for this Sabboth second principall, Epiphanius sheweth plainely, that it was the last solemne day of the feast of vnleauened bread, by conference of the Law. Leuit. 23. Epipha. Hæres. 51. Slaunder.

RHEM. 2 48. Building a house.) He buildeth right and surely, that hath both faith and good workes: he buildeth on sand, that trusteth to his faith or reading or knowledge of the Scripture, and doth not worke or liue accordingly.

FVLKE. 2 If faith be taken for bare knowledge, as in Iames 2. he that trusteth to such a faith, buildeth in the sand. Yet true faith onely sufficeth to iustification, and bringeth foorth good workes as the fruites of a iustified man: as Augustine sheweth plentifully. De fide & oper. c. 14. & 22. & 23. Iustification by faith onely.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. VI.

RHEM. 3 3. Neither this haue you read.) The Scribes and Pharisees boasted most of their knowledge of the Scriptures: but our Sauiour often sheweth their great ignorance. Euen so the Heretikes that now adayes vant most of the Scriptures and of their vnderstanding of them, may soone be proued to vnderstand litle or nothing. Heretikes vnderstand not the Scriptures.

FVLKE. 3 It is ynough for you to call vs heretikes, and say that wee vnderstand little or nothing in the Scriptures, but thereof let our preachings, writings and conferences beare witnesse. Yet we vaunt not of our vnderstanding, but humbly thanke the auctor thereof. Slaunder.

RHEM. 9. Saue a soule.) Hereby it seemeth that Christ (as at other times lightly alwayes) did not onely heale the man in body, but of some correspondent disease in his soule.

RHEM. 4 12. The whole night.) Our Sauiour instantly prayed, alone in the mount without doore, al night long, as a preparation to the designement of his Apostles the day after: to giue example to the Church of praying instantly when priestes are to be ordered, and a lesson to vs all what we should do for our owne necessities, when Christ did so for other mens. The Churches prayers at the times of giuing holy Orders.

FVLKE. 4 The Church ought to follow our Sauiour Christ in praying earnestly, when ministers of the worde and Sacraments are ordeined. But this example is litle followed in Popery, as common experience teacheth, where simonie so greatly preuaileth in this matter, and most of all at Rome.

RHEM. 5 13. Whom he named Apostles.) *Here it is to bee noted against our Aduersaries that deceitfully measure to the simple the whole nature and qualitie of certaine sacred functions, by the primitiue signification and compasse of the names or words wherely they be called. with whom as a priest is but an elder, and a bishop, a watchman or Superintendent, so an Apostle is nothing but a Legate or Messenger, and therefore (as they argue) can make no lawes nor prescribe or teach any thing not expressed in his mandatum. Know therefore against such deceiuers, that such things are not to be ruled by the vulgar signification of the word or calling, but by vse and application of the holy writers, and in this point by Christes owne expresse imposition. And so this word Apostle, is a calling of Office, gouernment, authoritie, and most high dignitie giuen by our Master, specially to the College of the Twelue: whom he endued aboue that which the vulgar etymologie of their name requireth, with power to bind and loose, to punish and pardon, to teach and rule his Church. Out of which roome & dignity, which is called in the Psalme and in the Acts, a bishoprike, when Iudas fell, Mathias was chosen to supply it, and was numbered among the rest, who were as founders or foundations of our religion, as the Apostle termeth them. Therefore to that college this name agreeth by special imposition and prerogatiue, though afterward it was by vse of the Scriptures, extended to S. Paule and Barnabas, and sometimes to the Apostles successors: as also (by the like vse of Scriptures) to the first conuerters of countreis to the faith, or their coadiutors in that function. In which sense S. Paul chalengeth to be the Corinthians Apostle, and named Epaphroditus the Philippians Apostle: as we call S. Gregory and his disciple S. Augustine, our Apostle of England. In all which taking, it euer signifieth dignitie, regiment, Paternitie, Principalitie and Primacie in the Church of God: according to S. Paul 1. Cor. 12. He hath placed in his Church, first in deed Apostles, &c. Whereby we may see that S. Peters dignity was a wonderfull eminent Prerogatiue and Soueraintie, when he was the head not onely of other Christian men, but the head of all Apostles, yea euen of the College of the Twelue. And if our Aduersaries list to haue learned any profitable lesson by the word Apostle, more profitably and truly they might haue gathered, that Christ called these his principall officers, Apostles, or Sent (himselfe also specially and aboue all other being Missus, that is, Sent. and called also Apostle in the Scriptures) to warne vs by the nature of the word, that none are true Apostles, Pastors, or Preachers, that are not specially sent and called, or that can not shew by whom they be sent. and that all Heretikes therefore be rather Apostates then Apostles, for that they be not sent, nor duely called, nor chosen to preach. Calu. Inst. li. 4. ca. 8. The name and dignitie of Apostles. Psa. 108, 8. Acts. 1, 20. Ephe. 2. 20. Acts. 14. 1. Cor. 12. Ephe. 4, 11. 1. Cor 9, 2. Phil. 2, 25. Luc. 4, 18. Hebr. 3, 2.

FVLKE. 5 Our Sauiour Christ gaue names of signification to his ministers, that we might not only learne the dignitie of their office, but also their dutie. And therefore we do rightly make our argument of the notation of the Apostles name: They be Legates or Embassadors, Ergo they cannot make lawes, nor prescribe or teach any thing beside their commission, for this is the dutie of Legates. Yet is their office of high dignitie and authoritie, being the Embassadors of the King of kings: because a Legate or Embassador representeth the person and authoritie, of the prince from whom he is sent. So an Elder is a name of dignitie, grauitie and authoritie, a bishop of vigilancie, wisdome, diligence, which in so weightie affaires as concerne his office, cannot be without honor & auctoritie. Therefore it is a lewd slander, that we deceiue the simple in measuring the nature of sacred functions, by the primitiue signification of their names. Their offices & functions are set downe plainly in the Scriptures, as wel for the dignity, as for the dutie that belongeth vnto them. And they haue apt names giuen by the holy Ghost, to admonish themselues of their duties, and other men both of their dignities & duties. But you would Apostles. Elders. Bishops. Slander.

haue dignitie without duetie. If he haue the name of a Priest or a Bishop, it skilleth not though he lacke learning, honesty, diligence, watchfulnes, he is priest and bishop good ynough for Poperie. And if hee make lawes and teach beside his commission, as the Pope doeth, he is still apostle or Apostolike. But you labour in vaine to blind the world any longer, with names and titles of honour, when the persons haue nothing that without dutie doing, can be worthy of any estimation, with them that know what belongeth to those offices and names. That the name of Apostles is not to be giuen to all that are sent, but onely to them that haue immediate commission from Christ, as first the twelue, and then Paul and Barnabas (to whom you hardly allow the name of Apostles, by full, special, and immediate commission, but by vse of Scripture) we do willingly acknowledge: But that the name of Apostles absolutely was giuen to their successors, by vse of Scripture you are not able to proue. For in that generall commission, they had no successors. And Epaphroditus is not called an Apostle simply, but your Apostle, that is, saith Photius, because they sent necessary things to S. Paul by him. Oecum. Or as S. Ambrose saith: He was made their Apostle by the Apostles, when he sent him to exhort them: by which interpretation, he was the messenger of S. Paul. Farre vnlike to Gregory and his disciple Augustine, whom you cal apostles, of whom the latter was Gregories apostle. But Gregory was not Christs Apostle, although he was (for the time in which he liued) a good man: yet farre from the sinceritie, calling, and auctoritie of an Apostle of Christ. But the wonderfull prerogatiue of Peters primacie, aboue the rest of the Apostles, we see not, seeing it was a primacie of order, not of honour or auctoritie. Cypr. de vnitat. eccles. Hieron. cont. Iouin. lib. 1. and Ep. Euagrio. Concerning the lesson you would haue vs to learne by the name of Apostle, we acknowledge that none are true Apostles, pastours, or teachers, but those that are sent of God, and haue lawfull calling by God and the Church. Peters Primatie.

RHEM. 6 14. Simon.) Peter in the numbring of the Apostles, alwayes first named and preferred before Andrew his elder brother and senior by calling, See Annotat. Mt. 10, 2. Peters preeminence.

FVLKE. 6 For Peters prerogatiue, see also the Notes. Matth. 16.

RHEM. 7 23. Be glad.) The common miseries that fall to the true preachers and other Catholike men for Christes sake, as pouertie, famine, mourning, and persecutions, be in deed the greatest blessings that can bee, and are meritorious of the reward of heauen. Contrarywise, all the felicities of this world without Christ, are in deed nothing but woe, and the entrance to euerlasting miserie. All persecution for Christ, is a blessing.

FVLKE. 7 The sufferings of this life are not worthy of the glory that shalbe reuealed in the children of God. Rom. 8. 18. Therefore they be not meritorious of the reward of heauen. For eternall life is the free gift of God in Christ Iesus our Lord. Rom. 6. 23. Merite.

RHEM. 8 26. Shal blesse you.) This wo pertaineth to the Heretikes of our dayes, that delight to haue the peoples prayses, blessings and shoutes, preaching pleasant things of purpose to their itching eares: as did the False-Prophets, when they were magnified and commended therefore of the carnall Iewes. The vanitie of Heretical preachers.

FVLKE. 8 We preach mortification, and bearing of the crosse of Christ to be necessary for all Christian men, vnder paine of eternall damnation, which is no pleasant doctrine to carnall men. But your doctrine of pardons, absolutions, dispensations, conuerting of eternall paines into temporall, and then satisfaction by meritorious deeds, and other mens workes sweetely payed for, be preachings of pleasant things, to serue the humor of itching eares. Preachers of carnal libertie.

RHEM. 9 35. Lend, hoping nothing.) In that we may here seeme to be moued to lend to those whom we thinke not able nor like euer to repay againe, it must bee holden for a counsell rather then a commaundement, except the case of necessitie. but it may be taken rather for a precept, wherein vsury, that is to say, the expectation not of the money lent, but of vantage for lone, is forbidden: as by other places of Scripture it is condemned, and is a thing against the Law of nature and nations. And great shame and pitie it is, that it should be so much vsed or suffered among Christians, or so couered and cloked vnder the habite of other contracts, as it is. Against vsurie.

FVLKE. 9 If any precept be too heauie for you to beare, you mitigate it by making it a voluntary Counsell. But to lend without hope of restitution, is a part of true charitie, which is one of the great Commandements. Yet it is not to be meant of all men, but such as haue neede to borowe, not to serue their pleasure, or to encrease their gaine, but for their necessitie. And it is manifest, that where we are commanded to lend, not onely vsury is not to be looked for, but euen the principall must be aduentured neuer to be restored. Counsels and precepts.

CHAP. VII.

He testifieth the faith of the Centurion who was a Gentile, to be greater then he found among all the Iewes, and cureth his seruant absent. 11 The widowes sonne he reuiueth and restoreth to her, and is renowmed thereupon. 18 To Iohns messengers he answereth with miracles, leauing to Iohn to preach thereby vnto them that he is Christ. 24 And afterward hee declareth how worthy credite was Iohns testimony, 29 inueighing against the Pharisees, 31 Who with neither of their maners of liuing could be wonne. 36 Shewing also vnto them by occasion of Mary Magdalene, how he is a friend to sinners, not to maintaine them in sinne, but to forgiue them their sinnes vpon their faith and penance.

AND when he had fully said al his words into the eares of the people, he entered into Capharnaum.

2 And the seruant of a certaine Centurion being sicke, was ready to die: who was deere vnto him.

3 And when he had heard of IESVS, he sent vnto him the Auncients of the Iewes, desiring him to come and heale his seruant.

4 But they being come to IESVS, besought him earnestly, saying to him, That he is worthy that thou shouldest doe this for him.

5 For he loueth our nation: and hee hath ‖ built a synagogue for vs.

6 And IESVS went with them. And when

3 And when hee heard of Iesus, hee sent vnto him the Elders of the Iewes, beseeching him that hee woulde come and heale his seruant.

4 And when they came to Iesus, they besought him instantly, saying, Hee is worthy that thou shouldest doe this for him.

5 For hee loueth our nation, and hath built vs a Synagogue.

6 Then Iesus went with them. And when he when hee was now not farre from the house, the Centurion sent his friends vnto him, saying, Lord, trouble not thy selfe. for ‡ I am not woorthie that thou shouldest enter vnder my roofe.

‡ See the Annotations vpon S. Matt. c. 8. 8.

7 For the which cause neither did I thinke my selfe worthie to come to thee: but say the word, and my seruant shall be made whole.

8 For I also am a man subiect to authoritie, hauing vnder me souldiers: and I say to this, Go, & he goeth: and to another, Come, and hee commeth: and to my seruant, Doe this, and he doth it.

9 Which IESVS hearing, maruelled: and turning to the multitudes that followed him he sayd, Amen I say to you, neither in Israel haue I found so great faith.

10 And they that were sent, being returned home, found the seruant that had beene sicke, whole.

THE GOSPEL vpon the xv. Sunday after Pentecost. And vpon Thursday in the fourth weeke of Lent. And for S. Monica S. Augustines mother, May. 4.

11 And it came to passe, afterward hee went into a citie that is called Naim: and there went with him his Disciples and a very great multitude.

12 And when hee came nigh to the gate of the citie, beholde a dead man was caried forth, the onely sonne of his mother: and she was a widow: and a great multitude of the citie with her.

13 Whom when our Lord had seene, being mooued with mercy vpon her, he sayd to her, Weepe not.

14 And hee came neere and touched the coffin. And they that caried it, stood stil: and he sayd, Yong man, I say to thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead, sate vp, and began to speake. And hee gaue him to his mother.

16 And feare tooke them all: and they magnified God, saying, That a great Prophet is risen among vs: and, That God hath visited his people.

17 And this saying went foorth into all Iewrie of him, & into all the countrey about.

18 And Iohns disciples shewed him of all these things.

he was now not farre from the house, the Centurion sent friends to him, saying vnto him, Lorde, trouble not thy selfe: for I am not woorthie that thou shouldest enter vnder my roofe.

7 Wherefore I thought not my selfe worthie to come vnto thee: but say thou the word, and my seruant shalbe whole.

8 For I also am a man set vnder power, hauing vnder me souldiers: and I say vnto one, Go, and hee goeth: and to another, Come, and hee commeth: and to my seruant, Doe this, and hee doth it.

9 When Iesus heard these things, hee marueiled at him, and turned him about, and sayd vnto the people that followed him, I say vnto you, I haue not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

10 And they that were sent, when they were returned home, found the seruant whole that had bene sicke.

11 And it came to passe the day after, that hee went into a citie called Naim: and manie of his disciples went with him, and much people.

14 And when he was come nigh, he touched the beere (and they that bare him stood still.) And he sayd, Yong man, I say vnto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead, sate vp, and began to speake: and he deliuered him to his mother.

16 And there came a feare on them all, and they gaue the glory vnto God, saying that a great Prophet is risen vp among vs, & verily God hath visited his people.

21 And in that same houre he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of euill spirits, and vnto many that were blinde he gaue sight.

RHEM. 2 30. Despised the counsell.) As they that contemned Iohns baptisme, despised Gods counsell and wisedome: so much more they that make no account of the Sacraments of the Church, despise Gods counsell and ordinance touching their saluation, to their owne damnation.

FVLKE. 2 Iohns baptisme was a Sacrament of the Church, as verily as the Baptisme and Supper of the Lord be now. Iohns baptisme.

RHEM. 3 38. Water his feet.) A perfect paterne of true penance in this woman, who sought of Christ with open teares and other strange works of satisfaction and deuotion, remission of her sinnes.

FVLKE. 3 Outward signes of true repentance, and effects of loue and thankfulnesse for sinnes forgiuen, as our Sauior Christ himselfe interpreteth them, not works of satisfaction to obteine forgiuenesse of sinnes. For as Ambrose sayth of Peters teares, We read his teares, we read not his satisfaction. in Luc. cap. 22. Satisfaction.

RHEM. 4 47. Loued much.) Not onely faith (as you may perceiue) but loue or charity obteineth remission of sinnes.

FVLKE. 4 Onely faith obteineth remission of sinnes, whereof loue is an effect. For the argument is not (as the whole discourse of the text is manifest) from the cause to the effect, but from the effect to the cause. Many sinnes are forgiuen her, therefore she hath loued much, as the words following do make it manifest. For to whom litle is remitted he loueth litle. The same thing declareth the parable of the two debters, that forgiuenesse of the debt goeth before loue, therefore is cause of loue, and not loue the cause of forgiuenesse of sinnes. So sayth S. Ambrose: According to man he offendeth more, who ought more, but by the mercy of our Lord, the cause is changed, that he loueth more which ought more, if he haue obteined grace or forgiuenesse. in Luc. cap. 7. The like maner of speaking, and vse of the particle in, is in Iohn 15. 15. I haue called you friends, for I haue declared to you all that I haue heard of my father, where this declaring, is the effect and not the cause of his loue. Faith onely.

RHEM. 5 49. Who is this that.) As the Pharisees did alwayes carpe Christ for remission of sinnes in earth, so the heretikes reprehend his Church that remitteth sinnes by his authority.

FVLKE. 5 A slander, for we acknowledge the power of forgiuenesse of sinnes by the ministers of the Church, yet farre differing from the power of our Sauiour Christ, who as God forgaue absolutely of his owne authoritie, his seruants, by declaring his will in forgiuenesse of sinnes. Hieron. in Matth. 16. Slander. Remission of sinnes.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. VII.

RHEM. 6 5. Built a Synagogue.) As at that time to found a Synagogue, was acceptable to God, and procured the prayers of the faithfull people for whose vse it was made: so now much more in the New Testament, to build a Church, Monastery, Colledge, or any like worke for the honour and seruice of God, is grateful to him, and procureth the prayers of the good people for whose vse such things be founded. Building of churches, monasteries, &c.

To

FVLKE. 6 To build a Church or College, or any other place for the maintenance of Gods seruice, or good learning, is a good worke. But to build a Church or Monasterie for the maintenance of idolatrie, or idle superstitious hypocrites, such as your Monks are, is no worke acceptable to God, but rather displeasing him. Building of churches or abbeyes.

RHEM. 7 44. Into thy house.) An exceeding approbation of the extraordinary workes and signes of externall deuotion, which seeme so carnall men (though otherwise faithfull) to be often superfluous or not acceptable. This Simon was perhaps of a good will, and therefore (as diuers others did elswhere) inuited Christ to his house, not of curiosity or captiousnesse, as some other did: but of affection, as it may seeme by Christes familiar talke with him. Notwithstanding his duelies towardes him were but ordinary. but the anointing, washing, kissing, wiping of his feet in such sort as the woman did, were further signes of more then vulgar loue: such as is in deuout men or women that goe on pilgrimage, and kisse deuoutly the holy memories of Christ and his Saints. Which is no more but an exteriour expressing of their affection, and that they loue much, as euery vulgar Christian man doth not. Exterior signes of more then common deuotion.

FVLKE. 7 Note that carnall men, with Papists, may be otherwise faithfull. But with Christians, although the faithfull be not free from all carnall affections, yet they haue crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts thereof, so that they cannot be truely called carnall men. The extraordinary works of deuotion, towards the person of our Sauiour Christ, are no example to iustifie pilgrimages to idols, superstitious worshipping of the memories of Christ and his Saints, although they were true, and not fained reliques. For tokens of exceeding great loue, should be extended toward the poore members of Christ, to whom whatsoeuer is done of true loue, he accepteth as done to himselfe. Matth. 25. 40. Faithfull carnall men with Papists. Gal. 5. 24. Superstition. Reliques.

RHEM. 8 50. Thy faith.) The remission of her sinnes being attributed before to charity, is nowe also sayde to come of her faith. Whereby you may know that it commonly proceedeth of both, and of hope also, though but one named. Because when there be diuers causes concurring to one effect, the Scriptures commonly name but one, and that especially which is most proper to the purpose and time, not excluding the other. And therefore his working miracles vpon any person, is attributed to the faith of them on whom or at whose desire they be done. Because he wrought his miracles to induce all men to beleeue in him, and therfore specially required faith at their hands, and namely before other things, whether they did beleeue that he was able to doe that which they asked at his hands: without which it had bene rather a mockery and tentation of him, then a true desire of benefit at his hands. Iustification attributed not to faith onely.

FVLKE. 8 Remission of her sinnes, was not before attributed to charity, but by her great loue it was shewed, that many sinnes were forgiuen her: as vnto the debter of a great summe. Charitie therefore, was not cause of remission, but an effect thereof. And true it is, that faith onely iustifying, doth not exclude other causes, but onely the merit of good works, which follow a iustified man, goe not before to iustification. Aug. de fide & oper. c. 14. And witnesse, that faith onely doth iustifie before God, are almost all the ancient Fathers in expresse words. *Origen in ep. ad Rom. lib. 3. c. 3. Cyprian ad Quirinum cap. 42. Going ouer all Galilee with his traine, 4 hee preacheth to the Iewes in parables because of their reprobation: 9 but to his Disciples manifestly: because he will not for the Iewes incredulity haue his comming frustrate: 19 signifying also that we are his kin (though we be Gentils) and not his carnall brethren the Iewes. 22 To whom also (signified by the Gerasens) after the tempest in his sleepe (that is, in his death) and calme in his resurrection, he commeth: but they preferring their temporals before his presence, hee leaueth them againe. 41 Likewise comming to cure the Iewes (who were borne when the Gentils sickened, about Abrahams time) he is presented with the faith of the Gentils, and then the Iewes die, but them also in the end he will restore.

5 The Sower went out to sowe his seed: and as hee sowed, some fell by the way side, and it was troden downe, and the fowles of the aire deuoured it vp.

6 And some fell on stones, and assoone as it was sprung vp, it withered away, because it lacked moistnesse.

7 And some fell among thornes, ‖ and the thornes sprang vp with it, and choked it. ‖ Or, rather thus: And some fell among thistles, and the thistles sprang vp with and choked it.

8 And some fell on good ground, and sprang vp, and bare fruit an hundred folde. And as he sayd these things, he cried, He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

9 And his Disciples asked him what this parable was.

10 To whom he sayd, To you it is giuen to knowe the mysterie of the kingdome of God, but to the rest in parables; ‡ that *seeing they may not see, and hearing may not vnderstand.

11 And the parable is this: The seede, is the word of God.

12 And they besides the way: are those that heare, then the deuill commeth, and taketh the word out of their heart, lest beleeuing they be saued.

16 And no man lighting a candle, doeth couer it with a vessell, or put it vnder a bed: but setteth it vpon a candlesticke, that they that enter in, may see the light.

17 For there is not any thing secret, that shal not be made manifest: nor hid, that shal not be knowen, and come abroad.

18 See therefore how you heare. For he that hath, to him shalbe giuen: and whosoeuer hath not, that also which he thinketh he hath, shalbe taken away from him.

24 And ‡ they came and raised him, saying, Maister, we perish. But he rising, rebuked the winde and the tempest of water: and it ceased, and there was made a calme.

26 * And they sailed to the countrey of the Gerasens which is ouer against Galilee.

27 And when he was come forth to the land, there met him a certeine man that had a deuil now a very long time, and he did weare no clothes, neither did hee tary in house, but in the monuments.

28 And as he saw IESVS, he fell downe before him: and crying out with a great voice, he sayd, What is to me & thee IESVS sonne of God most high? I beseech thee doe not torment me.

29 For he commanded the vncleane spirit to goe foorth out of the man. For manie times he caught him, and he was bound with chaines, and kept with fetters: and breaking the bondes was driuen of the deuill into the deserts.

30 And IESVS asked him saying, What is thy name? But he sayd, Legion. because many deuils were entred into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go into the depth.

32 And there was there a heard of manie swine feeding on the mountaine: and they desired him, that hee would permit them to enter into them. And he permitted them.

33 The deuils therfore went forth out of the man, and entred into the swine: and the heard with violence went headlong into the lake, and was stifled.

34 Which when the swineheards sawe done, they fled: and tolde into the citie, and into the townes.

35 And they went forth to see that which was done: and they came to IESVS, & found the man, out of whom the deuils were gone foorth, sitting at his feet, clothed, and well in his wits, and they were afrayd.

36 And they also that had seene, tolde them how hee had beene made whole from the legion.

37 And all the multitude of the countrey of the Gerasens besought him to depart from them: for they were taken with great feare. And hee going vp into the boat, returned.

38 And the man out of whom the deuils were departed, desired him that he might be with him. But IESVS dimisse him, saying, 39 Returne into thy house, and tell how great things God hath done to thee. And he went thorow the whole citie, preaching how great things IESVS had done to him.

40 And it came to passe: when IESVS was returned, the multitude receiued him. and all were expecting him.

Mt.9,18. Mar.5,22.

41 And * beholde there came a man whose name was Iairus, and he was a Prince of the Synagogue: and hee fell at the feet of IESVS, desiring him that he would enter into his house,

42 Because

*26 * And they sailed vnto the region of the Gadarenites, which is ouer against Galilee.* Matt.8,28. marke 5.1.

27 And when he went out to land, there met him out of the city a certeine man which had deuils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in graues.

28 When he saw Iesus, and had cried aloud, hee fell downe before him, and with a loud voice sayd, What haue I to doe with thee Iesus, thou sonne of God most highest? I beseech thee torment me not.

29 (For hee commaunded the foule spirit to come out of the man: For often times hee had caught him, and hee was bound with chaines, and kept with fetters: and he brake the bandes, and was carried of the feend into the wildernesse.)

30 And Iesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he sayd, Legion: because many deuils were entred into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deepe.

32 And there was there an heard of manie swine feeding on an hill: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them: and he suffered them.

33 Then went the deuils out of the man, and entred into the swine: and the heard ranne headlong with violence into the lake, and were choked.

34 When the heardmen saw what was done, they fled: and when they were departed, they told it in the citie, and in the villages.

35 Therefore they came out to see what was done, and came to Iesus, and found the man, out of whom the deuils were departed, sitting at the feet of Iesus, clothed, and in his right minde: and they were afraid.

36 They also which saw it, told them by what meanes hee that was possessed of the deuils, was healed.

37 Then the whole multitude of the countrey about the Gadarenites, besought him that hee would depart from them, for they were taken with great feare: and he gate him vp into the ship, and returned backe againe.

38 Then the man, out of whome the deuils were departed, besought him that hee might be with him: but Iesus sent him away, saying,

39 Goe home againe to thine owne house, and shew what ‖ things soeuer God hath done for thee. And he went his way, and preached thorowout all the citie, what things soeuer Iesus had done vnto him.

‖ Or, what great things God hath done vnto thee.

40 And it came to passe, that when Iesus was come againe, the people receined him: for they were all waiting for him:

*41 And beholde, there came a man, named Iairus, * and hee was a ruler in the Synagogue, and he fell downe at Iesus feet, praying him that he would come into his house:* Matth.9.18. marke 5.22.

43 And there was ‡ a certaine woman in a flux of blood from twelue yeres past, which had bestowed all her substance vpon Physicians, neither could she be cured of any:

45 And IESVS sayd, Who is it that touched me? And all denying, ‡ Peter sayd, and they that were with him, Maister, the multitudes throng and presse thee, and doest thou say, Who touched me?

46 And IESVS sayd, Some bodie hath touched me. for I know that there is vertue proceeded from me.

47 And the woman seeing, that she was not hid, came trembling, and fell downe before his feet: and for what cause she had touched him, she shewed before all the people: and how forthwith she was made whole.

48 But he said to her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee safe, go thy way in peace.

49 As hee was yet speaking, there commeth one to the Prince of the Synagogue, saying to him, That thy daughter is dead, trouble him not.

50 And IESVS hearing this word, answered the father of the maide, Feare not: ‡ beleeue onely, and she shalbe safe.

51 And when he was come to the house, hee permitted not any man to enter in with him, but Peter, and Iames, and Iohn, and the father and mother of the maid.

52 And all wept, and mourned for her. But he sayd, Weepe not, the maid is not dead, but sleepeth.

53 And they derided him, knowing that she was dead.

54 But he holding her hand cried saying, Maid arise.

55 And ‖ her spirit returned, and she rose incontinent. And hee bade them giue her to eate.

56 And her parents were astonied, whom hee commaunded to tell no man that which was done.

44 Came behinde him, and touched the hem of his raiment: and immediatly her issue of blood stanched.

45 And Iesus sayd, Who is it that touched me? When euery man denied, Peter and they that were with him, sayde, Master, the people thrust thee, and vexe thee, and sayest thou, Who touched mee?

48 And hee sayd vnto her, Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath saued thee, goe in peace.)

49 While hee yet spake, there commeth one from the ruler of the Synagogues house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead, disease not the Maister.

50 But when Iesus heard that word, he answered him, saying, Feare not, beleeue onely, and she shalbe made whole.

52 Euery bodie wept, and sorrowed for her: and he sayd, Weepe not, the damosell is not dead, but sleepeth.

53 And they laughed him to scorne, knowing that she was dead.

54 And he thrust them all out, and tooke her by the hand, and cried, saying, Maid, arise.

55 And her spirit came againe, and shee arose straightway: and he commanded to giue her meat.

56 And her parents were astonied: but he warned them that they shoulde tell no man what was done.

RHEM. 4 — 3. That did minister.) It was the custome of the Iewes that women of their substance did minister meat and drinke and cloth to their teachers, going about with them. which because it might haue bene scandalous among the Gentiles, S. Paul maketh mention that he vsed it not. And they ministred to our Lord of their substance for this cause, that he whose spirituall benefits they reaped, might reape their carnall things. — Holy women that followed Christ.

1.Cor.9,5.12.

FVLKE. 4 — S. Paul speaketh not of rich women, that might relieue his necessitie, and spare the Church: but of a wife, that might be a burthen to the Church, as the text is plaine, and Clemens Alexandrinus testifieth, Strom. lib.3. Otherwise it had beene absurd, that they should leaue their owne wiues, and cary strange women about with them, such long iourneys as they trauelled. — The Apostles wiues.

RHEM. — 20. Thy brethren.) These brethren of our Lord, were not the sonnes of the B. Virgin MARY the mother of God, as Heluidius wickedly taught: neither are they to be thought (as some others say) the sonnes of Ioseph by another wife: for (as S. Hierom writeth) not onely our Lady was a virgin, but by reason of her, Ioseph also: that our Sauior might be borne of a virginall matrimonie. But they are called his brethren (according to the vsuall speech of the Scriptures) because they were his cousins either the sonnes of Iosephs brother, or (as the more receiued opinion is) the sonnes of our Ladies sister called Mary of Iames, which Iames therefore is also called the brother of our Lord. — The brethren of Christ. Hiero. cont. Heluid. c.9. Ibidem c.8.

RHEM. 5 — 55. Her spirit returned.) This returning of the soules againe into the bodies of them whom CHRIST and his Apostles raised from death (specially Lazarus, who had bene dead foure dayes) doth euidently proue a third place against our aduersaries, that say, euery one goeth straight to Heauen or to Hell. for it cannot be thought that they were called from the one or the other, and therefore from some third place. — A third place after this life.

FVLKE. 5 — This is Popish euidence, which all the Logicians in the world are not able to conclude, in lawfull forme of arguments, out of the text. The spirit of the maid and Lazarus returned, ergo from a third place. For it cannot be thought (sayth he) that they were called from heauen or hell. And why may we not, or ought we not to thinke, that their soules were, where the soules of other godly persons departed, were? — Purgatorie.

32 But Peter and they that were with him, were heauie with sleepe. And awaking, they sawe his maiestie, and the two men that stood with him.

33 And it came to passe, when they departed from him, Peter sayd to IESVS, Master, it is good for vs to be here: & let vs make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moyses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he sayd.

34 And as hee spake these things, there came a cloud, and ouershadowed them: and they feared, when they entred into the cloud.

1.Pet.1,17. 35 * And a voice was made out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloued sonne, heare him.

38 And beholde a man of the multitude cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, looke vpon my sonne because he is mine only one,

40 And I desired thy disciples to cast him out, and they could not.

41 And IESVS answering said, ‡ O faithlesse and peruerse generation, how long shal I be with you and suffer you? bring hither thy sonne.

42 And when he came to him, the deuill dashed, and tore him. And IESVS rebuked the vncleane spirit, and healed the lad: and rendred him to his father.

43 And all were astonied at the might of God: and all maruelling at all things that he did, he said to his disciples,

30 And beholde, there talked with him two men, which were Moyses and Elias,

31 That appeared in glorie, and spake of his departing, which hee shoulde ende at Hierusalem.

32 But Peter, and they that were with him, were heauie with sleepe: and when they awoke, they sawe his glorie, and the two men standing with him.

33 And it came to passe, as they departed from him, Peter said vnto Iesus, Master, it is good being here for vs, and let vs make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moyses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he sayd.

34 While hee thus spake, there came a cloud and ouershadowed them, and they feared, when they were come into the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my deare sonne, heare him.

36 And assoone as the voice was past, Iesus was found alone: and they kept it close, and tolde no man in those dayes any of those things which they had seene.

*37 * And it came to passe, that on the next day, when they were come downe from the hill, much people met him.* Mat.17.14. mar.9.17.

38 And beholde, a man of the companie cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee beholde my sonne, for he is all that I haue:

39 And see, a spirit taketh him, and suddenly he crieth, & teareth him that he foameth againe, and with much paine departeth from him, when he renteth him.

40 And I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they could not.

41 Iesus answering, sayde, O faithlesse and peruerse nation, how long shall I be with you, and shall suffer you? bring thy sonne hither.

42 As he was yet a comming, the feend rent him, and tare him: and Iesus rebuked the vncleane spirit, and healed the childe, and deliuered him againe to his father.

43 And they were all amazed at the maiesty of God: But while they wondred euery one at all things which Iesus did, hee sayd vnto his Disciples,

*44 * Let these sayings sincke downe into your eares: for it will come to passe, that the sonne of man shall be deliuered into the handes of men.* Mat.17.22. mar.9.31.

45 But they wist not what that worde meant, and it was hid from them, that they should not vnderstand it: and they feared to aske him of that saying.

*46 * Then there arose a disputation among them, which of them should be the greatest.* Mat.18.1. mar.9.33.

47 When Iesus perceiued the thought of their heart, he tooke a childe, and set him hard by him, 51 And it came to passe, whiles the dayes of his assumption were accomplishing, and he fixed his face to goe into Hierusalem.

52 And hee sent messengers before his face: and going they entred into a city of the Samaritans to prepare for him.

53 And they receiued him not, because his ‖ face was to goe to Hierusalem.

61 And another sayde, I will follow thee Lord, but permit me first to take my leaue of them that are at home.

62 IESVS said to him, ‖ No man putting his hand to the plough, and looking backe, is apt for the kingdome of God.

ceiue this childe in my name, receiueth me: and whosoeuer shall receiue mee, receiueth him that sent mee: For hee that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

Mar.9.38. 49 And Iohn answering, sayd, Master, wee saw one casting out deuils in thy Name, and wee forbade him, because hee followeth not thee with vs.*

50 And Iesus said vnto him, Forbid ye him not: for he that is not against vs is with vs.

51 And it came to passe, when the time was come that he should be receiued vp, he stedfastly set his face to goe to Hierusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face, and they went and entred into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receiue him, because his face was as though he would goe to Hierusalem.

54 When his Disciples, Iames and Iohn saw this, they sayd, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come downe from heauen, and consume them, euen as Elias did?

55 Iesus turning about, rebuked them, saying, Ye wote not what maner spirit ye are of.

Mat.8.19. *56 For the Sonne of man is not come to destroy mens liues, but to saue them. And they went to another village.

57 And it came to passe, that as they went walking in the way, a certeine man sayde vnto him, I will follow thee, Lord, whither soeuer thou goest.

58 And Iesus sayde vnto him, Foxes haue holes, and birdes of the aire haue nestes: but the Sonne of man hath not where to lay his head.

Mat.8.21. *59 And he said vnto another, Follow me: And the same said, Lord, suffer me first to goe and burie my father.

60 Iesus sayd vnto him, Let the dead burie their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdome of God.

61 And another said, Lord, I will follow thee: but let me first go bid them farewell which are at home at my house.

62 Iesus sayd vnto him, No man hauing put his hand to the plough, and looking backe, is apt to the kingdome of God.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. IX.

RHEM. 1 1. Vertue and power.) To command deuils and diseases either of body or soule, is by nature proper to God onely: but by Gods gift, men also may haue the same. euen so to forgiue sinnes.

FVLKE. 1 That which is proper to God, cannot be communicated to men. Therefore God onely worketh miracles, and forgiueth sinnes by the ministerie of man. Miracles. Remission of sinnes.

RHEM. 27. Till they see.) To the Apostles, that had to preach the kingdome of God, & to suffer so much misery for the same in this world, he will shew his glory, and giue them a taste of his owne ioyfull state and of his Saints in heauen, calling thither Moyses and Elias, that the Law and Prophets might be witnesses of the same. See the Annot. vpon S. Mat. c. 17. 2. The transfiguration.

53. Face to goe to Hierusalem.) The Samaritans were Schismatikes from the Iewes, and had a Schismaticall temple in mount Garizim, of purpose to draw men thither from Gods temple in Hierusalem, where onely was the true and as it were the Catholike seruice and sacrifice vnto God. Therefore they did not gladly receiue our Sauiour, because they perceiued he was going to Hierusalem. Schismatikes. Io.4.9. 3.Re.12,27. Tob.1.

FVLKE. 3 Peter vsed not an ordinary, but a miraculous power, when he pronounced sentence of death against Ananias and Saphira, not for defrauding the Church, but for lying against the holy Ghost, Act.5.3. For they might haue kept the whole price, or not haue solde their land without blame, if they had not played the hypocrites. Peters power.

RHEM. 62. No man looking backe.) It is a dangerous temptation for a man that hath lost or left his goods for Christ, to looke much backe at them, and to remember with delight the pleasures and eases of this world. for it breedeth in him discontentment of the troubles and crosses that are incident to the state of such as fully follow Christ. In which case a man should euer looke forward towards heauen, and neuer backward to the world. Looking backe.

He sendeth yet 72 moe to preach to the Iewes, with power also of miracles, 13 crying woe to the cities impenitent. 17 At their returne he ioyneth the great power he gaue them, but yet teacheth them not to be proud thereof, 21 and praiseth God for his grace, 23 his Church also for her happy state. 25 To one of the Scribes he sheweth, that the loue of God and of his neighbour will bring him to life euerlasting, 29 teaching him by the parable of the Samaritane, to take euery one for his neighbour that needeth his charity. 38 To Martha he sheweth that Maries contemplatiue life is the better.

28 And he said to him, Thou hast answered right, ‖ this doe, and thou shalt liue.

29 But he desirous to iustifie himself, said to IESVS, And who is my neighbour?

31 And it chanced that a certaine Priest went downe the same way: and seeing him, passed by.

30 And Iesus answering, said, A certaine man descended from Hierusalem to Iericho, and fell among thieues, which robbed him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leauing him halfe dead.

31 And it befell, that there came downe a certaine Priest that same way, and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

32 And likewise a Leuite, when hee went nigh to the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certaine Samaritane as hee iourneyed came by him: and when hee sawe him, hee had compassion on him,

36 Which of these three in thy opinion was neighbour to him ỳ fell among theeues?

37 But he saide, He that did mercie vpon him. And IESVS said to him, Goe, and doe thou in like maner.

38 And it came to passe as they went, and hee entred into a certaine towne: and a certaine woman named Martha, receiued him into her house,

39 And she had a sister called Mary. who sitting also at our Lords feet, heard his word.

40 But Martha was busie about much seruice. who stood and saide, Lord, hast thou no care ỳ my sister hath left mee alone to serue? speake to her therefore, that she helpe me.

41 And our Lorde answering said to her, Martha, Martha, thou art carefull, & art troubled about very many things.

36 Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbour vnto him that fell among the thieues?

37 And hee saide, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Iesus vnto him, Goe, and do thou likewise.

38 Now it came to passe as they went, that he entred into a certaine village: and a certaine woman named Martha, receiued him into her house.

39 And this woman had a sister called Mary, which also sate at Iesus feete, & heard his word:

40 But Martha was cumbred about much serving, and came to him, and saide, Lorde, doest thou not care that my sister hath left me to serue alone? Bid her therefore that she helpe me.

41 And Iesus answered, and said vnto her, Martha, Martha, thou art carefull, and troubled about many things:

42 Verily one is needfull, Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

MARGINAL NOTES. CHAP. X.

RHEM. 1 13. In sackcloth and ashes.) True penance not only to lead a new life, but to punish the body by such things as here be recorded, for the ill life past.

FVLKE. 1 Punishing of the body by sackcloth and ashes, is no satisfaction for sinnes past, but an helpe vnto repentance, as a signe of humiliation. Basil. in ps. 29. Satisfaction.

RHEM. 2 16. He that heareth.) It is all one to despise Christ, and to despise his Priests and Ministers in the Catholike Church: to refuse his doctrine, and theirs.

FVLKE. 2 It is all one to despise the Ministers of Christes Catholike Church, and to despise Christ. But of the Popish Church, and the Popish priests it is not true.

RHEM. 3 35. Supererogate.) S. Augustine saith that the Apostle (1.Cor.9.) according to this place did supererogate, that is, did more then he needed or was bound to doe, when he might haue required al duties for preaching the Gospel, but would not. li. de op. Monach. c. 5. whereof it commeth, that the workes which wee doe more then precept, be called workes of Supererogation: and whereby it is also euident against the Protestants, that there be such workes. See Optatus li. 6. cont. Parmen. how aptely he applyeth this parable to S. Paules counsel of virginitie (1.Cor.7.) as to a worke of supererogation.

FVLKE. 3 That which is bestowed for the full recouery of the wounded man, is a duetie of charitie, therefore commaunded. So is whatsoeuer we are able to doe, perteyning either to the perfect loue of God, or the loue of our neighbour as our selfe, is of duetie, though it be not expreslly named, but generally commanded, & it is sinne to omit it. That which S. Augustine saith of S. Paul: Amplius erogabat, &c. He did bestow more, when he went a warfare at his owne costes, is to be vnderstood of the generall libertie, that all preachers haue, to liue of the Gospel. Yet was it his duetie, in that special case, to forbeare that libertie, or any other thing that is lawfull, that he should not giue any hinderance to the Gospel of Christ. 1.Cor.9.12. Therefore it had bene sinne in him, to vse that libertie to the hinderance of the Gospel. So that it was no worke of supererogation, (as you terme it) but of duetie in that case, to forbeare it. Againe he forbeareth, that he should not abuse his power in the Gospel. 1.Cor.9.18. If he abuse his power in the Gospel, he sinneth, Ergo he forbeareth of duetie: for it is his duetie to auoid sinne. What then, did the other Apostles sinne in not labouring as the idle Monkes obiected to S. Augustine? No, their case differed from his: as he sheweth plainely in the same booke cap. 22. They vsed their libertie to no hinderance of the Gospel: he could not vse it, but with impediment of the Gospel. Therefore workes of supererogation are not proued by S. Pauls example. Neither by his counsel vnto Virginitie, which is not to be neglected where God hath giuen the gift, and it may serue to the aduancement of Gods glory, which euery one is bound to procure, to the vttermost of his strength, Deut.6.5. Luke 10 27: though the special state of Virginitie be not commanded generally, because God hath not giuen the gift to all men generally. And so must Optatus be vnderstood. Saint Chrysostome interpreting this parable allegorically (as many of the Fathers doe,) yet acknowledgeth that the gouernour of the Church can bestow no more, then is conteined in the Gospel Nam cum, &c. For seeing nothing can be added to the two Testaments, neither may the Law of God receiue any increase or diminishing, what is it then, which the gouernour can bestow more then he hath receiued? but that which is his owne duetie, in which he is bound to endeuour, that he lay out that which is committed to him, that he hath receiued, &c. De eo in qui inc. in latrones sermon. By Chrysostomes iudgement therefore in this place, he can do no works of supererogation. Euthymius vpon this place saith, I will pay thee if thou shalt bestow any thing of thine owne that may profit him. For teachers do adde of their owne, when they dilate the interpretations of the words of God. For they take in deede the argument or substance of the matter out of the two Testaments, but by their owne speaches they bestow greater paines vpon them that are diseased. This auctour gathering the iudgement of the ancient Fathers of the Greeke Church, could finde no workes of supererogation in this text. Workes of supererogation.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. X.

RHEM. 4 21. To litle ones.) By this place euery vulgar artificer may not presume that God hath reuealed al trueth to him, and therfore refuse to be taught of the learned. for Christ did not afterward endew fishers and vulgar men nor any other with the gifts of wisdom & tonges, without their industry, study, & teaching. though at the beginning, of great prouidence he did it, that it might be cleere to the world, that al Nations were conuerted to him, not by persuasion of cunning Orators or subtil Disputers, but by

by the plaine force of his grace and trueth, which S. Augustine counteth greater then al other miracles. Further we are taught by this place, that the poore humble obedient children of the Church know by their faith the high mysteries of Christs Diuinitie, and his presence in the B. Sacrament, and such like: rather then Arius, Caluin, and other like proud Scribes and Pharisees.

The humble vnlearned Catholike knoweth Christ better then the proud learned Heretike.

FVLKE. 4 The true children of the Church, whose faith is builded vpon the word of God, may learne out of the holy Scriptures, the maner of Christs presence in the B. Sacrament, and all other things needfull to know: when Popish hypocrits with their faith implicite, know nothing necessary for their saluation. For it is sufficient in Popery, to beleeue as the Church beleeueth, though they know not what the Popish Church beleeueth, nor vpon what warrant of Gods word.

Ignorance.

Faith implicite.

RHEM. 5 28. This doe.) Not by faith only, but by keeping Gods commandements we obtaine life euerlasting: not onely by beleeuing, but by doing. The heretikes say that it is impossible to keepe this commandement of louing God with al our heart. But the Scriptures giue vs example of diuers that haue kept and fulfilled it, as farre as is requisite in this life. 3. Reg. 14, 8. 2. Par. 15, 15. Psal. 118, 10. Eccles. 47, 9, 10. 4. Reg. 20, 3. 5. Luc. 1, 5. And if it were impossible to keepe it, and yet by Christ proposed for the meane to obtaine life euerlasting, he had mocked this Lawyer and others, and not taught them.

The commandements possible to be kept.

FVLKE. 5 Christ was not asked, by what meanes a man might attaine to eternal life, but by what doing, or what kinde of workes, the kingdome of heauen were to be obtained: Therefore he mocketh not, but directly answereth to the question, by fulfilling the Law: Which if any can performe in such perfection, as Gods iustice doth require, he shalbe iustified by the workes of the Law, without the mercie of God in Christ. If he can not, he is vnder the curse: and that is euery mans case, seeing none is iustified by the Law, but by faith in Christ, Gal. 3. But the Scriptures (you say) giue examples of diuers that haue kept and fulfilled it, as farre as it is requisite in this life. And first of Dauid, of whom God testifieth that he kept his Commandement, and followed me with his whole heart. What impudent abusing of the Scripture is this? Is not the fall of Dauid notorious? And doeth he not in an hundred places of the Psalmes, craue pardon for his sinnes, and transgressions of the Lawe? Therefore hee kept Gods Commandements, but not perfectly, nor loued God with all his heart, might, strength, according to the Commandement, Deut. 6. though he walked after God with all his heart, that is vnfainedly, & not as hypocrites and carnal men doe, that professe Religion. The like is to be said of the people in Asa his dayes, which sware with all their heart, that is, with full purpose to keepe their othe, and vnfained desire to seeke the Lord: yet did they not fulfill the Lawe, but were sinners, and were iustified freely by grace in Christ, as S. Paul affirmeth of all men without exception, Rom. 3. 23. As for the Prophet Psal. 119. confesseth that he hath gone astray as a lost sheepe, and euen in the same verse you quote, prayeth that he may not erre from Gods Commandements. Therefore that he sought God with all his heart, is not to be taken for a perfect keeping of Gods Lawe, but for an earnest and vnfained desire of the spirit, against which (euen in the regenerate) the flesh alwayes rebelleth, so that they can not doe what they desire, Gal. 5. 17. Ecclesiasticus doth not say, that Dauid loued God with all his heart, but from all his heart; that is, from the bottome of his heart, vnfeinedly: yet not perfectly. For who can say, my heart is cleane? I am pure from sinne. Prou. 20. 9. And Dauid confesseth his owne sinnes euen from his conception, Psal. 51. 7. The like is to be said of Ezechias, who with a sound heart walked before God in trueth, that is without dissimulation or halting, as hypocrites doe, yet kept not the Lawe perfectly, so that hee could liue thereby, nor loued God with all his heart, might, soule, &c. Last of all, Zachary and Elizabeth, walked in all the Commandements of God, yet fulfilled not the Lawe, and though their life was blameles in the sight of men, yet were they not able to stand before Gods Iustice, in whose sight no man liuing shalbe righteous. Psal. 143. 2. Now where you haue a vaine euasion, in these words, as much as is requisite, &c. It is requisite of euery one, that seeketh to be iustified by the Law, that he kept it perfectly without sinne, else he is vnder the curse, and cannot be iustified by the workes of the Law, Gal. 3.

Iustification.

Keeping of Gods Lawe.

RHEM. 6 30. Halfe dead.) Here is signified man wounded very sore in his vnderstanding and free-wil, and al other powers of soule and body, by the sinne of Adam: but yet that neither vnderstanding, nor free-wil, nor the rest, were extinguished in man or taken away. The Priest and Leuite, signifie the Law of Moyses: this Samaritane, is Christ the Priest of the new Testament: the oyle & wine, his Sacraments: the host, the priests his ministers. Whereby is signified, that the Law could not recouer the spiritual life of mankind from the death of sinne, that is, iustifie man: but Christ onely, wan by his passion and the grace and vertue thereof ministred in and by his Sacraments, iustifieth, and increaseth the iustice of man, healing and abling free-will to do all good workes.

Conc. Arau. 2. c. 25. 20. 1. Con: Conc. Trid. Sess. 6. c. 1.

The parable of the wounded man, explicated.

FVLKE. 6 Against this vaine collection by allegorie, the Scripture is plaine, that we are all dead in sinne, by the sinne of Adam. Rom. 5. 12. Eph. 2, 1, 5. Col. 2, 13. The Councel Arausicanū, which you quote (belike to proue that the freedome of will is not lost in Adam) saith: It is so inclined by the sinne of the first man, and attenuated, that no man after could loue God as he ought, or worke that which is good for Gods sake, except the grace and mercy of God, preuented him. And if by those wordes, you thinke there is any life left vnto it, cap. 22. The Councel saith, No man hath any thing of his owne, but lyes and sinne. And cap. 21. Nature by Adam lost, by Christ is repaired. And whereas you seeme to leaue some life, iustice, and freedome of wil in man, which by Christ is recouered, increased, healed and inabled. Thus we reade Cap. 7. the Title of which is, That we are not apt to thinke any thing of our selues, as of our selues. If any man doe hold, that a man by the force of nature can thinke any good thing, which perteineth and is expedient to eternall life, or that hee can chuse either to be saued, that is, to consent to the preaching of the Gospel, without illumination and inspiration of the holy Ghost, which giueth to all men the sweetnes in consenting and beleeuing the trueth, he is deceiued with an heretical spirit, not vnderstanding the voyce of God, saying in the Gospel: Without me ye can do nothing. And that of the Apostle, Not that we are apt of our selues to thinke any thing, as of our selues, but our sufficiencie is of God. And touching vnderstanding, the Apostle saith, The naturall man vnderstandeth not those things that be of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishnes vnto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. So that neither the wil, nor the vnderstanding haue any heauenly life in them.

RHEM. 7 42. Marie the best part.) Two notable examples, one of the life Actiue, in Martha: the other of the life Contemplatiue, in Mary: representing vnto vs, that in holy Church there should be alwayes some to serue God in both these seuerall sorts. The life Contemplatiue is here preferred before the actiue. the Religious of both sexes are of that more excellent state. and therfore our Protestants haue wholy abandoned them out of their common wealth, which the true Church neuer wanted. But to say truth, they haue neither Martha nor Mary, our Lord giue them grace to see their misery. If ours were not answerable to their profession, or were degenerated, why haue they no new ones? If our Churches Votaries vowed vnlawful things, Chastitie, Powertie, Obedience, Pilgrimage: what other. Votaries or lawful vowes haue they? For to offer voluntarily by vow (besides the keeping of Gods commandements, wherevnto we are bound by precept and promise in our Baptisme) our soules, bodie, goods, or any other acceptable thing to God, is an act of soueraine worship belonging to God only: and there was neuer true religion without such vowes and Votaries. If there be none in their whole Church that professe contemplation, or that vow any thing at all to God voluntarily, neither in their bodies nor in their goods: God & the world know they haue no Church nor religiō at al.

The Contemplatiue or Religious life, better then the Actiue and secular.

Vowes and votaries.

God

FVLKE. 7 God be praised, there be in our Church many, that haue chosen the best part with Mary, which all Christians ought to doe, euen that part which shall neuer be taken from them. By example of Martha and Mary, saith S. Ambrose vpon this place, is set foorth the deuotion of the one labourſome in workes, and the religious attention to the word of God of the other: which if it be ioyned with faith, is preferred before those workes themselues, as it is written, Mary hath chosen the best part which shal not be taken from her. Let vs therefore study to haue that which no man can take from vs: that our hearing be not slight for fashion, but diligent. For the seedes of the word of God it self are wont to be taken away if they be sowed by the high way side. Let the desire of wisedome moue thee as it did Mary, for thus is a greater, this is a more perfect worke. Neither let the care of seruice turne thee away from the knowledge of the heauenly word, neither reproue thou them, nor iudge them to be idle whom thou seest occupied in the study of wisdome. There be also which haue chosen the contemplatiue life, which haue purposed to keepe virginitie or widowhood, which offer to God, as hee hath inabled them, and as they see it for his glory, the freewill offering of their goods and labours. Not to merite or make God debter vnto them, but to testifie their zeale, and thankefulnes towards God. Before whom they acknowledge, that when they haue done all they are commanded, (which is more then they can,) they are vnprofitable seruants: and therefore looke for reward by Gods onely mercie, according to his promise, and not according to their deserts. The true Church was many hundred yeres without Monkes, Friers or Nonnes, and may be without such Votaries, as you meane, all wayes. And when the Church had Monkes, which were religious in deede, they were soone weary of their hand labour, which was their profession, as appeareth by S. Augustines worke de opere Monachorum: and shortly degenerated into idlenes the mother of all vices, whereof grew such inconuenience, as was not to be suffered in any Christian common wealth: and therefore they are necessarily, and most iustly abolished. Good workes. Contemplatiue life. Merits. Votaries.

RHEM. 3 27. Blessed is the wombe.) Let vs also (saith Venerable Bede) lift vp our voice with the Catholike Church,of which this woman was a figure: let vs lift vp our hearts among the people, and say to our Sauiour, Blessed be the wombe that bare thee,and the pappes which thou didst sucke. for blessed in deede is the mother which bare the King that ruleth heauen and earth for euer. Our B.Ladie Beda vpon this place.

And let vs with these words, lift vp our voice against Eutyches,which denied the trueth of Christs humane nature, after it was assumpted of his Godhead.* Meaning that we haue a good argument, to proue the trueth of his humane nature in these words of the woman, which our Sauiour Christ doth not denie, but sheweth a greater happines in them that heare the worde of God, and keepe it. Euseb.Emiss.homi.Domi.3.in Quadr. Hoc tale est ac si diceret, Beata quidem est mater mea: felix est venter qui me portauit: sed non ideo beata quia mater mea: neque ideo felix, quia me portauit: sed ideo felix atque beata,quia verbum Dei audiuit, audiendo credidit, credendo custodiuit. Hoc enim nisi fecisset, neq; felix, neq; mater mea esse potuisset. The humanitie of Christ.

RHEM.4. 29. The signe of Ionas.) Of all miracles,his Resurrection,after he had been according to his body, in the graue, according to his soule,in Hell three dayes,was the greatest,and most conuinceth the incredulous Iewes: and therefore a greater or more euident then that,he sayth he will not giue them. The signe of Ionas.

But that his soule was three dayes,that is from the time of his death vntill his resurrection,in hell,it is contrary to the opinion of many Papists. Christs descending into Hell.

RHEM. 5 41. Giue almes.) The great force of almes is here and in diuers places of holy write signified. In one place, they extinguish sinne: in another,they redeeme sinnes: in another,they deliuer from death: in another,to them giuen or omitted, our iudgement to heauen or hell is attributed: and here they make cleane and satisfie for the Iewes former offentes.for(as S.Augustine saith c.70.Enchiridij) almes deedes profit not a man that hath a will to continue in his sinnes, (but they are to be done for a propitiation to God of former offences. Now how well the Protestants like this doctrine so euidently set forth in Scripture, let the indifferent iudge,and how well it agreeth with their onely faith. The force of almes. Eccles.3,33. Dan.4,24. Tob.4,12. 12,9. Mat.25.35.42.

FVLKE.5. Almes is a worthy fruite of charitie,and therefore hath great commendation, in the Scriptures. But not to be a cause of saluation,as by your pretended places of holy write,you goe about to proue. First you bring Ecclesiasticus,which is no Canonicall Scripture,and yet you falsifie his words. For hee sayth not,that almes extinguish sinne,but his words are after your owne translation Eleemosyna resistit peccatis, almes resisteth sinnes: after the Greeke. Almes shall be cleare from sinnes. In the second place, your vulgar Latine translation is corrupt, for according to the originall tongue,in which Daniel did write, the texte is: breake off thy sinnes with righteousnes, and thy iniquities with fauour towards the afflicted. That is, as thou hast sinned much in iniustice and cruelties, so now breake of that course of sinne,and take the contrary way of iustice and humanitie. Your third place is, Tobie, which is no Canonicall Scripture: where I marueile, that you adde not out of your Latine texte, which is not in the Greeke, that almes deliuereth from all sinne. But where as Tobie saith, that almes deliuereth from death, it must either be vnderstoode,as it may agree with the Canonicall Scripture, or els it must be reiected,as the saying of a man,and not of God. The fourth place is of our iudgement,which shall be *according to our workes,*which are the fruits and true effects of a liuely faith,by which the elect are discerned from the reprobate. Last of all, where you say, here they make cleane and satisfie for the Iewes former offences, the texte sayth not so: but to them which giue almes of a true faith, all things are cleane without any ceremonie of washing, such as the hypocrysie of the couetous Pharisees had inuented, for purification and clensing of Gods creatures. S.Augustine saith not, that Almes is done for a propitiation to God of former offences. But his wordes are, In melius quippe est vita mutanda, & per eleemosynas de peccatis præteritis est propitiandus Deus; non ad hoc emendus quo- Almes deeth not merit saluation nor satisfie for sinnes.

dammodo.&c. Our life must be changed into better, and by almes God is to be intreated for sinnes past, not to be bought after a sort, that we may alwayes commit them without punishment. Almes therefore are not a propitiation for our sinnes, which is onely Christ Iesus. 1.Iohn 2.2. But a fruite of true repentance, whereby God turneth vnto vs, when we with a true faith, that sheweth it selfe by such fruits, turne vnto him. For onely the faith of Christ doeth make cleane, S. Augustine saith, in Psalm. 88. And that onely faith doeth iustifie, See the fathers quoted. chap. 5. sect. 8. of this Gospel.

RHEM. 6. 46. Woe to you Lawyers.) These were Doctors of Moyses Law, otherwise called Scribes. Shall we therefore crie out against all Lawyers now, or ought the name of Lawyer be odious with vs, because of those naughty Lawyers among the Iewes? much lesse ought the name of Priests to be odious (as Heretikes would haue it) because of the Iewes Priests that were so busie against our Saviour. The Lawyers and Priests of the old Testament.

FVLKE. 6. The name of Priests is not odious with vs, because the Iewes priests were naught, for we holde, that Christ is our onely high Priest, and that all Christian men and women, are Priests. But the wicked life and blasphemous heresies of Popish Priests, haue made them odious to all good men.

CHAP. XII.

He prepareth his Disciples against persecutions to come vpon them at their publishing of his doctrine. 13 With dividing the brethrens inheritance he will not meddle, but exhorteth them against auarice, 22 and his Disciples (by this occasion) against solicitude so much as of necessaries, 32 yet counselling them to giue al in almes, 35 and to be ready at a knocke: 41 namely admonishing Peter and other Prelates to see to their charge: 49 and all, not to looke but for persecution. 54 The Iewes hee reprehendeth for that they will not see this time of grace, 58 Whereas it is so horrible to die without reconciliation.

AND when great multitudes stood about him, so that they trode one another, hee began to say to his Disciples, Take good heede of the leauen of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisie.

Mt,10,26. Mr.4,22. 2 *For nothing is hid, that shall not bee reuealed: nor secrete, that shall not bee knowen.

3 For the things that you haue sayd in darkenesse, shall be said in the light: and that which you haue spoken into the eare in the chambers, shall bee preached in the house-toppes.

4 And I say to you my friends, bee not afraid of them that kil the body, and after this haue no more to doe.

5 But I wil shew you whom ye shal feate: ‡feare him who after hee hath killed, hath power to cast into hel. yea I say to you, feare him.

6 Are not fiue sparowes sold for two farthings: and one of them is not forgotten before God?

7 Yea the heares also of your head are all numbred. Feare not therefore: you are more worth then many sparowes.

Mt.10,32. Mr.8,38. 8 *And I say to you, ‖Euery one that confesseth me before men, the Sonne of man also will confesse him before the Angels of God.

9 But hee that denieth mee before men, shal be denied before the Angels of God.

Mt.12,31. Mr.3,28. See Annot. Mt. 12,32. 10 And ‡euery one that speaketh a word against the Sonne of man, it shalbe forgiuen him: but he that shal blaspheme against the holy Ghost, to him it shall not bee forgiuen.

Mt.10,19. Mr.13,11. 11 *And when they shal bring you into the synagogues and to magistrates and potestates, be not carefull in what maner, and what you shall answere, or what you shal say.

12 For the holy Ghost shall teach you in the very houre what you must say.

13 And one of the multitude said to him, Master,

IN the meane time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one another, hee began to say vnto his disciples, First of all beware of the leauen of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisie.* Matt.16.5. mar.8.14.

*2 For there is nothing couered, that shall not be vncouered, neither hid, that shall not be knowen. Matth.10.26. mar.4.22.

3 Therefore, whatsoeuer yee haue spoken in darkenesse, shall bee heard in the light: and that which ye haue spoken in the eare, euen in secrete places, shall be preached on the toppe of the houses.

*4 And I say vnto you my friends, Be not afraide of them that kill the body, and after that, haue no more that they can doe. Matth.10.28.

5 But I will forewarne you whome you shall feare: Feare him, which after hee hath killed, hath power to cast into hell, yea, I say vnto you, Feare him.

*6 Are not fiue sparowes solde for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God? Matth.10.29.

7 But, euen the very haires of your head are numbred: Feare not therefore, yee are more of value then many sparowes.

*8 Also I say vnto you, Whosoeuer shall confesse mee before men, him shall the Sonne of man knowledge also before the Angels of God. Matth.10.33. luke 9.26. 2.tim.2.12.

9 But he that shall denie me before men, shall be denied before the Angels of God.

10 And whosoeuer shal speake a word against the Sonne of man, it shall bee forgiuen him: but vnto him that blaspheneth the holy Ghost it shal not be forgiuen.

*11 And when they bring you vnto the Synagogues, and vnto the rulers and officers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answere, or what ye shall speake. Matth.10.19. mar.13.11.

12 For the holy Ghost shall teach you in the same houre, what ye ought to say.

13 One of the company sayde vnto him, Master,

Maſter, ſpeake to my brother that he deuide the inheritance with me.

14 But he ſaid to him, Man, ‖ who hath appointed me iudge or deuider ouer you?

15 And he ſaid to them, See and beware of al auarice: for not in any mans abundance doth his life conſiſt, of thoſe things which he poſſeſſeth.

16 And hee ſpake a ſimilitude to them, ſaying, A certaine riche mans field yeelded plentie of fruits.

17 And he thought within himſelfe, ſaying, ‡ What ſhall I doe, becauſe I haue not whither to gather my fruites?

18 And he ſayd, I his will I doe, I will deſtroy my barnes, and will make greater: and thither wil I gather al things that are growen to me and my goods,

19 And I will ſay to my ſoule, Soule, thou haſt much goods layed vp for many yeeres, take thy reſt, eate, drinke, make good cheere.

20 But God ſayde to him, ‡ Thou foole, this night they require thy ſoule of thee: and the things that thou haſt prouided, whoſe ſhall they be?

21 So is he that laieth vp treaſure to himſelfe, and is not ‖ rich to Godward.

22 And he ſayd to his Diſciples, * Therefore I ſay to you, ‡ Be not carefull for your life, what you ſhall eate: nor for your body what you ſhall doe on.

23 The life is more then the meate, & the body is more then the raiment.

24 Conſider the rauens, for they ſowe not, neither doe they reape, which neither haue ſtorehouſe nor barne, and God feedeth them, Howe much more are you of greater price then they?

25 And which of you by caring can adde to his ſtature one cubite?

26 If then you be not able to do ſo much as the leaſt thing, for the reſt why are you carefull?

27 Conſider the lilies howe they growe: they labour not, neither doe they ſpinne. But I ſay to you, Neither Salomon in all his glory was arayed as one of theſe.

28 And if the graſſe that to day is in the field, and to morow is caſt into the ouen, God ſo clotheth: how much more you O yee of little faith!

29 And you, doe not ſeeke what you ſhall eate, or what you ſhall drinke: and [c] be not lifted vp on high.

30 For all theſe things the nations of the world doe ſeeke. but your father knoweth that you haue neede of theſe things.

31 But ſeeke firſt the kingdome of God, and al theſe things ſhalbe giuen you beſides.

32 Feare not ‡ little flocke, for it hath pleaſed your father to giue you a kingdome.

‡ Giue it to the poore, that ſhould ſt thou doe, ſayth S. Baſil.

THE GOSPEL for S. Paulinus Cen. 22. And for a Confeſſor that is not a Biſhop.

[c] μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε.

It was little at the beginning, and is ſmall in compariſon of all the reſt: but in it ſelfe very great, as the parable of the great tree that grew of the little muſtard ſeede. Mt. 13.

Maſter, ſpeake to my brother, that he deuide the inheritance with me.

14 And he ſaid vnto him, Man, who made me a iudge, or a deuider ouer you?

15 And he ſayd vnto them, Take heede, and beware of couetouſneſſe: for no mans life ſtandeth in the abundance of the things which hee poſſeſſeth.

*16 And he put forth a ſimilitude vnto them, ſaying, * The ground of a certaine riche man brought foorth plentifull fruits.* Eccl.11.19.

17 And he thought within himſelfe, ſaying, What ſhal I doe, becauſe I haue no roume where to beſtow my fruits:

18 And hee ſaid, This will I doe, I will pull downe my barnes, and build greater, and therein will I gather all my fruites and my goods.

19 And I will ſay to my ſoule, Soule, thou haſt much goods laid vp in ſtore for many yeres, take thine eaſe, eate, drinke, and be mery.

20 But God ſayd vnto him, Thou foole, this night do they require thy ſoule againe from thee: then whoſe ſhall thoſe things bee, which thou haſt prouided?

21 So is he that gathereth riches to himſelfe, and is not rich towards God.

*22 And he ſpake vnto his diſciples, Therefore I ſay vnto you, * Take no thought for your life what yee ſhall eate, neither for the body what ye ſhall put on.* Matth.6.25. 1.pet.5.7. pſal.54.26.

23 The life is more then meate, and the body is more then raiment.

24 Conſider the rauens, for they neither ſowe nor reape, which neither haue ſtorehouſe nor barne, and notwithſtanding God feedeth them: Howe much more are yee better then the foules?

25 Which of you with taking thought, can adde to his ſtature one cubite?

26 If yee then bee not able to doe that thing which is leaſt, why take yee thought for the remnant?

27 Conſider the Lilies how they growe, they labour not, they ſpinne not: and yet I ſay vnto you, that Solomon in all his royalty, was not clothed like one of theſe.

28 If God ſo clothe the graſſe, which is to day in the field, and to morow is caſt into the furnace: how much more will he clothe you, O yee of little faith?

29 And aske not yee what ye ſhall eate, or what yee ſhall drinke, neither be yee of doubtfull mind.

30 For all ſuch things doe the people of the world ſeeke for: and your father knoweth that ye haue neede of theſe things.

31 But rather ſeeke yee after the kingdome of God, and all theſe things ſhall bee added vnto you.

32 Feare not O little flocke, for is your fathers good pleaſure to giue you a kingdome.

33 Sell the things that you poſſeſſe, and giue almes. *Make to you purſes that weare not, treaſure that waſteth not, in heauē: whither the theefe approcheth not, neither doth the mothe corrupt.

Mt.6,20.

34 For ‖ where your treaſure is, there wil your hart be alſo.

THE GOSPEL for a Confeſſor that is not a Biſhop.

35 Let your ‡ loines be girded, and candles burning in your hands,

36 And you like to men expecting their lord, when hee ſhall returne from the mariage: that when he doth come and knocke, forthwith they may open vnto him.

37 Bleſſed are thoſe ſeruants, whom whē the Lord commeth, he ſhall finde watching. Amen I ſay to you, that he will gird himſelfe, and make them ſit downe, and paſſing will miniſter vnto them.

38 And if he come in the ſecond watch, and if in the third watch he come, and ſo find, bleſſed are thoſe ſeruants.

Mt.24,43.

39 *And this know ye, that if the houſeholder did know what houre the theefe would come, he would watch verily, and would not ſuffer his houſe to be broken vp.

40 Be you alſo ready: for at what houre you thinke not, the Sonne of man will come.

41 And Peter ſayd to him, Lorde, doeſt thou ſpeake this parable to vs, or likewiſe to all?

42 And our Lord ſayd, Who (thinkeſt thou) is a faithfull ſteward and wiſe, whom the Lord appointeth ouer his familie, to giue them in ſeaſon their meaſure of wheate?

43 Bleſſed is that ſeruant whom when the Lord commeth, he ſhall find ſo doing.

44 Verely I ſay to you, that ouer al things which he poſſeſſeth, he ſhall appoint him.

45 But if that ſeruant ſay in his hart, My lord is long a comming: and ſhall begin to ſtrike the ſeruants and handmaids, and eate and drinke, and be drunke:

46 The lord of that ſeruant ſhall come in a day that he hopeth not, & at an houre that he knoweth not, and ſhall deuide him, and ſhall appoint his portion with the infidels.

47 And that ſeruant that knew the wil of his lord, and prepared not himſelfe, and did not according to his will: ſhall bee beaten with many ſtripes.

48 But he that knew not, and did things worthie of ſtripes: ſhall be beaten with few. And euery one to whom much was giuen, much ſhall be required of him: and to whom they committed much, more will they demand of him.

49 I came to caſt fire on the earth: and what will I, but that it be kindled?

50 But I haue to be baptized with a baptiſme: and how am I ſtraitned vntill it be diſpatched.

51 *Thinke

*33 Sell that yee haue, and giue almes: * and prepare you bagges which waxe not olde,* Mt.6.20. euen a treaſure that faileth not in the heauens, where no theefe approcheth, neither moth corrupteth.

34 For where your treaſure is, there will your heart be alſo.

*35 * Let your loines be girt about, and* your lights burning, 1.Pet.1.13.

36 And ye your ſelues be like vnto men that waite for their lord, when he wil returne from the wedding, that when hee ſhall come and knocke, they may open vnto him immediatly.

37 Happy are thoſe ſeruants, whom the lord when he commeth, ſhall find waking: Verely I ſay vnto you, That he ſhall gird himſelfe, and make them to ſit downe to meate, and will come foorth, and miniſter vnto them.

38 And if he ſhall come in the ſecond watch, yea, if he ſhall come in the third watch, and find them ſo, happie are thoſe ſeruants.

*39 * This vnderſtand yee, that if the good* Matth.24.43. apoc.16.15. man of the houſe had knowen what houre the theefe would come, hee would ſurely haue watched, and not haue ſuffered his houſe to be broken thorow.

40 Be yee therefore ready alſo: for the ſonne of man commeth at an houre when yee thinke not.

41 Then Peter ſayd vnto him, Maſter, telleſt thou this ſimilitude vnto vs, or to all?

42 And the Lord ſayd, Who is a faithfull and wiſe ſteward, whom his lord ſhall make ruler ouer his houſhold, to giue them their portion of meate in due ſeaſon?

43 Happie is that ſeruaunt, whom his lord when he commeth, ſhall find ſo doing.

44 Of a trueth, I ſay vnto you, That he will make him ruler ouer all his ſubſtance.

45 But and if that ſeruant ſay in his heart, My lord delayeth his comming: and ſhall begin to ſmite the ſeruants & maidens, and to eate and drinke, and to be drunken.

46 The lord of that ſeruant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an houre when he is not ware, and will hewe him in pieces, and will ſet him his portion with the vnbeleeuers.

47 And the ſeruant that knewe his maſters will, and prepared not himſelfe, neither did according to his will, ſhall bee beaten with many ſtripes.

48 But hee that knewe not, and did commit things woorthy of ſtripes, ſhall bee beaten with few ſtripes. For vnto whomſoeuer much is giuen, of him ſhall bee much required, and to whom men haue commited much, of him will they aske the more.

49 I am come to ſend fire on the earth, and what is my deſire, if it be already kindled?

50 Notwithſtanding, I muſt bee baptized with a baptiſme, and how am I pained till it bee ended?

53 There shall be deuided, the father against the sonne, and the sonne against his father, the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother, the mother in lawe against her daughter in lawe, and the daughter in lawe against her mother in law.

Mt.16,2. 54 * And he said also to the multitudes, when you see a cloud rising from the West, by and by you say, A shoure commeth, and so it commeth to passe:

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XII.

RHEM. 1. 5. Feare him.) The feare of hell also is profitable: contrary to the Protestants, teaching securitie of saluation, and that feare of hell maketh men hypocrites.

FVLKE. 1 These are slanders, that the Protestants teach securitie of saluation: and that feare of hell maketh men hypocrites: although the faithfull by Gods promise are assured of saluation, and we must auoid sinne, not onely for feare of punishment in hell, but chiefly for loue of God our mercifull father.

RHEM. 2 35. Loynes be girded) To gird our loynes, is to keepe chastitie and continencie. Gregor. ho. 11.

FVLKE 2 If to gird our loines be to keepe chastitie and continencie, then maried men may keepe chastitie and continencie, for this commandement extendeth to all true Christians. Therefore sayth Beda, He teacheth his schollers to gird their loines to retaine them from the loue of worldly things. Euthymius sayth, He propoundeth to them the vertue of working. For they that haue any worke in hand haue their laynes girded vp. Or by girding the loints hee exhorteth to the binding of concupiscence.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XII.

RHEM. 8. Euery one that confesseth.) A Catholike man is bound to confesse his faith, being called to account or examined by Iew, Heathen, or Heretike, concerning the same. Neither is it ynough to keepe Christ in his heart, but he must also acknowledge him in his words and deedes. And to denie Christ, or any article of the Catholike faith, for shame or feare of any worldly creature, hath no lesse punishment then to be denied, refused, and forsaken by Christ at the houre of his death before all his Angels: which is an other maner of presence and Consistorie, then any Court or Sessions that men can be called to for their faith, in this world. Open confession of our faith.

RHEM. 3 11. Be not carefull.) That the poore vnlearned Catholike should not be discouraged, or make his excuse that he is a simple man, not able to answere cunning Heretikes, nor to giue a reason of his beliefe, and therfore must suffer or say any thing rather then come before them: our Master giueth them comfort, promising that the holy Ghost shall euer put into their hearts at the time of their appearance, that which shall bee sufficient for the purpose. not that euery one which is conuented before the Aduersaries of faith, should alwayes be endued with extraordinarie knowledge to dispute and confute as the Apostles and others in the primitiue Church were: but that God will euer giue to the simple that trusteth in him, sufficient courage and wordes to confesse his beliefe. For such an one called before the Commissioners, saith ynough and defendeth himself sufficiently, when he answereth that he is a Catholike man, and that he will liue and die in that faith which the Catholike Church throughout all Christian countries hath and doth teach, and that this Church can giue them a reason of all the things which they demaund of him. &c. The holy Ghost teacheth euery vnlearned Catholike to giue sufficient reason of his faith.

FVLKE. 3. It is not enough for a Christian Catholike, to say that he is a Catholike man, and that the Church whereof he is a member, can giue a reason, &c. for a Christian Catholike must be ready to giue an account to euery one that asketh of the hope that is in him. 1. Pet. 3. 15. Againe, this answere that you set downe, restraineth the promise of wisedome and mouth to be giuen, to a sophisticall forme of wordes, which a Parat may learne to pronounce, and is indeede a crafty euasion, rather then a cleare confession. For euery Heretike may say as much as you teach a popish Catholike, for a sufficient confession. True confession.

RHEM. 14. Who hath appointed.) Christ refused to medle in this temporall matter, partly because the demaund proceeded of couetousnesse and ill intention, partly to giue an example to Clergie men, that they should not bee withdrawen by secular affaires and controuersies from their principall function of praying, preaching and spirituall regiment: but not wholy to forbid them all actions pertaining to worldly busines, specially where and when the honour of God, the increase of religion, the peace of the people, and the spirituall benefit of the parties doe require. In which cases S. Augustine (as Possidonius writeth) was occupied often whole dayes in ending worldly controuersies, and so he writeth of himselfe also, not doubting but to haue reward therefore in heauen.

In vita c. 19. Li. de op. Monach. c. 29.

RHEM. 4. 21. Rich to Godward.) He is rich towards God, that by his goods bestowed vpon the poore, hath store of merits, and many almesmens prayers procuring mercie for him at the day of his death and iudgement, which is here therefore called treasure layd vp in heauen, where the barnes be large enough. The necessitie of which almes is by Christ himselfe here shewed to be so great, and so acceptable to God, that rather then they should lacke the fruit thereof, they should sell all they haue and giue to the poore.

Meritorious workes.

FVLKE. 4. He is rich to Godward, that trusteth in God and not in deceiuable riches, which is rich in good workes and is ready to distribute, &c. 1. Tim 6. 17. 18. But store of merites and meritorious workes, the scripture neuer speaketh of, neither doth God reward our merits, but his owne gifts. August. in Psal. 70. conc. 2. In Psal. 101.

Merits.

RHEM. 34. Where your treasure is.) If the rich man withdrawen by his worldly treasure, cannot set his heart vpon heauen, let him send his money thither before him, by giuing it in almes vpon such as will pray for him, and his hart will follow his purse thither.

Almes.

CHAP. XIII.

He threatneth the Iewes to be soone forsaken vnles they doe penance, 10 and confoundeth them for maligning him for his miraculous good doing on the Sabboths. 18 but his kingdome (the Church) as contemptible as it seemeth to them now in the beginning, shall spread ouer all the world, 20 and conuert all, 23 and what an hart sore it shall be to them at the last day, to see themselues excluded from the glory of this kingdom, and the Gentils admitted in their place. 31 foretelling that it is not Galilee that he feareth, but that obstinate and reprobate Hierusalem will needes murder him, as also his messengers afore and after him.

AND there were certaine present at that very time telling him of the Galilæans, whose blood Pilate mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And he answering said to them, Thinke you that ‖ these Galilæans were sinners more then all the Galilæans that they suffered such things?

‡ Nisi pœnitentiam habueritis.

3 No, I say to you: but vnles you ‡ haue penance, you shall all likewise perish.

4 As those eighteene vpon whom the toure fel in Siloe, and slew them: thinke you that they also were detters aboue all the men that dwel in Hierusalem?

5 No, I say to you: but if you haue not penance, you shall all likewise perish.

THE GOSPEL on the Imber Saturday in Sept.

6 And he said this similitude, A certaine man had a ‡ figtree planted in his vineyard, and hee came seeking for fruite on it, and found not.

7 And hee said to the dresser of the vineyard, Loe it is three yeeres since I come seeking for fruit vpon this figtree: and I finde not. Cut it downe therefore: whereto doth it also occupie the ground?

8 But he answering saith to him, Lord, let it alone this yeere also, vntil I digge about it, and dung it.

9 And if happily it yeeld fruit: but if not, hereafter thou shalt cut it downe.

10 And hee was teaching in their Synagogue on the Sabboths.

11 And beholde a woman that had a spirit of infirmitie eighteene yeeres: and shee was crooked neither could she looke vpward at all.

12 Whom when IESVS sawe, he called her vnto him, and said to her, Woman, thou art deliuered from thy infirmitie.

13 And he imposed hands vpon her, and forthwith

THere were present at the same season, certaine men that shewed him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their owne sacrifice.

2 And Iesus answering, sayd vnto them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were greater sinners then all the other Galileans, because they suffred such punishment?

3 I tell you, Nay: but except yee repent, yee shall all likewise perish.

4 Or those eighteene, vpon which the tower in Siloe fell, and slew them, thinke yee that they were sinners aboue all men that dwelt in Hierusalem?

5 I tell you, Nay: but except ye repent, ye shal all likewise perish.

6 Hee tolde also this similitude: A certaine man had a figge tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruite thereon, and found none.

7 Then sayde hee to the dresser of his vineyard, Beholde, this three yeeres I come seeking fruit in this figge tree, and find none: cut it downe why cumbreth it the ground?

8 And he answering, said vnto him, Lord, let it alone this yeere also, till I shall dig round about it, and dung it:

9 And if it beare fruite, thou mayest let it alone: and if it beare not, then after that thou shalt cut it downe.

10 And he was teaching in one of their Synagogues on the Sabboth dayes.

11 And beholde, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmitie eighteene yeeres, & was bowed together, and could in no wise lift vp her selfe.

12 When Iesus saw her, he called her to him, and said vnto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thy disease.

13 And hee layd his handes on her, and immediatly forthwith she was made straight and glorified God.

14 And the Archsynagogue answering (because hee had indignation that IESVS had cured on the Sabboth) said to the multitude, Sixe daies there are wherein you ought to worke. in them therefore come, and bee cured: and not in the Sabboth day.

FVLKE. 4 The Iewes lost their preeminence by their owne will, which cannot be called free, when it was thrall to sinne, and not made free by the sonne of God. Therefore neither the Pelagian nor Popish heretike, hath any argument here, to proue freewill. For freewill (saith S. Againe, That part of mankind, to which God hath promised deliuerance and an eternall kingdome, may it not be repayred by the merites of their owne workes? God forbid. For what good can he worke that is lost or cast away, except he be deliuered from perdition. What by Freewill? God forbid that also. For man vsing Freewill amisse, lost himselfe and it also. For as he that killeth himselfe, killeth himselfe while he liueth, but in killing himselfe liueth not, neither can he reuiue himselfe when he hath slaine himselfe: So when man sinned by Freewill, sinne got the victorie, and Freewill was lost. For of whomsoeuer a man be ouercome, to him he is addicted or bond as a slaue. This truely is the sentence of Peter the Apostle: which seeing it is true, I pray you what libertie can there be of him that is a bond slaue, but when he delighteth to sinne? For he serueth freely that doeth his masters will gladly. And by this he is free to commit sinne which is a slaue of sinne. But to doe iustly he shall not be free, except he, being deliuered from sinne, beginne to be a seruant of righteousnesse. That is true libertie, for the ioy of well doing, and a godly bondage to obedience of the commandement. But whence shall a man that is bond, and solde, haue this libertie? except he doe redeeme him whose saying that is: If the sonne shall make you free, then shall you be free in deede. Which thing before is begin to be wrought in a man, howe can any man boast of Freewill in a good worke, which yet is not free to worke well? except he extoll himselfe being puffed vp with vaine pride, which the Apostle beateth downe when he sayth, You are saued by grace through faith. &c. Enchirid. ad Laurent. cap. 30. This is the Catholike faith concerning Frewill. Some few therefore for their iust deserts, be so handled for example, to prouoke all others guiltie of the same crimes to doe penance. FVLKE. 5 True mortification of the flesh, & abnegation of mens selues (not popish penãce, which is easily bought out by a Popes pardon) are the streight way, mentioned in the text: as for the popish churches discipline, is easie enough for them that haue money to redeeme themselues from it, seeing the Pope setteth vp an open market of dispensations and pardons: so that for money you shall haue libertie, either to commit sinne, or else pardon for any sinne that you shall commit, and of penance due for the same. 19 And an other said, I haue bought fiue yoke of oxen, & I goe to proue them, I pray thee, hold me excused.

20 And another saide, I haue maried a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 And the seruant returning told these things to his lord. Then the maister of the house being angrie, said to his seruant, Goe forth quickly into the streetes & lanes of the citie, and the poore and feeble and blind and lame bring in hither.

22 And the seruant sayd, Lord, it is done as thou didst commaunde, and yet there is place.

23 And the lord sayd to the seruant, Goe forth into the wayes and hedges: and ‖ compell them to enter, that my house may bee filled.

20 And another said, I haue maried a wife: and therefore I cannot come.

21 And the seruant returned, and shewed his master these thinges. Then the goodman of the house being angry, said to his seruant, Goe out quickly into the broad streetes and lanes of the citie, and bring in hither the poore, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the seruant sayde, Lorde, it is done as thou hast commaunded, and yet there is roome.

23 And the lord said vnto the seruant, Goe out into the high wayes and hedges, and compell them to come in, that my house may bee filled.

24 For I say vnto you, that none of those men which were bidden, shall taste of my supper.

25 There went a great companie with him: and he returned, and said vnto them,

*27 * And whosoeuer doeth not beare his crosse, and come after mee, can not be my Disciple.* Matt. 10. 38. mar. 8. 24.

28 For which of you disposed to builde a tower, sitteth not downe before, and counteth the cost, whether he haue sufficient to performe it?

31 Or what king about to goe to make warre against an other king, doth not first sit downe and thinke whether he be able with ten thousands to meete him that with twentie thousands commeth against him?

32 Otherwise whiles hee is yet farre off, sending a legacie he asketh those things that belong to peace.

33 So therfore euery one of you that doth not ‡renounce all that he possesseth, can not be my disciple.

‡He that is a right Christian man, must make his account that if he be put to it (as he often may be in times of persecution) he must renounce all that euer he hath, rather then forsake the Catholike faith. Mt.5,13. Mar.9,50.

31 Or what king going to make battell against another king, sitteth not downe first, and casteth in his minde whether he be able with ten thousand, to meete him that commeth against him with twentie thousand?

32 Or else while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace.

33 So likewise, whosoeuer he be of you, that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

*34 Salt is good: but if the salt haue lost the saltnesse, wherein shall it be seasoned? Matth.5.13. mar.9.50.

S. 8 Or what ‡ woman hauing ten groates: if she leese one grote, doth shee not light a candle, and sweepe the house, and seeke diligently, vntill she find?

9 And when she hath found, calleth together her friends and neighbours, saying, Reioyce with me, because I haue found the grote which I had lost?

10 So, I say to you, there shal be ioy ‖ before the Angels of God vpon one sinner that doth penance.

THE GOSPEL vpon Saturday in the 2. wecke of Lent.

11 And he said, A certaine man had two sonnes:

12 And the yonger of them said to his father, Father, giue me the portion of substance that belongeth to me. And he deuided vnto them the substance.

The prodigall sonne, is a parable, both of the Gentiles conuersion, and also of euery dissolute sinner penitently returning to God

13 And not many daies after the yonger sonne gathering all his things together went from home into a farre countrey: and there he wasted his substance, liuing riotously.

14 And after he had spent all, there fell a sore famine in that countrie, and he began to be in neede.

15 And he went, and cleaued to one of the citizens of that countrie. And he sent him into his farme to feede swine.

16 And he would faine haue filled his bellie of the huskes that the swine did eate: and no bodie gaue vnto him.

17 And returning to him selfe he saide, How many of my fathers hirelings haue aboundance of bread: and I here perish for famine?

18 I will arise, and will goe to my father, and say to him, Father, I haue sinned against heauen and before thee:

19 I am not now worthy to be called thy sonne: make me as one of thy hirelings.

‡ Gods wonderfull and tender mercie toward penitent sinners.

20 And rising vp he came to his father. And ‡ when he was yet farre off, his father saw him, and was moued with mercie, and running to him fel vpon his necke, and kissed him.

21 And his sonne said to him, Father, I haue sinned against heauen and before thee, I am not now worthy to be called thy sonne.

22 And the father saide to his seruants, Quickly bring foorth the first stole, and doe it on him, and put a ring vpon his hand, and shoes vpon his feete:

23 And bring ‖ the fatted calfe, and kill it, and let vs eate, and make merie:

24 Because this my sonne was dead, and is reuiued: was lost, and is found. And they began to make merie.

25 But his elder sonne was in the field, and when he came and drewe nigh to the house, he heard musicke and dauncing:

26 And he called one of his seruants, and asked what these things should be.

27 And hee sayd to him, Thy brother is come,

8 Either what woman hauing ten pieces of siluer, if she lose one piece, doeth not light a candle, and sweepe the house, and seeke diligently till she find it?

9 And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Reioyce with me, for I haue found the piece which I had lost.

10 Likewise I say vnto you, there is ioy in the presence of the Angels of God ouer one sinner that repenteth.

11 And he saide, A certaine man had two sonnes:

12 And the yonger of them saide to his father, father, giue me the portion of the substance that to me belongeth. And he deuided vnto them his liuing.

13 And not many daies after, when the yonger sonne had gathered all that hee had together, he tooke his iourney into a farre countrey, and there wasted his substance with riotous liuing.

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a great dearth in that lande, and he beganne to lacke.

15 And going, he ioyned him selfe to a citizen of that countrey: and he sent him into his fields to feede swine.

16 And he would faine haue filled his bellie with the cods that the swine did eate: and no man gaue vnto him.

17 And when he came to himselfe, he said, Howe many hired seruants of my father haue bread ynough and spare, and I perish with hunger?

18 I will arise, and goe to my father, and wil say vnto him, Father, I haue sinned against heauen, and before thee,

19 And am no more worthy to be called thy sonne: make me as one of thy hired seruants.

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father sawe him, and had compassion, and ranne, and fell on his necke, and all to kissed him.

21 And the sonne saide vnto him, Father, I haue sinned against heauen, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy sonne.

22 But the father said to his seruants, Bring foorth the best garment, and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feete,

23 And bring hither that fat calfe, and kill it, and let vs eate, and be merie.

24 For this my sonne was dead, and is aliue againe: he was lost, and is found. And they began to be mery.

25 The elder brother was in the field: and when he came and drew nigh to the house, hee heard minstrelsie, and dauncing,

26 And called one of his seruants, and asked what those things meant.

27 And he said vnto him, Thy brother is come, come, and thy father hath killed the fatted calfe, because he hath receiued him safe.

28 But hee had indignation, and would not goe in. His father therefore going foorth began to desire him.

29 But he answering saide to his father, Behold, so many yeeres doe I serue thee, and I neuer transgressed thy commandement, & thou diddest neuer giue me a kidde to make merie with my friends:

30 But after that thy sonne, this that hath deuoured his substãce with whores, is come, thou hast killed for him the fatted calfe.

31 But he said to him, Sonne, thou art alwayes with me, and all my things are thine.

32 But it behoued vs to make merie and be glad, because this thy brother was dead, and is reuiued, was lost, and is found.

come, and thy father hath killed the fat calfe, because he hath receiued him safe and sound.

28 And he was angry, and would not goe in: therefore came his father out, and entreated him.

29 Hee answering, sayd to his father, Loe, these many yeeres doe I serue thee, neither brake I at any time thy commandement, and yet thou neuer gauest me a kidde, that I might make merie with my friends:

30 But as soone as this thy sonne was come, which hath deuoured thy liuing with harlots, thou hast for his pleasure killed that fat calfe.

31 And he said vnto him, Sonne, thou art euer with me, and all that I haue is thine.

32 It was meete that we should make merie, and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is aliue againe: and was lost, and is found.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XV.

RHEM. 1 7 Then vpon ninetie nine iust.) Neither God, nor the Saincts in heauen, nor men in earth doe for all that esteeme more of penitent sinners, then they do of them that continue iust and godly: though by the sodein motion and present affection of ioy that man taketh and expresseth in such alteration and new fallen good, it be here signified that the conuersion of euery sinner is exceeding acceptable to God, and giueth his Saincts new cause of ioy and thankesgiuing to God in another kinde then for the continuance of the iust. Ioy in heauen for euery penitent.

FVLKE. 1 Our Sauiour meaneth not, that there are any so iust, that they neede no repentance: For all haue sinned. And there is not one iust. Rom. 3. 10. 23. But rather hypocrites, such as the Pharizees were which thought they had no neede of repentance. As S. Augustine holdeth In Qu. Euang lib. 2. c 32. S. Ambrose vpon this place interpreteth that one sheepe, to be all that are saued by Christ. Omis illa genere vna est, non specie &c. That sheepe is one in kind, but not in particulars, for we are all one bodie, but many members. And therefore it is written: ye are the bodie of Christ, and members of his members. Therefore the sonne of man came to saue that which was lost: to wit, all. For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all shal be quickened. The rich shepheard therefore, of whose flocke all we are but the hundreth part, hath innumerable flockes of Angels, Archangels, &c. You see therefore that by the iust which neede no repentance, S. Ambrose vnderstandeth not men, but Angels. Beda vnderstandeth the iust, to be such, as because they haue not committed the greatest sinnes, are slowe to good worker, and very secure. These I suppose haue neede of repentance. Euthymius and Theophylacte agree with S. Ambrose. Eucher. Iudei quando ignorantes Dei iustitiam, & suam volentes constituere, iustitiæ Dei non fuerunt subiecti. Lib. 2. cap. 15. Therefore there are no men that neede no repentance simply, but in comparison of them that are wholy fallen from God, as open sinners and excommunicate persons. Repentance necessary for all men.

RHEM. 2 10 Before the Angels.) The Angels and other celestiall spirits in heauen, do reioyce at euery sinners conuersion: they know then and haue care of vs, yea our hearts and inward repentance be open to them: how then can they not heare our prayers? And betwixt Angels and the blessed soules of Saincts there is no difference in this case, the one being as highly exalted as the other and as neere God, in whom and by whom onely they see and know our affaires, as the other. The Angels and Saincts know our hearts. Mat. 22, 30.

FVLKE 2 Our hearts and inward repentance, are not knowen to the Angels, but by the fruits and true effects thereof. For God onely knoweth the hearts of all the sonnes of men, and their heartie repentance. 1. Reg. 8. 39. And although the elect, after the resurrection, shall be like in glorie to the Angels, yet it followeth not, that they shall be like in all things, and much lesse, that their soules now in heauen, be like the Angels: whose presence and ministerie God vseth in the preseruation of his chosen, in procuring the meanes of their conuersion and saluation while they are in this world. And though they be as neere God in heauen, as the Angels, yet it followeth not, that either the one or the other, see and know our affaires, otherwise then it pleaseth God to reueale them. For that prophane speculation, that God is like a glasse, in whom all things done in this worlde may be seene in heauen, is a vaine deuise of an idle braine, without all auctoritie of Scripture: yea contrary vnto it, which teacheth that God onely searcheth the heart and secret thoughts of man: which therefore are vnknowen to Angels and blessed spirits, except it please God, of speciall dispensation, to reueale them. And if they did or might know all our affaires, as well as God, yet it followeth not, that we should pray vnto them, hauing a commandement and promise, to call vpon God, and to be heard for Christs sake: and neither commaundement, nor promise, nor example in the Scripture, of any godly person, that prayed vnto them. The Angels and Saincts in heauen know not mens hearts in earth. Prayer to Saincts departed.

RHEM. 3 23 The fatted calfe.) This feasting and festiuitie (saith S. Augustine li. 1. qui. Euang. c. 33. to. 4.) are now celebrated throughout the whole world the Church being dilated and spred: for, that calfe in the bodie and blood of our Lord is both offered to the Father, and also feedeth the whole house. And as the calfe signifieth the B. Sacrament of the bodie and blood of Christ, so the first stole may signifie our innocencie restored in baptisme, and the rest, other graces and giftes giuen vs in the other Sacraments. The B. Sacrament and Sacrifice of the altar.

FVLKE. 3 S. Augustine meaneth the oblation of Christ vpon the crosse to God the father, the remembrance whereof, is celebrated in the Lords supper, as he declareth himselfe more plainely: Octoginta trium Quæstionum, Qu. 61. Ipse est &c. He is our Priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech, which offred himselfe a sacrifice for our sinnes, and hath commanded the similitude of that sacrifice to be celebrated in remembrance of his passion, so that wee may see the same thing which Melchisedech offred to God, now to be offered in the Church of Christ throughout all the world. Remember that Melchisedech could not offer the naturall body of Christ, so many hundred yeeres before it was conceiued and borne of the virgine Marie. Therefore that which S. Augustine saith is offred in the Church, is not the naturall bodie of Christ: but bread and wine, in remembrance of his passion, as a sacrifice of thankesgiuing. Cæsarius Arelatensis hom. 4. de Pasca. referreth it to the effect of Christ his death, whereby pardon is daily granted to penitent sinners. Redeuntibus nobis ad emendationem, hoc conuiuium quotidiè celebratur. Quotidiè pater filium recipit. Semper Christus credentibus immolatur. Sacrifice of the Masse.

CHAP. XVI.

He teacheth the rich to procure heauen with their riches. 14 And being therefore derided of the couetous Pharisees (who saw temporall riches promised in the latter of the Law) he sheweth that now is come the preaching of the kingdome of God, howbeit the Law for all that in no iote shall be frustrate. 19 foretelling them also, that the couetous Iewes shall be denied of their father Abraham, when poore Lazarus (the penitent Gentil) shall rest in his bosome.

THE GOSPEL vpon the 8. Sunday after Pentecost.

AND he said also to his Disciples, There was a certaine rich man that had a [c] bailife: and he was ill reported of vnto him, as he that had wasted his goods.

[c] οἰκονόμον

2 And he called him, and saide to him, What heare I this of thee? render account of thy [d] bailifship: for nowe thou canst no more be bailife.

[d] οἰκονομίας

3 And the Bailife saide within himselfe, What shall I doe, because my lord taketh away from me the bailifship? digge I am not able, to begge I am ashamed.

4 I knowe what I will doe, that when I shall be remooued from the bailifship, they may receiue me into their houses.

5 Therefore calling together euery one of his lordes detters, he said to the first, how much doest thou owe my lord?

6 But he saieth, An hundred pipes of oile. And he saide to him, Take thy bill: and sit downe, quickly write fiftie.

7 After that he said to another, But thou, how much doest thou owe? Who saide, An hundreth quarters of wheate. He said to him, Take thy bill and write eightie.

8 And ‖ the lord praised the bailife of iniquitie, because he had done wisely: for the children of this world are wiser then the children of light in their generation.

9 And I say to you, Make vnto you friendes of the ‡ mammon of iniquitie: that when you faile, ‖ they may receiue you into the eternall tabernacles.

‡ Mammon (saith S. Hierom q. 6. ad Algas.) in the Syriake tongue signifieth riches. Mammon of iniquitie, because they are often ill gotten, or ill bestowed, or occasion of euill, or at the least worldly and false and not the true heauenly riches.

10 He that is faithfull in the least, is faithfull in the greater also: and he that is vniust in litle: is vniust in the greater also.

11 If then you haue not beene faithfull in the vniust mammon: with that which is the true who may credite you?

12 And if you haue not beene faithfull in other mens: that which is yours, who will giue you?

Mat.6,24.

13 * No seruant can serue two masters, for either he shall hate the one, and loue the other: or cleaue to one, and contemne the other, You cannot serue God and mammon.

14 And the Pharisees which were couetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

15 And he saide to them, You are they that iustifie your selues before men, but God knoweth your hearts, because that which is high to men, is abomination before God.

Mat.11,12. Mat.5,18. Mat.5,31. 19,9.

16 * The lawe and the prophets, vnto Iohn. from that time the kingdome of God is euangelized, and euery one doth force toward it.

17 And

AND he said vnto his disciples, There was a certaine rich man which had a steward, and the same was accused vnto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And when he had called him, he said vnto him, Howe is it that I heare this of thee? Giue accompte of thy stewardship: for thou mayest be no longer Steward.

3 The Steward said within him selfe, What shall I doe, for my master taketh away from mee the stewardship? I cannot digge, and to begge I am ashamed.

4 I wote what to doe, that when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receiue me into their houses.

5 So when hee had called all his masters detters together, he saide vnto the first, How much owest thou vnto my master?

6 And he said, An hundred measures of oile. And he said vnto him, Take thy bill, and sit downe quickly, and write fiftie.

7 Then said he to another, How much owest thou? And he saide, An hundred measures of wheate. He saide vnto him, Take thy bill, and write fourescore.

8 And the Lord commended the vniust steward, because hee had done wisely: for the children of this world are in their nation wiser then the children of light.

9 And I say vnto you, Make you friendes of the vnrighteous Mammon, that when ye shall haue neede, they may receiue you into the euerlasting habitations.

10 He that is faithfull in that which is least, is faithfull also in much: and he that is vnrighteous in the least, is vnrighteous also in much.

11 So then, if ye haue not bene faithful in the vnrighteous Mammon, who shall trust you in the true treasure?

12 And if ye haue not bene faithfull in that which is another mans, who shall giue you that which is your owne?

13 No seruant can serue two masters, for either he shall hate the one, and loue the other: or else he shal leane to the one, and despise the other: ye cannot serue God and Mammon. Mat.6.24.

14 All these things heard the Pharisees also which were couetous: and they mocked him greatly.

15 And he said vnto them, Ye are they which iustifie your selues before men, but God knoweth your heartes: for that which is highly esteemed among men, is abomination in the sight of God.

*16 The Law and the Prophets reigned vntill Iohn, and since that time the glad tidings of the kingdome of God is preached, and euery man striueth to goe in. Mat.11.12.

17 *Easier

17 And it is easier for heauen and earth to passe, then one title of the law to fall.

Mar.10,11. 1.Cor.7,11. 18 *Euery one that dimisseth his wife, ‖ and marieth an other, committeth aduoutrie: and he that marieth her that is dimissed from her husband, committeth aduoutrie.

THE GOSPEL vpon thursday in the 2. weeke of Lent. 19 There was a certaine rich man, and he was clothed with purple and silke: and he fared euery day magnifically.

20 And there was a certaine begger called Lazarus, that lay at his gate full of sores:

21 Desiring to be filled of the crommes, that fell from the rich mans table, but the dogges also came, and licked his sores.

22 And it came to passe that the begger died, and was caried ‖ of the Angels into ‖ Abrahams bosome. And the rich man also died: and he was buried in hell.

23 And lifting vp his eyes, when he was in torments, hee sawe Abraham a farre off, ‡ and Lazarus in his bosom:

24 And he crying said, Father Abraham, haue mercie on mee, and send Lazarus that he may dippe the tippe of his finger into water, for to coole my tongue, because I am tormented in this flame.

‡ To be in continuall pleasures, ease, wealth; peace and prosperitie in this world, is perilous, and a signe of paines in the next. S. Hiero. 25 And Abraham saide to him, Sonne, remember that thou didst receiue ‡ good things in thy life time, and Lazarus likewise euill: but nowe he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

‖ Chaos, a horrible distance. 26 And beside all these things, betweene vs and you there is fixed ‖ a great ‖ chaos: that they which wil passe from hence to you, may not, neither goe from thence hither.

27 And he saide, Then, father, I beseech thee that thou wouldest send him vnto my fathers house, for I haue fiue brethren, 28 For to testifie vnto them, ‖ least they also come into this place of torments.

29 And Abraham saide to him, ‡ They haue Moyses and the Prophets: let them heare them.

30 But he said, No, father Abraham, but if some man shall go from the dead to them, they will doe penance.

31 And he saide to him, If they heare not Moyses and the Prophets, neither if one shall rise again from the dead, wil they beleeue.

17 *Easier it is for heauen and earth to passe away, then one title of the law to faile. Mat.5.18.

18 *Whosoeuer forsaketh his wife, and marieth another, committeth adulterie: and he that marieth her that is diuorced from her husband, committeth adulterie also. Mat.5.32. 1.cor.7.11.

19 There was a certaine rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine white, and fared very delitiously euery day.

20 And there was a certaine begger named Lazarus, which was laide at his gate full of sores:

21 And desiring to bee refreshed with the crummes which fell from the rich man boord, And no man gaue vnto him: but the dogges came and licked his sores.

22 And it came to passe that the begger died, and was caried by the Angels into Abrahams bosome: the rich man also died, and was buried.

23 And being in hell in torments, when hee had lifted vp his eyes, he seeth Abraham a farre off, and Lazarus in his bosome:

24 And hee cryed and said, Father Abraham, haue mercie on mee, and sende Lazarus, that he may dippe the tippe of his finger in water, and coole my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham saide, Sonne, remember that thou in thy life time receiuedst thy pleasure, and likewise Lazarus paines, but now is he comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 Besides all this, betweene vs and you there is a great gulfe stedfastly set, so that they which would goe from hence to you, cannot: neither haue they passage to vs that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore father, that thou wouldest send him to my fathers house:

28 For I haue fiue brethren, that he may witnesse vnto them, least they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saieth vnto him, They haue Moses and the Prophets, let them heare them.

30 And he saide, Nay, father Abraham, but if one come vnto them from the dead, they wil repent.

31 He said vnto him, If they heare not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they beleeue, though one rose from death.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XVI.

RHEM. 1 23 And Lazarus in his bosome.) Lazarus in Abrahams bosome, and rest: but both in hell, and not in the kingdome of heauen before Christ. Hiero. ep.3. Epitaph. Nepot.

FVLKE. 1 S. Hieroms words are these. Gratias tibi Christe saluator &c. We thy creatures giue thankes vnto thee, O Christ our Sauiour, that whilest thou didst die, thou stewest our so mightie aduersarie. What was more miserable then man before? which being throwen downe with the terrour of eternall death, receiued the sense of liuing, to this ende onely, that he might perish. For death reigned from Adam to Moses, euen ouer them which had not sinned after the likenesse of the transgression of Adam. If Abraham, Isaach, and Iacob were in hell, who was in the kingdome of heauen? If thy friendes were vnder the punishment of Adam offending, & they which had not sinned, were held guiltie of other mens sinnes, what is to be thought of them which said in their hearts, there is no God? which are corrupt and made abominable in their wils, which haue declined, being made vnprofitable together, there is not that doeth good, no not one. And if Lazarus be seene in the bosome of Abraham, in a place of rest, what like hath hell and the kingdome of heauen? Before Christ, Abraham in hell, after Christ, the theefe in Paradise. And therfore at his resurrection, many bodies of them that slept, arose, & were seene in the heauenly Hierusalem. Limbus patrum. These words conteine a rethorical amplification of the benefit of Christs death: out of which we can no more proue, that Abraham & Lazarus were in hell before Christ, then that they were damned. As those first words declare, what was more miserable then man? &c. And that he saith, Abraham, Isaac, & Iacob were in hell, he rather alludeth to the phrase of the vulgar Interpreter, who translateth Sheol, that signifieth the graue, by the worde Infernus, which concerneth the bodies, rather then the soules, as it appeareth by the last words, that many of them that slept arose at his resurrection. And yet I will not excuse S. Hierom altogether from this opinion, that they which died before Christes death, went in soule to hell, by which he meaneth, that they had not so cleere light of heauenly felicitie, as after Christs resurrection: whereof there may be some doubt, but of Limbus patrum deuised by the Papists he knew nothing, nor of Christs descent into it. S. Augustine Ep. 99. Euodio. denieth, that Abraham & Lazarus with the Patriarches were in hell, or that Abrahams bosome is any part of hell, saying, Ne ipsos quidem inferos &c. I could neuer find in the Scriptures, that hell is named for good. And if it be neuer read in the diuine auctoritie, verily that bosome of Abraham (that is, an habitation of a certaine secret rest) is not to be beleeued to be any part of hell, although euen in those very words of our great master, where he saith, that Abraham saide: Betweene you and vs there is a great Chaos established, I thinke it may sufficiently appeare, that the bosome of that so great felicitie, is not a certaine part, & as it were a member of hel. For what is that great Chaos but a great distance separating the far a sunder, which not onely is, but also is established betweene them, &c. To the same effect he writeth, De gen. ad lit. 12. cap. 33.

RHEM. 2 29 They haue Moyses and the Prophets.) Abraham had knowledge of things in earth which were not in his time, as that they had Moyses and the Prophets bookes which he neuer saw. August. de cura pro mor. c. 14.

FVLKE. 2 He might knowe these things (sayth Augustine) by the report of Lazarus: not when they were a doing by men aliue, least it shall be false which the Prophet saieth: Abraham knewe vs not. Therefore we must confesse, that the dead knowe not what is done here, while it is a doing here, but afterward doe heare it, of them which by death goe from hence vnto them. Not all things in deede, but such things as they are suffered to declare, who also are suffered to remember those things which it behoueth them to heare, to whom they declare them. The dead also may heare some thing of the Angels which are present in those affaires, which are done here, euen so much as he to whom all things are subiect, doeth iudge that euery one of them ought to heare. Thus Augustine wandreth in his imaginations, how the dead may knowe what is done among the liuing, whereas he should rather haue acknowledged with Chrysostome, that this is a parable, or with Ambrose, that it is a narration wherein many things are spoken parabolically, of which we must not ground any doctrine not taught elsewhere in in the Scripture. As for example, you may as well say, that soules haue fingers and tongues, and that elementall water will quench hell fire, as that Abraham knewe what bookes were written after his death. But our Sauiour Christes purpose is not so much to declare what was spoken to and fro, as what might be answered to the importunate and impudent affections of the damned spirit. And albeit that the doctrine of the Church was comprehended in the Scriptures, might be reuealed to Abraham after his death: yet it followeth not, that Abraham knew all things, as you affirme the Saincts doe in beholding the Maiestie of God: neither durst Augustine affirme, that they knew any more, then it pleased God to let them haue vnderstanding of, either by dead mens report, or by relation of Angels, or by any meanes whatsoeuer. More rightly you should gather as Eusebius Emissenus doth of this text. Sufficit enim hos audire (saith he) si his credere voluerint. Omnibus enim ad salutem sufficiunt soli Mosi & Prophetarum libri, si tamen bene intelligantur.

The Saincts departed know not our affaires.

De diuit. & Laz. Con. 1. & 4.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVI.

RHEM. 3 3 The Lord praysed.) This mans deceiuing his master is not praysed, nor we warranted by his fact to gaine vniustly for to haue wherewith to giue almes: but his prudence, in that he prouided so substantially for himselfe whiles his masters goods were in his handes, is commended, not for a vertue, but for a worldly pollicie: and proposed as an example of the carefull prouision that rich men (who are Gods stewardes in earth) should make for their soules, against they be put out of their bailiship and be called to account, which is the day of their death: and for a condemnation of faithfull mens folly and negligence, that being assured they shall out of their offices, and well knowing they might gaine saluation by their money, haue so litle regard thereof.

Good worke.

FVLKE. 3 The faithfull knowe not out of the worde of God, that they may gaine saluation by their money: but that by being good stewardes, and making them friends of the vnrighteous Mammon, they may gaine testimonie of their liberalitie, which shall not be vnrewarded. Otherwise, money is too base a thing to gaine saluation by, which the sonne of God bought for them, not with golde or siluer, or any such corruptible trash, but with his pretious blood. 1. Pet. 1. 18. 19.

Merite.

RHEM. 4 9 They may receiue you into.) A great comfort to all great almes-men, and a wonderfull force and vertue in almes, which beside the merite of the worke of mercie, which (as in other places of Scripture is saide) purgeth sinne and gaineth heauen, procureth also not onely the prayers of their beadesmen in earth, but their patronage in heauen also. Whereby also the prayers of Saincles for the liuing, and namely for them to whom they were beholding in their life, are proued. Yea and that they be in such fauour with God, that they may and doe receiue their friendes which were once their benefactors, into their mansions in Heauen, no lesse then the farmours whom the ill Steward pleasured, might receiue their friend into their earthly houses. Which also insinuateth to vs, that almes bestowed specially vpon holy men, who by their merites and prayers are great in Gods grace, may much more helpe vs, then our charitable deedes done vpon vulgar men in necessitie, though that be of exceeding great merite also. See all this in these doctors following. Hiero. qu. 6 ad Algas. to. 3. Ambros. in Luc. August. ser. 35. de verb. Do. c. 1. Gregor. moral. li. 21. c. 14. August. li. 2. qu. Euang. qu. 34. Almes meritorious. Tob. 12 9. Mat. 25. The Saincts doe pray for vs.

FVLKE. 4 That almes (although greatly accepted of God) is meritorious, the Scripture neuer teacheth, nor that almes purgeth sinne, or gaineth heauen, whereof see the notes vpon the 11. chap of this Gospel, Sect. 5. The prayers of the poore are in deede procured by giuing of almes, if they be thankfull persons vpon whom it is bestowed, but no patronage in heauen. The Prophet Dauid, no doubt, was a good almes man, yet he acknowledgeth no patrones in heauen, but God the Lord: Whom haue I in heauen (saith he) but thee? Ps. 73. 25. Neither doth the text say, the poore shall become patrones, but they may receiue you into the euerlasting tabernacles, which is to be vnderstood parabolically. Your almes shall be a testimonie of your charitie and liberalitie, which shall be euerlastingly rewarded, proceeding from true and liuely faith as our Sauiour Christ sheweth, Matt. 25. Neither is it possible to gather a conclusion out of this place in due forme of syllogisme, that the Saincts departed do pray for the liuing, or that they may receiue their friends and benefactors into their heauenly mansions, otherwise then by their testimonie, if in the iudgement of God, they shall be found faithfull. Finally, almes giuen to an hypocrite, in the name of Christ, of true faith and charitie, is as acceptable to God, as giuen to a holy person, and shall be as well rewarded. Seeing God hath not made vs iudges of mens synceritie, which haue neede, but commanded vs to shew neighbourhood to all that be in necessitie, especially to those that be of the housholde of God, as farre as we can discerne them. Chrysostom. Hom. Ne scrutemur pauperes. But all these pointes neither concluded concluded out of the text, nor warranted by any other Scriptures, let vs see how you proue out of the doctors. First, S. Hierom hath nothing sounding to such a purpose, except you meane those words in the end. Mihi videtur, &c. To me according to the former interpretation it seemeth, that we ought to make vs friends of the vnrighteous Mammon, not any kind of goods, but those which may receiue vs into their houses and eternall tabernacles, that when we haue giuen them small things, we may receiue of them great things, and giuing another mans goods, we may receiue our owne, and sowe in blessing, that we may reape blessing: for he that sowth sparingly, shall reape sparingly. These words declare his meaning sufficiently, that we must make choise of the godly poore, as neere as we can, to whom the kingdome of heauen belongeth: and giue plentifully, that we may receiue the reward plentifully. Here is neither patronage, nor prayer of Saincts departed, nor merite of holy men. S. Ambrose the next Doctor saith no more but, Vt largiendo, &c. That by giuing liberally to the poore, we may procure the fauour of the Angels, and the rest of the Saincts. Loe this Doctor nameth the Angels, which receiue no benefit by our almes, and all the Saincts, as well rich as poore. For all the blessed spirits doe loue them that are beneficiall to the poore members of Christ their head. But of speciall patronage, prayer, merite, authoritie to dispose the heauenly mansions, &c. here is no mention. Perhaps S. Augustine will say more, because he is quoted in two places: in the first hee hath these wordes. The Gospel hath admonished vs to make friends of the Mammon of iniquitie, that those which make, they may receiue into eternall tabernacles, who are they that shall haue eternall tabernacles but the Saincts of God? And who are they that shall be receiued of them into eternall tabernacles, but they which haue serued their neede, and cheerefully administred vnto them that they lacked? Let vs remember therefore, that in the last iudgement, our Lord will say to them, which shall stand at his right hand, I was hungrie, and ye gaue me to eate, and the rest that ye knowe. And when they shall aske, when they haue done this duetie to him? he answereth, when ye did it to one of these my litle ones. These litle ones are they, which receiue into eternall tabernacles, &c. Hitherto we haue nothing of patronage, prayers, or merites of Saincts. In the other place he saith, Iusti, &c. The Iust and the Saincts, are signified in this place, which doe bring them into eternall tabernacles, which haue communicated earthly goods for their necessities, of whom also he saith, that if any man giue vnto any of them a cup of cold water, in the name of a disciple, he shall not leese his reward. In the former part of this saying, hee rehearseth the wordes of the text: in the later he sheweth the plaine and direct meaning, that no worke of charitie shewed toward Gods children, shall be vnrewarded. Chrysostome at last speaketh of patronage, or pleading saying: Orators and Sophisters, stand at the iudgements seates of men, pleading for them that suffer wrong, and often for them that doe wrong, but the aduocate of almes (saith he) standeth at the tribunall seate of Christ, not onely pleading, but perswading the iudge himselfe, that he himselfe doth pleade for the guiltie person, and giue sentence for him, and although he haue sinned a thousand times, he crowneth him, and proclaimeth him conquerour: for he saith, giue almes and all shall be cleane. Here you see, he had occasion in following of his comparison, to haue said: the Saincts departed pleade for vs, pray for vs, merite for vs: yet that which he speaketh of patronage, is of almes it selfe, yea principally of Christ himselfe, who is our onely mediatour and aduocate before God, who rewardeth them that comfort his members for his sake, of his meere mercie and grace, not for the merite of their worke. Gregorie also, hath the name of patrones, but not according to your meaning, his words are these. Multum vero, &c. It auaileth much to beate downe the pride of him that giueth earthly things, if when he giueth earthly things, he doe earnestly weigh the wordes of our heauenly master, which saith, Make you friendes of the Mammon of iniquitie, that when you faile, they may receiue you into eternall tabernacles: for if through their friendship, we attaine the eternall tabernacles, in giuing doubtlesse, we ought to consider, that we rather offer gifts to patrons, than giue rewardes to needy persons. Hereof it is said by Paul: let your abundance supply their neede, that their abundance may be a supply to your neede: namely, that we should consider diligently, that those whom we now see needy we shall one day see abounding, and we that are seene abounding, if we be negligent to giue, shall one day be needy. Therefore he that now giueth temporall aide to a poore man, in that he shall hereafter receiue of him eternall things, as I may so say, doeth as it were till the earth for corne, which rendreth more plentifully that which she hath receiued. It remaineth therefore, that pride neuer arise of our gift, seeing that of that which the rich man giueth to the poore, he doth it, that he be not poore for euer. Here is neither merites, nor prayers of Saincts departed, but the poore made, as it were patrons of the rich, euen in this life, that the rich should not be proud of their liberalitie, because they know, that except they be rich in good works by relieuing the poore, they shalbe euerlastingly poore. Whereas if they make them friends of their Mammon, they shall be ioyned in reward of eternall life, with the poore members of Christ, who accounteth done vnto him, whatsoeuer is bestowed in releese of them. So that eternall life is the free gift of God, by Iesus Christ, vnto all them which by the fruits of good workes, declare that they take hold of it by a true and liuely faith.

RHEM. 5 18 And marrieth.) The good of Marriage throughout all nations and men, is in issue and fidelitie of chastitie, but among the people of God it consisteth also in holinesse of Sacrament: Whereby it commeth to passe that it is a heinous crime to marrie againe, though there be a diuorce made, so long as the parties liue. Aug. de bono coniug. cap. 14. to. 6. See the Annotations vpon Marke 10, 11. See the reward of powertie, affliction, and patience: and on the contrary, the end and reward of wealth ioyned with vnmercifulnesse. Note also here, that at the day of every mans death there is a particular iudgement, and therefore the soule sleepeth not nor hangeth in suspense till the generall iudgement.* Vnmercifull rich men.

RHEM. 7 22 Abrahams bosome.) The Bosome of Abraham is the resting place of all them that died in perfect state of grace before Christes time, heauen before being shut from men. It is called in Zacharie, a lake without water, and sometimes a prison, but most commonly of the Diuines Limbus patrum, for that it is thought to haue bene the higher part or brimme of Hell, the places of punishment being farre lower then the same, which therefore be called Infernum inferius. * the lower hell. *Where the mansion of the fathers stood, or whether it be any part of Hell, S. FVLKE. 7 For as much as the death of Christ, was as effectuall to redeeme them that dyed before he suffered actually, as them that liue since: seeing in Gods sight, our Sauiour Christ, is the Lambe that was slaine from the beginning of the world, we beleeue that the godly fathers were in heauen or Paradise, which is here called Abrahams bosome, before the resurrection of Christ, as well as after. For in as much as they were iustified by faith in his blood, they receiued the same crowne & reward of righteousnes that we do, being iustified by the same meanes. And yet our Sauiour Christ was the first man that in his whole manhood entred into heauen, in the fulnesse and perfection of glorie which is prepared for all Gods elect, at the generall resurrection. Neuertheles, the vertue of Christs death opened heauen, to be a receptacle for the soules of the righteous from the beginning of the world. The spirit (saith Salomon) returneth to God that gaue it. Eccles. 12. 7. So saith Leo, Vanificus institutor vniuersorum temporum sanctos, & ad eandem spem fidelium pertinax, quicquid per mediatorem Dei & hominum Iesum Christum, vel nos constituimur fabulam, vel patres nostri adorauere faciendum. Nec inter Iudæos & gentes vlla est distinctio. De pass. serm. 14. And we heard before, that Augustine denieth it to be a part of hell. Epist. 99. But Zacharie (you say) calleth it a lake without water. In dede Zachary nameth it a lake or pit without water, which is too vncomfortable a place to vnderstand it of Abrahams bosome, which the Prophet meaneth of the captiuitie of Babylon, from whence the Church was deliuered. Theodoret saith, it may be vnderstoode either of eternall death, or of the error of Idols. S. Hierome saieth: The rich Glutton was in this lake. Therefore he vnderstoode it not of Abrahams bosome. Further you say, it is called of Esay, a prison: but that is as vnlike, that a place of happie and ioyfull rest, (Chrysost. de Diuit. & Lazaro,) should be called a prison. Let vs see what the ancient fathers say to the matter. First S. Hierom vnderstandeth this prison of the bonds of sinnes and errors. So doeth Cyril in Esay, Lib. 4. Or. 2. Yet Lib. 3. he saieth, that Christ went to preach to the spirits in hell, and appeared to them that were destined in prison, and deliuered them all from bonds, necessitie, paine and punishment. Therefore in neither of both places he vnderstandeth Abrahams bosome, by the prison spoken of in Esay. And if by this latter exposition he correct not his error in the former, yet by the later he sheweth, that the text is not necessarily to be vnderstoode of any prison after this life. As for the name of Limbus patrum, is altogether vnknowen of the ancient doctors, which if it signifie (as you say) the brimme of hell, it cannot be farre from the place of punishment, as the text is plaine of Abrahams bosome. And Chrysostome saith plainely, it is Paradise, against the conceite of them that imagine it to be hell, Paradisus, &c. The bosome of Abraham, was the poore mans Paradise. The rich man sawe Abraham a farre off, and Lazarus in his bosome. But some man may say to me, is Paradise in hell? I say this, that the bosome of Abraham is the trueth of Paradise, yea I confesse it is the most holy Paradise. ex Luc. hom. de Diuite. And Tertullian chargeth Marcion the heretike with this opinion, that the fathers of the old Testament had their place of refreshing in hell, by this text of Abrahams bosome. But he confuteth him euen by the same Scripture, saying, that Hell is one thing, Abrahams bosome another thing, wherein not only the soules of the Iewes, but of the Gentils also that are faithfull, shal haue rest vntill the generall resurrection, Lib. 4. cont. Marcion. Whether the hell of the damned be called the lower hell, in respect of this mansion of the fathers, Augustine in Ps. 85. professeth ignorance, and only doubteth. But Ep. 99. he vtterly denieth Abrahams bosome to be hell or any part of hell, because Hell in the Scripture, is neuer taken for good. The same he saith, de Gen. ad lit. lib. 12 cap. 33. and cap. 34. where he proueth that Paradise is heauen, he saith, Quanto magis, &c. How much more then may the bosome of Abraham which is after this life, be called Paradise. But that there was such a place whereunto our Sauiour Christ descended, specially to deliuer the fathers that were in it, you quote a great number of doctors. First Irenæus in the place quoted, hath neuer a word of the descending of Christ into hell, but of the effect of his life and death, to the saluation of all his members. His wordes are these: Quapropter, &c. Wherefore he gaue meate to his disciples, as they were sitting, signifying them which sate in the earth to whom he came to minister life. As Hieremy saith: The Lord the holy one of Israel, remembred his that were dead, which had slept before in the earth of dilection, and came downe vnto them to preach saluation vnto them to saue them. And for this also his disciples eyes were heauy when Christ came to his passion, and finding them sleeping, first, hee let them alone, signifying the patience of God, in the sleeping of men. But comming the second time he awaked them and raysed them vp, signifying that his passion is the awaking of his disciples that slept, for whom also he descended into the later parts of the earth, to see that of the creature which was vnwrought, with those eyes of which he said to his disciples: Many Prophets and iust desired to see and heare, what you see & heare. For Christ came not for them only which beleeued in him in the time of Tiberius the Emperor: neither for those men only which are now, hath the Father prouided, but for all men which from the beginning according to his power, in their generation both feared and loued God, and liued iustly and godly towards their neighbours, and desired to see Christ, and to heare his voice. Wherfore all such in his second comming he shal first awake out of sleepe, and raise vp them as well as the rest which shalbe iudged, and he shall place them in his kingdome. These words I haue set downe at large, that you may see he speaketh not of the supposed descent into hell, but of the vertue of his life, death, buriall and resurrection, which extendeth it selfe to all the elect of God, and shall be made manifest at the second comming of Christ. Eusebius saith: That the ramping Lion the deuill, after he had opened the wide mouth of hell, coueted to haue deuoured the soule of our Sauiour, with other which came downe into hell, against which he prayed in the words of the Psalme, Deliuer me from the mouth of the Lion. By which place it is rather proued, that Christ did not descend into hell after his death, seeing he was saued from the mouth of the Lion, according to his prayer vttered by the Psalmist: And somewhat before this place, he interpreteth the complaint of Christ that he was forsaken, when his bodie was on the crosse to be made in the midst of hellish torments, when he beheld himselfe compassed about with all the deuils in hell, as it were a multitude of wilde beasts readie to deuoure him. Eusebius therefore hath much against you, but nothing for you. Much lesse Gregorie Nazianzene in the place noted. For hee saith no more but, Christ descended, that we might be exalted. Chrysostome the first of them that you haue named, saith that Christ descended into hell, and disturbed them all, and destroyed that Castle filled with tumults and troubles. Which may be rightly vnderstoode of the vertue of his death, destroying the power of hell, that it hath no force against those whom he hath redeemed. But he addeth further, that although it was hell, yet it held the holy soules and precious vessels of Abraham, Isaac and Iacob. In these wordes either he taketh the worde hell largely, for the state of them that be dead, or else hee is contrary to himselfe in other places, which I haue cited before, where he affirmeth Abrahams bosome to be Paradise, and prayeth that he and his people may be taken vp into Abrahams bosome. Epiphanius against Taciane the Heretike, that denied Adam to be saued, saith: For what cause descended Christ into hell? How after his suffering when he had slept three dayes, did he arise againe? And how is it fulfilled that he should haue dominion ouer the dead and ouer the liuing, and of what liuing and dead, but of those that haue neede of his helpe aboue and beneath? That Christs descent into hell and his resurrection was to Adams saluation, I see it proued by these words, but that Adam was in hell, or that Christ descended after his death, this place saith nothing, but rather that Adam with the rest of the fathers, was in heauen. For who are they that were aboue then? but Adam and the rest. Saint Ambrose speaketh of the force of Christs death, which ouercame death and hell to the ſaluation of all Gods choſen: and not of the fetching of the fathers out of hell. For after hee hath ſhewed that the deuill by death reigned in the puniſhment of ſinners, vntill the comming of Chriſt: He addeth theſe words, Exters peccati, &c. Chriſt being voide of ſinne, when he went downe to the bottome of hell, breaking the lockes and gates of hell, after he had deſtroyed the dominion of death, he called backe to life out of the iawes of the deuill, ſoules bound with ſinne, and this is written for a diuine triumph, with eternall Characters, while hee ſaith, Death where is thy ſting, death where is thy victorie, which felicitie of health reſtored Paul conſidering, cryeth out, As by Adam death entred into this world, ſo by Chriſt ſaluation is reſtored to the world. In theſe wordes, is nothing to maintaine Limbus patrum, nor yet the popiſh maner of Chriſts deſcent into hell. S. Hierome hath the like meaning, and his words be theſe: By the blood of thy paſſion through thy clemencie, thou haſt deliuered thoſe which were holden bound in the priſon of hell, in which there is no mercie. Finally, after our Lord aroſe againe, thoſe that were holden with the bond of the ſinnes of Adam, or as ſome will haue it, of accuſtomed error aroſe againe with him, and appeared in the holy Citie. Theſe wordes declare, that he ſpeaketh of all that had deſerued hell, which by the death and reſurrection of Chriſt, were deliuered from hell. For that he meaneth not of Limbus patrum, (as I haue declared before) he affirmeth that the rich man clothed in purple, remained in this lake of hell, and obteined no refreſhing. But to them (ſaith he) which were bound, and were to be deliuered by the mercy of Chriſt, the ſpeach is directed. Be you turned, you that are bound to the munition of hope: and the ſenſe is, You that are bound and holden of cruell and terrible hell, which hope for the looſing of your bondes, at the comming of Chriſt, &c. S. Hierome therefore muſt either be vnderſtood, to ſpeake allegorically, or els he ſhould moſt abſurdly place all the fathers in torments of hell with the rich glutton. Auguſtine Epiſt. 99. as is before ſhewed, denieth that Abrahams boſome is hell or any part thereof, but Paradiſe: yet he affirmeth that Chriſt deſcended into hell. But into Abrahams boſome, ſaying hee hath not found, what benefit he beſtowed vpon thoſe iuſt, that were in Abrahams boſome when he deſcended into hell, from whom he neuer departed according to the bleſſed preſence of his diuinitie. In the other place that you quote, S. Auguſtine affirmeth nothing, but conditionally: Si non abſurde creditur videtur, &c. If it ſeemeth that it is not abſurdly thought, that the olde Saints which held the faith of Chriſt to come, were in places moſt farre off from the torments of the vngodly, but yet in hell vntill the blood of Chriſt and his deſcent into thoſe places, deliuered them: truely from henceforth the good faithfull redeemed with that price already ſhed, know not hell at all. You ſee he doeth not abſolutely affirme, but as an opinion, of ſome receiued, whereof he himſelfe was not throughly perſwaded, and which in ſome places he holdeth not: as Epiſt. 99. De gen. ad liter. lib. 12. cap. 33. & 34. Paulinus in his Panegyricall Poeme, writeth ſome things Poetically of Chriſts conqueſt of hell, but directly of the Patriarches in hell, and Chriſts deſcent vnto them, he ſpeaketh not, and therefore is added to make vp a number: as moſt of the reſt are. Cyrillus hath theſe wordes: Quumque tempus, &c. And when nowe it was time that hee ſhould preach to the ſpirits in hell, (for he came to haue dominion as well of the liuing as of the dead) he ſuffered death for vs. And this ſuffering proper to our nature, hee did vndergoe willingly, according to the fleſh: although as God he was life naturally: that hell being ſpoyled, and he made the firſt fruits of them that ſleepe, and the firſt begotten among the dead (as the Scriptures ſay) he might giue returne to life vnto our nature. Theſe are the words of Cyril, which compared with that he writeth vpon Eſay, doe come ſomething neere your purpoſe, to declare his opinion. Gregorie alſo affirmeth that Chriſt deſcending into hell, deliuered onely them that beleeued in him, while they liued and led a godly life. Of ſo many doctors as be quoted, you ſee how few do hold that Abrahams boſome was in hell, or that the fathers were in hell before the comming of Chriſt. And of them that held it, how ſome place them in reſt as Auguſtine and Chryſoſtome: ſome in paine, as Cyril and Hierome, if he ſpeake of their ſtate. Hereby it appeareth, that this opinion in theſe ancient times of the Church, was neither generally receiued, nor conſtantly maintained: the ſame writer ſometimes being of contrary opinions, as Chryſoſtome: and ſometimes certaine, ſometimes doubtfull, as Auguſtine. Let the indifferent reader iudge therefore, whether you doe impudently affirme your Limbus patrum to be confeſſed and proued of all the ancient writers, or we denie it with Purgatorie, when neither of both is found in the Scriptures, and both by conſequence are contrary to the doctrine of the Scriptures. We may be bold, (I thinke) with modeſtie to ſay, that S. Auguſtine ſayd of a like forged place: Primum enim locum, &c. The firſt place, the faith of Catholikes by diuine authority, hath beleeued to be the kingdom of heauen. The ſecond, hel, where all that forſake or receiue not the faith of Chriſt, ſhall feele eternal puniſhments. Tertium penitus ignoramus, immo nec eſſe in Scriptura ſanctis inuenimus. The third place we are vtterly ignorant of, yea, we find in the holy Scriptures that it is not. Aug. Hypognoſt.

RHEM. 8. 26. A great chaos.) A great diſtance betwixt Abrahams boſome and the inferiour hell. Some iudge Purgatory to be placed there, from whence (no doubt) Chriſt alſo deliuered ſome at his deſcending to hel. for, theſe in Abrahams boſome were not in paines: and S. Auguſtine ſayth the Scriptures be plaine that he tooke ſome out of the places of puniſhment, and yet none out of the hell of the damned. What other place then can that be but Purgatorie? Purgatorie. Aug. epiſt. 99.

FVLKE. 8 Thoſe that iudge purgatorie to be placed in this great diſtance, are not worthy the naming. For none of the ancient fathers for 400. yeeres after Chriſt knew Purgatory, or durſt affirme it. Neither can the Papiſts agree where to place it. Where you make it no doubt that Chriſt by his deſcending, deliuered ſome ſoules out of Purgatory, there is not one of the ancient fathers that will take your part. Auguſtine whom you name, ſpeaketh not of Purgatory, but of hell. Sed quia euidentia &c. But becauſe euident teſtimonies doe make mention of hel and ſorowes, no cauſe commeth to my minde, why our Sauiour ſhould be thought to come thither, but to ſaue them from the ſorowes thereof. But whether all whom he found in them, or ſome whom he iudged worthy of that benefit, I do yet ſeeke, or am not certaine. Yet I doubt not but he was in hell, and performed this benefit to ſuch as were placed in the ſorowes thereof. Theſe be Auguſtines words: but you conclude hereof, that he tooke none out of the hell of the damned: Ergo out of Purgatorie. As though you would inforce Auguſtine to acknowledge your diuiſion of hels, which it is certaine he knew not: for if he had, he needed not to haue doubted, whether Chriſt tooke all or ſome from thence. And as for Purgatorie, he was neuer certaine of it, therefore hee could not ſpeake ſo reſolutely of it, to ſay that hee doubted not, but Chriſt ſaued ſome from the ſorowes of it.

RHEM. 9. 28. Leſt they alſo.) *If the damned had care of their friends alliue how and for what cauſe ſoeuer, much more haue the Saints and ſaued perſons. And if thoſe in hell haue meanes to expreſſe their cogitations and deſires, and to be vnderſtood of Abraham ſo far diſtant both by place and condition, much rather may the liuing pray to the Saints and be heard of them: betwixt earth (that is to ſay) the Church militant and heauen, being continual paſſage of ſoules, and * Angels aſcending and deſcending by Iacobs ladder. Men muſt not for al that be curious to ſearch how the ſoules of the deceaſed expreſſe their minds, and be heard one of another, and ſo fall to blaſphemie, as Caluin doth, aſking whether their eares be ſo long to heare ſo farre off, and wickedly meaſuring all things by mortal mens corporal groſſe maner of vttering conceits one to another, which was not here done by this damned nor by Abraham, with corporal inſtruments of tongue, teeth, and eares: though for the better expreſſing of the damneds caſe, Chriſt vouchſafed to vtter it in termes agreeing to our capacitie.* Saints doe heare our prayers and haue care of vs, Gen. 32. FVLKE. 9. There is no doubt but charitie remaineth with the Saints in heauen, but it is ill proued by example of a damned Prayer to Saints.

damned spirit in hell. Againe, that loue which they haue, is not now carnall and speciall towards their friends in the flesh, brethren, kinsfolks and other, but spirituall and generall toward all the elect of God, whom they loue as themselues. Another conclusion is: If those in hell haue meanes to expresse their desires to Abraham: much rather may the liuing pray to the Saints and be heard of them. I maruell you doe not inferre, if those in hell haue such charitable affections, much more the Saints in heauen. But these parabolicall speaches proue no more, then the end of the parable, namely, that they which in this life refuse to credite the holy Scriptures, may not looke to be called by any extraordinary visions or apparitions. And yet if you would inferre rightly, you should make your Argument thus: If damned spirits to Saints far off can expresse their cogitations, much more may Saints that dwell together vnderstand one another. As for men liuing, haue no meanes but by audible voice to expresse their desires, which cannot ascend so high as the Saints in heauen, who also lacke the naturall instruments, whereby such a voice may be receiued. But you haue a conueyance, by the continuall passage of soules and Angels, which Augustine thinketh in deede, may giue intelligence of some things, but not of all things, but onely so much as it pleaseth God that they should know. Wherefore it were good first to know out of the Scriptures, whether it please God that Saints should know such affaires of the liuing. And secondly, whether it is his pleasure, that we should direct our prayers to them. If the Scripture do reuele neither the one nor the other, how should we know what is Gods pleasure? Yea, seeing we haue expresse commandement, to call vpon God by Iesus Christ in all our necessities, with promise that we shalbe heard in any request that is meete for vs to attaine: we cannot call vpon Saints without breach of Gods commandement, and distrust of his promise. Yea, seeing prayer is a sacrifice, it is to be offered onely to God, and not to Saints. They therefore blaspheme God, which giue the glory which is proper to God vnto creatures, and not Caluine, which denieth that the voice of our prayers vpon earth, can be heard of Saints in heauen. As for the speaches vttered by Abraham and the damned soule, you might as well vnderstand that they were parabolicall rather then historicall, as you acknowledge they were not vttered with corporal instruments.

CHAP. XVII.

So damnable it is to be author of a Schisme, 3 that we must rather forgiue be it neuer so often. 9 We must be feruent in faith, 7 and humble withall, knowing that we are bound to God, and not he to vs. ‖ The nine Iewes are vngratefull after that he hath cured their leprosie: but the one Samaritane (the one Catholike Church of the Gentiles) far otherwise. 20 The Pharisees asking, when commeth this kingdom of God (of whose approching they had now heard so much) he teacheth that God must reigne within vs: 22 and warneth vs after his Passion neuer to goe out of his Catholike Church for any new secret comming of Christ that Heretikes shal pretend, but onely to expect his second comming in glory, 26 preparing our selues vnto it, because it shal come vpon many vnprouided, 31 specially through the persecution of Antichrist a little before it.

Mt.18.7. Mar.9.42. ‡Not of mere necessity, for then it were no fault, if it præsupposing the great wickednes of men, it is impossible but there shall bee scandals and therefore it followeth, Wo to him by whom they come. Mt.18,21.

AND he said to his Disciples, It is ‡impossible that scandals should not come: but wo to him by whom they come.

2 It is more profitable for him, if a milstone be put about his necke, and he bee cast into the sea, then that hee scandalize one of these little ones.

3 Looke well to your selues, * If thy brother sinne against thee, rebuke him: and if he doe penance, forgiue him.

4 And if he sinne against thee seuen times in a day and seuen times in a day be conuerted vnto thee, saying, It repenteth mee, forgiue him.

5 And the Apostles sayd to our Lord, Increase faith in vs.

Mt.17,20.

6 And our Lord sayd, * If you had faith like to a mustard seede, you might say to this mulberie tree, bee thou rooted vp, and bee transplanted into the sea: and it would obey you.

7 And which of you hauing a seruant plowing or keeping cattel, that will say to him returning out of the field, Passe quickly, sit downe:

THE FOVRTH part of this Gospel, The comming of Christ into Iewry, toward his Passion.

8 And saith not to him, Make ready supper, and gird thy selfe, and serue me whiles I eate and drinke, & afterward thou shalt eate and drinke?

9 Doeth he giue that seruant thankes, for doing the things which he commanded him?

10 I trow not. So you also, when you shal haue done all things that are commaunded you, say, We are ‖ vnprofitable seruants: we haue done that which we ought to doe.

11 And

*HE * said vnto the disciples, It cannot be but offences will come, neuertheless woe vnto him through whom they come.* Mat.18.7. mar.9.41.

2 It were better for him that a milstone were hanged about his necke, and he cast into the sea, then that he should offend one of these little ones.

*3 Take heede to your selues: * If thy brother trespasse against thee, rebuke him, and if hee repent, forgiue him.* Matth.18.21.

4 And though he sinne against thee seuen times in a day, and seuen times in a day turne againe to thee, saying, I repent, thou shalt forgiue him.

5 And the Apostles said vnto the Lord, Increase our faith.

*6 * And the Lorde sayd, If yee had faith as much as a graine of mustard seede, ye should say vnto this Sycamine tree, Bee thou plucked vp by the roote, and bee thou planted in the sea, and it should obey you.* Matth.17,20.

7 But which of you, hauing a seruant plowing, or feeding cattell, will say vnto him by and by when hee were come from the fielde, Goe and sit downe at the table?

8 And will not rather say vnto him, Dresse wherewith I may suppe, and gird vp thy selfe, and serue me, till I haue eaten and drunken: and afterward thou shalt eate and drinke?

9 Doeth he thanke that seruant because hee did the things that were commanded vnto him? I trowe not.

10 So likewise ye, when ye shall haue done all those things which are commanded you, say, Wee are vnprofitable seruants: wee haue done that which was our duety to doe.

11 And

THE GOSPEL vpon the 13. Sunday after Pentecost.

11 And it came to passe, as he went vnto Hierusalem, he passed through the middes of Samaria and Galilee.

12 And when hee entred into a certaine towne, there met him ten men that were lepers, who stoode a farre off:

13 And they lifted vp their voice, saying, IESVS master, haue mercie on vs.

14 Whome as hee sawe, hee sayde, Goe *shewe your selues ‖ to the Priestes. And it came to passe, ‖ as they went, they were made cleane. Leu.14.2.

15 And one of them as hee sawe that hee was made cleane: went backe with a loude voice magnifying God,

16 And he fell on his face before his feete, giuing thankes: and this was a Samaritane.

17 And IESVS answering sayde, Were not tenne made cleane? and where are the nine?

18 There was not found that returned, and gaue glory to God, but this stranger.

19 And he said to him, Arise, go thy waies: because ‡ thy faith hath made thee safe.

20 And being asked of the Pharisees, When commeth the kingdome of God? hee answered them and sayd, The kingdome of God commeth not with obseruation:

21 Neither shal they say, Loe here, or loe there. for loe ‡ the kingdom of God is within you.

22 And he said to his Disciples, The daies will come when you shall desire to see one day of ỹ Sonne of man: and you shal not see.

23 * And they will say to you, Loe here and loe there. ‡ Goe not, neither doe ye followe after.

24 For euen as the lightening that lighteneth from vnder heauen, vnto those partes that are vnder heauen, shineth: so shall the Sonne of man be in his day.

25 But first hee must suffer many things and be reiected of this generation.

26 And as it came to passe in the * dayes of Noe, so shall it bee also in the dayes of the Sonne of man. Gen.7.5.

27 They did eate and drinke, they did marie wiues and were giuen to mariage euen vntill the day that Noe entred into the arke: and the flood came and destroyed them all,

28 Likewise as it came to passe in the * dayes of Lot: They did eate and drinke, bought and sould, planted, and builded: Gen.19.24.

29 And in the day that Lot went out from Sodome, it rained fire and brimstone from heauen, and destroyed them all:

30 According to these things it shal be in the day that ỹ sonne of man shalbe reuealed.

31 In that houre he that shall bee in the house-toppe, and his vessel in the house, let him not goe downe to take them vp: and he that ‡ Whiles they aske and looke for a temporall kingdome in pompe and glory, loe their king and Messias was now among them, whose spirituall kingdom is within all the faithfull that haue dominion ouer sinne. Mt.24,23. Mr.13,21.

11 And so it was, as hee went to Hierusalem, that he passed thorow the middes of Samaria and Galilee.

12 And as he entred into a certaine village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stoode afarre off,

13 And they put forth their voices, and sayd, Iesus master, haue mercie on vs.

*14 When he saw them, hee sayd vnto them, * Goe shewe your selues vnto the Priestes. And it came to passe, that as they went, they were cleansed.* Leuit.14.2.

15 And one of them, when he sawe that hee was healed, turned backe againe with a loude voice, glorifying God,

16 And fell downe on his face at his feete, giuing him thankes: and the same was a Samaritane.

17 And Iesus answering, sayd, Are there not ten cleansed, but where are those nine?

18 There are not founde that returned againe to giue glory to God, saue only this stranger.

19 And he said vnto him, Arise, go thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole.

20 When he was demanded of the Pharisees when the kingdome of God commeth, hee answering them, sayd, The kingdome of God commeth not with obseruation.

21 Neither shall they say, Loe here, or loe there: for beholde the kingdome of God is within you.

22 And hee sayde vnto the disciples, The dayes will come when yee shall desire to see one day of the Sonne of man, and yee shall not see it.

23 And they shall say to you, See here, see there: goe not after them, nor folow them.

24 For as the lightning that lightneth out of the one part which is vnder heauen, shineth vnto the other part which is vnder heauen: so shal also the sonne of man be in his day:

25 But first must he suffer many things, and be disalowed of this nation.

*26 * And as it was in the dayes of Noe: so shall it be also in the dayes of the sonne of man.* Gen.7.5.

27 They did eate and drinke, they married wiues, and were maried, euen vnto the same day that Noe went into the Arke: and the flood came, and destroyed them all.

*28 * Likewise also as it was in the dayes of Lot, they did eate, they dranke, they bought, they solde, they planted, they builded:* Gen.19.24.

29 But euen the same day that Lot went out of Sodome, it rained fire and brimstone from heauen, and destroyed them all.

30 Euen thus shall it be in the day when the sonne of man is reuealed.

31 At that day ‖ he which shal be on the house toppe, and his stuffe in the house, let him not come downe to take it out: and let not him that ‖ Or, if any man.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XVII.

RHEM. 1. 19. Thy faith.) And yet we see here it was not only faith, but also his thankefulnes and returning to giue glory to God. Faith onely.

FVLKE. 1 We see that hee was whole before hee gaue thankes, therefore faith onely made him whole, and that his thankes folowed his faith, as an vnseparable fruite thereof, not as a cause of his healing.

RHEM. 2 23. Goe not.) No man must runne out of the Church after Schismatikes to heare them preach Christ in corners, Christs doctrine being open in all the world, See annot. Mt.24,23.

FVLKE 2 No man must looke to see Christ his maker in the Popish eleuation, or procession. For Christ shall not come into this world, so often as the Priests will consecrate, but once in the end of the world, with maiestie and glory.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVII.

RHEM. 3 10. Vnprofitable seruants.) If our Sauiour had said that the keeping of Gods commandements had bene vnprofitable and not available to our selues, then might the Protestants haue truely argued thereby that our workes deserue not heauen or any reward at Gods hand: but so he sayd not, but that our seruice is to God vnprofitable, who calleth for it as duety, and not as a thing needefull or profitable to himselfe. And though here our Master teach vs so humbly to conceiue of our owne doings toward him, yet himselfe els where calleth not his seruants vnprofitable when they haue done their labour, but speaketh thus, Good and faithful seruant, because thou wast faithful in a little, I wil place thee ouer much: enter into the ioy of thy Lord. Yea of such as serue him in the grace of the new Testament, he affirmeth that he will not now name them seruants but friends, yea and take them for his owne children, and as his friends and sonnes he counteth of vs and our workes towards heauen, though we in humilitie and trueth must confesse alwayes that we be to him vnprofitable seruants. Yea and S. Paul saith plainely, that by cleansing our selues from sinfull workes, we shalbe profitable vessels to our Lord. 2. Tim. 2, 21. How we are vnprofitable & profitable seruants. Mt.25,21. Io,15,14.

FVLKE. 3. A seruant by doing his duety to his Master, deserueth not so much as libertie, much lesse to bee his Masters heire, ergo the seruants of God, doing their ductie, deserue not to be Gods heires of the kingdome of heauen, but of his meere fauour and grace, he giueth it them. Of which also he accepteth them not as seruants, but as friends, yea as sonnes and heires, and their seruice being not the thousand part of their duety, also hee accepteth, and rewardeth of his mercie and not of their merite. Neither doeth S. Paul say, that by cleansing our selues &c. But if a man shall cleanse himselfe: he shall be a profitable vessell: because the Lord will acknowledge him as his owne, in whom this effect of his spirit worketh this cleansing. For it is God that worketh in vs both the will, and to be able to do any such thing according to his good pleasure. Phil 2.13. Marcus Heremita de iis qui putant se operibus iustificari: ὁ ωεμος &c. The Lord willing to shewe that all the commandements are of duety to bee performed, and that the adoption is giuen by his owne blood, saith, when you haue done al these things that are appointed vnto you, then say, we are vnprofitable seruants, we haue done that we ought to doe. Therefore the kingdome of heauen is not the hire of workes, but the grace of the Lord prepared for his faithfull seruants. Merite.

RHEM. 4. 14. To the priests.) This leprosie signifieth sinne, which though God may and can heale without any mans meanes, yet he doth it not ordinarily but by the Priests ministerie: therefore let no man despise Gods ordinance nor say that it is ynough to confesse to God though he neuer come at the priest. li. de visit. infirm. apud August. Confession to the Priest.

FVLKE. 4. The leprosie was not healed by the Priest, but declared to be healed, so are sinnes declared to be forgiuen by the Priest, and not properly forgiuen: Hierom in Math. 16. And where as you say, out of the author of the booke De visit infirm. that a man must not despise Gods ordinance, it is true. But both your author and you, haue to proue auricular confession to a Priest, to be Gods ordinance. As you acknowledge that booke to bee none of Augustines, so you should haue done well to haue signified, as the trueth is, that the author was a man neither learned nor eloquent, and that those bookes were most impudently ascribed to S. Augustine: but then your quotation of his authority had bene nothing worth. Remission of sinnes.

RHEM. 5 14. As they went.) A man may sometimes be so contrite and penitent, that his sinne is forgiuen before hee come to the Priest, but then also he must notwithstanding goe to the Priest, as these lepers did: specially whereas wee are neuer sure howe contrite we are, and because there is no true contrition, but with desire also of the Sacrament in time and place.

FVLKE. 5. They went not to the Priest to be clensed, but that they might declare, that they were clensed. And therfore this collection, of going to the Priest to shrift, is vaine and ridiculous: being nothing els, but a beggerly petition of two principles, namely, that necessitie of shrift is Gods ordinance, and that there is a Sacrament of absolution. Absolution of a Priest. Confession.

CHAP. XVIII.

The Church is taught to commit the reuenge of her persecutions to God, and to pray incessantly, for he no doubt (though in the persecution of Antichrist few wil so thinke) wil at length come. 9 We must also pray with humility, because we know not with with the Pharisee if we be iust, but we know with the Publicane that we be sinners. 15 He will haue children to be brought to him, and all to be as children. 18 What is to be done to get life euerlasting. 22 What also, to get perfection. 28 and what reward they shall haue that leaue all, yea or any part, for his sake. 31 he foretelleth of his Passion most particularly, 33 and entring into Iericho, cureth one blind man.

AND he spake also a parable to them that it behoueth ‡ alwayes to pray, and not to be wearie,

2 Saying, there was a certaine iudge in a certaine citie, which feared not God, and of man made no accompt.

3 And there was a certaine widow in that citie: and she came to him, saying, Reuenge me of mine aduersary.

4 And he would not of a long time. but afterward he sayd within himselfe, Although I feare not God, nor make accompt of man:

5 Yet because this widow is importune vpon me, I wil reuenge her, lest at the last she come and defame me.

6 And our Lord sayd, Heare what the iudge of iniquitie sayth.

7 And wil not God reuenge his elect that crie to him day and night: and will he haue patience in them?

8 I say to you that he wil quickly reuenge them. But yet the Sonne of man comming, ‖ shall he find trow you, faith in the earth?

THE GOSPEL vpon the 10. Sunday after Pentecost.

9 And he sayd also to certaine that trusted in themselues as iust, and despised others, this Parable:

10 Two men went vp into the Temple to pray: the one a Pharisee, and the other a Publicane.

11 The Pharisee standing, prayed thus with himselfe: God, I giue thee thanks that I am not as the rest of men, extorcioners, vniust, aduouterers, as also this Publicane.

‡ To take pride of fasting, tithing, or any good worke, is naught: though the works themselues bee very good.

12 ‡ I fast twise in a weeke: I giue tithes of all that I possesse.

13 And the Publicane standing afarre off would not so much as lift vp his eyes toward heauen: but he ‡ knocked his breast, saying, God be mercifull to me a sinner.

14 I say to you, this man went downe into his house iustified more then he: because euery one that exalteth himselfe, shalbe humbled: and he that humbleth himselfe, shal be exalted.

Mt.19,13. Mk.10,13.

15 * And they brought vnto him infants also that he might touch them. Which thing when the Disciples saw, they rebuked them.

16 But IESVS calling them together, said, Suffer children to come vnto me, and forbid them not, for the kingdome of heauen is for such.

17 Amen I say to you, Whosoeuer receiueth not the kingdome of God ‡ as a childe, shall not enter into it.

Mt.19,16. Mk.10,17.

18 * And a certaine Prince asked him, saying, Good master, by doing what, shall I possesse euerlasting life?

19 And

AND hee put foorth a parable vnto them to this end, that men ought alwayes to pray, and not to be weary:* Matth.24.28.

2 Saying, There was in a certaine citie a certaine Iudge, which feared not God, neither regarded man.

3 And there was a certaine widowe in the same citie, and she came vnto him, saying, ‖ Auenge me of mine aduersarie:

‖ Or, doe me iustice against mine aduersary.

4 And he would not for a while. But afterward he sayd within himselfe, Though I feare not God, nor care for man,

5 Yet because this widowe much troubleth me, I will auenge her, least shee come at the last, and make me wearie.

6 And the Lord sayd, Heare what the vnrighteous Iudge sayth.

7 And shall not God auenge his elect, which crie day and night vnto him, yea, though hee deferre them?

8 I tell you that hee will auenge them, and that quickely. Neuertheless, when the Sonne of man commeth, shall he finde faith on the earth?

9 And hee tolde this parable vnto certaine which trusted in themselues that they were righteous, and despised other:

10 Two men went vp into the Temple to pray, the one a Pharisee, and the other a Publicane.

11 The Pharisee stoode and prayed thus with himselfe, God, I thanke thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, vniust, adulterers, or as this Publicane.

12 I fast twise in the weeke, I giue tithe of al that I possesse.

13 And the Publicane standing afarre off, would not lift vp his eyes to heauen: but smote vpon his breast, saying, God be mercifull to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, this man departed home to his house iustified rather then the other: For euery one that exalteth himselfe, shall bee brought lowe: and hee that humbleth himselfe, shall bee exalted.* Mat.23.12. luke 14.11.

15 They brought vnto him also infants, that hee should touch them: when his disciples sawe, they rebuked them.

16 But Iesus when hee had called them vnto him, sayd, Suffer little children to come vnto me, and forbid them not: for vnto such belongeth the kingdome of God.

17 Verely I say vnto you, Whosoeuer shall not receiue the kingdome of God as a little child, shall in no wise enter therein.

18 And a certaine ruler asked him, saying, Good master, what ought I to doe to possesse eternall life?

19 *Iesus

19 And IESVS sayd to him, Why doest thou call me good? None is good but only God, 20 Thou knowest the commandements: Exod.20,13. Thou shalt not kil, Thou shalt not commit adultrie, thou shalt not beare false witnes, Thou shalt not steale, Honour thy father and mother.

21 Who said, Al these things haue I kept from my youth.

22 Which IESVS hearing, sayd to him, Yet one thing thou lackest: ‡ Sel al that euer thou hast, and giue to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen: and come, folowe me.

23 He hearing these things, was stroken sad: because he was very rich.

24 And IESVS seeing him stroken sad, sayd, How hardly shal they that haue money enter into the kingdome of God?

25 For it is easier for a camel to passe through the eye of a needle, then for a riche man to enter into the kingdome of God.

26 And they that heard, sayd, And who can be saued?

27 He said to thē, The things that are impossible with men, are possible with God.

28 And Peter sayd, Loe we haue left all things, and haue folowed thee.

29 Who said to them, Amen I say to you, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or ‡ wife, or children for the kingdome of God,

30 And shall not receiue much more in this time, and in the worlde to come ‡ life euerlasting.

THE GOSPEL vpon the Sunday of Quinquagesme. Mr.20,17. Mr.10,32.

31 *And IESVS tooke the twelue, and said to them, Beholde we goe vp to Hierusalem, and all things shal be consummat which were written by the Prophets of the sonne of man,

32 For he shall be deliuered to the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and scourged, and spit vpon:

33 And after they haue scourged him, they will kill him, and the third day hee shall rise againe.

34 And they vnderstoode none of these things & this worde was hid from them, and they vnderstood not ỹ things that were sayd.

35 And it came to passe, when hee drewe nigh to Iericho, a certaine blind man sate by the way, begging.

36 And when hee heard the multitude passing by, he asked what this should be.

37 And they told him that IESVS of Nazareth passed by.

38 And he cried, saying, IESVS sonne of Dauid, haue mercy vpon me.

39 And they that went before, rebuked him, that he should hold his peace. But hee cried much more, Sonne of Dauid haue mercie vpon me.

40 And

19  Iesus sayd vnto him, Why callest thou me good? None is good saue God onely.* Matth.19,16

22 When Iesus heard that, hee sayd vnto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: Sell all that thou hast, and distribute vnto the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen, and come, folowe me.

23 When he heard this, hee was very sorie: for he was very rich.

24 When Iesus sawe that he was very sorie, he sayd, Howe hardly shall they that haue money enter into the kingdome of God?

25 For it is easier for a Camel to goe thorow a needles eye, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God.

26 And they that heard it, sayd, And who then can be saued?

27 And hee said, The things which are vnpossible with men, are possible with God.

28 Then Peter sayd, Loe, wee haue forsaken all, and folowed thee. Matth.19,27. marke 10,28.

29 He said vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, there is no man that hath forsaken house, either parents, either brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdome of Gods sake,

30 Which shall not receiue manifold more in this worlde, and in the worlde to come life euerlasting.

31 Iesus tooke vnto him the twelue, and said vnto them, Beholde, wee goe vp to Hierusalem, and all things shall be fulfilled to the sonne of man that are written by the Prophets.* Matth.20,17. marke 10,32.

32 For hee shall bee deliuered vnto the Gentiles, and shalbe mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on:

34 And they vnderstoode none of all these things: and this saying was hid from them, so that they perceiued not the things which were spoken.

35  And it came to passe, that as hee was come nigh vnto Iericho, a certaine blinde man sate by the wayes side, begging.* Matth.20,29. marke 10,46.

36 And when he heard the people passe by, he asked what it meant.

37 And they sayd vnto him, that Iesus of Nazareth passeth by.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XVIII.

RHEM. 8 8. Shall he finde faith?) The Luciferians and Donatiſts vſed this place to excuſe their fall from the Church, as our Aduerſaries now doe, ſaying that it was decayed in faith when they forſooke it. To whom wee anſwere as S. Hierome and S. Auguſtine anſwered them, that Chriſt ſaith not that there ſhould be no faith left in earth: but by this maner of ſpeach inſinuateth, that at the later day in the great perſecution of Antichriſt faith ſhould be more rare, and the faithfull among ſo many wicked not ſo notorious: ſpecially that perfect faith containing deuotion, truſt, and affection toward God, which our Maiſter ſo praiſed in certaine vpon whom he wrought miracles, and by force whereof mountaines might be moued, which is rare euen when the Church floriſheth moſt. The Church erreth not in faith. *Hier. com. But by your owne confeſſion, vnder the tyrannie of Antichriſt, faith ſhall be rare, and therefore the faithfull few, and not ſo notorious, among ſo many wicked. Such we ſay was the ſtate of the Church vnder the tyrannie of the Pope, which is Antichriſt. Slander.

5 And when hee was come to the place, IESVS looking vp, saw him, and said to him, Zachæus. Zachæus, come downe in hast: because this day I must abide in thy house.

6 And he in hast came downe, and receiued him reioycing.

7 And when all sawe it, they murmured, saying that he turned in, to a man that was a sinner.

8 But Zachæus standing, saide to our Lord, Beholde the halfe of my goods, Lord, I giue to the poore: and if I haue defrauded any man of any thing, ‖ I restore fourefold.

MARGINAL NOTES. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. 1 17. Ten cities.) Marke here against the aduersaries, that the rewards of these two good seruants be diuers and vnequall, according to the diuersitie or inequalitie of their gaines, that is, their merites, and yet one receiueth the peny (Mt. 20, 9.) as well as the other, that is, heauen or life euerlasting.

FVLKE. 1 The diuersitie of the rewards we acknowledge, which are according to the diuersitie of his gifts. For of his mercie he crowneth his gifts; not our merits. August. in Psal. 70. conc. 1. Otherwise euery childe may conceiue, that the gaine of ten pounds, doth not deserue the gouernment of ten cities. Merits.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. 2 4. Went vp.) Not onely inward deuotion of faith and charitie towards Christ, but external offices of seeing, following, touching, receiuing, harbouring him, are recommended to vs in this example: euen so our manifold exteriour deuotion towards his Sacraments, Saincts and seruants, be graceful: specially the endeuour of good people not only to bee present at Masse or in the Church, but to be neere the B. Sacrament, and to see it with all reuerence and deuotion according to the order of the Church, much more to receiue it into the house of their body. Externall deuotion.

FVLKE. 2 Externall offices done to Christes person by those that beleeued in him, were acceptable to him, otherwise not. Herod desired to see Christ, the multitude followed him, and thronged him, which after were ready to cry Crucifie him. The Pharisees diuers times interteined him, Iudas kissed him. But whereas you say, the externall offices of deuotion, &c. are recommended to vs for example: we know he hath recommended the poore afflicted for his sake to be releeued, but not to be honoured in all respects as his person was, of them who acknowledged him to be the Sonne of the liuing God. As for his Sacraments and Saincts, require no such externall offices, neither are they acceptable to him or his Saincts. As for the preasing of superstitious Papists, to be neere the idole of the Masse, and to see it helde vp or caried about, contrary to the institution of the blessed Sacrament, hath no colour of defence by example of Zachæus who desired to see Christ, no although Christ were as verely to be seene in the Sacrament, as hee was in the way, seeing this Sacrament was ordeined to bee eaten and drunken, not to be gased and looked vpon. Superstition.

RHEM. 3 8. I restore foure fold.) That which we giue of our owne, is almes and satisfaction for our sinnes: but that which we restore of il gotten goods by Extortion, Vsury, Simony, Bribrie, Theft, or otherwise, that is called here Restoring. And it is of duety and not of free almes, and must be rendred not to whom we list, but to the parties annoyed if it be possible, otherwise it must be bestowed vpon the poore, or other good vses, according to the aduise of our superiour and such as haue charge of our soules. But that he yalded foure fold, that was more then he was bound, but very satisfactorie for his former sinnes also. And herewith we may note, that it is not the giuing of a peny, grote, or crowne, of a riche mans superfluitie, that is so much recommended to sinners for redeeming their faultes: but this large bestowing vpon Christ, to sell all and giue it in almes, to giue the moytie of our goods, to render foure times so much for that which is wrongfully gotten, that extinguisheth sinnes. The poore widowes brasse peny was very grateful, because it was al or much of that she had: but the riche mans pound of his superfluitie, though it be good, yet is nothing so grateful. Restitution. Satisfaction.

FVLKE. 3 Almes and all other deedes of charitie, are a duety of thankfulnesse for sinnes forgiuen, no satisfaction, as is manifest by the parable of the seruant, that ought tenne thousand talents: Matth. 6. 18. But in your discourse of restitution, you open a great mysterie of iniquitie, whereby the Iesuites, Seminaries, and other broodes of treason and impietie are mainteined, and not of the Popes meere liberalitie. For while you teach restitution to be necessary (which all good men do acknowledge) you haue found out a case whereby infinite masses of money may be brought to the Popes disposition, and such as be factours vnder him. For if the parties iniuried, be not knowen, dead, or otherwise not to be satisfied, you determine, that the goods ill gotten, must be bestowed on the poore, or vpon good vses, and that is not amisse. But you will not trust the conscience of the wrong doer, to bestow it as he list, but according to the aduise of your superiour, which is the Pope and his cleargie, which haue cure of soules. So that while you challenge to the Pope and your selues, the disposition of goods gotten wrongfully, you take vpon you an office farre worse then Iudas exercised, and by this meanes, ill gotten goods are worse bestowed, to mainteine treasons, heresies, and trecherie, and if neede be, open warres against Christian princes. But why I pray you, if the Extortioner, Vsurer, Simoniake, Briber, &c. haue the conscience to restore where he can not to the parties iniuried, which ought first to be regarded, may hee not bestow it vprightly and sincerely vpon the poore, or other good vses? Or, if he lacke aduise, why may he not take Satisfaction. The Pope challengeth the disposition of goods ill gotten.

take it of godly and wise men, though they haue not the charge of his soule, and though the Pope neuer heare of it? But whereas Zachæus restored foure folde, it was not for satisfaction of his sinnes, but a fruite of his true repentance, whereby he declared, that the iniurie he had done to any man, displeased him so much, that hee accompted it no better then theft, and therefore was content to restore, as if hee had bene conuicted of theft. Therefore, where you come in with large bestowing vpon Christ of all, or a moitie, or foure fold restitution, despising the rich mans penie, groate, or crowne, you plead well for Corban, and yet you are content to play small game, and to take euen the poore widowes mite, if shee haue no more, or not much more to giue, not contemning the riche mans pound. But why did not Christ challenge the disposition of this foure folde restitution, that Iudas might haue had the fingering of it? Or by what right may Christes good Vicar challenge that Christ did not? At least wise, if Christ could not intend it, why did he not commit the disposition of it to Peter, as his deputie in those weightie cases of conscience, reserued to his owne iurisdiction? Wee know that liberall almes of a cheerefull giuer pleaseth God, as a fruite of faith, and shall haue great reward. Hee is blinde that can not see, as well in this place, as in diuers other, how vnder colour of merite, satisfaction, extinguishing of sinne, and last of all, of restitution, you seeke not onely to deuoure poore widowes houses, but to be Lords of rich vsurers and oppressors goods.

CHAP. XX.

To the Iewes he auoucheth his power by the witnes of Iohn who was a man sent of God. 9 and foretelleth in a parable their reprobation most worthy (with the vocation of the Gentils in their place) 17 and consequently their irreparable damnation that shall ensue thereof. 20 He defeateth their snare about paying tribute to Cæsar: 27 hee answereth also the inuention of the Sadduces against the Resurrection. 40 And so hauing put them all to silence, 41 he turneth and poseth them, because they imagined that Christ should be no more but a man: 45 bidding al to beware of the Scribes (authors of the Iewes schisme from him) being ambitious and hypocrites.

11 And againe hee sent an other seruant. But they beating him also and reprochfully abusing him, sent him away emptie.

12 And againe hee sent the thirde: who wounding him also, cast him out,

13 And the lorde of the vineyard saide, What shall I doe? I will sende my beloued sonne: perhaps when they shal see him, they wil reuerence him.

14 Whom when the husbandmen saw, they thought within them selues saying, This is the heire, let vs kill him, that the heritage may be ours.

AND it came to passe, that on one of those dayes, as he taught the people in the Temple, and preached the Gospel, the high Priestes and the Scribes came vpon him, with the Elders, Matth. 21.23. mar. 11.27.

3 Hee answering, said vnto them, I will also aske you one word, and answere me.

4 The baptisme of Iohn, was it from heauen, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselues, saying, If we shall say, From heauen, he will say, Why then beleeued ye him not?

6 But and if wee say, Of men, all the people will stone vs: For they be perswaded that Iohn is a Prophet.

7 And they answered, that they coulde not tell whence it was.

8 And Iesus said vnto them, Neither tell I you by what auctoritie I do these things.

*9 Then beganne he to put forth to the people this parable: * A certaine man planted a vineyard, and let it foorth to husbandmen, and went himself into a strange country for a great season.* Esa. 5.1. iere. 2.21. matth. 21.33. marke 12.1.

10 And when the time was come, hee sent a seruant to the husbandmen, that they should giue him of the fruite of the vineyard. But they, when they had beaten him, sent him away emptie.

11 And againe, hee sent yet another seruant: but they, when they had beaten him also, and entreated him shamefully, sent him away emptie.

12 Againe, he sent the third and when they had wounded him also, they cast him out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I doe? I will send my deare sonne: it may bee they will reuerence him when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen sawe him, they reasoned within themselues, saying, This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

43 For ‡ the dayes shal come vpon thee: and thy enemies shall compasse thee with a trench, and inclose thee about, and straiten thee on euery side, 44 And beate thee flat to the ground, and thy children that are in thee, and they shall not leaue in thee a stone vpon a stone: because thou hast not knowen the time of thy visitation.

45 * And entring into the temple, he began to cast out the sellers therein & the buiers, 46 Saying to them, It is written, That my house is the house of prayer. But you haue made it a denne of theeues.

47 And hee was teaching dayly in the temple. And the chiefe Priests & the Scribes and the Princes of the people sought to destroy him:

48 And they found not what to doe to him. For all the people was suspense hearing him.

43 For the dayes shall come vpon thee, that thine enemies also shall cast a banke about thee, and compasse thee rounde, and keepe thee in on euery side,

44 And make thee euen with the ground, and thy children which are in thee: and they shall not leaue in thee one stone vpon another, because thou knowest not the time of thy visitation.

*45 * And he went into the Temple, and began to cast out them that solde therein, and them that bought,* Matth.21.12, marke 11.11.

*46 * Saying vnto them, It is written, My house is the house of prayer: but ye haue made it a denne of theeues.* Esa.56.7. iere.7.11.

47 And he taught dayly in the Temple. But the high Priests and the Scribes, and the chiefe of the people went about to destroy him, 48 And coulde not finde what to doe: for all the people did hang of him, when they heard him.

‡ This was fulfilled 40. yeeres after the death of Christ by Titus and Vespasianus, when besides incredible miseries of famine and other distresses, there perished eleuen hundred thousand, and were taken captiues 97000. the siege beginning in the very same feast, and greatest solemnitie of Easter when they put Christ to death. *Euseb. lib. 3. hist. c. 6. 7. 8. MARGINAL NOTES. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. 1 — 17. Ten cities.) Marke here against the aduersaries, that the rewards of these two good seruants be diuers and vnequall, according to the diuersitie or inequalitie of their gaines, that is, their merites, and yet one receiueth the peny (Mt. 20, 9.) as well as the other, that is, heauen or life euerlasting.

FVLKE. 1 — The diuersitie of the rewards we acknowledge, which are according to the diuersitie of his gifts. For of his mercie he crowneth his gifts, not our merits. August. in Psal. 70. conc. 1. Otherwise euery childe may conceiue, that the gaine of ten pounds, doth not deserue the gouernment of ten cities. Merits.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIX.

RHEM. 2 — 4. Went vp.) Not onely inward deuotion of faith and charitie towards Christ, but external offices of seeing, following, touching, receiuing, harbouring him, are recommended to vs in this example: euen so our manifold exteriour deuotion towards his Sacraments, Saincts and seruants, be graceful: specially the endeuour of good people not only to bee present at Masse or in the Church, but to be neere the B. Sacrament, and to see it with all reuerence and deuotion according to the order of the Church, much more to receiue it into the house of their body. Externall deuotion.

FVLKE. 2 — Externall offices done to Christes person by those that beleeued in him, were acceptable to him, otherwise not. Herod desired to see Christ, the multitude followed him, and thronged him, which after were ready to cry Crucifie him. The Pharisees diuers times interteined him, Iudas kissed him. But whereas you say, the externall offices of deuotion, &c. are recommended to vs for example: we know he hath recommended the poore afflicted for his sake to be releeued, but not to be honoured in all respects as his person was, of them who acknowledged him to be the Sonne of the liuing God. As for his Sacraments and Saincts, require no such externall offices, neither are they acceptable to him or his Saincts. As for the preasing of superstitious Papists, to be neere the idole of the Masse, and to see it helde vp or caried about, contrary to the institution of the blessed Sacrament, hath no colour of defence by example of Zachæus who desired to see Christ, no although Christ were as verely to be seene in the Sacrament, as hee was in the way, seeing this Sacrament was ordeined to bee eaten and drunken, not to be gased and looked vpon. Superstition.

RHEM. 3 — 8. I restore foure fold.) That which we giue of our owne, is almes and satisfaction for our sinnes: but that which we restore of il gotten goods by Extortion, Vsury, Simony, Bribrie, Theft, or otherwise, that is called here Restoring. And it is of duety and not of free almes, and must be rendred not to whom we list, but to the parties annoyed if it be possible, otherwise it must be bestowed vpon the poore, or other good vses, according to the aduise of our superiour and such as haue charge of our soules. But that he yelded foure fold, that was more then he was bound, but very satisfactorie for his former sinnes also. And herewith we may note, that it is not the giuing of a peny, grote, or crowne, of a riche mans superfluitie, that is so much recommended to sinners for redeeming their faultes: but this large bestowing vpon Christ, to sell all and giue it in almes, to giue the moytie of our goods, to render foure times so much for that which is wrongfully gotten, that extinguisheth sinnes. The poore widowes brasse peny was very grateful: because it was al or much of that she had: but the riche mans pound of his superfluitie, though it be good, yet is nothing so grateful. Restitution. Satisfaction.

FVLKE. 3 — Almes and all other deedes of charitie, are a duety of thankfulnesse for sinnes forgiuen, no satisfaction, as is manifest by the parable of the seruant, that ought tenne thousand talents: Matth. 6. 18. But in your discourse of restitution, you open a great mysterie of iniquitie, whereby the Iesuites, Seminaries, and other broodes of treason and impietie are mainteined, and not of the Popes meere liberalitie. For while you teach restitution to be necessary (which all good men do acknowledge) you haue found out a case whereby infinite masses of money may be brought to the Popes disposition, and such as be factours vnder him. For if the parties iniuried, be not knowen, dead, or otherwise not to be satisfied, you determine, that the goods ill gotten, must be bestowed on the poore, or vpon good vses, and that is not amisse. But you will not trust the conscience of the wrong doer, to bestow it as he list, but according to the aduise of your superiour, which is the Pope and his cleargie, which haue cure of soules. So that while you challenge to the Pope and your selues, the disposition of goods gotten wrongfully, you take vpon you an office farre worse then Iudas exercised, and by this meanes, ill gotten goods are worse bestowed, to mainteine treasons, heresies, and trecherie, and if neede be, open warres against Christian princes. But why I pray you, if the Extortioner, Vsurer, Simoniake, Briber, &c. haue the conscience to restore where he can not to the parties iniuried, which ought first to be regarded, may hee not bestow it vprightly and sincerely vpon the poore, or other good vses? Or, if he lacke aduise, why may he not take Satisfaction. The Pope challengeth the disposition of goods ill gotten.

take it of godly and wise men, though they haue not the charge of his soule, and though the Pope neuer heare of it? But whereas Zachæus restored foure folde, it was not for satisfaction of his sinnes, but a fruite of his true repentance, whereby he declared, that the iniurie he had done to any man, displeased him so much, that hee accompted it no better then theft, and therefore was content to restore, as if hee had bene conuicted of theft. Therefore, where you come in with large bestowing vpon Christ of all, or a moitie, or foure fold restitution, despising the rich mans penie, groate, or crowne, you plead well for Corban, and yet you are content to play small game, and to take euen the poore widowes mite, if shee haue no more, or not much more to giue, not contemning the riche mans pound. But why did not Christ challenge the disposition of this foure folde restitution, that Iudas might haue had the fingering of it? Or by what right may Christes good Vicar challenge that Christ did not? At least wise, if Christ could not intend it, why did he not commit the disposition of it to Peter, as his deputie in those weightie cases of conscience, reserued to his owne iurisdiction? Wee know that liberall almes of a cheerefull giuer pleaseth God, as a fruite of faith, and shall haue great reward. Hee is blinde that can not see, as well in this place, as in diuers other, how vnder colour of merite, satisfaction, extinguishing of sinne, and last of all, of restitution, you seeke not onely to deuoure poore widowes houses, but to be Lords of rich vsurers and oppressors goods.

CHAP. XX.

To the Iewes he auoucheth his power by the witnes of Iohn who was a man sent of God. 9 and foretelleth in a parable their reprobation most worthy (with the vocation of the Gentils in their place) 17 and consequently their irreparable damnation that shall ensue thereof. 20 He defeateth their snare about paying tribute to Cæsar: 27 hee answereth also the inuention of the Sadduces against the Resurrection. 40 And so hauing put them all to silence, 41 he turneth and posseth them, because they imagined that Christ should be no more but a man: 45 bidding al to beware of the Scribes (authors of the Iewes schisme from him) being ambitious and hypocrites.

TVESDAY Mt. 21,23. Mr. 11,27.

AND it came to passe: in one of the daies when he was teaching the people in the temple and euangelizing, the cheefe Priestes and the Scribes with the auncients assembled, ‡ See Annot. Marc. 11,33.

2 And spake saying to him, ‡ Tell vs, in what power doest thou these things? or, who is he that hath giuen thee this power?

3 And IESVS answering, said to them, I also wil aske you one word. Answer me,

4 The baptisme of Iohn was it from heauen, or of men?

5 But they thought within themselues, saying, That if we say, From heauen: he wil say, Why then did you not beleeue him?

6 But if we say, Of men: the whole people will stone vs: for they are certaine that Iohn is a Prophet.

7 And they answered that they knewe not whence it was.

8 And IESVS said to them, Neither doe I tel you in what power I doe these things.

Esa. 5,1. Mt. 21,33. Mr. 12,1. ‡ See the marginal annotations Marc. 12.

9 And he began to say to the people this parable, * A certaine ‡ man planted a vineyard, and let it out to husbandmen: and hee was from home a long time,

10 And in time hee sent to the husbandmen a seruant, that they should giue him of the fruite of the vineyard. Who beating him, sent him away emptie.

11 And againe hee sent an other seruant. But they beating him also and reprochfully abusing him, sent him away emptie.

12 And againe hee sent the thirde: who wounding him also, cast him out,

13 And the lorde of the vineyard saide, What shall I doe? I will sende my beloued sonne: perhaps when they shal see him, they wil reuerence him.

14 Whom when the husbandmen saw, they thought within them selues saying, This is the heire, let vs kill him, that the heritage may be ours.

15 And

*AND * it came to passe, that on one of those dayes, as he taught the people in the Temple, and preached the Gospel, the high Priestes and the Scribes came vpon him, with the Elders,* Matth. 21.23. mar. 11.27.

2 And spake vnto him, saying, Tell vs, by what auctoritie doest thou these things? Either who is he that gaue thee this auctoritie?

3 Hee answering, said vnto them, I will also aske you one word, and answere me.

4 The baptisme of Iohn, was it from heauen, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselues, saying, If we shall say, From heauen, he will say, Why then beleeued ye him not?

6 But and if wee say, Of men, all the people will stone vs: For they be perswaded that Iohn is a Prophet.

10 And when the time was come, hee sent a seruant to the husbandmen, that they should giue him of the fruite of the vineyard. But they, when they had beaten him, sent him away emptie.

12 Againe, he sent the third and when they had wounded him also, they cast him out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I doe? I will send my deare sonne: it may bee they will reuerence him when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen sawe him, they reasoned within themselues, saying, This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

15 And casting him forth out of the vineyard, they killed him. What therefore wil the Lord of the vineyard do to them?

16 Hee will come, and wil destroy these husbandmen, and will giue the vineyard to others. Which they hearing, saide to him, God forbid.

17 But he beholding them said, What is this then that is written, The stone which the builders reiected, the same is become into the head of the corner?

Pſ.117,22.

18 Euery one that falleth vpon this stone, shalbe quashed: and vpon whom it shal fall, it shal breake him to pouder.

19 And the cheefe Priestes and Scribes sought to lay handes vpon him that houre: and they feared the people. for they knewe that he spake this similitude to them.

20 *And watching, they sent spies which should feine themselues iust: that they might take him in his talke, and deliuer him to the principaltie and power of the Præsident.

Mt.22,15. Mr.12,13.

21 And they asked him, saying, Maister, wee knowe that thou speakest and teachest rightly: and thou doest not accept person, but teachest the way of God in truth.

22 Is it lawfull for vs to giue tribute to Cæsar, or no?

23 But considering their guile, he said to them, Why tempt you me?

24 Shew me a penie. Whose image hath it and inscription? They answering saide, Cæsars.

25 And he said to them, Render therfore the things that are Cæsars, ‡ to Cæsar: and the things that are Gods, to God.

‡ So duties must be done to Princes, that our duty to God be not neglected. See Annot. Mat. c. 22,15.

26 And they coulde not reprehend his worde before the people: and marueiling at his answere, they held their peace.

27 *And there came certaine of the Sadducees, which denie that there is a resurrection, and they asked him,

Mt 22,23. Mr.12,18.

29 There were therefore seuen brethren: and the first tooke a wife, and died without children.

30 And the next tooke her, and hee died without children.

31 And the thirde tooke her. In like maner also all the seuen, and they left no seede, and died.

32 Last of al the woman died also.

33 In the resurrection therefore, whose wife shal she bee of them? sithens the seuen had her to wife.

34 And IESVS saide to them, The children of this worlde marrie, and are giuen in mariage:

35 But

15 And when they had cast him out of the vineyarde, they killed him. What then shall the Lord of the vineyard do vnto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, & shall let out his vineyard to other. When they heard this, they said, God forbid.

*17 And he beheld them, and saide, * What is this then that is written, The stone that the builders disallowed, the same is become the head of the corner.*

Pſal.118.22.

18 Whosoeuer shall stumble vpon that stone, shalbe broken: but on whomsoeuer it shall fall, it will grinde him to powder.

19 And the high Priestes and the Scribes the same houre went about to lay handes on him, and they feared the people: for they perceiued that he had spoken this similitude against them.

20 And they watched him, and sent foorth spies, which shoulde faine themselues righteous men, that they might take holde of his wordes, to deliuer him vnto the power and aucloritie of the Deputie.

29 There were therefore seuen brethren, and the first, when hee had taken a wife, died without children.

30 And the second tooke her to wife, and he died childeleſſe.

31 And the third tooke her, and in likewise the residue of the seuen, and left no children behinde them, and died.

32 Last of all, the woman died also.

33 Nowe in the resurrection, whose wife of them is she? for seuen had her to wife.

34 Iesus answering, saide vnto them, The children of this worlde marrie wiues, and are married:

35 But

35 But they that ‖ ſhal be ‡ counted worthie of that world and the reſurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor take wiues,

37 But that the dead riſe againe, Moyſes alſo ſhewed, beſide the buſh, as he calleth the Lord, The God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Iacob.

RHEM. 2 35. Shall be counted worthie.) This trueth & ſpeech that good men be worthy of heauen, is according to the Scriptures, and ſignifieth that mans works done by Chriſts grace doe condignly or woorthily deſerue eternall ioy. as Sap. 3. God proued them, and found them worthy of himſelfe. and Mat. 10. He that loueth his father more then me, is not worthy of me. and Coloſ. 1. That you may walke worthy of God. and moſt plainly, Apoc. 3. They ſhall walke with me in white, becauſe they are worthy. as of Chriſt (c. 1.) Thou art worthy O Lord to receiue glory, &c. And that to be counted worthy, and to be worthy, is here all one, it is plaine, by the Greeke word, which S. Paul vſeth ſo, as the aduerſaries owne Engliſh Teſtaments do teſtifie, reading thus, Heb. 10. Of how much ſorer puniſhment ſhall he be woorthie, which &c. and it muſt needs ſo ſignifie, becauſe men for ſinnes are not onely counted, but are indeed worthy puniſhment, as themſelues doe grant. They doe greatly therefore forges themſelues, and are ignorant in the Scriptures, and know not the force nor the valure of the grace of God, which doth not only make our labours gratefull to God, but worthy of the reward which he hath prouided for ſuch as loue him. See the Annot. 2. Theſſ. 1,5.

To be worthie of heauen, or to deſerue & merit it.

The New Teſtament an. 1580. καταξιωθῆναι. ἀξιωθῆναι.

FVLKE. 2 The Scriptures neuer affirme, that good men by their works, merits, or deſerts, are worthy of heauen: but only by the grace of God in Chriſt Ieſus. In whom they are accepted as worthy. And that mans works, done by Chriſtes grace, doe condignly or woorthily deſerue eternall ioy, it is contrary to the opinion of the beſt of the Schoolemen, who vpon the ſaying of S. Paul, Rom. 8. The ſufferings of this life, are not woorthy or condigne, &c. inuented the diſtinction of Congruum and Condignum. But to examine your texts of Scripture, which you bring to proue your new Popery. The firſt being no canonicall Scripture, muſt either be vnderſtood according to the perpetuall doctrine of the canonicall Scripture, or els be reiected. By faith therefore, which is tried in temptation, they were found worthy, and not of the merit of their works. And though he that loueth his father more then Chriſt, is not worthy of him, yet it followeth not, that he which loueth Chriſt more then his father, is woorthy of Chriſt. For our ſinnes doe properly deſerue Gods wrath, but our good works, becauſe they are not perfect, nor ours, but Gods gifts in vs, deſerue not to vs Gods fauor & grace, which is freely giuen. Thirdly S. Paul prayeth that the Coloſſians may walke woorthy of God, according to his acceptation, not according to the merit of their good works in this life, but that at the length, they may be made woorthy in Chriſt their Redeemer, by whom they obteine remiſſion of their ſinnes. Fourthly, Chriſt ſheweth not what the faithfull are by the

the merit of their workes, but by acceptation of his grace, through his merits: therefore they are not called worthy, as Christ is called worthy, Apo. 5. 12. for it is said before expresly, vers. 4. that none was found worthy to open the booke, and to read it: but the words you cite, be Apoc. 4. 11. and are spoken of the Godhead himselfe. Behold into what horrible blasphemy you runne; while you maintaine the merit of mans works (though done by the grace of Christ) to make men as worthy of the ioyes of heauen by them, as God is of glory, power, and maiestie of his owne nature. And whereas you say it is all one; to be counted worthy, and to be worthy indeed by the Greeke, it is false. For though in one of our English translations it be once so translated, peraduenture the word (counted) being omitted through ouersight, yet the wicked are not vniust onely by imputation, but by merit of sinne and vnrighteousnesse that is inherent: whereas the righteous are not perfectly iust, by merit of iustice inherent, but by imputation of the righteousnesse of Christ through faith. Neither are we so ignorant of the Scripture, but that we know the dignitie of Gods grace, whereby not onely we are accepted, but also our labours rewarded, but altogether of the grace of God, and not of the merit of our works, which are not made worthy of reward, (for then they should be perfect) but in the merits and worthinesse of Christ, are counted worthy of eternall life.

RHEM. 3 36. Equall to Angels.) Saints of our kinde, now in their soules, and after their resurrection in body and soule together, shalbe in all things equall to Angels: and for degree of blisse, many Saints of greater merit shalbe aboue diuers Angels: as S. Iohn Baptist, the Apostles, and others, and our B. Lady aboue all the orders of holy spirits in dignity and blisse. and no marueil, our nature by Christ being so highly exalted aboue all Angels. The dignitie of Saints.

FVLKE. 3 Our Sauiour sayth not, that the Saints are now, but after the resurrection they shall be equall to the Angels. Neither sayth he, in all things, but in that, they shall haue no need or vse of mariage. That any Saints, as the B. Virgin Mary, Iohn Baptist, the Apostles, shall be aboue all Angels in dignitie, the Scripture doth not teach, therefore it is presumptuously, and blindly, though neuer so boldly, affirmed. The Saints departed not like the Angels in all points.

CHAP. XXI.

He commendeth the poore widow for her two mites, aboue all. 5 Hauing sayd that the Temple shalbe quite destroyed, 7 he foretelleth first many things that shall goe before, 20 then a signe also when it is neere, after which shall come the destruction it selfe in most horrible manner, without hope of restitution, vntill all Nations of the Gentils be gathered into his Church in the very end of the world. 25 And then what signes shall come of the last day, terrible to the world, 28 but comfortable to vs of his Church, 34 so that we be alwayes watchfull.

Mr. 12, 41. AND beholding, he saw them that did cast their giftes into the treasurie, rich persons.

2 And hee saw also a certeine poore widow casting two brasse mites.

3 And hee said, Verily I say to you, that this poore widow hath cast more then all.

4 For all these of their abundance haue cast into the gifts of God: but she ‖ of her penury, hath cast in all her liuing that she had.

5 And certeine saying of the temple that it was adorned with goodly stones and donaries, he said,

Mt. 24, 1. Mar. 13, 1. 6 These things which you see, *the daies will come wherein ‡ there shall not be left a stone vpon a stone that shal not be destroied.

TVESDAY night. ‡ This was fulfilled 40 yeres after ỹ death of Christ, the 19 of August, being the verie moneth and day wherein the Babylonians burnt it: from the first building thereof by Salomõ 1130 yeeres, from the reedifying thereof vnder Cyrus, 639 yeres. Iosep. de bel. Iud. li. 7. cap 10.

7 And they asked him, saying, Maister, when shall these things be: and what shall be the signe when they shall begin to come to passe?

8 Who said, See you be not seduced. for ‡ many will come in my name, saying that I am he: and the time is at hand, go not therefore after them.

‡ Many false-prophets & heretiks. See Annot. Mt. 24. Mr. 13.

9 [b] And when you shall heare of warres and seditions, be not terrified: these things must first come to passe, but the end is not yet by and by.

[b] THE GOSPEL for many Martyrs.

10 Then he said to them, nation shal rise against nation, and kingdome against kingdome.

11 And there shalbe great earth-quakes in places, and pestilences and famins, and terrours from heauen, and there shall be great signes.

12 But before all these things they will ‡ lay their handes vpon you: and persecute you deliuering you into synagogues and prisons, ‡ Great persecution of Catholike men.

AS he looked vp, *he saw the rich men, which cast their gifts into the treasurie. Marke 12. 41.

2 He saw also a certeine poore widow, casting in thither two mites.

3 And hee sayde, Of a trueth I say vnto you, that this poore widow hath put in more then they all.

4 For all these haue of their superfluitie cast in vnto the offerings of God, but she of her penury hath cast in all the liuing that she had.

5 * And vnto some that spake of the temple, how it was garnished with goodly stones and gifts, he sayd, Matth. 24. 1. marke 13. 1. luke 19. 43.

6 As for those things which ye beholde, the dayes will come, in the which there shal not be left one stone vpon another, they shall not be throwen downe.

7 And they asked him, saying, Master, when shall these things be? and what signe will there be, when these things shall come to passe?

8 And he sayd, Take heed that ye be not deceiued: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and the time draweth neere: go ye not therefore after them.

9 But when yee shall heare of warres and seditions, be not afrayed: for these things must first come to passe, but the ende followeth not by and by.

10 Then sayd hee vnto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdome against kingdome:

11 * And great earthquakes shalbe in diuers places, and hungers, and pestilences, and fearefull things: and great signes shall there be from heauen. Matth. 24. 8. marke 13. 8.

12 But before all these, they shall lay their handes on you, and persecute you, deliuering you vp to the Synagogues, and into prisons, and shall bring sons, drawing you to Kings and Presidents for my name.

13 And it shal happen vnto you for testimonie.

14 Lay vp this therefore in your hearts, not to premeditate how you shall answere.

15 For I will giue you mouth and wisedome, which all your aduersaries shall not be able to resist and gainsay.

16 And you shall be deliuered vp of your parents & brethren, and kinsemen & friends: and they will put to death of you.

17 And you shal be odious to all men for my name:

18 And a haire of your head shall not perish.

19 In your patience you shal possesse your soules.

20 And when you shall see Hierusalem compassed about with an armie: then know that the desolation thereof is at hand.

21 Then they that are in Iewrie, let them flee to the mountaines: and they in the mids therof, let them depart: and they in the countreys, let them not enter into it.

22 For these are the dayes of vengeance, that all things may be fulfilled that are written.

23 But woe to them that are with childe and that giue sucke in those dayes. for there shall be great affliction vpon the land, and wrath on this people.

24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword: and shall be led captiue into all nations. and Hierusalem shall be troden of the Gentiles: till the times of nations be fulfilled.

THE GOSPEL vpon the first Sunday in Aduent. Eze.32.7. Ioel 3.15.

25 * And there shall be signes in the Sun and the Moone and the Starres: and vpon earth distresse of nations, for the confusion of the sound of sea and waues,

26 Men withering for feare and expectation, what shal come vpon the whole world. for the powers of heauen shalbe moued:

27 And then they shall see the Sonne of man comming in a cloude with great power and maiestie.

28 But when these things begin to come to passe, looke vp and lift vp your heads: because your redemption is at hand.

29 And he spake to them a similitude. See the fig tree and all trees:

31 So you also when you shall see these things come to passe, know that the kingdome of God is nigh.

32 Amen I say to you, that this generation shall not passe, till all be done.

33 Heauen and earth shall passe: but my words shall not passe.

34 And looke well to your selues, lest perhaps bring you vnto Kings and Rulers for my names sake.

*14 * Be at a sure point therefore in your hearts, not to study before what ye shall answere.* Luke 12.12. matth.10.19. marke 13.11.

15 For I will giue you a mouth and wisdome, whereagainst all your aduersaries shal not be able to speake, nor resist.

16 Yea, yee shall be betrayed also of your parents, and brethren, and kinsefolks, and friends, and some of you shall they put to death,

17 And hated shall yee be of all men for my names sake.

*18 * And there shall in no case one haire of your head perish.* Matth.10.30.

19 Possesse ye your soules by your patience.

*20 * And when ye shall see Hierusalem besieged with an host, then be sure that the desolation of the same is nigh.* Matth.24.15.

21 Then let them which are in Iurie, flee to the mountaines, and let them which are in the mids of it, depart out, and let not them that are in other countreys, enter therein.

22 For these be the dayes of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

23 But woe vnto them that are with childe, and to them that giue sucke in those dayes, for there shalbe great distresse in the land, and wrath ouer this people.

24 And they shal fall through the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captiue into all nations, and Hierusalem shall be troden downe of the Gentiles, vntill the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

*25 * And there shall be signes in the Sunne, and in the Moone, and in the Starres, and vpon the earth trouble among the nations, with perplexitie, the sea and the water roaring:* Esay.13.10. ezec.32.7. matt.24.29. mar.13.24.

FVLKE. 1 The godly may take great profit of solitarinesse, though they go not into the wildernesse. Yet idle in solitarinesse, is not so good, as well occupied in the Church.

Of her penurie.) To offer or giue almes of our superfluities, is not so acceptable nor meritorious, as to bestow some of that which is of our necessary prouision, and which we may hardly spare from our selues: for, that proceedeth of greater zeale, will, and intention, which be more respected of God then the substance of the gift.

FVLKE. 2 No almes is meritorious in any respect, nor any almes is acceptable, without true faith and loue. Beda allegorizing this widow to be the Church, sayth, The Church casteth all her liuing into the gifts of God: which vnderstandeth euen all that she liueth not to be of her merit, but of Gods gift, when she sayth, God be mercifull to me a sinner.

CHAP. XXII.

Iudas doth sell him to the Iewes. 7 After the old Paschal, 19 he giueth to his disciples the bread of life in a mystical sacrifice of his body and bloud, for an euerlasting commemoration of his Passion. 21 He couertly admonisheth the traitour. 24 Against their ambitious contention hee sheweth them that the maiority of any among them in this world is for their seruice, as his owne also was: 28 and how he will exalt them all in the world to come: 31 foretelling Peter the * singular priuiledge of his faith neuer failing, 33 and his three negations: 35 and how they shall all now be put to their shifts. 39 And that night, after his prayer with sweating of bloud, 47 he is taken of the Iewes men, Iudas being their captaine: yet shewing them both by miracle and word, that they could do nothing vnto him but by his owne permission. 54 Then in the chiefe Priests house he is thrise denied of Peter, 63 shamefully abused of his keepers, 66 and in the morning impiously condemned of their Councell, for confessing himselfe to be the Sonne of God.*

23 And they began to question among themselues, which of them it should be that should doe this.

Mt.20,25. Mr.10,42. 24 *And there fell also a contention betweene them, which of them seemed to bee greater.

25 And he said to them, The kings of the Gentiles ouerrule them: and they that haue power vpon them, are called beneficiall.

26 But you not so: but he that is the greater among you, let him become as the yoonger: and he that is the leader, as the waiter.

27 For which is greater, he that sitteth at the table, or he that ministreth? is not he that sitteth? but I am in the middes of you, as hee that ministreth:

28 And you are they that haue remained with me in my tentations.

29 And I dispose to you, as my father disposed to me, a kingdome:

17 And when he had taken the cup, and giuen thanks, hee sayd, Take this, and diuide it among you.

28 Yee are they which haue continually bidden with me in my temptations.

29 And I appoint vnto you a kingdome, as my father hath appointed vnto me, THVRSDAY night. Mat.26,36. Mar.14,32. Ioa.18,1. 39 *And going forth he went according to his custome into mount Oliuet. And his Disciples also followed him.

40 And when he was come to the place, he sayd to them, Pray, lest ye enter into tentation.

41 And he was pulled away from them a stones cast: and kneeling he prayed, 42 Saying, Father, if thou wilt, transfer this chalice from me. But yet not my will, but thine be done.

43 And there appeared to him an Angel from heauen, strengthening him. And being in an agonie, he prayed the longer.

44 And his sweat became as droppes of bloud trickling downe vpon the earth.

45 And when he was risen vp from prayer, and was come to his Disciples, hee found them sleeping for pensiuenesse.

46 And he said to them, Why sleepe you? arise, pray, lest you enter into tentation.

47 As he was yet speaking, behold a multitude: and he that was called Iudas, one of the Twelue, went before them, and approched to IESVS, for to kisse him.

48 And IESVS sayd to him, Iudas with a kisse doest thou betray the sonne of man?

49 And they that were about him, seeing what would be, sayd to him, Lord, shall we strike with the sword?

50 And one of them smote the seruant of the high Priest: and cut off his right eare.

51 But IESVS answering, said, Suffer ye thus farre. And when hee had touched his eare, he healed him.

36 Then sayd he vnto them, But now he that hath a wallet, let him take it vp, and likewise his scrip: and he that hath none, let him sell his coat, and buy a sword.

*37 For I say vnto you, that yet the same which is written must be performed in me, which is, * Euen among the wicked was hee reputed:* Esa.53.12. For those things which are written of mee, haue an end.

43 And there appeared an Angel vnto him from heauen, comforting him.

44 And he was in an agonie, and he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat was like droppes of bloud, trickling downe to the ground.

45 And when hee rose vp from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for heauinesse.

59 And after the space as it were of one houre, a certeine other man affirmed, saying, Verely this fellow also was with him. for he is also a Galilæan.

60 And Peter said, Man I know not what thou sayest. And incontinent as hee was yet speaking, the cocke crew.

61 And our Lord turning looked on Peter. And Peter remembred the word of our Lord, as he had sayd, That before the cocke crow, thou shalt thrise denie me.

62 And Peter going forth a doores, wept bitterly.

63 And the men that held him, mocked him, beating him.

64 And they did blindfold him, & smote his face. And they asked him, saying, Prophesie, who is it that smote thee?

65 And baspheming many other things they sayd against him.

66 And when it was day, there assembled the ancients of the people and chiefe Priests and Scribes, and they brought him into their councell, saying,

67 If thou be Christ tell vs. And he said to them, If I tell you, you will not beleeue me:

68 If also I aske, you will not answere me, nor dimisse me.

56 But when a certain wench beheld him as hee sate by the fire, and earnestly looked vpon him, shee sayd, This same fellow was also with him.

57 And hee denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

58 And after a while another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not.

59 And about the space of an houre after, an other affirmed saying, Verily this fellow was with him also: for he is of Galilee.

60 And Peter sayd, Man, I wote not what thou sayest. And immediatly while he yet spake, the cocke crew.

62 And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63 And the men that held Iesus, mocked him, and smote him.

64 And when they had blindfolded him, they strooke him on the face, and asked him, saying, Areed, who is it that smote thee?

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

68 And if I aske you, you will not in any wise answere me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shal the sonne of man sit on the right hand of the power of God.

70 Then sayde they all, Art thou then the sonne of God? He said, Ye say that I am.

71 And they sayd, What need we any further witnesse? For wee our selues haue heard of his owne mouth.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. XXII.

HEM. I 20. THIS IS THE CHALICE.) The Greeke is here so plaine, that there was very bloud in the Chalice shed for vs, that Beza saith it is a corruption in the Greeke. See the Annot. vpon this place.

YLKE, I The Greeke maketh nothing for very bloud in the Chalice, but speaketh of the bloud of Christ, shed vpon the Crosse: for in the Chalice it was not shed, but the Cup is the New Testament, in the bloud of Christ, shed vpon the Crosse, for the redemption of the world. Reall presence.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXII.

RHEM. 2 15. With desire I haue desired) This great desire he had to eat this Paschal lambe, was not for it selfe, which he had celebrated many yeeres before: but because he meant immediatly after the Paschal of the Law was sacrificed and eaten, to institute the other new Paschal in the oblation and eating of his owne body, by which the olde Paschal should end and be fulfilled, and in which the olde Testament and Law ceasing, the kingdome of God (which is the state of the new Testament and of his Church) should begin. For, the very passage from the olde Law to the new was in this one supper. The olde Paschal ceaseth, & a new is instituted.

FVLKE. 2 Christ our Paschal lambe, was sacrificed on the Crosse, where he was slaine for vs, 1. Cor. 5. 7. A Sacrament and memoriall of which oblation, he instituted in his last supper. The Sacrament no sacrifice propitiatory.

RHEM. 3 17. Taking the chalice.) This chalice according to the very euidence of the text is selfe also, is not the second part of the holy Sacrament, but that solemne cuppe of wine which belonged as a libament to the offering and eating of the Paschal lambe. Which being a figure specially of the holy Chalice, was there drunken by our Sauiour, and giuen to the Apostles also, with declaration that it should be the last cuppe of the Law, not to be drunken any more, till it should be drunken new in the kingdome of God, that is to say, in the celebration of the B. Sacrament of his bloud of the new Testament. And by this place it seemeth very like that the words in S. Matthew, I will not drinke of the fruit of the vine, &c. were pertaining to this cuppe of the olde Law, and not to the holy Sacrament, though they be there by repetition or recapitulation spoken after the holy Chalice. Two cups or chalices at Christes last supper. Mat. 26, 19.

FVLKE. 3 Whether there were two cuppes diuided, or one onely whereof S. Luke speaketh here by anticipation, certaine it is, by S. Matthew and S. Marke, and the consent of all the ancient writers, that these words, I will not drinke of the fruit of the vine, were spoken of the cup of the new Testament. And although they were not, yet you could not so auoid the fruit of the vine: for according to your owne exposition, he did drinke the fruit of the vine now in the kingdome of God, which is the celebration of the B. Sacrament of his bloud in the newe Testament. Transubstantiation.

RHEM. 4 19. This is my body.) Although sense tell thee it is bread, yet it is the body, according to his words. let faith confirme thee, iudge not by sense, after the words of our Lord let no doubt rise in thy mind. Cyril. mystag. 4. Of the veritie of flesh and bloud there is left no place to doubt: by the profession of our Lord himselfe, and by our faith, it is flesh and bloud indeed. Is not this trueth? To them be it vntrue, which denie IESVS CHRIST to be true God. Hilar. lib. 8. de Trinit. The reall presence.

FVLKE. 4 As the bread of the Eucharist, after the inuocation of the holy Ghost, is no more common bread, but is the body of Christ, so also this holy ointment, is no more bare ointment, nor (if a man had rather so call it) common ointment, after it is consecrated, but it is the gracious gift of Christ, which through the comming of the holy Ghost to it, by his diuinity hath power to worke. Cyril. myst. 3. As the ointment is the grace or gift of Christ, so the Sacrament is the body of Christ by his iudgement, nor any other transubstantiation in the one, then in the other. Of the veritie of Christes flesh and bloud, we doubt not: neither doe we doubt, But that the same being eaten and drunken, doe bring to passe, that both Christ is in vs, and we in Christ: which words because you denie the sense of them, you haue gelded out of S. Hilaries saying: which declare that he speaketh of a spirituall maner of eating, as he sayth before: We do truely vnder a mystery, receiue the flesh of his body, and thereby we shall be one, because the Father is in him, and he in vs. Reall presence.

RHEM. 5 19. Which is giuen.) *As the former words make and proue his body present, so these words plainly signifie, that it is present, as giuen, offered or sacrificed for vs: and being vttered in the * Present tense, it signifieth not onely that it should afterward be giuen or offered on the Crosse, but that it was then also in the Sacrament giuen and offered for vs. Whereby it is inuincibly prooued that his body is present as an host or sacrifice: and that the making or consecrating thereof must needs be sacrificing. And therefore the holy Fathers in this sense call it a sacrifice.* Nissen. orat. 1. de resur. Leo. ser 7. & 8. de Pass. Hesychius. li. 2. in Leuit. cap. 8. FVLKE. 5 The former words proue no presence, but mysticall and sacramentall, yet that Christ is truely receiued of the faithfull. The word of the Present tense, Which is giuen, signifieth, that the body of Christ was then giuen to be offered on the Crosse, and not in the Sacrament. For Christ offered himselfe but once, like as he died but once, and by one oblation found eternall redemption, and made perfect for euer those that are sanctified. Heb. 7. 27. cap. 9. 12. 25. 26. 28. cap. 10. 10. 12. 14. Against these plaine testimonies of the Scripture, what blasphemie is it to say, he offered himselfe twise, died twise, shed his bloud in sacrifice twise? yea to set vp a continuall repetition of that sacrifice which was singular, because once offered it was sufficient, which none could offer but himselfe, who is an eternall Priest void of sinne, immortall, and which hee offered by his eternall spirit. Heb. 7. 24. 26. 27. 28. cap. 9. 14. And therefore the holy Fathers of the Primitiue church, doe not call the celebration of the Lordes Supper a sacrifice in that sense, you say, but because a spirituall sacrifice of thankesgiuing is offered therein: and vnproperly, because it is a memory of the onely sacrifice of Christ offered on the Crosse. Not one of them saith it is a sacrifice propitiatory, or that Christ offered himselfe twise, or died twise for vs. No not Gregory Nissen, whom you place in the first ranke, because he seemeth to say most for you: for his scope is to proue, that Christ suffered death of his owne will, not by necessitie of nature, or malice of his enemies: and therefore he sayth, He tarried not for the necessity that hung ouer him of Iudas treason, nor the violence of the Iewes, as theeues, nor the vniust sentence of Pilate, that their malice should be the beginning and cause of the common saluation of men: but preuented it by his owne purpose, and by a secret kinde of sacrifice, which could not be seene of men, he offereth himselfe a sacrifice for vs, and sacrificeth an oblation, being both the Priest and the Lambe of God, which taketh away the sinne of the world. When did he performe that? when he gaue to his Disciples being gathered together, his body to be eaten, and his bloud to be drunken, then he openly declared, that the sacrifice of the Lambe was already finished. For the body of a sacrifice is not meet to be eaten, if it be liuing: wherefore when he gaue his body to be eaten, and his bloud to be drunken vnto his Disciples, his body was already offered by a secret and inuisible meanes, as it pleased the power of him, that worketh the mystery. And his life was in them in whom the same power layed it downe, and together with the diuine vertue that was ioyned with it, was in that region of the heart. Therefore if any man will beginne to measure the time from thence, when the sacrifice was made to God by that great high Priest, which by a meane that could not be expressed in words, nor seene with eyes, offered as it were a Lambe, he shall not depart from the truth. These words of Nissen declare, that Christ in purpose of his death, offered himselfe to God, before he was slaine of the Iewes: not that he instituted Reall presence. Sacrifice of the Masse.

suited a sacrifice to be offered of others signifying, that the actuall oblation of himselfe on the Crosse, was the execution of that he purposed before, and not of the malice of his enemies, as it was a sacrifice. Also he sheweth, that this myStecall sacrifice in purpose and will, was offered by himselfe, and could be offered by none other, no more then the execution thereof by his actuall death. Therefore, though in shew of his wordes, you deceaue of great aide, yet in substance of matter he helpeth you nothing at all: but if he be well marked, maketh much against you. Leo in neither of both the sentences, calleth the Lords supper a sacrifice, but speaketh of the onely sacrifice of Christ offered on the Crosse. In the former hee saith, that Iesus being certaine of his purpose and void of feare in the worke of his fathers disposition finished the olde Testament, and did erect a new Pascha: for when his disciples sate downe with him, to eat the mysticall Supper, which in Caiphas hall they were preparing: Christ minding to shew the ordaining the Sacraments of his body and bloud, did teach what manner of sacrifice should be offered, not removing from that mystery the ceremonies. The sacrament of his body and bloud did shew, that his body & bloud should be that sacrifice, which he should offer. For eating this bread, and drinking this cup, we shew the Lords death; wherein his body and bloud was sacrificed. If you aske of Leo, where, and when this sacrifice was offered, in the next sentence he telleth you: Christ our Pascha (as the Apostle saith) was slaine, who offering himselfe a new and true sacrifice of reconciliation to his father, was crucified not in the temple, the vsuall place whereof now was euded, nor within the compasse of the city, which was to be destroyed for the guilt of the wickednesse thereof, but abroad and without the tents: that the mystery of the olde sacrifices ceasing, a newe sacrifice should be layd on a new altar, and the Crosse of Christ should not be the altar of the temple, but of the whole world. Of the same sacrifice he speaketh in the next to the verie last. Now also the verities of our shall sacrifices ceasing, that one oblation of his body and bloud, fulfilleth the differences of all sacrifices: for he is the true Lambe of God, which taketh away the sinnes of the world, and doth so performe all mysteries in thy selfe, that as there is one sacrifice for all oblations, so there is one kingdome of all Nations. These words of Leo, as euery man may see, pertaine to the death of Christ, which fulfilled the difference of all sacrifices: which thing, if it had been done by a sacrifice in the Supper, the sacrifice of his death had been needlesse. Hesychius calleth the Lords Supper a sacrifice, by allusion vnto the olde sacrifices, and as it is a memorie of the onely true sacrifice of Christes death, saying: Aaron and his sonnes, doe rightly eate it: for except Christ entreated by the words of the Priests, do come himselfe, and sanctifie the Sacrifices, and declare those things which are done, they are by no meanes made the Lords sacrifice. The same matter is he saith a little before, to be both bread and flesh. And lib. 1. he saith, that the Gnosse did make the flesh of Christ, which was vnpossible to be eaten before his Passion: for who desired to eat the flesh of God? we for meat after his Passion. For if he had not been crucified, we should not eat the sacrifice of his body. But now we eat that meat, receiuing the remembrance of his Passion. These places of Helychius, do open his meaning sufficiently, in what sense he calleth the B. Sacrament a sacrifice. Gregory liued in a corrupt time, more then sixe hundred yeeres after Christ, yet that he neuer held it a sacrifice properly, but figuratiuely, it appeareth in the fifth place by you quoted most plainely. But is it necessary, when we do these things, that we slay our selues in contrition of heart vnto God? for we which doe celebrate the mysteries of our Lords Passion, ought to follow that we doe. Therefore it shall then be truely a sacrifice to God for vs, when we haue made our selues a sacrifice. See you not that it is a spirituall sacrifice, as the sacrifice of ourselues?

Cyrillus, though not so ancient as the bishop of Hierusalem, whose title the booke of Mystagogie doeth carie, yet doeth expressly call it a spirituall sacrifice. Dionysius calleth it often ægyptius, a sacrifice or holy worke: yet by many words declareth, that he meaneth a sacrifice of praise and thankesgiuing for the death of Christ, wherein is the Sacrament a memoriall. How should the diuine Ministers (saith he) be otherwise performed in vse, if the remembrance of the visibly works of God, were not alwayes vsed with praises and sacrifices of the Priests. For this we do, (as the Scripture sayth) in the remembrance of him. In Ignatius is nothing but the name of sacrifice, which sheweth not what kinde of sacrifice, and therefore if we should admit that Epistle as authenticall, it is nothing to the purpose, to or fro. But Iustinus doeth most expressly say, it is a sacrifice of thankesgiuing, and that Christians haue none other sacrifice: in the, &c. For I my selfe do affirme, that prayers and thankesgiuing (made by worthy persons) are the onely perfect and acceptable sacrifices to God. For these are the onely sacrifices that Christians haue receiued to make, to be put in mind by their dry and moist nourishment, of the passion which God the Sonne of God, is recorded to haue suffered for them. Where is now the sacrifice propitiatory of the body and bloud of Christ? Likewise Ireneus (speaking of the celebration of the Lords supper) calleth it an oblation which the Church in all the world doth offer to God, euen to him which giueth vs nourishment, the first fruits of his gifts in the new Testament, according to the prophesie of Malachy. Which afterward cap. 33. he interpreteth to be the prayers of Saints. And cap. 34. he saith, We offer vnto him not as to one that hath need, but giuing thankes for his gift, and sanctifying the creature. Tertullian in neither of both the places hath any more then the name of sacrifice, whereby he meaneth the publike prayers and thankesgiuing of the Christians. We sacrifice (saith he) for the Emperours health, but to our God and his, and as God hath commanded, with pure prayer. Ad scapul. Likewise the prophesie of Malachy, he interpreteth of spirituall sacrifices. Aduersus Iudæos: namely setting forth of Gods glory, blessing, praise and hymnes. Aduersus Marc. lib. 3. and simple prayer out of a pure conscience. lib. 4. Other sacrifices then these Tertullian neuer knew. Cyprian in his Epistle to Cæcilius, declareth sufficiently that the sacrifice whereof he speaketh, is onely a memoriall of thankesgiuing for the passion of Christ. Because (saith he) we make mention of his passion, in all sacrifices (for the sacrifice which we offer, is the passion of our Lord) we ought to do nothing but that which he did. And so it is called by Rabanus Maurus, who liued 800 yeres after Christ, and yet sheweth that there was none other sacrifice in his time. De instit. Cler. lib. 1. cap. 32. The celebration of the Supper therefore is a sacrifice, as it is the Passion of Christ, namely, a thankefull memoriall of the sacrifice of Christes Passion.

Eusebius is as plaine as is possible for the sacrifice of praise & thankesgiuing, prayers and memoriall of Christs one sacrifice offered on the Crosse. τὴν &c. A memory of this sacrifice we haue receiued to celebrate, at the table by the signes of his body, and of his healthfull bloud, according to the diuine lawes of the New Testament. Againe he concludeth the whole matter of sacrifice in these words, We offer sacrifice and incense, when we celebrate the memory of that great sacrifice according to the mysteries deliuered concerning it. And offering to God for our saluation, thankesgiuing by deuout hymnes and prayers: and when we sacrifice our selues vnto him wholly, and to his word, the high Priest leaning on him with body and soule? What can be plainer against your blasphemous sacrifice? Nazianzen only nameth the oblation of vnbloudy sacrifice, by which we are vnited to Christ, and made partakers of his passion and diuinity, meaning doubtlesse the memoriall of that sacrifice. For the propitiatory sacrifice of the body of Christ, for the redemption of the world, he calleth, The sacrifice that cannot be sacrificed, or the vnofferable sacrifice. In sanct. pasch. Or. 4. And the Sacrament it selfe, he calleth, The figures of saluation. Ad imper. Iuse. Chrysostome (as other ancient Fathers doe) diuers times calleth the Sacrament, a sacrifice: but in one place he expoundeth his meaning so plainly, as no man but he that is ouercome with impudence, would wrangle any longer about that terme. For resoluing that doubt, how Christ is said to be offered daily, whom the Apostle to the Hebrewes, teacheth to haue offered himselfe but once, he concludeth in these words, This which we doe, is done in remembrance of that which was done. For do this (saith he) in remembrance of me: we offer not another sacrifice, as the high Priest, but the same alwaye but rather we worke the remembrance of a sacrifice. In ep. ad Heb. Hom. 17. Ambrose in the former place, saith, Therefore hauing in remembrance his most glorious passion and resurrection from the dead, and ascension into heauen, we offer vnto thee this vndefiled sacrifice, this reasonable sacrifice, this vnbloudy sacrifice, this holy bread and cup of eternall life. And in the first chapter of that same booke, he saith, This reasonable oblation, is the figure of the body & bloud of Christ, meaning, a holy signe for memory of Christ offered on the Crosse. In the second place which you quote, he saith, Before a lambe was offered, now Christ is offered, he is offered as a man, as receiuing passion, and he offereth himselfe as Priest, that he may remit our sinnes: but here in an image, there in truth, where he maketh intercession for vs as an aduocate with the Father. Marke that Christ is not offered here in truth, but in an image or similitude: and that he is not offered by the Priest, but by himselfe as he was on the Crosse, seeing the Sacrament is an image and representation of that sacrifice, not a sacrifice in trueth.

Herein also diuers times vseth the name of sacrifice, but his meaning was none other, then of the rest of the fathers in that time. Christ (saith he) offered in the figure of his bloud, wine and not water. Againe he calleth the institution of the Sacrament, The mystery which he inuested for a figure of his passion, and of preseruing the vnitie of his body. Here is not a sacrifice propitiatory of the body and bloud of Christ, but bread and wine offered in a figure of his body and blood, and of his Passion. Augustine likewise calleth it a sacrifice, but not in that sense you say: For thus he writeth of it: Christ is our Priest for euer according to the order of Melchisedech, which offered himselfe a sacrifice for our sinnes, and hath commended the similitude of that sacrifice to be celebrated in the remembrance of his Passion: that the same thing which Melchisedech offered to God, now we see to be offered in the Church of Christ through out the whole world. Oslog. trium quæst. 61. Now chuse whether you will say, that Melchisedech offered praise and thanksgiuing, or bread and wine. For the naturall body of Christ he did not offer. But the same that Melchisedech offered, the Church doth offer, a similitude of the sacrifice of Christs death. Againe he saith, This is the sacrifice of the Christian, we being many, are one body: which also the Church frequenteth in the Sacrament of the altar known vnto the faithfull: where it is shewed vnto her, that in the same oblation which she offereth, she her selfe is offered. De ciuitate Dei, lib. 10. cap. 6. Againe, speaking of the sacrifice of Christes death, he saith, He himselfe is the Priest that offereth, he himselfe is the oblation, of which thing he would the dayly sacrifice of the Church to be a Sacrament, seeing he is the head of his owne body: and she is the body of the same head. As well she by him, as he by her accustomed to be offered. Cap. 20. And most plainly against Faustus the Manichee. l. 20. cap. 21. Sed quid agam &c. But what shall I do, and whom shall I make manifest to so great blindnesse of the heretike, what force that hath which is sung in the Psalmes. The sacrifice of praise shall glorifie me: and there is the way where I will shew my sauing health: The flesh and bloud of this sacrifice before the comming of Christ, was promised by sacrifices of similitudes: in the Passion of Christ, it was giuen: by the truth it selfe after the ascension of Christ, it is celebrated by the Sacrament of remembrance. Much more hath Augustine in other places, but this is sufficient to declare, in what sense he calleth the celebration of the Lordes Supper a sacrifice.

Fulgentius also, which followed him much in doctrine, thereof thus writeth, Firmissimè tene, &c. Holde this most stedfastly, and doubt nothing that God the onely begotten Sonne, the Word, being made flesh, offered himselfe for vs, a sacrifice and oblation of sweet fauour to God: to whom with the Father and the holy Ghost, by the Patriarches, Prophets & Priests, in the time of the olde Testament beasts were sacrificed: and to whom now, that is in the time of the new Testament, with the Father and the holy Ghost with whom he is one God, the holy Catholike Church ceaseth not to offer the sacrifice of bread and wine in faith and loue. For in those carnall sacrifices there was a figuring of the flesh of Christ, which he himselfe being without sinne, was to offer for our sinnes, and of that bloud which he was to shed for the remission of our sinnes. But in this sacrifice there is thankesgiuing and commemoration of the flesh of Christ, which he offered for vs, and of the bloud which the same God shed for vs. Marke that Christ is not offered to God his Father, but the sacrifice of bread & wine to Christ, with the Father and the holy Ghost, for thanksgiuing and remembrance of the death of Christ.

Your next quotation is, of all the Greeks vpon the 9. to the Hebrewes. For Chrysostoms iudgement you haue it before, that the oblation of the Church, is rather a remembrance of a sacrifice, then a sacrifice properly.

Theophylact, following him, in Heb. 10. saith, Here ariseth a question, Whether we also do offer vnbloudy sacrifices? I answere, We do: but we keepe a remembrance of the Lords death, and it is one, not many sacrifices, seeing he was offered but once. For we offer the same Christ alwayes, they rather we keepe a memory of that oblation, where in he offered himselfe, as though it were done now. These words are manifest, that it is called a sacrifice figuratiuely, and vnproperly, which is rather a memoriall of the sacrifice offered by Christ himselfe.

Oecumenius with all the Greeks, out of whom he gathered his Commentarie, hath in a maner the very same words: And saith further, that Gregory in his Apologetico saith, That the mysteries which now are done and prefigured, are exemplars of greater mysteries: meaning redemption purchased by the death and passion of Christ.

Primasius also agreeing with Chrysostome, and the other Greeke interpreters, answereth to the same obiection, Whether our Priests doe not dayly offer sacrifice? Truely (saith he) they offer, but in the remembrance of his death: and because we sinne dayly, and haue need dayly to be cleansed, because he can die no more, he hath giuen vs this Sacrament of his body and bloud, that as his Passion was the redemption and absolution of the world: so this oblation might be redemption and absolution to all that offer in true faith, and haue good intention. Againe he saith, Istud, &c. This is not repeated for the infirmity thereof, because it could not giue perfect health, but in remembrance of the Passion of Christ, as he himselfe sayd, Do this in remembrance of me. His meaning therefore is, that our faith being confirmed by this Sacrament of the body and bloud of Christ, applieth the benefit of Christes Passion to the forgiuenesse of our dayly offences, and therefore is not properly a sacrifice, nor a repetition of the sacrifice of Christ, but a celebration of the remembrance of Christes death according to Christes owne institution. In which there is no one word that soundeth toward the setting vp of a sacrifice: though the celebration of the Supper were commonly called so.

The Councell of Nice. 1. nameth oblation and offering in diuers Canons, but in none other sense, then the Fathers before cited.

The Councell of Ephesus, in the Epistle to Nestorius vse more words, and therefore do more plainly expresse their meaning. Annunciantes enim, &c. For shewing the death of the onely begotten sonne of God, that is of Iesus Christ according to the flesh, & likewise confessing his resurrection, and ascension into heauen, we celebrate in the Churches, the vnbloudy seruice of that sacrifice, so also we come to the mysticall blessings, and are sanctified, being made partakers of the holy body and precious bloud of Christ the redeemer of vs all, &c. It were hard to gather a sacrifice propitiatory of these words, which shew how the seruice of the sacrifice is celebrated, namely, by preaching of the Lords death, resurrection and ascension, and participation of the holy Sacrament of the very body and bloud of the sonne of God.

The

The Councell of Constantinople the 6. cap 32. nameth the vnbloudy ſacrifice, as the celebration of the Communion was commonly called, whereby was meant, that it was not properly a ſacrifice, nor a ſacrifice propitiatorie for a ſinne, ſeeing without ſhedding of blood, there is no remiſſion of ſinne, Heb. 9. 22. And alſo it findeth fault with them, which alledging Chryſoſtomes authoritie, in his expoſition of S. Matthewes Goſpel, offered wine onely in the holy Table, and did not mingle water with it. By the oblation of wine, we may ſee they were farre from a Propitiatorie ſacrifice of the body and bloud of Chriſt.

The ſecond Councel of Nice, though it were a collection of an idolatrous and vnlearned company of Greekiſh Prelates, gathered to ſerue the idolatrous humour of Irene the wicked Empreſſe, yet approuing that counterfet Epiſtle of Athanaſius, wherein mention is made of bloud that flowed out of an image of Chriſt, that was crucified at Berytus: They allow alſo theſe words of it. This is that bloud of our Lord, which is ſayd to be found among many men, neither muſt true Catholikes thinke otherwiſe, then that which is written of vs, as though any part of the fleſh & bloud of Chriſt, might be found in the world, but that which is dayly made ſpiritually in the altar by the hands of the Prieſt. So that although againſt the Councell of Epheſus, they ſpeake groſly of the preſence of Chriſt in the Sacrament, yet they meane not carnally, as the words doe ſound, but as appeareth by theſe words of the Epiſtle, they meane that the fleſh and bloud of Chriſt is preſent ſpiritually.

As for the Councels of Laterane, Conſtance, Florens and Trent, being late chapters of hereticall and blaſphemous Papiſts, they are not to be alledged in any controuerſie betweene vs, ſeeing they were gathered by heretikes, eſpecially and purpoſely againſt the faith of the Catholike church.

RHEM. 6 19. Doe this.) In theſe wordes the holy Sacrament of Order is inſtituted, becauſe power and commiſſion to doe the principall act and worke of Prieſthood, is giuen to the Apoſtles: that is, to doe that which Chriſt then did concerning his body: which was, to make and offer his body as a ſacrifice for vs and for all that haue need of ſacrifice, and to giue it to be eaten as Chriſtes body ſacrificed, to all faithfull. For as the Paſchall lambe was firſt ſacrificed, and then eaten: ſo was his body: and thus to doe he here giueth commiſſion and authority to the Apoſtles, and to all Prieſts which be their ſucceſſours in this matter. Dionyſ. cæl. Hierar. c. 3. Iren. li. 4. c. 32. Cypr. ep. ad Cæcil. Chryſ. hom. 17. in ep ad Hebr. Ambroſ. in Pſ. 38 & in c. 10. ad Hebr.

The Apoſtles are made Prieſts, and the Sacrament of holy Orders inſtituted.

FVLKE. 6 In theſe wordes authoritie and commandement is giuen to the Church, to celebrate the myſterie of the Lords Supper: but the ſpeciall calling, ordeining, and appointing of the Apoſtles and their ſucceſſours, to be miniſters of the Church was after his reſurrection: as appeareth Matth. 28. Mar. 16. Luk. 24. But moſt expreſly Ioh. 20. But to make his body, or to offer it in ſacrifice, there is no authority giuen by theſe words, for Chriſt inſtituted a Sacrament, not a ſacrifice, of his body & bloud. For the faithfull being made perfect, by the only oblation of Chriſt offered by himſelfe on the Croſſe, need none other ſacrifice, but a memoriall and Sacrament thereof, to confirme their faith in the remiſſion of ſinnes, purchaſed by his ſacrifice. And although the Paſchal lambe was ſlaine before it was eaten, yet Chriſt did inſtitute the Sacrament of his body and bloud, before he was ſlaine, neuertheleſſe to be continued as a perpetuall memoriall of his death. As the Sacrament of the Paſchal lambe was inſtituted before the deliuerance of the people out of Egypt, yet to be a perpetuall remembrance of that deliuerance, which figured the ſpirituall deliuerance of all the Church, from the tyrannie of Sathan and the power of hell. Now whereas you quote diuers ancient fathers, to proue that Chriſt by theſe words, gaue commiſſion and authority to the Apoſtles and to all Prieſts that be their ſucceſſours, to ſacrifice his body. Concerning the firſt, Dyoniſ. cæl. Hierarch. cap 3. hath no word of any ſuch matter: and to goe further with you, not in all his works. Irenæus ſaith, That Chriſt giuing counſell to his diſciples, to offer vnto God the firſt fruits of his creatures, not as though he had need, but that they themſelues ſhould be neither vnfruitfull, nor vnthankefull: he tooke that bread which is of the creature, and giuing thanks, ſaid: This is my body. And the cup likewiſe, which is of that creature that is with vs, he confeſſed to be his bloud, and taught the new oblation of the New Teſtament, which the Church receiuing from the Apoſtles, offereth to God in all the world, to him which giueth nouriſhment vnto vs, the firſt fruits of his gifts in the New Teſtament, whereof in the 12 Prophets, Malachy did foreſhew, &c. This propheſie of the ſacrifice, afterward he doth expound of prayers, thankſgiuing, praiſes and works of charity, cap. 33. & 34. His words declare, that in his time, bread and wine was offred to God, that is, dedicated to the holy vſe of the Sacrament, whereby thankſgiuing, prayers and praiſes, were offered to God, and charity among Chriſtians confirmed.

Sacrifice of the Maſſe, and Popiſh ſacrificing Prieſthood.

Cyprian in that Epiſtle to Cæcilius, contendeth earneſtly for wine to be offered in the cup, as Chriſt did inſtitute the Sacrament in wine and not in water. But by the oblation and ſacrifice, he meaneth none otherwiſe then Irenæus doth, and as we haue ſhewed in the Section next before: not a ſacrifice of his naturall body and bloud. I would haue thee know (ſaith he) that we are admoniſhed, that in offring the cup, the Lords tradition be obſerued, and that nothing els be done, but that our Lord did firſt for vs. That the cup which is offered in remembrance of him, be offered mixt with wine. For when Chriſt ſaith, I am the true vine, the bloud of Chriſt verely is not water but wine. Neither can the bloud of him by whom we are redeemed and quickened, ſeeme to be in the cup, when to the cup is wanting wine, by which the bloud of Chriſt is ſhewed, which is ſet forth by the Sacrament, and teſtimony of all the Scriptures. The cup, the wine, the bread, is offered in remembrance of Chriſt, not his body and bloud properly ſacrificed or offered. Chryſoſtome Hom. 17. in Ep. ad Heb. as we haue declared before, ſaith, it is rather a memory of a ſacrifice, then a ſacrifice indeed, which the Church offereth. An exemplar of that which was offered once, and offered into the holy of holies. Ambr. in Pſ. 38. ſaith, Let vs Prieſts follow him as we may, and offer a ſacrifice for the people, &c. But in cap. 10 ad Heb. hee hath the very wordes that Chryſoſtome writeth vpon the ſame text: anſwering the obiection how the Church offereth a ſacrifice, when the ſacrifice of Chriſt once offered, was ſufficient. Hoc autem quod nos facimus &c. Thus that we do, is done in remembrance of that which hath bene done. For do you this (ſaith he) in the remembrance of me, we offer not another ſacrifice as the high Prieſt, but the ſame alwayes, but rather we worke the remembrance of a ſacrifice. But of this matter, more in the next Section.

RHEM. 7 19. For a commemoration.) This Sacrifice and Sacrament it to be done perpetually in the Church for the commemoration of Chriſt, ſpecially of his Paſſion: that is to ſay, that it may be a liuely repreſentation, exemplar, and forme of his ſacrifice vpon the croſſe. Of which one oblation on the croſſe, not only all other ſacrifices of the Law were figures, but this alſo: though this in a more high, high, myſticall, & marueilous ſort then any other. for in them Chriſts death was ſignified as by reſemblance and ſimilitudes of externall creatures and bodies of bruit beaſts. but in this of the New Teſtament, his body viſibly ſacrificed on the croſſe, in and by the ſelfeſame body ſacrificed and immolated in Sacrament and vnder the ſhapes of bread and wine, is moſt neerely and perfectly reſembled: and therefore this is moſt properly commemoratiue, as moſt neerely expreſſing the very condition, nature, efficacy, ſort, and ſubſtance of that on the croſſe. For which the holy fathers call it the very ſelfeſame ſacrifice (though in other maner) which was done on the croſſe, as it is the ſelfeſame thing, that is offered in the Sacrament, and on the croſſe. Whereby you may ſee the peruerſity of the Proteſtants or their ignorance, that thinke it therefore not to be Chriſtes body, becauſe it is a memory of his body or a figure of his body vpon the croſſe: nor to be a true ſacri-

A commemoratiue ſacrifice is a true ſacrifice, no leſſe the the prefiguratiue ſacrifices were true ſacrifices.

Amb. in 10. Heb. Chryſ. hom. 17. in ep. ad Hebr.

fice, because it is a commemoratiue sacrifice. for as the thing that more liuely, neerely, and truely resembleth or representeth, is a better figure then that which shadoweth it afarre off: so this his body in the Sacrament, is more perfectly a figure of Christes body and sacrifice, then any other. Christ himselfe the Sonne of God is a figure and character of his Fathers person, being yet of the selfesame substance. and Christs body transfigured on the holy Mount, was a figure and resemblance of his person glorified in heauen. euen so is his body in the Sacrament to a faithfull man that knoweth by his beliefe grounded on Christes owne word, that in the one forme is his body, in the other his blood, the most perfect representation of his death that can be. As for the sacrifice, it is no lesse a true sacrifice, because it is commemoratiue of Christes Passion: then those of the Olde Testament were the lesse true, because they were prefiguratiue. for that is the condition annexed to all sacrifice of euery Law, to represent Christes Passion,

To be a figure of a thing, and yet the thing it selfe, repugneth not.

FVLKE. 7 The text and the ancient Doctours are so plaine in this case, that you are constrained to confesse, that this Sacrament is a liuely representation, exemplar and forme, and also a figure of Christes sacrifice vpon the Crosse. But it is so a figure of that sacrifice (you say) that it is the selfesame body sacrificed and immolated in the Sacrament: vnder the shapes of bread and wine. This sayeth none of the ancient Fathers, which say, it is an exemplar, a commemoration, a figure of that sacrifice, no not Chrysostome and Ambrose, whome you quote, but as I haue set downe their wordes before. It is so the same sacrifice, that it is rather a remembrance of a sacrifice, then a sacrifice in deed, or properly. But heere you accuse our peruersitie or ignorance, that thinke it therefore not to be Christes bodie, because it is a memorie or figure of his bodie. For to be a figure of a thing, and yet the thing it selfe, you say in the margent, repugneth not. Your ignorance (although it be great) I will not heere accuse, but your impudence, that shame not to say, that to be a Relatiue, and the Correlatiue of the same at the same time, and in the same respect, repugneth not. I thinke Sorbone it selfe, would hisse out this monstrous absurditie: For you may as well say, that Isaac to be Iacobs father, and Iacobs sonne also, repugneth not.

Reall presence.

But you haue examples to demonstrate the matter, that a thing may be a figure of it selfe. First you say, Christ the Sonne of God, is a figure and character of his Fathers person, being yet of the selfesame substance. If you had beene well ierked when you were laddes for giuing the Correlatiue to his Relatiue, you would haue sayd thus: The Sonne of God is a figure or character of his Fathers person, yet hee is the selfe same person that his Father is. And if you will abide by this conclusion, your example may serue to prooue: That this is a figure of Christes bodie and sacrifice, yet is it also the selfe same bodie and sacrifice. But if you dare not affirme so much, lest you should fall into flat Sabellianisme, what peruersitie shall I say, or ignorance, or impudence is it, to frame your example, so, as it is nothing like to the matter which it is brought to demonstrate?

Your second example is, Christes body transfigured in the holy Mount, was a figure and resemblance of his person glorified in heauen: Why say you not of his bodie glorified in heauen: that the relation may be right and proper? but because you seeke to runne away vnder a mist of doubtfull wordes. But who will grant vnto you, that Christes bodie there transfigured, was a figure of his body glorified, when not his body, but the glorious shape which then he tooke vpon him, was a figure or a part of his diuine and heauenly glory, wherewith hee is now inuested in heauen. For his face now shineth not as the Sunne, but ten thousand times more bright then the Sunne: his body is not now couered with garments white as light, but shineth most gloriously as the body of the Sonne of God.

A third example you haue, That the sacrifice is no lesse a true sacrifice, because it is commemoratiue of Christes Passion, then those of the Olde Testament were lesse true, because they were prefiguratiue of the same. In deed it wanteth nothing but Christes institution, but that it might be a true sacrifice. For if the Sacrament had beene ordeined by Christ to be a sacrifice commemoratiue, as they were to be sacrifices prefiguratiue, it had beene as true a sacrifice as they: and yet being commemoratiue, as it is, though not a sacrifice, it could not haue beene the same thing wherof it is commemoratiue, no more then those sacrifices were the same sacrifice, or thing, whereof they were prefiguratiue.

RHEM. 8 20. The New Testament in my bloud.) Moyses tooke the bloud of the first sacrifice that was made after the giuing of the Law, Exod. 24. and with bloud confirmed the couenant and compact betwixt God and his people, and so dedicated the Old Testament, which without bloud (sayth S. Paul) was not dedicated. Moyses put that bloud also into a standing piece, and sprinkled all the people &c. with the same, and sayd these formall words, This is the bloud of the couenant, &c. or (as it is read in S. Paul) of the Testament which God hath deliuered vnto you. Vnto all which, Christ in this action about the second part of this his sacrifice, in euery of the Euangelists most cleerely alludeth, expressing that the New Testament is begun and dedicated in his bloud in the Chalice, no lesse then the Olde was dedicated, begun, and ratified in that bloud of calues conteined in the goblet of Moyses. with which his owne bloud he sprinkled inwardly his Apostles as the first fruits of the New Testament, imitating the words of Moyses, and saying, This is the Chalice the New Testament, &c. which the other Euangelists spake more plainly, This is my bloud of the New Testament. By all which it is most certaine, that Christes bloud in the Chalice, is the bloud of Sacrifice, and that in this sacrifice of the altar consisteth the externall religion and proper seruice of the New Testament, no lesse then the soueraigne worship of God in the olde Law did consist in the sacrifices of the same. For though Christes sacrifice on the Crosse, and his bloud shed for vs there, be the generall price, redemption, and satisfaction for vs all, and is the last and perfectest sealing or confirmation of the new Law and Testament: yet the seruice and sacrifice which the people of the New Testament might resort vnto, could not be that violent action of the Crosse, but this on the Altar, which by Christes owne appointment is and shalbe the eternall office of the New Testament, and the continuall application of all the benefits of his Passion vnto vs.

Hebr. 9. Both Testament dedicated in bloud. Verse 20.

The externall religion of the new Testament principally in the sacrifice of the altar.

FVLKE. 8 The Apostle to the Hebrewes, chap. 9. doeth most plainly declare, the figure of the sprinkling of bloud by Moyses, Exodus 24. to be accomplished in the sacrifice of Christes death, and bloudshedding once offered vpon the Crosse: whereof the Sacrament is a memoriall, and no sacrifice. Therefore it is a most wilfull peruerting of the sense of the holy Ghost, to draw those wordes of Christ, (This Cup is the New Testament in my bloud) to a second sacrifice. And whereas you say, he alludeth vnto the words of Moses, Exodus 24. it is more like, that he alludeth to the words of Moses vsed about the institution of Circumcision and the Paschal Iambe, Genesis 17. Exodus 12. which were Sacraments as this is. The difference you make of the standing piece or goblet of Moses (as you call it) and the Chalice of Christ, is ridiculous. By which you would make fooles beleeue, that Christ vsed not a common cup or pot, vsuall to be drunke in at meat, but a consecrated Chalice, such as you occupie at Masse. Whereas the Greeke word vsed by all the three Euangelists, and S. Paul, signifieth none other but an vsuall drinking cup or pot, whether you will call it a standing piece, bowle, goblet or chalice. Wherefore your conclusions are such, as you are accustomed to make, either vpon none, or vpon false premisses, or vpon true premisses most absurdly and brutishly inferred, as in this place. The Cup is the New Testament in Christes bloud: Ergo, Christes bloud in the Chalice, is the bloud of Sacrifice. Where as by true Logike, it followeth after this maner, that all the Papists in the world are not able to auoide.

Chalice or cup.

The

The cuppe is the New Testament in Christes blood. The naturall blood of Christ, is not the New Testament in Christes blood. Therefore the cuppe is not the naturall blood of Christ, which was sacrificed on the crosse, but a sacrament and holy memoriall thereof. In the celebration whereof, a part of Christian religion doeth consist, as in the celebration of baptisme. And by these Sacraments, in that they be seales of faith, the benefits of Christes Passion are applied vnto vs, through the working of the holy Ghost, but not by sacrificing againe the body and blood of Christ. Yet doeth not the soueraigne worship of God in the New Testament, consist principally in any externall religion, seruice, or sacrifice, offered by any mortall creature, but as our Sauiour Christ saith expresly, in spirit and trueth. Ioan. 4. 23.

RHEM. 9 Calix qui the chalice which vt adhæsum vt inuentum.

20. Which shalbe shed.) It is much to be obserued that the relatiue, Which, in these wordes is not gouerned or ruled (as some would perhaps thinke) of the nowne blood, but of the word chalice. which is most plaine by the Greeke. Which taketh away al cauillations and shifts from the Protestants, both against the real presence and the true Sacrificing. For it sheweth euidently, that the bloud as the contents of the chalice, or as in the chalice, is shed for vs (for so the Greeke readeth in the present tense) and not onely as vpon the crosse. And therefore as it foloweth thereof inuincibly, that it is no bare figure, but his bloud in deede, so it ensueth necessarily, that it is a Sacrifice, and propitiatorie, because the chalice (that is the Bloud contained in the same) is shed for our sinnes. For al that know the maner of the Scriptures speaches, knowe also that this, Bloud to be shed for sinne, is to be sacrificed for propitiation or for pardon of sinnes. And this text proueth al this so plainely, that *Beza turneth him selfe roundly vpon the holy Euangelist, charging him with Solæcisme or false Greeke, or els that the wordes (which yet he confesseth to be in al copies Greeke and Latin) are thrust into the text out of some other place: which he rather standeth vpon then that S. Luke should speake incongruously in so plaine a matter. And therefore he saith plainely that it can not be truely said neither of the chalice it selfe nor of the contents thereof: which is in deede to giue the lie to the blessed Euangelist, or to deny this to be Scripture. So cleere is the Scripture for vs, so miserable flights and shifts is falsehod put vnto, God be thanked.

The chalice shed for vs, must needs signifie, the bloud therein, not wine, and the same sacrificed.

Annot. No. Test. 1556.

Beza condemneth the Gospel it selfe of falshod and impossibilitie.

FVLKE. 9 The relatiue, (which) in the Greeke, as wel as in the Latine, is gouerned of the nowne blood, and not of the word chalice. For the relatiue must according to true Grammer, be referred to that, which went next before it in construction and composition, which is the name blood, and not the word chalice. The Greeke, (as it is now read in deede) following the Hebrew phrase, which is vsuall in the holy Scripture of the New Testament, goeth somewhat from the common phrase of the Greeke tongue, but of S. Basil was read, without all controuersie, according to the common Greeke construction. And therefore all your trifling of the real presence, and true sacrificing, is nothing but vaine and vnlearned insultation. For no ancient writer, for a thousand yeres after Christ, or more, euer obserued any such matter, out of this text. And therefore, where as you say, that Beza turneth him selfe roundly vpon the holy Euangelist, charging him with Solæcisme or false Greeke: without all conscience and honestie you slaunder him most impudently. For hee nameth not solæcismē, of false Greeke, but Solæcophanes, which is an appearance of incongruitie, where there is none in deede. Except you would be taken for such ignorant asses, that you know not the difference, of Solæcismus and Solæcophanes, your malicious slaunder can haue none excuse. In deede, hee saith, that these wordes might be added to the text, out of the other Euangelists, as in diuers other places both he and other haue obserued, by conference of copies, and testimonie of the auncient fathers: Yet he standeth not vpon this coniecture, but that either the ancient reading was, as S. Basile witnesseth, or els, that it is an hebraisme in the same sence, whereof I haue shewed like examples out of the Scripture in my defence against Gregorie Martine, cap. 1. Sect. 37. 38. 39. And where he saith, it cannot be truely said, neither of the chalice it selfe, nor of the content thereof, that it was shed for vs: you affirme, it is to giue the lie to the blessed Euangelist, or to deny this to be Scripture. But I pray you, consider, vpon what ground you charge him with such open blasphemie, Doe you holde in deede, that the chalice (in proper speech) was, or could be shed for vs? Nay, the contents you will say. Well, there is one figure granted. And for the contents, shall wee not beleeue the word of Christ, which sayeth this cuppe is the New Testament? Yes doubtlesse. Why then it followeth, that the Newe Testament is the contents of the cuppe. Was the New Testament shed for vs, or could it bee shed for vs? No verely. Therefore Beza without giuing the lie to the holy Euangelist, might say, that it can not be saide in proper maner of speaking either of the cuppe, or of the contents thereof, that it was shed for vs. And yet acknowledge, those wordes to be Scripture, being referred to the noune, blood, which was in deede shed for vs on the crosse: So miserable be your flights, and shifts of falsehood, forged vpon impudent lies, and malicious slaunders, grosse ignorance, and vnlearned collections. God be praised, who dayly maketh your folly and madnesse, more and more manifest to all men.

RHEM. 10 24. Contention.) The Apostles perceiuing Christs departure from them and his kingdome to be neere, as infirme men and not yet endewed with the spirite of God, began to haue emulation and cogitations of Superioritie one ouer another: which our Maister representh in them by exhortation to humilitie and by his owne example, that being their Lord, yet so lately serued them: not forbidding Maioritie or Superioritie in them, but pride, tyrannie, and contempt of their inferiours.

Ambition.

FVLKE, 10 The Apostles were not voyde of the Spirit of God, for no man can acknowledge Iesus to be the Lorde, but in the Spirite of God: although they were not so plentifully endued with the giftes of the holy Ghost as afterward.

RHEM. 11 31. Simon, Simon.) Lastly to put them out of doubt, he calleth Peter twise by name, and telling him the Diuels desire to sift and try them al to the vttermost (as he did that night) saith that he hath specially prayed for him, to this end that his faith should neuer faile, and that he being once conuerted, should after that for euer confirme, establish or vphold the rest in their faith. Which is to say, that Peter is that man whom he would make Superiour ouer them and the whole Church. Whereby wee may learne that it was thought fit in the prouidence of God, that hee who should be the head of the Church, should haue a speciall priuilege by Christes prayer and promes, neuer to faile in faith, and that none other either Apostle, Bishop, or Priest may challenge any such singular or special prerogatiue either of his Office or person, otherwise then ioyning in faith with Peter and by holding of him. The danger (saith S. Leo) was common to al the Apostles, but our Lord tooke speciall care of Peter, that the state of al the rest might be more sure, if the head were inuincible: God so dispensing the aid of his grace, that the assistance and strength which Christ gaue to Peter, might redound by Peter to the rest of the Apostles. S. Augustine also: Christ praying for Peter, prayed for the rest, because in the Pastor and Prelate the people is corrected or commended. And S. Ambrose writeth, that Peter after his tentation was made Pastor of the Church, because it was said to him, Thou being conuerted, confirme thy brethren. Neither was this the priuilege of S. Peters person, but of his Office, that he should not faile in faith, but euer confirme al other in their faith. For the Church, for whose sake that priuilege was thought necessary in Peter the Head thereof, was to be preserued no lesse afterward, then in the Apostles time. Whereupon al the Fathers apply this priuilege of not failing and of confirming other In faith, to the Romane Church and Peters successors in the same. To which (saith S. Cyprian) infidelity or false faith can not come. And S. Bernard saith writing to Innocentius Pope,

Peters faith shall neuer faile.

Serm. 3. Assump. ad Pontif. Lib. 9. Noui.

The Romane faith of Peters successors can not faile,

Pope, against Abailardus the Heretike, we must referre to your Apostleship all the scandals and perils which may fall in matter of faith specially. For there the defects of faith must be holpen, where faith can not faile. For to what other See was it euer said, I haue prayed for thee Peter, that thy faith do not faile? So say the Fathers. not meaning that none of Peters seate can erre in person, vnderstanding, priuate doctrine or writings, but that they can not nor shal not euer iudicially conclude or giue definitiue sentence for falshod or heresie against the Catholike faith, in their Consistories, Courtes, Councels, decrees, deliberations or consultations kept for decision and determination of such controuersies, doubts, or questions of faith as shalbe proposed vnto them: because Christes prayer and promes protecteth them therein for confirmation of their brethren. And no marvel that our Maister would haue his vicars Consistorie and Seat infallible, seeing euen in the old Law the high Priesthod and Chaire of Moyses wanted not great priuilege in this case, though nothing like the Churches and Peters prerogatiue. But in both, eny man of sense may see the difference betwene the person, and the Office, as wel in doctrine as life. Liberius in persecution might yeld, Marcellinus for feare might commit Idolatrie, Honorius might fall to Heresie, and more then al this, some Iudas might creepe into the Office: and yet al this without preiudice of the Office and Seate, in which (saith S. Augustine) our Lord hath set the doctrine of truth. Caiphas by priuilege of his Office prophecied right of Christ, but according to his owne knowledge and faith, knew not Christ. The Euangelists and other penners of holy write, for the execution of that function had the assistance of God, and so far could not possibly erre: but that Luke, Marke, Salomon or the rest might not erre in other their priuate writings, that we say not. It was not the personal wisdom, vertue, learning, or faith of Christs vicars, that made S. Bernard seeke to Innocentius the third: S. Augustine and the Bishops of Afrike to Innocentius the first, and to Celestinus. ep. 90. 92. 95: S. Chrysostome to the said Innocentius: S. Basil to the Pope in his time ep. 52. S. Hierom to Damasus ep. 57. 58. 102. but it was the prerogatiue of their Office and higher degree of Vnction, and Christs ordinance, that would haue al Apostles and Pastors in the world, for their confirmation in faith and Ecclesiastical regiment, depend on Peter. The lacke of knowledge and humble acceptation of which Gods prouidence, that is, that one is not honoured and obeyed of al the brotherhod, is the cause of al Schismes and Heresies, saith S. Cyprian. A point of such importance, that al the Twelue being in Apostleship like, Christ would yet for the better keeping of vnity and truth, haue one to be head of them al, that a head being once appointed, occasion of Schisme might be taken away, sayth S. Hierom. lib 1. adu. Iouinian. c. 14.

FVLKE. 11 Our Sauiour Christ, by these wordes giueth no superioritie to Peter, but foresheweth his infirmitie, greater then of the rest, in respect whereof, he had neede of a speciall prayer to vpholde him, that his faith should not faile in that great temptation: Admonishing him, what his duetie was, after hee had experience of his owne frailtie, and of the comfort of Gods grace, to strengthen his brethren, by assurance of Gods mercie, whereof he had so great triall in him selfe. And as concerning the Popes supremacie, or prerogatiue, not to erre, (I say, as in the like collections of the Papists) All the Logicians that are, or euer were, can not rightly conclude in due forme of Syllogisme, either the one or the other, out of the wordes of this text. Which is sufficient to confute all the large discourse that followeth. Neuertheless, I will examine all the arguments, as they lie in order. First, he calleth Peter by name twise, not to put them out of doubt, that he is their superiour, but to admonish him seriously, in what danger he specially, and the rest generally, were through the malice of Sathan, and their owne weakenes, which was not yet knowen vnto them. And lest the eleuen Apostles (saith Bede) should glory, or attribute vnto their owne strength, that they almost alone, among so many thousand Iewes should be sayd to haue continued with the Lord in temptations, hee sheweth, that they also if they had not bene protected by the ayde of the Lorde, assisting them, might haue bene broken in peeces with the rest, through the same storme or tempest. Neither doeth any of the ancient Fathers for 500. yeeres after Christ gather out of this place Peters superioritie or prerogatiue of not erring: and although they had done so, yet their collection should haue had no ground out of the wordes of the text. Prosper cont. Cassi. cap. 35. Huius tolerantia fortitudo vnde descenderet beatus Petrus, & in illo omnis Ecclesia Veritatis ipsius voce discebat, dicentis: Ecce Satanas postulauit vt cerneret vos: Ego autem rogaui pro te Petre, ne deficiat fides tua. Quisquis igitur in tribulatione non deficit, ab illo se non dubites adiuuari, ad quem quotidie corda vniuersorum fidelium clamant: Ne inferas nos in tentationem, &c. De vocatione gentium lib. 1. cap. 24. In euangelio secundam Lucam, Deum dare vt in fide perseueretur ita promittitur: Dixit autem Iesus Petro, Simon, &c. Fratres tuos: & rogate ne intretis in tentationem. Voluisset quidem Satanas, si tamen licuisset, tam diu Petrum colaphizando cribrare sicut triticum, donec omnem ab eo fidei medullam excussisset: Sed ego, inquit, Petre rogaui pro te, vt non deficiat fides tua. Vnde respexit eum Christus, & egressus foràs fleuit amarè. Drogo de sacram. Dominicæ passion. Bernardi contemporaneus. S. Basil citeth this text to proue that we ought to pray for them that are sought in tentations. In ætn. op. 52. Secondly, you say he prayed specially for Peter, to this end that his faith should neuer faile, and that he being once conuerted, should after that for euer, confirme, establish, or vphold the rest in their faith. But the trueth is, he praied specially for Peter, because Peter specially, and through his greater presumption, was in danger of greater temptation: that in so grieuous a fall, he should not through weakenes of faith, fall away, for that signifieth the word ἐκλείπειν: but be conuerted, and become an example of Gods mercie, to all penitent sinners. As I (saith Bede speaking in the person of Christ) haue by prayers protected thy faith, lest by temptation of Sathan it should haue failed: So thou also remember, to lift vp and comfort thy weake brethren, by example of thy repentance, lest peraduenture they should dispaire of pardon. In these words therefore, is taught the duetie of Peter, and of euery Christian man, that hath tasted of Gods protection in temptation: to vse his example and experience, to the comfort of others, no prerogatiue granted, that Peter from hencefoorth shall neuer erre, nor any that succeedeth in his chaire at Rome, whereof here is no mention in the world. Neither was Peter euer after this, appointed to confirme, establish, or vphold the rest of the Apostles in their faith otherwise, then a fellow member, of charitie to comfort them, in this present danger, or in any like. And as for the confirmation, establishing, or vpholding of the rest of the Apostles in the trueth of the Gospel, they receiued it of the Spirit of Christ, equally with Peter, and not of the prerogatiue of Peters chaire. Yea when Peter walked not aright according to the trueth of the Gospel, in a contention being stirred vp, by Cerinthus the heretike (as Epiphanius testifieth) at Antioche in his owne See, he was reprehended openly by Paul, and so his faith, which began to wauer, was confirmed by an other Apostle as the faith of the rest at another time was by him. Therefore Peter, by these words, was not made superiour, ouer the rest of the Apostles, and the whole Church: neither had any singular priuilege, by Christes prayer and promise, that his faith should neuer faile. Christ prayeth for all his Apostles, that God would sanctifie them in his trueth, Yea for all that should beleeue in him through their preaching, yet hath not euery true Christian such a priuilege, but that he may erre from the true faith, though not finally vnto condemnation.

Peters prerogatiue.

The Pope may erre.

Galat. 2.

Iohn 17.

Further, where you say that none other Apostle, Bishop or Priest, may chalenge any such prerogatiue, either of his office or person, otherwise, then ioyning in faith with Peter, and by holding of him: In part it is true. For neither Peter, nor any other man hath any such prerogatiue, as you surmise. But Paul the Apostle, neither ioyning with Peter, nor holding of Peter, was bold to reprehend Peter, Barnabas and other, vpon assurance of the trueth of the Gospel, which hee had learned by reuelation, according to the Scripture, and to conuince

Rom. 1. Galat. 1. 12.

him of error and dissimulation, before all men. That he ioyned not with Peter in that his error, it is manifest by his reprehension. That he held not of Peter, he declareth as plainely: saying, that he was an Apostle of Christ, neither of men nor by men. Galat. 1. 1. & 11. but by Iesus Christ immediatly, as the rest of the Apostles were. The Scripture therefore, nothing fauouring this false glose, you come to the Doctors: and first to Leo, himselfe a Bishop of Rome, and a great maintainer of the dignitie of his See, therefore somewhat partiall in this case, and reiected in the generall Councel of Chalcedon, for the supremacie which hee laboured to establish. But what saith Leo? Verely his words do not a litle extoll Peters dignitie, yet not so much, as you would beare vs in hand, by your false translation. The words of Leo be these, Pro fide Petri propriè supplicatur, tanquam aliorum plenius, ceteros sit fortiores, & totus Principis victa non fuerit. In Petro ergo omnium fortitudo munitur, & diuinæ gratiæ ita ordinatur auxilium, vt firmitas quæ per Christum Petro tribuitur, per Petrum Apostolis conferatur. Prayer is made specially for the faith of Peter, as though the state of the other should be no more certaine, if the minde of the principall were not to be ouercome. In Peter therefore, the strength of all is defended, and the aid of Gods grace is so ordered, that the stedfastnes, which by Christ is giuen to Peter, by Peter should be conferred to the Apostles. In these wordes Peter is neither called the head, nor said to be inuincible. But if we shall farther aske of Leo, how this stedfastnes is conferred by Peter to the rest of the Apostles and to the whole Church, he wil not answere, by his successor the Pope: but Confirmans nos exhortationibus suis, & pro nobis vt non vincamur, vt nulla tentatione superemur. Confirming vs by his exhortations, and not ceasing to pray for vs, that we be not ouercome by any temptation. And this he saith not onely for him selfe, as Pope and Peters successor, but for all the people of God, and specially for the citizens of Rome, where Peter sate and died, as in the wordes following it is manifest. Therefore Leo out of these wordes of Christ, gathereth no such superioritie or prerogatiue of the Pope, in not erring, as you would enforce out of him, but without any warrant of his wordes, or meaning.

Next followeth Augustinus lib. 2. Nouatt. 2. 15. an auctor worthy to auouch such a matter. Namely, a counterfect Augustine, for a false interpretation, which no man but more then beastly impudent, will ascribe vnto S. Augustine the auncient father whom neither in wordes, nor matter this writer doeth any thing resemble, but rather writeth many things directly against S. Augustine. And yet he is falsified both in wordes and sense: for these are his wordes. Pro Petro rogabat, & pro Iacobo & Ioanne non rogabat, vt ceteros taceam? Manifestum est in Petro omnes continere. Quia & in alio loco dicit, Ego pro his rogo quos mihi dedisti pater, & volo vt vbi ego sum, & ipsi sint mecum. He prayed for Peter, and did he not pray for Iames and Iohn, that I speake not of the rest? It is manifest, that in Peter all are conteined. Because he saith in an other place, I pray for them Father, whom thou hast giuen vnto mee, and I will that where I am, they also be with me. These wordes (if the auctoritie of the writer were any thing worth,) are against the prerogatiue of Peter, shewing that the prayer of Christ, extended to all the Apostles as well as to Peter. But the circumstance of the text is plaine that it was specially for Peter, in respect of his greater infirmitie and danger.

Thirdly, S. Ambrose is brought in, writing (but no place noted where,) lest your falsification and false collection might more easily be espied. But by likelyhood you meane, Enar in ps. 43. where he hath these words, Cogitur autem aduersarius, &c. The aduersary is compelled to tempt the holy ones of the Lord, to his owne losse. For while he tempteth them, hee maketh them better, that he which is tempted, may instruct others, who seemed weake to his owne selfe. Finally Peter is set ouer the Church, after he hath bene tempted of the Deuil. And therefore our Lord signifieth before hand, what thing that is, that afterward he chose him a pastor of the Lords flocke. For to him he said: But thou after thou be conuerted, confirme thy brethren. Therefore the holy Apostle Peter, was conuerted to his amendment, or to become good corne, and was sifted as wheate, that with the Sainctes of the Lord, he might be one bread which should be nourishment vnto vs. For while we read the Actes of Peter, and know the precepts of Peter, he is made vnto vs a nourishment vnto eternall life and saluation. Here is Peter made an example of the profite, that the Sainctes reape by temptation, but no priuilege of supremacie or prerogatiue, of not erring, ascribed either to his person, or office, or succession. But you argue that the Church was to be preserued, no lesse afterward, then in the Apostles time, therefore the priuilege was granted to the office in succession, and not to the person of Peter. Thankes bee to God, the Churches preseruation is otherwise prouided for by Christ the onely true head thereof, and needeth not the Popes supremacie, or infallibilitie, as is manifest by the Scripture. Ephes. 4. 11. 12. 13. &c. This argument therefore, consisteth of two vile sophismes. The one a beggerly petition of the whole controuersie, that Peter had such a priuilege and prerogatiue, as can not euer be proued out of the holy Scriptures: the other a false assignation of that to be cause, which is no cause at all of the Churches preseruation. Yet you are not ashamed to say, Hereupon all the fathers apply this priuilege of not failing, and of confirming other in faith, to the Romane Church and Peters successors in the same. And yet you are not able to bring any one of the ancient and authentical Fathers, that liued within foure or fiue hundred yeeres after Christ, that either acknowledgeth such a priuilege of the Romish Church, or of the Bishops thereof, or that gather any such thing out of this text. Cyprian saith: To the Romanes; whose faith by commendation of the Apostles is praised (perfidia) falsehod or false dealing can haue no accesse. Hee speaketh against the impudencie of certaine heretikes, that being driuen out of Africa, sought intertainement at Rome, which the godly Church there, would not consent vnto. Cyprian therefore speaketh not of the Romanes absolutely, but those whose faith was praised by the Apostle, from which faith, if they swarued, (as they confesse themselues,) it should be to their greater shame, Ep. 31. Againe hee speaketh not of error in faith, but of false dealing, and neglect of discipline. For if Cyprian had bene perswaded, that the Church and Bishop of Rome could not erre, hee would neuer haue so openly dissented from them as hee did in the question of rebaptizing of them, that were baptized by heretikes, in which hee with the Councell of Africa, did openly oppose himselfe, against Stephanus Bishop of Rome, and the Church of Rome also, as many other Bishops of the East Church did, declaring thereby that the Bishop of Romes auctoritie, in those times was not acknowledged, nor his priuilege of not failing in faith, once heard of. And as for this present text, of Christes prayer for Peter, it is so farre of, that Cyprian coulde gather any prerogatiue of the Bishop of Rome out of it, that hee doeth extend it generally, to all the members of Christ: Yea hee prayed so earnestly for vs (sayeth he) that wee reade in another place: And the Lord said to Peter: beholde Sathan hath desired to tosse you, as wheate: but I haue prayed for thee, lest thy faith should faile. If then hee laboureth, and watcheth and prayeth for vs, and our offences, how much more ought we to bee earnest in prayer, and to pray, and first of all to intreate our Lord himselfe, then by him to satisfie God the Father. Epist. 8. Againe he writeth: Our Lord prayed, and he prayed not for him selfe, for what should he entreate for him selfe being innocent: but for our offences, as hee him selfe declareth, when hee saith to Peter: Beholde Sathan hath desired to tosse you as wheate, but I haue haue prayed for thee, lest thy faith should faile. This is Cyprians iudgement vpon this text, which prooueth, that hee acknowledged no such priuilege or prerogatiue, as is now a dayes pretended.

As for

As for Bernard, who liued almost a thousand yeeres after Cyprian, when Antichrist had openly inuaded the tyrannie, it is no marueile, though he were deceiued, to yeeld to such a prerogatiue, as none of the ancient fathers of the primitiue Church would euer acknowledge. As for the distinction that the Pope may erre personally, but not iudicially, or definitiuely, is vaine, seeing neither of both parts, can be proued out of the Scriptures. Neither had the high Priesthood, or Moyses chaire any such priuiledge, in respect of their office, that the high Priest could not erre: seeing, the contrary is manifest in the Scripture. Vria the high Priest did set vp an Idolatrous altar in the Lords Temple, and did offer sacrifice vpon it, 2. Reg. 16. Eliashib, through ignorance of Gods Lawe, contracted affinitie with Tobia the Ammonite, and made him a great chamber in the house of the Lord, Nechem. 13.4. Caiphas was a Sadducee, and condemned Christ. But admitting your distinction, it is to be prooued that Bishops of Rome haue erred iudicially, and definitiuely. The Bishop of Rome in Tertullians time erred not onely personally, but also definitiuely, when he acknowledged the propheties of Montanus, Prisca and Maximilla, and gaue letters of peace to the hereticall Churches of Asia and Phrygia, which had bene excommunicated by his predecessor, as witnesseth Tertullian contr. Praxeam. Liberius erred not personally, but iudicially and definitiuely, when hee subscribed to the Arrians, as testifieth Athanasius, Apolog. 2. Ad solitariæ vitam agentes, Hieronym. in Catalogo. Damasus in pontificali, Marianus Scotus, Petrus Damianus epist. 13. cap. 16. Honorius did not onely fall into heresie, but also in a decretall Epistle, did publish and confirme the same, as was prooued in the Councell of Constantinople the sixt where he was condemned for an heretike. Cum his vero simul, &c. With these also (saith the Councel) we haue foreseene to be cast out of the holy Catholike Church of God, and to be accursed, Honorius, which had bene Pope of olde Rome, because we finde by his writings, which he made to Sergius, that in all things he followed his minde, and confirmed wicked doctrines, Const. 6. act. 13. Likewise Leo 2. in his Epistle to Constantinus approuing the sixt generall Councell, writeth thus. Likewise wee accurse the inuentors of this new error, Theodorus Bishop of Faran, Cyrus of Alexandria, Sergius, Pyrrhus, Paulus, Petrus, successors of the Church of Constantinople rather then prelates. And also Honorius, which did not lighten this Apostolike Church, with the doctrine of Apostolike tradition, but by prophane treason, endeuoured to subuert the immaculate faith. S. Augustine also citeth the decretal Epistle of Innocentius to the Bishops of Numidia, wherein he holdeth, that to receiue the Communion, it is necessary for infants. Cont. duas Ep. Pel. ad Bonifac lib. 2. cap. 4. And saith of him expresly. Qui denique parvulos definit, &c. who defined that litle children, cannot haue life in them, except they eate the flesh of the Sonne of man. Thus did Innocentius erre definitiuely in a matter confessed by the Papists themselues to be an error, that the Communion is necessary for infants: which was a common error in S. Augustines time, holden of all the Church, for any thing that we can reade to the contrary. And it is a monstrous lie to report, that S. Augustine saith: That in the office, or seate of the Pope, our Lorde hath set foorth the doctrine of trueth. For writing against the schisme of the Donatists, he speaketh of the chaire of vnitie, not of Poperie. Our heauenly master (saith he) hath forewarned this thing (meaning Schisme or dissention) so greatly to be auoyded, that of euill gouernours he asswreth the people, that the chaire of holsome doctrine should not bee forsaken of them, in which euen euill men, are compelled to speake good things. For they are not their matters which speake them, but Gods, who hath placed the doctrine of trueth in the chaire of vnitie. Wherefore he being true and the trueth it selfe, of gouernours doing their owne euill things, and speaking the good things of God, saith: doe yee those things which they say, but doe not those things which they doe, for they say and doe not. All men see, that here is nothing in the world, for the prerogatiue of the Popes chaire that hee can not erre: but that vnitie is not to be broken for the euil maners of the teachers, so long as they teach the trueth. When you proove, that the Pope for his publike, Iudiciall and definitiue writings, hath no good warrant, as Luke, Marke, Salomon, had for their Gospels, the Prouerbes, Ecclesiastes, and Canticles, we will admit their case to be like. But while the world standeth you shall neuer proue the best of the Popes writings, to be equall with the Canonicall Scripture. For in any mens writings, although there be the like trueth, yet is there not equal auctoritie as S. Augustine saith.

That S. Augustine and the Bishops of Africa, did write to Innocentius and Cælestinus, Bishops of Rome, it was not for that they ascribed this pretensed prerogatiue, either to their persons or to their office, and seate, but as good Catholike Bishops, haue alwayes vsed to conferre one with another, when any question hath arisen in the Church, to require their mutuall consent in the trueth, and against heresies, as in those three Epistles quoted, which were written to Innocentius, of their proceeding against the Pelagians it appeareth: But when the Bishops of Rome, would haue vsurped auctoritie ouer the Churches of Africa, by colour of a counterfaite Canon of the Councell of Nice, they were not regarded either in respect of their persons, or their office and seate. Conc. Aphric. cap. 105. Yea they count it an absurd thing that any man should beleeue, that God could inspire any one man, with the iustice of examination, and did deny the same, to innumerable Priestes, gathered together in councell, as they were, to cut off appeales vnto the See of Rome. Epist. ad Cælest. Neither doeth Chrysostome, in his Epistles to Innocentius, acknowledge any such prerogatiue or priuiledge of the See of Rome, but as one Christian friend to an other, being himselfe in banishment, desireth his furtherance for the benefite of the Church, shewing how iniuriously he had bene dealt withall.

S. Basill also in purposing to write to the Bishop of Rome for his counsell, concerning the affaires of the Church, and touching the Councell of Ariminum, doeth but practise that care of all Churches, which in the same Epistle he commendeth in Athanasius, without ascribing any superioritie or prerogatiue to the Bishop of Rome. If Hierome being a priest of the Church of Rome, doeth once or twise aske counsell of Damasus his proper Bishop and diocessan: what great marueile is it? or what priuiledge or prerogatiue of the See doeth he acknowledge? which confesseth that Liberius subscribed to the Arrians. And yet in diuers Epistles Damasus asketh counsell of Hierome in many questions, as Hierome did of him in one, about the vse of the terme Hypostasis for vnities sake.

Cyprian in the place quoted, speaketh not of the Bishop of Romes prerogatiue, but of obedience to bee giuen to euery Bishop in his owne diocesse, and namely to himselfe, against the timorousnesse of Cornelius Bishop of Rome, who was moued by the threatning bragges of one Fœlicissimus, a wicked schismatike, excommunicated by Cyprian and other Bishops of Africa, to yeeld some thing vnto him. Whereupon Cyprian sheweth, what inconuenience would ensue, if hee did not continue constant, in reiecting him and his proude hereticall company, after their cause hath bene once iudged by their proper Bishop, in the prouince where their offences were well knowen. And therefore writing against their gadding to the See of Rome: he sayeth, Quæ autem causa, &c. And what cause had they, to come and to bring tidings of a false Bishop, made against the true Bishops? For either they are pleased with that they haue done, and continue still in their wickednesse, or if they be displeased and goe from it, they know whither they should returne. For seeing it is decreed of vs all, and it is also meete and right, that euery mans cause should be heard there, where the crime was committed, and a portion of the flocke is ascribed to euery pastour, which euery one ſhould rule and gouerne, as hee that is to giue account of his doing to the Lord: verily they ouer whom wee haue gouernment, ought not to runne about, nor by their craftie and deceitfull rashnesse, to ſet at variance the concord of biſhops agreeing together. But there to pleade their cauſe, where they may haue both accuſers and witneſſes of their crime: vnleſſe to a fewe deſperate and loſt perſons, the auctority of the biſhops placed in Africa, ſeeme to bee leſſe, which haue already iudged of them, and with the grauitie of their iudgement, haue condemned their conſcience bound with many ſnares or cordes of offences. Their cauſe is already heard and knowen, ſentence is already giuen of them, neither is it meete, that the cenſure of Prieſts ſhould be reprehended, through lightneſſe of a moueable and inconſtant minde.

Thus writeth Cyprian of Fortunatus and his complices, that being condemned in Africa, ſought reſtitution at Rome, as though the auctoritie of the Biſhops of Africa had bene leſſe then the auctoritie of the Biſhops of Rome and Italy, which Cyprian would neuer acknowledge for his time, though heretikes by ſuch gadding about, neuer ceaſed to moleſt him.

The wordes of Hierome are theſe. At dicis, &c. But thou wilt ſay, the Church is founded vpon Peter, although in an other place, the ſame thing is done vpon all the Apoſtles, and they all doe receiue the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, and the ſtrength of the Church is eſtabliſhed equally vpon them: yet for this cauſe one is choſen among the twelue, that the head being appointed, the occaſion of ſchiſme might be taken away. By which wordes Hierome meaneth, that Peter was chiefe of the Apoſtles in order, to auoyd diſſention, not in auctoritie or prerogatiue of not erring. And elſe where he acknowledgeth euery Biſhop to be of equall auctoritie with the Biſhop of Rome, as in his Epiſtle to Euagrius, reaſoning againſt a cuſtome of the Church of Rome. Nec altera, &c. Neither is the Church of the citie of Rome to be eſteemed one, and the Church of the whole world an other, both France and Britaine, and Africa and Perſia, and the Eaſt, and India, and all barbarous nations, adore one Chriſt, obſerue one rule of trueth. If auctoritie be ſought, the world is greater then one citie. Whereſoeuer a biſhop be, either at Rome or at Eugubium, either at Conſtantinople or at Rhegium, either at Alexandria, or at Tanis, he is of the ſame worthineſſe, of the ſame prieſthood. Power of riches, and baſeneſſe of pouertie, make not a biſhop higher or lower. But they are all ſucceſſors of the Apoſtles.

CHAP. XXIII.

The Iewes accuſe him to Pilate the Gentil: 4 Who ſeeking earneſtly to deliuer him, ſpecially after that Herode ſent him backe, 17 they not onely preferre the murderer Barabbas, but alſo cry, CRVCIFIGE. 26 In the way to Caluarie he foretelleth the women that lamented vpon him, the horrible deſtruction of their Hieruſalem. 32 vpon the croſſe he is betweene two theeues, 35 ſcorned of the Iewes, 36 of the ſouldiers, 39 and of one of the theeues, 40 but euen there confeſſed of the other theefe, 44 and after his death (becauſe of the great miracles concurring) alſo of the Centurion, 48 yea and of the whole multitude. 50 and finally he is buried honourably.

GOOD FRIDAY. Mt.27,1.11. Mr.15,1. Io.18,27.

AND all the multitude of them riſing vp, led him to Pilate.

2 And they began to accuſe him, ſaying, Wee haue founde this man ſubuerting our nation, and prohibiting to giue tributes to Cæſar, and ſaying that hee is Chriſt the King.

3 And Pilate asked him ſaying, Art thou the King of the Iewes? But hee anſwering ſaid, Thou ſayeſt.

4 And Pilate ſaide to the chiefe Prieſtes and multitudes, I finde no cauſe in this man.

5 But they were more earneſt, ſaying, He ſtirreth the people teaching throughout all Iewrie, beginning from Galilee euen hither.

6 But Pilate hearing Galilee, asked if the man were of Galilee.

7 And when he vnderſtood that he was of Herods iuriſdiction, hee ſent him backe to Herode, who was alſo himſelfe at Hieruſalem in thoſe dayes.

8 And Herode ſeeing IESVS, was very glad, for hee was deſirous of a long time to ſee him, for becauſe he heard many things of him: & he hoped to ſee ſome ſigne wrought by him.

9 And he asked him in many words. But he anſwered him nothing.

10 And there ſtood the chiefe Prieſts and the Scribes conſtantly accuſing him.

11 And Herode with his armie ſet him at naught: and hee mocked him, putting on him a white garment, and ſent him backe to Pilate.

12 And

AND the whole multitude of them aroſe, and led him vnto Pilate.

2 And they beganne to accuſe him, ſaying, We found this fellow peruerting the people, and forbidding to giue tribute to Cæſar, ſaying that he is Chriſt a king.* Matth.22.21. mar.12.17.

*3 * And Pilate asked him, ſaying, Art thou the king of the Iewes? Hee anſwered him, and ſaid, Thou ſayeſt it.* Matth.27.11. mar.15.2. iohn 18.33.

4 Then ſaide Pilate to the high Prieſts, and to the people, I finde no fault in this man.

5 And they were the more fierce, ſaying, Hee mooueth the people, teaching throughout all Iurie and beganne at Galilee, euen to this place.

6 When Pilate heard mention of Galilee, he asked whether the man were of Galilee.

7 And as ſoone as hee knewe that hee belonged vnto Herods iuriſdiction, hee ſent him to Herod, which was alſo at Hieruſalem at that time.

8 And when Herode ſawe Ieſus, hee was exceeding glad, for hee was deſirous to ſee him of a long ſeaſon, becauſe hee had heard many things of him, and he truſted to haue ſeene ſome miracle done by him.

9 Then hee queſtioned with him in many wordes, but he anſwered him nothing.

10 The high Prieſts and Scribes ſtoode forth, and accuſed him ſtraitly.

11 And Herode with his men of warre deſpiſed him, and when he had mocked him, hee arayed him in white clothing, and ſent him againe to Pilate.

12 *And

12 And Herode and Pilate were made friendes that day. for before they were enemies one to another.

13 And Pilate calling together the cheefe Priests and magistrates, and the people.

14 Said to them, You haue presented vnto mee this man, as auerting the people, and beholde I examining him before you, haue found no cause in this man of those things wherein you accuse him.

15 No, nor Herod neither. for I sent you to him, and behold, nothing worthy of death is done to him.

16 I will chasten him therefore and dimisse him.

17 And he of necessitie had to release vnto them vpon the feast day, one.

18 But the whole multitude together cried out, saying, Dispatch him, and release vs Barabbas.

19 Who was for a certaine sedition made in the citie and murder, cast into prison.

20 And Pilate againe spake to them, desirous to release IESVS.

21 But they cried againe, saying, Crucifie, crucifie him.

22 And he the thirde time saide to them, Why, what euil hath this man done? I finde no cause of death in him. I will correct him therefore and let him goe.

23 But they were instant with loud voices requiring that hee might be crucified. And their voyces preuailed.

24 And Pilate adiudged their petition to be done.

25 And he released vnto them him that for murder and sedition had bene cast into prison, whom they demaunded: but IESVS he deliuered to their pleasure.

26 And when they led him, they tooke one Simon of Cyréne comming from the countrey: and they laide the crosse vpon him to cary after IESVS.

27 And there followed him a great multitude of people, and of women which bewailed and lamented him.

28 But IESVS turning to them, saide, Daughters of Hierusalem, weepe not vpon mee, but weepe vpon your selues, and vpon your children.

29 For beholde the dayes shall come, wherein they will say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombes that haue not borne, and the pappes that haue not giuen sucke.

Of. 10,8. 30 Then shall they beginne to say to the mountaines, Fall vpon vs: and to the hilles, Couer vs.

31 For if in the greene wood they doe these things, in the dry what shall be done?

FVLKE. 1 No man ought to differre conuerſion, but to repent as ſoone as he is called, as this theefe did, for God giueth not the grace of repentance, according to the will of man, but according to his owne pleaſure, and purpoſe. Neither muſt any man looke to obtaine ſaluation by faith, which is void of good workes. For ſuch was not the faith of this penitent theefe, but fruitfull of good workes, as the place and time could ſuffer. But to goe ſtreight to heauen, without ſatisfaction or puniſhment for his former ſinnes, euery Chriſtian man may be aſſured, not onely by this example, but alſo by manifeſt teſtimonies of Scripture, if he die in the Lord, Apoc.14.13. And as for ſatisfaction and puniſhment for our former ſinnes, is not found in the Scripture, but is contrary to the generall doctrine of remiſſion of ſinnes by the free grace and mercie of God. For thereby euery one that truely beleeueth and confeſſeth Chriſt, may challenge as certaine knowledge of his ſaluation, by the generall promiſes of God in the Scriptures, as the theefe by theſe ſpeciall wordes of Chriſt vttered vnto him. Neither was this good theefe ſaued by any other meanes, then all Chriſtians are ſaued, namely, by the free mercie of God in Ieſus Chriſt apprehended by faith: Proſp. contr. Secondly that true faith is neuer voide of good workes, as repentance, loue of God and our neighbour, hatred of ſinne, confeſſion, and other external works, as time and opportunitie may ſerue. Thirdly, that Chriſt gaue remiſſion of ſinnes freely, and not of merit for zeale or reprehenſion of his fellow, but of his meere mercie and grace, by which he gaue him faith and repentance: as he doeth to all that are conuerted to him. So the miniſters of the Church ought to aſſure penitent ſinners of forgiueneſſe and the kingdome of heauen, without any ſatisfaction or puniſhment for ſatisfaction, which is neuer required on their part in the holy Scriptures. Neither haue they any commiſſion to require it of any of Gods elect, or to delay the reward of any for whom Chriſt hath ſatisfied to his father, as he hath for all that are redeemed by him. FVLKE. 2. The cause of the womens marking of the place of Christs buriall, is expressed in the text, whereunto the popish maner of watching the idol of the sepulchre in their churches hath no resemblance, and therefore is nothing els but grosse superstition, and mockerie of the mysteries of our faith, whereof the buriall of Christ is one. The impietie is so much the greater, when the sacrament, ordeined to be receiued, to assure vs of life, is laid in the graue as though it were a dead body. Or if because it was ordeined to be a remembrance of Christ, they may doe with it what they will, to signifie the actions and passions of Christs bodie, why doe they not likewise baptize it, bind it, scourge it, crowne it with thornes, and naile it to a crosse, as well as they burie it, and raise it out of the sepulchre. euery Church for memory of our Lords buriall, is exceeding good and godly, specially the B. Sacrament for more signification sake being present in the same Sepulcher.

FVLKE. 2. The cause of the womens marking of the place of Christs buriall, is expressed in the text, whereunto the popish maner of watching the idol of the sepulchre in their churches hath no resemblance, and therefore is nothing els but grosse superstition, and mockerie of the mysteries of our faith, whereof the buriall of Christ is one. The impietie is so much the greater, when the sacrament, ordeined to be receiued, to assure vs of life, is laid in the graue as though it were a dead body. Or if because it was ordeined to be a remembrance of Christ, they may doe with it what they will, to signifie the actions and passions of Christs bodie, why doe they not likewise baptize it, bind it, scourge it, crowne it with thornes, and naile it to a crosse, as well as they burie it, and raise it out of the sepulchre. Watching of the sepulchre.

CHAP. XXIIII.

Deuout women not finding his body in the Sepulcher, 4 Angels tell them that he is risen according to his owne prediction: 9 yet the Apostles will not beleeue it. 12 but neither Peter findeth his bodie there. 13 He walketh with two Disciples, declaring all this vnto them out of the Scriptures, and is knowen of them by breaking of bread. 36 The same day hee appeareth to the Eleuen and others being together, is felt of them, and eateth with them, finally teaching them out of the Scriptures not onely of his Passion and Resurrection, 47 but also of his Catholike Church. 49 he promiseth the Holy Ghost to confirme them. 50 and so ascendeth into heauen.

EASTER DAY. Mt.28,1. Mr.16,1. Io.20,1.

AND in the ‡ first of the Sabboth verie early they came to the monument, carying the spices which they had prepared.

2 And they found the stone rolled backe from the monument.

3 And going in, they found not the body of our Lord IESVS.

4 And it came to passe: as they were astonied in their minde at this, behold two men stoode beside them in glistering apparell.

5 And when they feared and cast downe their countenance toward the ground, they sayd vnto them, Why seeke you the liuing with the dead?

6 Hee is not here, but is risen. remember howe hee spake to you, when hee yet was in Galilee,

Lu.9.22. 7 Saying, * That the Sonne of man must be deliuered into the handes of sinners and be crucified, and the third day rise againe.

8 And they remembred his words.

9 And going backe from the monument, they told all these things to those eleuen, and to all the rest.

10 And it was Marie Magdalene, and Ioane, and Marie of Iames, and the rest that were with them, which sayd these things to the Apostles.

11 And these words seemed before them as dotage, and they did not beleeue them.

Io.20,3. 12 But * Peter rising vp ranne to the monument: and stouping downe he sawe the linnen clothes lying alone, and went away marueling with himselfe at that which was done.

Mr.16,2. THE GOSPEL vpon Monday in Easter weeke. 13 * And behold, two of them went the same day into a towne which was the space of sixtie furlongs from Hierusalem, named Emmaus.

14 And they talked betwixt themselues of all those things that had chanced.

15 And it came to passe while they talked and reasoned with themselues, IESVS also himselfe approching went with them.

16 But

BVT vpon the first day of the Sabboths, very early in the morning, they came vnto the sepulchre, bringing the sweete odoure, which they had prepared, and other women with them.* Matth.16.1. Iohn 20.21.

2 And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.

3 And they went in, but found not the body of the Lord Iesu.

4 And it came to passe, as they were amazed thereat, behold two men stood by them in shining garments,

5 And as they were afraid, and bowed downe their faces to the earth, they sayd vnto them, Why seeke yee the liuing among the dead?

*6 Hee is not here, but is risen: * Remember howe hee spake vnto you when he was yet in Galilee,* Mat.17.23. mar.9.31. luk.9.22.

7 Saying, The sonne of man must be deliuered into the hands of sinfull men, and be crucified, and the third day rise.

8 And they remembred his words,

9 And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things vnto those eleuen, and to all the remnant.

10 It was Marie Magdalene, and Ioanna and Marie Iacobi, and other that were with them, which tolde these things vnto the Apostles.

11 And their wordes seemed to them fained things, neither beleeued they them.

*12 * Then arose Peter, and ranne vnto the sepulchre, and when he had looked in, hee saw the linnen clothes laid by themselues, and departed, wondring in himselfe at that which was come to passe.* Iohn 10.6.

*13 * And beholde, two of them went that same day, to a village called Emaus, which was from Hierusalem about threescore furlongs,* Mar.16.10.

14 And they talked together of all these things that had come to passe.

15 And it came to passe, that while they communed together, and reasoned, Iesus himselfe drew neere, and went with them.

16 But their eyes were holde that they might not know him.

17 And he ſaid to them, What are theſe communications that you conferre one with another walking, and are ſad?

18 And one whoſe name was Cleophas, anſwering, ſayd to him, Art thou onely a ſtranger in Hieruſalem, and haſt not knowen the things that haue beene done in it, theſe dayes?

19 To whom he ſayd, What things? And they ſayd, concerning IESVS of Nazareth, who was a man a Prophet, mighty in worke and word before God and all the people,

20 And how our chiefe Prieſts and Princes deliuered him into condemnation of death, and crucified him.

21 But wee hoped that it was hee that ſhould redeeme Iſrael: and now beſides all this, to day is the third day ſince theſe things were done.

22 But certaine women alſo of ours made vs afraid: who before it was light, were at the monument,

23 And not finding his bodie, came, ſaying that they ſaw a viſion alſo of Angels, who ſay that he is aliue.

24 And certaine men of ours went to the monument: and they found it ſo as the women ſayd, but him they found not.

25 And he ſaid to them, O fooliſh, & ſlow of hart to beleeue, in all things which the Prophets haue ſpoken.

26 Ought not Chriſt to haue ſuffred theſe things, and ſo to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning from Moyſes and all the Prophets, hee did interpret to them in all the Scriptures the things that were concerning him.

28 And they drew nigh to the towne whither they went: and hee made ſemblance to goe further.

29 And they forced him, ſaying, Tarie with vs, becauſe it is toward night, & the day is now farre ſpent. And he went in with thē,

30 And it came to paſſe, whiles he ſate at the table with them, hee ‖ tooke bread, and bleſſed and brake, and did reach to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him: & he vaniſhed out of their ſight.

32 And they ſayd one to the other, Was not our hart burning in vs, whiles he ſpake in the way, and opened vnto vs the Scriptures?

33 And riſing vp the ſame houre they went backe into Hieruſalem: and they found the eleuen gathered together, and thoſe that were with them, 34 Saying, that our Lord is riſen in deede, and hath appeared to Simon.

35 And they tolde the things that were done in the way: and howe they knew him in the breaking of bread.

36 *And

16 But their eyes were holde that they ſhould not know him.

17 And he ſaid vnto them, What maner of communications are theſe that ye haue one to another as ye walke, and are ſad?

18 And the one of them, whoſe name was Cleophas, anſwering, ſaid to him, Art thou only a ſtranger in Hieruſalem, and haſt not knowen the things which are come to paſſe there in theſe dayes?

19 He ſayd vnto them, What things? And they ſaid vnto him, Of Ieſus of Nazareth, which was a Prophet, mightie in deede and word before God and all the people,

20 And how the high Prieſts and our rulers deliuered him to bee condemned to death, and haue crucified him.

21 But we truſted that it had beene he which ſhould haue redeemed Iſrael: and as touching all theſe things, to day is euen the third day ſince they were done.

22 Yea, and certain women alſo of our company made vs aſtonied, which came early vnto the ſepulchre,

23 And when they found not his bodie, they came, ſaying that they had ſeene a viſion of angels, which ſay that he was aliue.

24 And certaine of them which were with vs, went to the ſepulchre, and found it euen ſo as the women had ſayd, but him they ſaw not.

25 And he ſayd vnto them, O fooles, and ſlow of heart, to beleeue all that the Prophets haue ſpoken:

26 Ought not Chriſt to haue ſuffered theſe things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And hee began at Moſes, and all the Prophets, and throughly interpreted vnto them in all the Scriptures, thoſe things which were written of himſelfe.

28 And they drewe nigh vnto the village which they went vnto, and he made as though he would haue gone further.

29 And they conſtrained him, ſaying, Abide with vs, for it draweth toward night, and the day is farre paſſed: And he went in to tary with them.

30 And it came to paſſe, as he ſate at meate with them, hee tooke bread, and bleſſed it, and brake, and gaue to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, & they knew him, and he ‖ vaniſhed out of their ſight.

32 And they ſaid one vnto another, Did not our hearts burne within vs, while hee talked with vs by the way, and opened to vs the Scriptures?

33 And they roſe vp the ſame houre, and returned againe to Hieruſalem, and found the eleuen gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, The Lord is riſen indeede, and hath appeared to Simon.

35 And they tolde what things were done in the way, and how hee was knowen of them in the breaking of the bread.

‖ Or, departed out of their ſight, or ceaſed to be ſeen of them.

THE GOSPEL vpon Tuesday in Easter weeke. Mr.16,14. Io.20,19.

36 And whiles they speake these things, IESVS stoode in the middes of them, and he saith to them, Peace be to you: it is I. feare not.

37 But they being troubled and frighted, imagined that they saw a spirit.

38 And hee sayd to them, Why are you troubled, and cogitations arise into your harts?

39 See my handes, and feete, that it is I my selfe. handle, and see: for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as you see me to haue.

40 And when he had said this, he shewed them his handes and feete.

41 But they yet not beleeuing and marueiling for ioy, hee said, Haue you here any thing to be eaten?

42 But they offered him a peece of fish broiled, and a honie combe.

43 And when he had eaten before them, taking the remaines he gaue to them.

44 And hee sayd to them, These are the words which I spake to you, when I was yet with you, that all things must needes bee fulfilled, which are written in the law of Moyses, and the Prophets, and the Psalmes of me.

45 Then he opened their vnderstanding, that they might vnderstand the Scriptures.

46 And hee sayd to them, That so it is written, and so it behooued Christ to suffer, and to rise againe from the dead the third day:

47 ‡ And ‖ penance to be preached in his name and remission of sinnes vnto all nations, ☞ beginning from Hierusalem.

48 And you are witnesses of these things.

Act.1,8.2,1. 49 * And I send the promise of my Father vpon you: but you, tarie in the citie, till you be endued with power from high.

50 And hee brought them foorth abroad into Bethánia: and lifting vp his handes hee blessed them.

ASCENSION DAY. Mr.16,19. Act.1,9. 51 * And it came to passe, whiles hee ‖ blessed them, hee departed from them, and was caried into heauen.

52 And they adoring went backe into Hierusalem with great ioy:

53 And they were alwayes in the temple praising and blessing God.

*36 * And as they thus spake, Iesus himselfe stood in the middes of them, and saith vnto them, Peace be vnto you.* Mar.16.14. iohn 20.19.

37 But they were abashed and afraid, and supposed that they had seene a spirit.

38 And hee sayd vnto them, Why are yee troubled, and why doe thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feete, that it is euen I my selfe: handle mee and see, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as yee see me haue.

40 And when hee had thus spoken, hee shewed them his hands and his feete.

41 And while they yet beleeued not for ioy, and woondred, he sayd vnto them, Haue ye here any meate?

42 And they offered him a piece of a broyled fish, and of an hony combe.

43 And hee tooke it, and did eate before them.

44 And hee sayd vnto them, These are the wordes which I spake vnto you, while I was yet with you, that all must needes be fulfilled which were written of mee in the law of Moses and in the Prophets, and in the Psalmes.

45 Then opened hee their ‖ wits, that they might vnderstand the Scriptures, ‖ Or, mindes.

46 And sayd vnto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behooued Christ to suffer, and to rise from death the third day:

47 And that repentance and remission of sinnes should bee preached in his name among all nations, and must begin at Hierusalem.

48 And ye are witnesses of these things.

*49 * And beholde, I will send the promise of my father vpon you: But tarie yee in the citie of Hierusalem, vntill ye be indued with power from on high.* Iohn 15.26. Acts 1.4.

50 And he led them out into Bethanie, and lift vp his hands and blessed them.

*51 * And it came to passe, as he blessed them, hee departed from them, and was caried vp into heauen.* Marke 10.19. act.1.9.

52 And when they had worshipped him, they returned to Hierusalem, with great ioy:

53 And were continually in the Temple, praising and lauding God. Amen.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXIIII.

RHEM. 3 30. Tooke bread.) The Fathers in diuers places take this to be meant of the B. Sacrament. Author operis imperf. ho.17. S. Augustine li.3.de consesu Euang.c.25.& ser.140.de temp. & ep.59.ad Paulinum.q.8. Paulinus himselfe in the next epistle before that, among S. Augustines. Venerable Bede also vpon this place. Theophylacte vpon this place. And that it should be meant of the holy Sacrament, the forme of solemne taking the bread into his handes, blessing it, breaking it, and reaching it to his disciples (exceeding proper to the consecration, and common to none other vulgar benediction, nor any where vsed but in Christs miraculous multiplying the loaues) and the singular effect in notifying Christ vnto them, doe proue. And if it bee the Sacrament (as it is most probable) then is it an euident example and warrant of ministration in one kinde. The B. Sacrament in one kind.

FVLKE. 3. Although this were to be vnderstoode, of the celebration of the Lords supper, (as some of the ancient Fathers doe thinke,) yet it is no example, nor warrant of ministration in one kinde. For the breaking of bread, should be here taken figuratiuely for the whole Sacrament, by Synechdoche, which is vsed when a part is named for the whole. And Chrysostome vpon that promise of Christ, (that he will drinke the cuppe of the fruit of the vine, anewe in the kingdome of his father,) saith expressly, post resurrectionem in nuda mysterij mensa vino vsus est. Ex genimine autem ait vitis, quæ certè vinum non aquam producit. After his resurrection in the bare table of this mysterie, he vsed wine. Of the fruit of the vine (sayth he,) which verely bringeth foorth wine and not water. Neither is there any of the ancient Fathers which thinke that our Sauiour Christ here gaue the Sacrament, that gathereth example or warant of ministration in one kinde. Finally, you can not say, that he gaue bread only, as the Sacrament, except you will also say that he consecrated in one kind, which you all confesse to be vnlawfull and sacrilegious. Communion in one kind. 1. 2. 3.

RHEM. 4. 46. Penance to be preached.) *He shewed vnto them out of the Scriptures, not only the things that were now accomplished in himselfe, but also that were yet to come about his Church: as, where it should begin, to wit, at Hierusalem: and how farre it should goe, to wit, to all nations: that hee might not suffer vs (sayth S. Augustine) to erre neither in the bridegrome nor in the bride. For this maketh manifestly against all Heretikes and Schismatikes, that set vp new Churches in particular countries, drawing the people from the foresayd onely true Church, which from Hierusalem so groweth * ouer all nations, till the end of the world come.* The Catholike or vniuersall Church. De vnit. Eccl. *Mt.24,14.

FVLKE. 4. The vniuersall Church of Christ, is whersoeuer the Gospel or doctrine of saluation is embraced, and not tied to the citie or Congregation of Rome, which when it was a member of Christ, was a particular Church, and not the vniuersall Church. S. Hierome misliking the custome of the Church of Rome, that a Priest should be ordeined by the testimonie of a Deacon, sayth: Quid mihi profers vnius vrbis consuetudinem? What doest thou bring forth vnto me the custome of one citie? But now Rome is neither the vniuersall Church, nor any sound part thereof: but the whore of Babylon, the seate of Antichrist. Apoc.17,18.

RHEM. 5 50. Blessed them.) *Christ our high Priest, * prefigured specially therein by Melchisedec, often gaue his blessing to his: sometimes by wordes, as,* Peace be to you: *sometimes by impoosing his hands: and nowe here by lifting vp his hands ouer his Disciples as it were for his farewell. In what forme, the Scripture doth not expresse, but very like it is that in forme of the crosse, as Iacob the Patriarch blessed his nephewes for signification of Christs benediction. for now the crosse began to be glorious among the faithfull, and the Apostles (as it is most certaine * by the fathers which call it an ancient tradition) vsed that signe for an externall note of benediction. Yea S. Augustine saith* (in Ps.30.Conc.3.) that Christ himselfe not without cause would haue his signe to be fixed in our foreheads as in the seate of shamefastnes, that a Christian man should not bee ashamed of the reproch of Christ. and what forme can a Christian man vse rather to blesse himselfe or others, then that which was dedicated in Christs death, and is a conuenient memoriall of the same? Howsoeuer it bee that the Bishops and Priests of Gods Church blesse with an externall signe, no man can reprehend, being warranted by Christs owne example and action. Christ blessed diuers wayes, Blessing without signe of the crosse.

*Heb 7,6. Io.20,21.26. Marc 10,16. Gen.48,14. * Tertul.de coron.milit.nu.3. Basil.de Sp. sanct.c.27.

FVLKE. 5. Seeing the Scripture doth not expresse, in what forme Christ lifted vp his hands, it is great presumption to affirme, that it was in the similitude of the crosse. Neither is it any thing like, because Iacob layed his hands ouerthwart, or a crosse vpon his nephews heads, that Christ did so, seeing here was not the like cause: For Iacob laied his hands after ỹ forme, because the yõger sonne which should be the greater, was placed at his left hand, and the elder at his right hand. Neither was the signe or figure of the crosse in any estimation with the Apostles, or the faithfull in their time. Valentinus the Heretike, was the first that made any great account of it, as testifieth Irenæus lib.1.cap.1. Tertullian in deede, reckneth signing with the crosse to be an olde tradition, which yet it is no more certaine to haue bene vsed by the Apostles, then other like ceremonies which he there nameth, as the tasting of milke and honie by them that were baptized, and the abstinence from washing for a weeke after baptisme, oblations for birth dayes, and such other long since abolished, which they should not haue bene, if they had bene ordained by the Apostles, as necessarie for Christian religion. The like may be said of Basiles testimonie. S. Augustine in the place noted, speaketh not of the signe of the crosse, which Christ neuer commanded to be set on mens forheads, but of the seale or marke wherwith the true worshippers of Christ are marked, Apoc.7. in their forheads, to signifie that they should not bee ashamed to confesse the reproch of Christ, which is the glory of the Christians. Finally, when you aske what forme a Christian man can vse to blesse himselfe, rather then the signe of the crosse? I would first know, how a Christian man can blesse himselfe, seeing the Apostle saith, it is without all controuersie, that the lesser is blessed of the greater or better. Heb.7.7. The signe of the crosse or crossing

Secondly, that the signe of the crosse is dedicated in the death of Christ, rather then the signes of other things that were likewise instruments of his passion.

Thirdly, how it is a conuenient memoriall of Christs death, which is not ordeined of Christ, nor taught by his Apostles to be such.

But you say howsoeuer it bee, that Bishops and Priests doe blesse with an externall signe, no man can reprehend, being warranted by Christs owne example and action: As though euery action of Christ, were an example for vs to folow. But admitting this to be an example, and action to be followed, popish Bishops and Priests are iustly to be reprehended, because they are not content with that external action of Christ, which they read in the holy Scripture, of imposition or lifting vp of hands, but they will vse another, whereof they haue no warrant in the Scriptures, which is not like that Christ at any time did vse.

THE

THE ARGVMENT OF S. IOHNS GOSPEL.

SAint Iohns Gospel may be diuided into foure partes.

The first part is, of the actes of Christ before his solemne manifestation of himselfe, while Iohn Baptist was yet baptizing: Chap.1.2.3.4.

The second, of his Actes in Iurie (hauing now begon his solemne manifestation in Galilee, Mat.4,12.) the second Easter or Pasche of his preaching: Chap 5. For of the first pasche, we had in the first part, Chap.2, 13: And the pasche of * the Iewes was at hand. And that feast whereof we haue in this second part, chap.5,1: After this there was a festiuall day of * the Iewes, is thought of good authors, to be the feast of Pasche. Iren.li.2. cap.39.

* This speech very common in this Gospel, as appeareth by the places here marked, declareth that he writeth to the Gentiles,

The third part is of his Actes in Galilee, and in Iurie, about the third Pasche, and after it: cap.6,10 the 12. For so we haue chap.6,4: And Pasche the festiuall day of * the Iewes was at hand.

The fourth part is of the fourth pasche (which we haue in the end of the chap.11,55: And the pasche of * the Iewes was at hand) that is to say, of the Holy weeke of his Passion in Hierusalem: chap.12. vnto the end of the booke.

By which diuision it is manifest, that the intent of this Euangelist writing after the other three, was, to omit the Actes of Christ in Galilee, because the other three had written them at large: and to report his Actes done in Iurie, which they had omitted.

And this he doth, because Iurie with Hierusalem and the Temple, being the principall part of the Countrey, there abode the principall of the Iewes, both for authoritie, and also for learning in the law or knowledge of the Scriptures. and therefore that was the place, where our Lord IESVS finding in the Head it selfe and in the leaders of the rest, such wilfull obstinacie and desperate resistance, as the Prophets had foretolde, did by this occasion, much more plainely then in Galilee, both say and proue, at sundry times, euen euery yeere of his preaching, himselfe to be the CHRIST that had bene so long promised vnto them, and expected of them: and the same CHRIST to be not onely a man, as they imagined, but also the naturall, consubstantiall, and coeternall Sonne of God the Father, who now had sent him. Therefore these were the words and deedes that serued best the purpose of this Euangelist, being, to shew the glorie and excellencie of this person IESVS: that thereby the Gentils might see, how worthily Hierusalem and the Iewes were reprobated, who had refused yea and crucified such an one: and how well and to their owne saluation themselues might doe, to receiue him and to beleeue in him. For this to haue bene his purpose, himselfe declareth in the end, saying: These are written, that you may beleeue that IESVS is CHRIST the Sonne of God: and that beleeuing, you may haue life in his name. Ioa.20,31.

And hereupon it is, that S. Hierome writeth thus in his life: Iohn the Apostle, [a] whom IESVS loued very much, the [b] sonne of Zebedee, [b] the brother of Iames the Apostle, [c] whom Herod after our Lords Passion beheaded; last of all wrote the Gospel, at the request of the Bishops of Asia, against Cerinthus, and other Heretikes, and specially against the assertion of the Ebionites then rising, who say that Christ was not before MARIE. Whereupon also he was compelled to vtter his diuine Natiuitie. Of his three Epistles, and of his Apocalypse, shall be said in their owne places. Hier.in Catal. [a] Io.21,20. [b] Mat.4,21. [c] Act.12,2.

It followeth in S. Hierome, that In the second persecution vnder Domitian, fourteene yeres after the persecution of Nero he was exiled into the ile Patmos. But after that Domitian was slaine, and his actes for his passing crueltie repealed by the Senate: vnder Nerua the Emperor he returned to Ephesus, & there continuing vnto the time of Traiane the Emperour, he founded and gouerned all the Churches of Asia. and worne with old age, he died the threescore and eigth yeere after the Passion of our Lord, and was buried besides the same city.

Whose excellencie the same holy Doctor thus briefly describeth.

li.1. Aduers. Iouinianum.

IOhn the Apostle, one of our Lords Disciples, who was the yongest among the Apostles, and whom the faith of Christ found a virgin, remained a virgin, and therefore is [a] more loued of our Lord, and [a] lieth vpon the breast of IESVS: and that which Peter durst not aske, [a] he desireth him to aske: and after the resurrection, when Marie Magdalen had reported that our Lord was risen againe, both of them ranne to the sepulchre, [b] but he came thither first: and when they were in the ship and fished in the lake of Genezareth, IESVS stood on the shore, neither did the Apostles know whom they saw: [c] onely the virgin knoweth the virgine, and saith to Peter, It is our Lord. This Iohn was both an Apostle, and Euangelist, and Prophet. an Apostle, because he wrote to the Churches as a Master: an Euangelist, because he compiled a booke of the Gospel, which (except Matthew) none other of the twelue Apostles did: a Prophet, for he saw in the ile Patmos, where he was banished by Domitian the Emperour for the testimonie of our Lord, the Apocalyps, conteining infinite mysteries of things to come. Tertullian also reporteth, that at Rome being cast into a barrell of hote boiling oile, he came foorth more pure and fresher or lueller, then he went in. yea and his Gospel it selfe much differeth from the rest. Matthew beginneth to write as of a man: Marke of the prophecie of Malachie and Esay: Luke of the Priesthood of Zacharie: the first hath the face of a man, because of the genealogie: the second the face of a lion, for the voice of one crying in the desert: the third the face of a calfe, because of the Priesthood. But Iohn as an Eagle flieth to the things on high, and mounteth to the Father himselfe, saying: In the beginning was the WORD, and the WORD was with God, and God was the WORD. Thus farre S. Hierome. [a] Io.13,23. 24. &c, 21,20. [b] Io.20,4. [c] Io.21,7.

RHEM. Vpon this Gospel there are the famous commentaries of S. Augustine called Tractatus in Euang. Ioan. to. 9. and twelue bookes of S. Cyrils commentaries.

FVLKE. There are but 8. bookes of S. Cyrillus commentaries remaining, 4. of them being lost. In steed of which Iodocus Clictoueus, added foure of his owne writing, namely the fifth, the sixth, the seuenth, and the eight, which of these great learned Doctors of Rhemes, are accounted for the bookes of Cyrillus, and sometime dououtly alleaged, as the authoritie of Cyrillus: as in the Preface and cap.10.v.29. of this Gospel, and elsewhere.

THE

THE HOLY GOSPEL OF IESV CHRIST ACCORDING TO IOHN.

CHAP. I.

The I. part: THE ACTES of Christ before his manifestation, whiles Iohn Baptist was yet baptizing.

The preface of the Euangelist, commending Christ (as being God the Sonne incarnate) to the Gentiles, and setting out the blindnesse of the Iewes in not receiuing him. 19 Then, the testimonies of Iohn Baptist, first to the solemne legacie of the Iewes: 29 secondly, when he saw IESVS come to him: 35 thirdly, to his owne disciples also, putting them ouer from himselfe to IESVS. Who made it plainer to them that he is Christ. 40 and so began he also to haue Disciples.

¶ The Translation of Rhemes.

IN THE beginning ‖ was the WORD, & the WORD was ‖ with God, and ‖ God was the WORD.

2 This was in the beginning with God.

3 All thinges were made ‖ by him: and without him was made † nothing. That which was made,

4 In him was life, and the life was the light of men:

5 And the light shineth in darknesse, and the darkenesse did not comprehend it.

6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was Iohn.

7 This man came for testimonie: to giue testimonie of the light, that al might beleeue through him.

8 He was not the light, but to giue testimonie of the light.

9 It was the true light, which lighteneth euery man that commeth into this world.

10 He was in the worlde, and the world was made by him, and the world knewe him not.

11 He came into his owne, and his owne receiued him not.

12 But as many as receiued him, ‖ hee gaue them power to be made the sonnes of God, to those that beleeue in his name.

13 Who, not of blood, nor of the will of flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God are borne.

ET VERBVM CARO FACTVM EST.

14 AND ‖ THE WORD WAS MADE FLESH, and dwelt in vs (and we saw the glorie of him, glorie as it were of the only-begotten of the Father) full of grace and veritie.

15 Iohn giueth testimonie of him, and crieth saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that shall come after me, ‡ is made before me: because he was before me.

‡ He is preferred & made of more dignitie and excellencie then I, because he was before me and all things, eternall God.

16 And of his fulnesse all wee haue receiued, and grace for grace.

17 For the law was giuen by Moyses, grace and verity was made by IESVS Christ.

18 God ‖ no man hath seene at any time: the only begotten Sonne which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared,

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 1 26 I baptize in water.) He doeth often here signifie the great difference of his baptisme and of Christs, as of his person and Christs. See Annot. Mat.3.

FVLKE. 1 Iohn acknowledgeth, that he is onely a minister of the externall action and element, and that Christ is the auctor and giuer of the spirituall grace: other difference he sheweth not. Iohns baptisme RHEM. 2 42 Cephas, which is interpreted.) Cephas in Syriake, and Peter in Greeke, in English, Rocke. See Mat.16,18.

FVLKE 2 Cephas signifieth any stone, such as Peter was one, appointed to be one of the twelue foundation stones of the Church. But if the Pope cannot erre in his decretall Epistles, Anacletus saith it signifieth an head, or beginning, or first. Dist.22.cap. Sacro sanct. Anacl.Ep.3. Vigilius Euthero. Peters preeminence.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. I.

RHEM. 1 Was the word.) The second person in Trinitie which is the naturall, onely, and eternall Sonne of God the Father, is called the WORD: not as the holy Scriptures or speeches of the Prophets and Apostles (written and spoken by Gods commandement for the vttering of his diuine will towards man) be called his word, but in a more diuine, eminent, and ineffable sort, to expresse vnto vs in a sort, by a terme agreeable to our capacitie, that the Sonne of God so is, and so from euerlasting is borne of God the Father, as our prime concept (which is our internall and mentall word) is and issueth out of our intelligence and mind. This WORD then, Sonne, or second Person in the holy Trinitie, was and had his being then already, when other creatures (of what sort so euer) had but their beginning, and therefore cannot be a creature, as many Heretikes before the writing of this Gospel thought, and as the Arrians after taught. And this first sentence of the Gospel not onely the faithfull, but the Platonikes did so admire (as S. Augustine writeth) that they wished it to be written in golde. How God the Sonne is called the WORD. August.de Ciu. Dei lib.10.c.14. The Platonikes.

RHEM. 3 1 With God.) Because a man might say, If the WORD were before any thing was created, where or how could he be? the Euangelist preuenting that carnall concept, saith first, that he was with God, whose being dependeth not vpon time, place, place, ſpace, or any other creature, all which were made by him. ſecondly, he giueth vs to vnderſtande, that the WORD hath his proper ſubſiſtence or perſonalitie diſtinct from God the Father, whereby Sabellius the old Heretike is refuted. thirdly, here is inſinuated the order of theſe two perſons, one towards the other, to wit, that the Sonne is with and of the Father, and not the Father of the Sonne. fourthly, you may confute here the blaſphemie of Caluin, holding the ſecond Perſon to be God, not as of God the Father, but as of himſelfe. And ye: ſuch are the bookes that our youth nowe reade commonly in England, and that by commandement.

The WORD eternall with the Father, diſtinct in perſon, and of the Father. Calu inſt. li. 1. c. 13. ſect. 23. and 25.

FVLKE. 3 An horrible ſlander of Caluine, who teacheth none otherwiſe of the Godhead of Chriſt, then the Papiſts themſelues. Affirming that he is God, of God the father, in reſpect of perſon as the ſonne, yet very God, of one and the ſame Godhead that the father is God, which is not multiplied by communication of generation, but is one and moſt ſingular in all the three perſons. Which moſt true and perpetuall doctrine of the Church, he hath maintained in his writings, againſt the Arrians, Sabellians, and Tritheites of our age, while the auctors of this ſlander take their eaſe, and neuer once oppoſed themſelues againſt them. See chap. 10. ſect. 3. Slander.

RHEM. 4 1 God was the Word.) Leſt any man vpon the premiſſes, which ſet forth the relation and diſtinction of the ſecond Perſon from the firſt, might thinke that the Father onely were God, the Euangeliſt expreſly teacheth, the WORD to be God. for though the wordes ſeeme to lie otherwiſe (becauſe we haue of purpoſe followed the elegancie which the Euangeliſt himſelfe obſerued in placing them ſo, and therefore they ſtand ſo both in Greeke and Latine) yet in deede the conſtruction is thus, The WORD was God, and as (in his firſt Epiſtle the ſame Apoſtle writeth) true God: leaſt any might ſay (as the Arians did) that he was God indeede, but not truely and naturally, but by common adoption or calling, as good men in the Church be called the ſonnes of God. What wonderfull wrangling and tergiuerſation the Arians vſed to auoide the euidence of this place, we ſee in S. Auguſtine lib 3. de Doct. Chriſt. cap. 2. euen ſuch as the Proteſtants doe, to auoide the like wordes, This is my bodie, concerning the B. Sacrament. The WORD true God by nature. 1. Ioa. c. 5. 20. The Proteſtants are like the wrāgling Arians.

FVLKE. 4 The Proteſtants are nothing like the Arians, for they acknowledge the wordes of Chriſt to bee true, in ſuch ſenſe as he ſpake them, and as the ancient fathers of the Church did take them, and expound them, for many hundred yeeres after Chriſt, as in places conuenient is prooued: ſee the notes vpon Matth. 26. Mar. 14. Luke 22. Slander.

RHEM. 3 By him.) Againe, by this he ſignifieth the eternitie, diuinitie, omnipotencie, and equalitie of the WORD or Sonne, with God the Father, becauſe by him all things were created. all things he ſaith, both viſible of this world: and inuiſible, as Angels and all ſpirituall creatures. Whereupon it is euident alſo, that himſelfe is no creature, being the creator of all: neither is ſinne of his creation, being a defect of a thing, rather then a thing it ſelfe, and therefore neither of nor by him. The WORD not a creature but the creator.

RHEM. 5 12 He gaue them power.) Free-will to receiue or acknowledge Chriſt, and power giuen to men, if they will, to be made by Chriſt the ſonnes of God: but not forced or drawen thereunto by any neceſſitie. Freewill.

FVLKE 5 Men haue no freedome of will, to accept the grace of God offred, vntill they be by grace preuented. And although they be not forced or drawen by neceſſitie, yet they are by the grace of God made willing, which by nature were altogether vnwilling. The word which they haue here tranſlated power, ſignifieth dignitie, or authoritie, which is giuen onely of Gods grace (as the words of the text are manifeſt) to them that receiue Chriſt by faith: which is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but is the gift of God. Eph. 2. 8. Rom. 9. 16. By this power (ſaith Cyrillus vpon this place) he vnderſtandeth adoption and grace, afterward moſt ſafely he inferred: that they are borne of God, that he might ſhew the greatneſſe of grace, which ioyneth together ſtrangers from God, and maketh them the ſonnes of God, and of loue giueth freely the nobilitie of the Lorde to his ſeruants. Euſeb. Emiſſ. hom. in nat. Dom. Quid enim illis maius dari potuit, quàm vt eſſent filij Dei: ſi enim filij (vt ait Apoſtolus) & heredes. Freewill.

RHEM. 6 14 The Word made fleſh.) This is the high and diuine teſtimonie of Chriſts incarnation, and that he vouchſaued to become man. for the acknowledging of which inexplicable benefit and giuing humble thankes for the ſame, all Chriſtian people in the world by tradition of the Fathers proſtrate themſelues or kneele downe, when they heare it ſung or ſaid at the holy Maſſe, either in this Goſpel: or in the Creede by theſe words, ET HOMO FACTVS EST. Humble kneeling at the ſolemne words of Chriſts incarnation.

FVLKE. 6 Blind deuotion of ignorant Papiſts, who vnderſtand not the words, much leſſe the myſterie expreſſed in theſe words, Verbum caro factum eſt, or Homo factus eſt, at which they kneele (as you ſay) although I ſuppoſe it is not generally obſerued of all Papiſtes. Superſtition.

RHEM. 18 No man hath ſeene.) Neuer man in this mortalitie ſawe God in the very ſhape and naturall forme of the diuine eſſence, but men ſee him onely in the ſhape of viſible creatures, in or by which it pleaſeth him to ſhew himſelfe vnto many diuerſly in this world: but neuer in ſuch ſort as when he ſhewed himſelfe in the perſon of the ſonne of God, being made truely man and conuerſing with men. How mortall men ſee God.

32 The Spirit.) Here is an euident teſtimonie of the third Perſon in Trinitie, which is the holy Ghoſt: ſo that in this one Chapter we finde expreſly againſt all Heretikes, Iewes, and Pagans, ſet foorth the trueth of the Churches doctrine concerning the whole Trinitie. The B. Trinitie.

RHEM. 7 42 Looking vpon him.) This beholding of Simon, inſinuateth Chriſts deſignement and preferring of him to be the chiefe Apoſtle, the Rocke of the Church, and his Vicar. and therefore vpon that Diuine prouidence and intention he accordingly changeth his name, calling him for Simon, Cephas, which is a Syriake word, as much to ſay as Rocke or ſtone. And S. Paul commonly calleth him by his name Cephas, whereas other both Greekes and Latines call him altogether by the Greeke word, Peter, which ſignifieth the ſelfe ſame thing. Whereof S. Cyrill ſaith, that our Sauiour by foretelling that his name ſhould no more now be Simon, but Peter, did by the word it ſelfe aptly ſignifie, that on him, as on a rocke and ſtone moſt firme, he would build his Church. Peter by his new name deſigned to be the Rocke of the Church. Cephas. Petrus. Lib. 2. c. 12. in Ioan.

FVLKE. 7 A wretched concluſion: Chriſt looked vpon Peter, ergo he appointed and preferred him to be chiefe Apoſtle, the rocke of his Church, and his Vicar. The addition of his name Cephas, prooueth, that he was appointed to be a ſtone, whereon the Church ſhould be builded, but not a ſingular or the onely rocke thereof, no more then the addition of Boanerges prooueth that Iames and Iohn were the onely children of thunder, or that Barnabas was the onely ſonne of Conſolation. Neither was the name of Simon changed, for he was ſtill called Simon, by our Sauiour Chriſt, Matth. 16. 17. chap. 17. 25. Luke 22. 31. and Iohn 21. 15. and by Iames Act. 15. 14. That Chriſt builded his Church vpon Peter, as vpon a rocke, and moſt firme ſtone (as Cyrillus ſaith) it is no controuerſie, ſeeing he built it ioyntly vpon the foundation of all the Apoſtles: and the faith and doctrine of Peter, which was the faith and doctrine of all the Apoſtles, is the rocke, whereupon the Church is builded, and not the perſon of Peter, as the ſame Cyrill teſtifieth, Dialog. de Trinit. lib. 4. in Eſai lib. 4. Peters prerogatiue.

CHAP. II.

As the requeſt of his mother he worketh his firſt miracle, turning water into wine at a mariage in Galilee, although the time of his manifeſtation be not yet come. 12 Then in Hieruſalem at Paſche, being but one, and yet obſcure, he throweth out of the Temple moſt miraculouſly all the marchants. 28 And being yet of the blind Iewes asked a ſigne, he ſignifieth ſo long long before, that they should kill him, but he will rise againe the third day. 23 Which also presently they would doe, but that he knowing their false hearts (though many beleeue in him) will not tarie among them.

FYLKE. 1

The virgine Marie maketh no expresse request vnto our Sauiour Christ, to worke any miracle, and if she did, yet he did nothing at her request, but according to his owne wisedome and good will.

† Or, towne.

THE GOSPEL vpon the 2. Sunday after the Epiphanie.

AND the third day there was a mariage made in Cana of Galilee: and the mother of IESVS was there.

2 And ‖ IESVS also was called, and his Disciples to the mariage.

3 And the wine failing, the mother of IESVS saith to him, ‖ They haue no wine.

4 And IESVS saith to her, What is to me and thee woman? my houre commeth not yet.

5 His mother saith to ỹ ministers, ‖ Whatsoeuer he shall say to you, doe ye.

6 And there were set there sixe waterpottes of stone, according to the purification of the Iewes, holding euery one two or three measures.

7 IESVS saith to them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them vp to the toppe.

8 And IESVS saith to them, Draw now, and carie to the chiefe steward. And they caried it.

9 And after the chiefe steward tasted the ‡ water made wine, and knew not whence it was, but the ministers knew that had drawne the water: the chiefe stewarde calleth the bridegrome,

10 And saith to him, Euery man first setteth the good wine: and when they haue wel drunke, then that which is worse. But thou hast kept the good wine vntill now.

11 This beginning of miracles did IESVS in Cana of Galilee: and he manifested his glory, and his Disciples beleeued in him.

12 After this he went downe to Capharnaum himselfe and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples: and there they remained not many dayes.

THE GOSPEL vpon Munday in the fourth weeke of Lent.

13 And the Pasche of the Iewes was at hand, and IESVS went vp to Hierusalem:

14 And he found in the temple them that solde oxen and sheepe and doues, and the bankers sitting.

15 And when hee had made as it were a whip of litle coardes, he ‖ cast them all out of the temple, the sheepe also and the oxen, and the money of the bankers he powred out, and the tables he ouerthrew.

16 And to them that sold doues, he said, Take away these things hence, and make not the house of my father, a house of marchandise.

17 And his disciples remembred that it is written, The zeale of thy house hath eaten me. Psal.68,10.

18 The Iewes therefore answered and said to him, What signe doest thou shew vs, that thou doest these things?

19 IESVS answered and saide to them, *Dissolue

And the third day was there a mariage in Cana †a citie of Galilee, and the mother of Iesus was there.

2 And both Iesus was called and his Disciples vnto the mariage.

3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Iesus saith vnto him, They haue no wine.

4 Iesus saith vnto her, Woman, what haue I to doe with thee? mine houre is not yet come.

5 His mother saith vnto the † ministers, Whatsoeuer he saith vnto you, doe it. † Or, seruants.

6 And there were set there sixe water pots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Iewes, conteyning two or three † firkins a piece. † Or, measures.

7 Iesus saith vnto them, Fill the water pots with water. And they filled them vp to the brimme.

8 And he saith vnto them, Draw out now, and beare vnto the gouernour of the feast. And they bare it.

9 When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine (and knew not whence it was, but the ministers which drewe the water knewe) the gouernour of the feast calleth the bridegrome,

10 And saith vnto him, Euery man at the beginning doeth set foorth good wine, and when the gheستes haue well drunke, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine vntill nowe.

11 This beginning of miracles did Iesus in Cana of Galilee, and shewed his glorie: and his disciples beleened on him.

12 After this he went downe to Capernaum, and his mother, and his brethren, and his Disciples, and there continued not many dayes.

13 And the Iewes Passeouer was at hand, and Iesus went vp to Hierusalem,

14 And found sitting in the Temple those that sold oxen, and sheepe, and doues, and changers of money.

15 And when hee had made as it were a scourge of small cordes, he drone them all out of the Temple, with the sheepe and oxen, and powred out the changers money, and ouerthrew the tables:

16 And saide vnto them that solde doues, Haue these things hence, & make not my fathers house an house of marchandise.

*17 And his disciples remembred that it was written, * The zeale of thine house hath euen eaten me.* Psal.69.10.

18 Then answered the Iewes, and saide vnto him, What token shewest thou vnto vs, seeing that thou doest these things?

19 Iesus answered, and saide vnto them,

Mat.26.61. 27.40.

*Diſſolue this temple, and in three dayes I will raiſe it.

20 The Iewes therefore ſayd, In fourtie and ſixe yeres was this temple built, and wilt thou raiſe it in three dayes?

21 But he ſpake of the temple of his body.

22 Therefore when he was riſen againe from the dead, his diſciples remembred, that he ſaid this, and they beleeued the Scripture and the word that IESVS did ſay.

23 And when hee was at Hieruſalem in the Paſche, vpon the feſtiuall day, many beleeued in his name, ſeeing his ſignes which he did.

24 But ‖ IESVS did not commit himſelfe vnto them, for that he knew all,

25 And becauſe it was not needefull for him that any ſhould giue teſtimonie of man: for he knew what was in man.

*Deſtroy this Temple, and in three dayes I will reare it vp. Mat.26.61. and 27.40. mar.14.58. and 15.29.

20 Then ſaid the Iewes, Fourty and ſixe yeres was this Temple a building, and wilt thou reare it vp in three dayes?

21 But he ſpake of the Temple of his body.

22 When therefore he was riſen from death, his diſciples remembred that he thus had ſaide: and they beleeued the Scripture, and the wordes which Ieſus had ſaid.

23 When he was in Hieruſalem at the Paſſeouer, in the feaſt day, many beleeued on his name, when they ſawe his miracles which he did.

24 But Ieſus did not commit himſelfe vnto them, becauſe he knew all men,

25 And needed not that any ſhould teſtifie of man: for he knew what was in man.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. II.

RHEM. 2 9 Water made wine.) He that ſeeth water turned into wine, needeth not diſpute or doubt how Chriſt changed bread into his bodie.

FVLKE. 2 He that ſeeth water turned into wine, and ſeeth that by all ſenſes it is iudged ſo to be, hath neede to know, how bread is turned into the naturall bodie of Chriſt, contrary to the iudgement of all his ſenſes. When the Scripture neuer mentioneth any ſuch conuerſion: yea when it is certaine by the Scriptures, that the body of Chriſt neuer leeſeth the eſſentiall properties of a bodie, he hath neede to know, how the bodie of Chriſt can be vnder ſuch a ſhape, wherein it hath no eſſentiall properties of a naturall organicall body. Tranſubſtantiation.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. II.

RHEM. 3 2 IESVS alſo was called.) By his vouchſauing to come with his to the mariage, he approueth the cuſtome of the faithfull in meeting at honeſt feaſts and recreations for maintenance of loue, peace, and amitie among themſelues: he reproueth the hereſie of Tatian, Marcion, and ſuch like condemning wedlocke: laſtly (as S. Cyrill ſaith) he ſanctifieth and bleſſeth the mariage of the faithfull in the new Teſtament, making it a new creature in him, and diſcharging it of the manifold maledictions and diſorders wherein it was before. By which benediction the often diuorces, remariages, and pluralities of wiues, and the womens ſeruile ſubiection & impatitie in that caſe, be redreſſed and reduced to the primitiue inſtitution, and ſo Chriſtian mariage made a Sacrament. See S. Aug. de nupt. & concup. lib. 1. c. 10. & 21. li. 1. de adult. coniug. c. 8. Chriſt with his preſence honoureth and approueth mariage. Cyril. in 2. Ioa. c. 22.

FVLKE. 3 The onely preſence of Chriſt at the mariage, is not ſufficient to make it a Sacrament, as Baptiſme and the Lords Supper are Sacraments. But his word of inſtitution, muſt come to the outward element, that it may be made a Sacrament: as Auguſtine teacheth expreſly Tract. 70. in Ioan. de Cataclyſmo c. 3. S. Auguſtine in the places by you quoted, nameth mariage a ſacrament, as he doth many other things: but not a ſacrament of the new Teſtament, the inſtitution whereof, he acknowledgeth to haue beene before mans fall, de nup. & con. li. 1. c. 21. the ſame teacheth the maſter of the ſentences, lib. 4. diſt. 2. Mariage no Sacrament.

RHEM. 4 3 They haue no wine.) Our Lady many wayes vnderſtood that now the time approched of manifeſting himſelfe to the world by miracles and preaching, and nothing doubted but that he would now begin at her requeſt. Whereby we learne that Chriſt ordinarily gineth not his graces, but humbly asked and requeſted thereunto, and that his mothers interceſſion is more then vulgarly effectuall, and that he denieth her nothing. Our Ladies interceſſion.

FVLKE. 4 Whether the bleſſed Virgin knew the time of the manifeſtation of Chriſt, it is not certaine: but it is moſt certaine that Chriſt knew his owne time better then ſhe, and therefore had no need to be admoniſhed by her. Although the words do import no requeſt, but only ſignifie that the wine failed. Whereby ſhe might meane, that ſhe did modeſtly referre it to his pleaſure, whether he would ſupply the want of the wine by ſome godly exhortation, or by working a miracle. If ſhe were perſwaded that he would beginne his miracles at her requeſt (as you are bold without all warrant to affirme,) ſhe was much deceiued: for he would not yeeld to her motion, whatſoeuer her meaning was. Therefore this place nothing fauoureth her interceſſion to Chriſt, and much leſſe our prayers to her. The interceſſion of the B. Virgin.

RHEM. 5 4 What is to me and thee?) Becauſe this ſpeech is ſubiect to diuers ſenſes, we keepe the words of our text, leſt by turning it into any Engliſh phraſe, we might ſtraiten the holy Ghoſts intention to ſome certaine ſenſe either not intended, or not only intended, and ſo take away the choiſe and indifferencie from the reader, whereof (in holy Scripture ſpecially) all Tranſlatours muſt beware. Chriſt then may meane here, What is that, woman, to me and thee being but ſtrangers, that they want wine? as ſome interpret it, or (which is the more proper vſe of that kind of ſpeech in holy write) what haue I to doe with thee? that is, why ſhould I haue reſpect to thy deſire in this caſe? In matters touching my charge, and the commiſſion of my father for preaching, working miracles, and other graces, I muſt not be tied to fleſh and blood. Which was not a reprehenſion of our Lady, or ſignification that ſhe would not heare her in this or other things pertaining to Gods glory or the good of men, for the euent ſheweth the contrary, but it was a leſſon to the company that heard it, and namely to his diſciples, that reſpect of kinred ſhould not draw them to doe any thing againſt reaſon, or to be the principall motion why they do their duties, but Gods glory. Translators of holy Scriptures.

LKE 5 The phraſe is no more ſubiect to diuers ſenſes here, then Matth. 8. 29. where the onely ſenſe is, What haue we to do with thee, Ieſus thou Sonne of God. Therefore your later interpretation is right, Chriſt had nothing to doe with his mother, nor ſhe with him, in matters pertaining to his office, and commiſſion of his Father. And therefore his words were a reprehenſion of her intermedling, with that wherein ſhe had nothing to doe. For we may not ſo excuſe her, that we accuſe our Sauiour Chriſt, who did not reprehend her vniuſtly, but as ſhe deſerued, though not onely for her owne cauſe, but for inſtruction to others, who might take offence by her interpellation, to thinke that he was in matters of his office, ſubiect to his mother, which hee vtterly The B. virgin not free from ſinne.

denieth: and therefore doth nothing at her request, but as he himselfe saw it expedient. His mother required a miracle (saith S. Augustine) but he did not acknowledge humaine bowels when he should worke diuine workes, as though he should say, That of me which worketh a miracle thou diddest not conceiue, thou art not mother of my diuinitie. Tract. 8. in Ioan. Chrysostome vpon this place, Hom. 20. thinketh that shee was tickled with vaine glory and ambition, as also when she sent to speake vnto him, when he was preaching. Matth. 12.4. Which although it be not gathered out of the text necessarily, yet it sheweth that the Virgine Mary (in his iudgement) was not voide of sinne, nor so reputed of the ancient fathers.

RHEM. 6 5 Whatsoeuer he shall say.) By this you see, our Lady by her diuine prudence and entiere familiaritie and acquaintance with all his maner of speeches, knew it was no checke to her, but a doctrine to others: and that she had no repulse, though he seemed to say his time was not yet come to worke miracles: not doubting but he would begin a litle before his ordinarie time for her sake, as S. Cyrill thinketh he did: and therefore she admonisheth the waiters to marke well, and to execute whatsoeuer Christ should bid them doe. Our Lady doubteth not but Christ will grant her petition. li. 2. in Ioa. c. 2.

FVLKE. 6 It cannot be proued by these wordes, that she tooke not the reprehension of Christ, to pertaine vnto her: but rather the contrary, seeing that now she requireth perfect obedience to be giuen to his worde, no longer taking vpon her to admonish him. Where you say, our Lady by her diuine prudence, &c. the speech is insolent, and cannot be excused of blasphemie, whatsoeuer your meaning is. For though she were endued with singular wisedome of Gods spirit, yet it cannot be rightly called her diuine prudence. Further, where you say that she doubteth not, but Christ will grant her petition, you speake beside the booke, seeing the Gospel maketh no mention of any petition, neither could she haue faith or certaine perswasion of a miracle, seeing he had not onely not promised any such thing, but also sharpely rebuked her, for offering to intermedle in such matters, as did not appertaine vnto her. Againe, what wilfull blindnesse it this? that you will not acknowledge that Christ said directly and expresly, his time was not come, but that she had no repulse though he seemed to say, his time was not come. Shall we beleeue you, or the Euangelist? which reporteth that he said, my time is not yet come. Finally, where you say, she doubted not but he would begin a litle before his ordinarie time for her sake, as S. Cyril thinketh he did, it is monstrous presumption to ascribe such perswasions to the blessed Virgin, wherein she should haue grieuously offended: if being before admonished that he had nothing to doe with her in such matters, and that his time was not yet come: contrary to his expresse word, shee should haue conceiued such presumptuous perswasions as you ascribe vnto her. Neither doeth Cyrillus thinke (as you say) neither can any such thought be gathered out of the wordes of that Chapter. He sheweth (saith Cyrillus) how great honour is due to parents, when straightway he for his mother, commeth to the act, which as much as was in him, he had differred for a short time. These words of Cyrill declare, that he taried the full time which in his diuine wisedome hee sawe to be most expedient for working this miracle. The virgin Mary iustly reprehended RHEM. 7 15 Cast them out.) By this chastising corporally the defilers and abusers of the Temple, he doth not onely shew his power, that being but one poore man he could by force execute his pleasure vpon so many sturdy fellowes: but also his soueraine authoritie ouer all offenders, and that not vpon their soules onely, as by excommunication and spirituall penalties, but so farre as is requisite for the execution of spirituall iurisdiction, vpon their bodies and goods also. That the Spiritualtie may learne, how farre and in what cases, for iust Zeale of Christs Church, they may vse and exercise both spiritually and temporally their forces and faculties against offenders, specially against the prophaners of Gods Church, according to the Apostles allusion, 1. Cor. 3. If any defile the Temple of God, him will God destroy. Prophaners of Gods Church to be punished in soule and body by the Spirituall power.

FVLKE. 7 Christ as king and high Priest, yea very God, had all authority to punish offenders, in soule, body and goods: but the ministers of the Church his seruants by this example, may not take vpon them temporall punishment of men, in body and goods at their pleasure: whereby you insinuate the Antichristian power, which the Pope would vsurpe, not onely to excommunicate Princes, but also to procure conspiracies against their liues, to murther them, and to depriue them of their kingdoms and dignities, contrary to the manifest Scriptures, and the iudgement of all the godly fathers of the Primitiue Church. For it is manifest that Christ in this place, vseth his diuine authoritie, as he declareth by raising vp the temple of his bodie, after it was by them put to death. Cyril in Ioan. lib. 2. cap. 32. Chrysost. in Ioan. hom. 22. None but Antichrist therefore that boasteth himselfe as God, will presume to doe that which Christ here did, by the same warrant that he did it. The ciuill authoritie of Magistrates, is otherwise sufficiently established ouer mens bodies and goods. The tyranny of Antichrist.

RHEM. 8 28 IESVS committed not himself.) S. Augustine applieth this their first faith and beleefe in Christ, sodenly raised vpon the admiration of his wonders, but yet not fully formed or established in them, vnto the faith of Nouices or Catechumens in the Church: and Christs not committing his Person to them as yet, to the Churches like wariness and wisedom, in not opening nor giuing to them our Lord in the B. Sacrament, because all were not to be trusted with that high point without full triall of their faith. Tract. in Ioa. The B. Sacrament is not to be put to nouices or younglings in faith.

FVLKE. 8 Howsoeuer this doctrine be grounded vpon the text, the Papists practise commonly against it, who giue the Sacrament commonly to them that were neuer instructed in the mysteries of Christian religion, if they once come to yeeres of discretion, although they know neither the Lords prayer, ten Commandements, articles of faith, or any thing els necessary to saluation: except it be to pronounce the words ill fauouredly, in a tongue whereof they haue none vnderstanding. Ignorance in the Popish Church.

CHAP. III.

RHEM. 1 He teacheth Nicodemus, that to come to the kingdome of God, Baptisme is necessary, as being our Regeneration. 10 Which point Nicodemus as then not vnderstanding, 11 he sheweth that they must beleeue him, and what good cause there is for them so to doe. 23 After this he also baptizeth, and Iohn likewise at the same time. 25 Whereupon a question being mooued, Whether Baptisme is better, 25 Iohn answereth it by saying, that he is so farre inferiour to Christ, as a meere man to God most high.

FVLKE. 1 Spirituall Baptisme with the holy Ghost, is necessary to saluation, as our regeneration: whereof the outward baptisme is a seale, not to be neglected where it may be had according to Gods institution. The necessitie of Baptisme.

THE GOSPEL vpon holy Rood day, May 3.

AND there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a prince of ỹ Iewes. 2 This man came to IESVS by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we knowe that thou art come from God a maister, for no man can do these

THere was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Iewes:
2 The same came to Iesus by night, and said vnto him, Rabbi, wee knowe that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can doe these these signes which thou doest, vnlesse God be with him.

3 IESVS answered, & said to him, Amen, Amen I say to thee, Vnles a man be borne againe, he cannot see the kingdome of God.

4 Nicodemus said to him, How can a man be borne, when he is old? can he enter into his mothers wombe againe and be borne?

5 IESVS answered, Amen, Amen I say to thee, Vnles a man be ‖ borne againe of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdome of God.

6 That which is borne of the flesh, is flesh: and that which is borne of the spirit, is spirit.

7 Marueile not, that I saide to thee, You must be borne againe.

8 The spirit breatheth where ‡ he will: & thou hearest his voice, but thou knowest not whence he commeth and whither he goeth: so is euery one that is borne of the Spirit.

‡ We folow rather S. August. and those ancient fathers, which most commonly vnderstand this place of the holy Ghost, and not of the winde: although both sense be good.

9 Nicodemus answered, and said to him, How can these things be done?

10 IESVS answered, & said to him, Thou art a maister in Israel, and art thou ignorant of these things?

11 Amen, Amen I say to thee, that wee speake that which we know, and that which we haue seene we testifie, and our testimonie you receiue not.

12 If I haue spoken to you earthly things, and you beleeue not: how if I shall speake to you heauenly things, will you beleeue?

13 And no man hath ascended into heauen, but he that descended from heauen, the Sonne of man which is in heauen.

Num.21. 14 And as * Moyses exalted the serpent in the desert, so must the Sonne of man bee exalted:

15 That euery one which beleeueth in him, perish not, but may haue life euerlasting.

THE GOSPEL vpon Munday in the fifth weeke 16 For so God loued the worlde, that he gaue his onely-begotten sonne: that euery one that beleeueth in him, perish not, but may haue life euerlasting. ☞

17 For God sent not his sonne into the world, to iudge the world, but that the world may be saued by him.

18 He that beleeueth in him, is not iudged. but he that doeth not beleeue, ‖ is alreadie iudged: because he hath not beleeued in the name of the onely-begotten sonne of God.

19 And this is the iudgement: because the light is come into the world, and men haue loued the darkenesse rather then the light: for their workes were euill.

20 For euery one that doth ill, hateth the light, and commeth not to the light, that his workes may not be controuled.

21 But he that doth veritie, commeth to the light, that his workes may be made manifest, because they were done in God. ☞

22 After these miracles that thou doest, except God bee with him.

3 Iesus answered, and saide vnto him, Verily, verily I say vnto thee, except a man bee borne from aboue, he cannot see the kingdome of God.

4 Nicodemus saith vnto him, How can a man be borne when he is olde? can he enter the second time into his mothers wombe, and be borne?

5 Iesus answered, Verily, verily I say vnto thee, except a man be borne of water and of the spirit, hee can not enter into the kingdome of God.

6 That which is borne of the flesh, is flesh, and that which is borne of the spirit, is spirit.

7 Marueile not thou that I say vnto thee, Ye must be borne from aboue.

8 The winde bloweth where it lusteth, and thou hearest the sounde thereof, but canst not tell whence it commeth, and whither it goeth: So is euery one that is borne of the spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered, and said vnto him, How can these things be?

10 Iesus answered, and saide vnto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily I say vnto thee, We speake that we do know, and testifie that we haue seene: and ye receyue not our witnesse.

12 If I haue tolde you earthly things, and yee beleeue not: how shal ye beleeue if I tel you of heauenly things?

13 And no man hath ascended vp to heauen, but he that came downe from heauen, euen the sonne of man which is in heauen.

*14 * And as Moses lift vp the serpent in the wilderneſse: euen so must the sonne of man be lift vp:* Num.21.9.

15 That whosoeuer beleeueth in him, should not perish, but haue eternall life.

*16 * For God so loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten sonne: that whosoeuer beleeueth in him, should not perish, but haue euerlasting life.* 1.Iohn 4.9.

17 For God sent not his sonne into the world to cõdemne the world: but that the world through him might be saued.

18 He that beleeueth on him, is not condemned: but he that beleeueth not, is condemned already, because he hath not beleeued in the name of the onely begotten sonne of God.

*19 * And this is the condemnation, * that light is come into the world, and men loued darkenesse rather then light: because their deedes were euill.* Iohn 1.4.

20 For euery one that euill doeth, hateth the light, neither cõmeth to the light, least his deedes should be reproued.

21 But he that doth trueth, commeth to the light, that his deedes may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God.

22 After these things IESVS came and his Disciples into the countrey of Iewrie: and there he abode with them, and baptized.

23 And Iohn also was baptizing in Ænon beside Salim: because there was much water there, and they came, and were baptized.

24 For Iohn was not yet cast into prison.

25 And there rose a question of Iohns disciples with the Iewes concerning purification.

26 And they came to Iohn, and saide to him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyonde Iordan, to whom *thou didst giue testimony, behold he baptizeth, and all come to him. Io.1,19.

27 Iohn answered and saide, A man can not receiue any thing, vnlesse it be giuen him from heauen.

28 Your selues do beare me witnes, *that I saide, I am not CHRIST: but that I am sent before him. Io.1,20.

29 Hee that hath the bride, is the bridegrome: but the friend of the bridegrome that standeth and heareth him, reioyceth with ioy for the voice of the bridegrome. This my ioy therefore is filled.

30 He must increase, and I diminish.

31 ‖ He that commeth from aboue, is aboue all. He that is of the earth, of the earth he is, and of the earth he speaketh. Hee that commeth from heauen, is aboue all,

32 And what hee hath seene and heard, that he testifieth: and his testimonie no man receiueth.

33 He that hath receiued his testimonie, hath signed that God is true,

34 For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the wordes of God. for God doeth not giue the spirit by measure.

35 The Father loueth the Sonne: and he hath giuen all things in his hand.

36 He that beleeueth in the Sonne, hath life euerlasting: but he that is incredulous to the Sonne, shall not see life, but the wrath of God remaineth vpon him.

22 After these things, came Iesus and his disciples into the land of Iurie, and there he taried with them, and baptized.

*23 * And Iohn also was baptizing in Ænon, neare to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.* Iohn 4.1.

24 For Iohn was not yet cast into prison.

25 And there arose a question between Iohns disciples and the Iewes, about purifying.

*26 And they came vnto Iohn, and said vnto him, Rabbi, hee that was with thee beyond Iordan, * to whom thou barest witnesse, beholde, the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.* Iohn 1.17.

27 Iohn answered, and saide, A man can receiue nothing, except it bee giuen him from heauen.

*28 Yee your selues are witnesses, how that I saide, * I am not that Christ, but am sent before him.* Iohn 1.20.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegrome: but the friend of the bridegrome, which standeth and heareth him, reioyceth greatly because of the bridegromes voice: This my ioy therefore is fulfilled.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 Hee that commeth from on high, is aboue all: hee that is of the earth, is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that commeth from heauen, is aboue all:

32 And what hee hath seene and heard, that he testifieth: and no man receiueth his testimonie.

*33 He that hath receiued his testimony, hath set to his seale, that God is true. Rom.3.4.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. III.

RHEM. 2 5 Borne againe of water.) *As no man can enter into this world nor haue his life and being in the same except he be borne of his carnall parents, no more can a man enter into the life and state of grace which is in Christ, or attaine to life euerlasting, vnlesse he be borne and baptized of water & the holy Ghost. Whereby we see first, this Sacrament to be called our regeneration or second birth, in respect of our naturall & carnall which was before. Secondly, that this Sacrament consisteth of an externall element of water, and internall vertue of the holy Spirit: wherein is excelleth Iohns Baptisme, which had the externall element, but not the spirituall grace. thirdly, that no man can enter into the kingdome of God, nor into the fellowship of holy Church, without it. Whereby the * Pelagians, and Catuinists be condemned, that promise life euerlasting to yong children that die without Baptisme, and all other that thinke onely faith to serue, or the externall element of water superfluous or not necessarie: our Sauiours words being plaine and generall. Though in this case, God which hath not bound his grace, in respect of his owne freedome, to any Sacrament, may and doth accept them as baptized, which either are martyred before they could be baptized, or els depart this life with vow and desire to haue that Sacrament, but by some remediless necessitie could not obtaine it. Lastly, it is proued that this Sacrament giueth grace* ex opere operato, that is, of the worke it selfe (which all Protestants denie) because it so breedeth our spirituall life in God, as our carnall birth gineth the life of the world. Baptisme in water necessarie to saluation. * Aug. hom. 28. carnem & significat quid sit in anima: per illum autem Spiritum sanctum anima mundatur & saginatur.

Secondly, where you say, that Iohns baptisme had not the spirituall grace, it is false: for it had remission of sins ioyned vnto it, Mark.1.4. although not of the ministerie of Iohn, but of Christ the fountaine of all grace.

Thirdly, where you say, No man can enter into the kingdome of heauen, without externall Baptisme, you teach the contrary your selfe soone after, saying, that in two cases, it is not necessarie. And S. Augustine affirmeth as much, saying, That the visible Sacrament is then supplied inuisibly, when not the contempt of religion, but the article of necessitie excludes the mysterie of baptisme. De Baptis. cont. Don. lib. 4. cap. 22.

Fourthly, you slander Caluine, to match him with the Pelagians, which promised eternall life to all infants, without Baptisme, in respect of their innocencie, denying Originall sinne. Whereas Caluine holdeth all infants vnder the sentence of eternall damnation for the guilt of Originall sinne, yet excepteth the elect who are borne againe by the Spirit of God, although the Sacrament of Baptisme be sometime lacking, not through their default, but because they are preuented by death. In which case it is otherwise supplied, as in your two cases. Slander.

Fifthly, you slander Caluine and vs, whom you charge to thinke, that only faith doth so serue, that the externall element of water is superfluous or not necessarie when it may be had according to Christs institution. For in some cases you confesse it not necessarie. And indeede the words of our sauiour Christ, are not properly of the externall Sacrament, more then Ioh.6. of the other Sacrament. Except you eate the flesh of the Sonne of man and drinke his blood, you haue no life in you. Whereas all infants are excluded from that Sacrament, & consequently should be excluded from life, if the words were meant of the outward Sacrament. And the fathers of the ancient Church, which thought Baptisme was necessarie, did likewise thinke the Communion to be as necessary for infants, as Augustine, Innocentius bishop of Rome, and all the Church of their time, for any thing that we can gather by their writings. Finally, when the word of water in this text, signifieth the purifying grace of Christ, rather then the outward element of Baptisme, here can be no Argument drawne out of this place, that Sacraments conferre grace of the worke wrought, but according to the dispensation of Gods spirit, which worketh according to his owne pleasure, as in this Chapter, vers.8. and 1. *Cor.*12. Slander. Worke wrought.

RHEM. 18 Is iudged alreadie.) He that beleeueth in Christ with faith which worketh by charitie (as the Apostle speaketh) shall not be condemned at the later day nor at the houre of his death, but the Infidell, be he Iew, Pagan, or Heretike, is alreadie (if he die in his incredulitie) by his owne profession and sentence condemned, and shall not come to iudgement either particular or generall, to be discussed according to his workes of mercie done or omitted. In which sense S. Paul saith that the obstinate Heretike is condemned by his own iudgement, preuenting in himselfe of his owne freewill, the sentence both of Christ, and of the Church. Gal.5.6. Euery infidel, and namely heretiks, are iudged alreadie. Tit.3.11.

RHEM. 3 31 He that commeth from aboue.) As though he should say, No marueill that men resort to Christ so fast & make lesse account of me. for, his baptisme and his preaching and his person are all from heauen immediatly. He bringeth all from the very bosome, mouth, and substance of God his Father. whatsoeuer is in me, it but a litle drop of his grace. His spirit and graces are aboue all measures or mens gifts, euen according to his Manhood: and all power temporall and spirituall, the kingdome and the Priesthood, and all soueraintie in heauen and earth are bestowed vpon him as he is man also. The excellencie of Christs powet and graces.

FVLKE. 3 The doctrine and Baptisme of Iohn was from heauen, though there was infinite difference betweene the ministerie of Iohn, and the Maiestie of Christ. Iohns baptisme.

CHAP. IIII.

RHEM. 1 Leauing Iewrie because of the Pharises, in the way of Galilee he talketh with a Samaritane woman, telling her that he will giue water of euerlasting life, 16 showing himselfe to knowe mens secrets, 19 preferring the Iewes religion before the Samaritanes, but ours (the Christian Catholike religion) before them both. 25 and vttering vnto her that he is Christ. 28 which by her testimonie and his preaching very many Samaritanes doe beleeue: he in the meane time foretelling his Disciples, of the haruest he will send them into. 45 The Galilaeans also receiue him, where againe he worketh his second miracle.

FVLKE, 1 Poperie is not the Catholike Christian Religion which Christ preferreth, seeing it consisteth as much as the Iewish or heathnish, in externall obseruation and ceremonies not instituted of God, but deuised by men, to ouer shadow the light of the Gospel, therefore worshipped God in vaine, not according to his word, in spirit and trueth. Matth.15.9. Col.2.22.23. Poperie is not Catholike Christian religion.

WHen IESVS therefore vnderstoode ỳ the Pharisees heard ỳ IESVS maketh mo Disciples, and baptizeth, then Iohn,

2 (Howbeit ‡ IESVS did not baptize, but his Disciples)

3 Hee left Iewrie, and went againe into Galilee.

4 And hee had of necessitie to passe through Samaria.

5 He commeth therefore into a citie of Samaria which is called Sichar: * beside the maner that Iacob gaue to Ioseph his sonne.

6 And there was there the fountaine of Iacob. IESVS therefore wearied of his iourney, sate so vpon the fountaine. It was about the sixt houre.

7 There commeth ‡ a woman of Samaria to draw water, IESVS saith to her, Giue me to drinke.

8 For his Disciples were gone into the citie, to bie meates.

*5 Then commeth he to a citie of Samaria, which is called Sychar, neere to the possession * that Iacob gaue to his sonne Ioseph.* Gen.33.19. & 48.22. Ios.24.32.

6 And there was Iacobs well. Iesus then being wearie of his iourney, sate thus on the well: and it was about the sixth houre.

7 And there commeth a woman of Samaria to drawe water: Iesus saith vnto her, Giue me drinke.

8 For his disciples were gone away vnto the towne to buy meate.

28 The woman therefore left her water-pot, and she went into the citie, and sayth to those men,

29 Come, and see a man that hath tolde me al things whatsoeuer I haue done. Is not he CHRIST?

30 They went forth therefore out of the citie, and came to him.

31 In the meane time the Disciples desired him, saying, Rabbi eate.

32 But hee sayd to them, I haue meate to eate which you know not.

33 The Disciples therefore said one to an other, Hath any mã brought him for to eate?

34 IESVS sayth to them, My meate is to do the wil of him that sent me, to perfit his worke.

35 Do not you say that yet there are foure moneths, and harueſt commeth? Behold I say to you, lift vp your eyes, and see the countries, that they are white already to harueſt.

36 And hee that reapeth, receiueth hire, and gathereth fruit vnto life euerlasting: that both he that soweth, and he that reapeth, may reioice together.

37 For in this is the saying true: that it is one man that soweth, and it is an other that reapeth.

38 I haue sent you to reape that which you laboured not: others haue laboured, and you haue entred into their labours.

39 And of that citie many beleeued in him of the Samaritans, for the word of the ‡ woman giuing testimonie, that he told me all things whatsoeuer I haue done.

41 And many moe beleeued for his owne word,

42 And they sayd to the woman, That now not for thy saying doe wee beleeue: for our selues haue heard, and doe knowe that this is the Sauiour of the world in deede.

43 And after the two dayes he departed thence: and went into Galilee.

44 For IESVS himselfe gaue testimonie that a Prophet hath not honour in his owne countrie.

45 Therefore *when he was come into Galilee, the Galilæans receiued him, whereas they had seene all things that he had done at Hierusalem in the festiuall day: for them selues also came to the festiual day.

THE GOSPEL vpon the 20. Sunday after Pentecost. Io. 4.

48 IESVS

28 The woman then left her water pot, and went her way into the citie, and sayeth to the men,

29 Come see a man which told me al things that euer I did: is not he that Christ?

30 Then they went out of the citie, and came vnto him.

31 In the meane while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eate.

32 He sayd vnto them, I haue meate to eate that ye wot not of.

33 Therfore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eate?

34 Iesus sayth vnto them, My meate is that I doe the will of him that sent mee, and finish his worke.

*35 Say not yee, There are yet foure moneths, and then commeth harueſt? Beholde, I say vnto you, Lift vp your eyes, and looke on the regions: * for they are white alreadie vnto harueſt.* Matth. 9.37. luke 10.2.

36 And hee that reapeth, receiueth wages and gathereth fruit vnto life eternall: that both he that soweth, and hee that reapeth, might reioyce together.

37 And herein is the saying true, That one soweth and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reape that whereon you bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours.

39 Many of the Samaritanes of that citie beleeued on him, for the saying of the woman, which testified, That he tolde me all that euer I did.

40 So, when the Samaritanes were come vnto him, they besought him that he would tarrie with them: and he abode there two dayes.

41 And many moe beleeued, because of his owne word:

42 And sayd vnto the woman, Now we beleeue, not because of thy saying: for wee haue heard him our selues, and know that this is euen that Christ, the Sauiour of the world.

43 After two dayes he departed thence, and went away into Galilee,

*44 * For Iesus himselfe testified, that a Prophet hath none honour in his owne countrey.* Matth. 13.58. marke 6.4. luke 4.24.

*46 * So Iesus came againe into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certaine ruler, whose sonne was sicke at Capernaum.* Iohn 2.1.

47 When the same heard that Iesus was come out of Iurie into Galilee, he went vnto him, and besought him that he would come downe, and heale his sonne: for hee was euen at the point of death.

48 Then

48 IESVS therefore sayd to him, Vnlesse you see signes and wonders, you beleeue not.

49 The lord sayth to him, Lorde, come downe before that my sonne die.

50 IESVS saith to him, Goe, thy sonne liueth. The man beleeued ỳ word that IESVS sayd to him, and went.

51 And as he was now going downe, his seruants met him: and they brought worde, saying, That his sonne liued.

52 He asked therfore of them the houre, wherein he was amended. And they sayd to him, That yesterday at the seuenth houre the feuer left him.

53 The father therefore knew that it was in the same houre wherin IESVS said to him, Thy sonne liueth. and himselfe beleeued and his whole house.

Io.2,11. 54 This againe the *second signe did IESVS, when hee was come from Iewrie into Galilee.

43 Then sayd Iesus vnto him, Except ye see signes and wonders, ye will in no wise beleeue.

49 The ruler saith vnto him, Sir, come downe or euer that my sonne die.

50 Iesus sayth vnto him, Goe thy way, thy sonne liueth. And the man beleeued the word that Iesus had spoken vnto him, and hee went his way.

51 And as he was nowe going downe, the seruants met him, and told him, saying, Thy sonne liueth.

52 Then inquired he of them the houre when he began to amend: and they sayd vnto him, Yesterday at the seuenth houre the feuer left him.

53 So the father knew, that it was done the same houre, in the which Iesus sayd vnto him, Thy sonne liueth: and he beleeued, and all his household.

54 This is againe the second miracle that Iesus did, when hee was come out of Iewrie into Galilee.

MARGINALL NOTES. CHAP. IIII.

RHEM. 2 2. Iesus did not baptize.) He did not baptize ordinarily, yet that he baptized his Apostles, S. Augustine thinketh it very probable, ep.108.

FVLKE 2 S. Augustine thinketh the Apostles were baptized by Christ himselfe, rather then by Iohn, but without authoritie of the Scripture, and contrary to this expresse text. And therefore we must rather admit that which he sayth in the same Epistle, reconciling this text with that of Iohn 3.22. That he baptized with the presence of his maiestie; but he baptized not with his owne hands. For the Sacrament of baptisme was his, but the ministery of baptizing pertained to his disciples. Againe, he baptized not by himselfe, but by his disciples. And Tract.15. in Ioan. he affirmeth, that Christ baptized in spirit, as hee doth continually, not in body. Chrysost. also in Ioan.3.22. hath these wordes. The Euangelist (heweth afterward, that Iesus himselfe baptized not, but his disciples, whereupon it is manifest, that in this place also it is so to be vnderstood. In Ioan.Hom.28. and vpon this text he sayth: He himselfe did not baptize, but the messengers did so report, when they would stirre vp the hearers to hatred of him: Hom.30. Cyrillus also vpon the former text, sayth: Christ baptized by his disciples. In Io.lib.2.cap.57. Euthymius vpon that place Io.3.22. readeth in the plurall number. They baptized, and not he, for the Euangelist sayth afterward, that Iesus himselfe baptized not, but his disciples, Againe he sayth, some copies haue, Hee baptized, which is vnderstood that hee did not by himselfe, but by his disciples. Bede also following S. Augustine, saith vpon this text: Iesus did both baptize and not baptize. He himselfe baptized because he himselfe clensed, hee himselfe baptized not, because he did not himselfe dippe in water. Theophylact. in Io.3.22. saith: When thou heares that he baptized, thinke not that he baptized by himselfe, but by his disciples, for that worke of the disciples, the Euangelist referreth to their master. Therefore the consent of so many fathers is to bee preferred, before the bare coniecture of one father, and that against the expresse wordes of the text.

Christ baptized not with water.

RHEM. 3 39. Woman giuing.) This woman mystically being the Church, it is here signified, that they which at the first beleeue because the Church teacheth so, afterward be much confirmed, finding it in the Scripture also, and by other instructions.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. IIII.

RHEM. 4. 20. Our fathers adored.) By adoration is meant doing of sacrifice for other offices of Religion might be done in any place. The Samaritanes to defend their adoring in Garizim, pretended their worshipping there to be more ancient then the Iewes in Hierusalem, referring it to Iacob: whereas indeede that Patriarch adoring there before the Temple was appointed, or the Law geuen, made nothing for their Schisme: which was begun by Manasses a fugitiue Priest, onely to hold e his vnlawfull wife thereby, and to obtaine superiority in Schisme: which he could not doe in the vnity of his brethren: long after the Temple of Hierusalem, from which the reuolt was made. Therefore Christ giueth sentence for the Iewes and the Temple of Hierusalem, affirming that they had a good ground thereof, but the Samaritanes none at all.

The Schismatical temple condemneth against the true Temple. Ioseph. lib.xviij. 11.c.8.

Ioseph. also recordeth howe the Samaritanes demaunded of Alexander the Great, the like priuileges, and immunities as he had graunted to the high Priest and Temple of Hierusalem, pretending their Temple to be as great and as worthy, and themselues to be Iewes as the other, and to worship the same God. but their Schismatical hypocrisie was easily spied and dismissed with nothing. Another time the Iewes and Samaritanes (as the same writer testifieth) made a great sturre in Alexandria about the trueth and antiquity of the Schismaticall temple and seruice in Garizim and the other true Temple of Salomon: in so much that the matter was put to arbitrement by Ptolomaus the kings commandement, onely to trie whether of the two was first. And the Schismatikes (as their custome is) per saltum can make their Church or seruice as olde as they list, referring it to the Patriarkes, as our Schismatikes doe now to Christ and the Apostles. But when the triall was made, onely they of Ierusalem did inuincibly proue by continuall succession of their Priests, and by the inst note of the time when the Schismatikes went out from them, that theirs was the lawful, and the other the false temple and false adoration. and so it was iudged, and the Samaritanes put to silence. Afterward the sayd Schismatikes (which is lightly the end of all Schismes) reuolted quite from the Iewes religion, and dedicated their temple in Garizim to Iupiter Olympius, as Caluins supper and his bread and wine is like at length to come to the sacrifice of Ceres and Bacchus.

The true Temple preuaileth. Ioseph. lib.13. antiq.c.6.

The true Temple is proued by continual succession.

FVLKE. 4. By adoration, is meant worshipping of God generally, as the word plainely signifieth, and not offring of sacrifice onely, or chiefly. Neither could any office of Religion, bee done, acceptably to God in any other place, by True worship of God.

by them that did not communicate with the arke and Temple at Ierusalem. Which was not preferred in respect of antiquitie or succession onely, but because it had the word of God in many places of the Scriptures. Whereas the Schismatical Temple, was directly contrary to the holy Scripture. Neither had the true Temple at Hierusalem continuall succession in the true worship of God, for it was diuers times prophaned, and the worship of God cleane taken from it, as in the dayes of Achaz 2.Reg.16.& in the time of Manasses 2.Reg.21. Then was it layd waste and destroyed, by the space of 70.yeres, and was not after that fully builded in 46 yeres Ioan.3. After that restitution it was diuers times prophaned and polluted with idolatrie, as in the tyranny of Antiochus, when it was dedicated to Iupiter Olympius.2.Macc.6. and at other times. Therefore the authority of the Scripture, was the only sufficient warrant thereof, as it is of true Religion at this day. The Lord reuenge your blasphemie against his holy supper, which is celebrated by our Church, according to that we haue receiued of the Lord himselfe in the Gospel, wherein you can shew no ground for your popish Masse.

The authority of the Scripture. Slander.

23. In spirit and veritie.) Our Sauiour foretelleth her that the end and ceasing of their sacrifice and adoration in both the Temples should shortly be, and euen then was begun to be fulfilled: instructing her in three things concerning that point, first, that the true sacrifice should be tied no more to that one place or nation, but that true adoratiō should be throughout all Nations according to the Prophecie of Malachie. Secondly, that the grosse and carnall adoration by the flesh and blood of beasts and other externall terrene creatures, not hauing in them grace, spirit, and life, should be taken away, and another sacrifice succeed, which should be in it selfe inuisible, celestiall, diuine, full of life, spirit and grace. and thirdly, that this adoration and sacrifice should be the veritie it selfe, whereof all the former sacrifices and hostes were but shadowes and figures. Mal.1,17. and he calleth that here spirit and trueth, which in the first Chapter is called grace and trueth. All which is no more but a propheſie and description of the Sacrifice of the faithfull Gentiles in the body and blood of Christ: not that it is not by externall meanes giuen to vs (for otherwise we being men consisting of flesh and blood could not be capable thereof) but that it is spirit and life in it selfe, being the flesh of the WORD of God. And if a man inlarge the word of Adoration, (which here as is sayd, signifieth properly the worship of God by sacrifice) to all the Sacraments of the new Law, they all likewise be spirit and grace, the holy Ghost working inuisibly and internally vpon our soules by euery one of them, whereupon our Baptisme, is water and the Holy Ghost: our Penance, the word of absolution and the holy Ghost: our Confirmation, oyle and the Holy Ghost by imposition of hands: finally, all the adoration of the Catholike Church, is properly spirituall, though certaine externall creatures for our natures, state and necessitie, be ioyned thereunto. Take heed therefore whom gather not of Christs words, that Christian men should haue no vse of externall office towards God: for that would take away all sacrifice, Sacraments, prayers, Churches and societie of men in his Seruice. Ioa.1,17.

Christian adoration throughout all nations in euery place, in spirit and veritie: that is, in the Sacraments and seruice of the new lawe, full of spirit and grace: in the veritie of things before prefigured, specially the true sacrifice of Christs bodie & blood.

FVLKE, 5.

The spirituall sacrifice propheſied by Malachie, is interpreted by all ancient writers that speake of it, to bee prayers and thanksgiuing, and not the oblation of the naturall body of Christ, but the sacrifice of thanksgiuing, offered in the celebration thereof. Irenæus lib.4.cap.35 Iustinus dial. cum Tryphon. Tract.15. Chrysostome to the spirituall sacrifice of our selues, required of the Apostle, Rom.12. In Ioan.Ho.32. Cyril vnderstandeth by spirit, spirituall worship, and the vse of life according to the doctrine of the Gospel, which is acceptable to God the father. In Ioan.lib.2.c.93. Origen to the same effect vnderstandeth worship proceeding from them, which hauing the earnest of the spirit, walke according to the spirit. In Ioan.Tom.14. Euthymius expoundeth it, for prayer, prayses, and thanksgiuing, and the sacrifice of righteousnesse. Theophylact, for worshipping of God in mind and soule. So that the whole consent of the ancient fathers, beside the euidence of the text, is contrary to this popish interpretation, whereby spirit and trueth is referred to the grosse counterfeit sacrifice of the Masse. Finally, though some externall elements, as water, bread, and wine by the Scripture are required vnto the seruice of God, in respect of our infirmitie, yet the true worship of God euen in the vse of these, as of any other externall rite allowed by the Scripture, is in spirit and trueth, not in body and shadow.

Sacrifice of the Masse.

CHAP. V.

Curing a bedred man at the pond of miracle, because he doth it on the Sabboth, the blind Iewes doe persecute him, 7 and againe because he saith that God is his naturall father. 19 He thereupon commeth saying, the Fathers operation and his to be in euery thing all one, and that he shal doe greater things then these miraculous cures, to wit, 21 quicken the dead in soule by sinne, as being appointed Iudge of all, 21 yea and quicken the dead in bodies also, incontinent iudging all vprightly. 31 And that these are not braggs of his owne, but his witnesses to bee. 33 Iohn Baptist, 36 his owne miraculous workes, 37 his fathers voice at his baptisme. 39 the Scriptures also, namely of Moyses.

The 2 part. THE ACTS of Christ in Iewry (hauing already begunne his solemne Manifestation in Galilee Mt 4,12.) the second Pasche of his preaching. Leuit.23.2. deut.16.1.

THE GOSPEL vpon Friday in the first weeke of Lent.

AFter these things there was a festiuall day of the Iewes, and IESVS went vp to Hierusalem.

2 And there is at Hierusalem ‖ vpon ‡ Probatica a ‖ pond which in Hebrew is surnamed ‖ Bethsaida, hauing fiue porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of sicke persons, of blind, lame, withered, expecting the stirring of the water.

4 And an Angel of our Lord descended at a certaine time into the pond: and the water was stirred. And he that had gone downe first into the pond after the stirring of the water, was made whole of whatsoeuer infirmity he was holden.

5 And there was a certain man there that had bene eight and thirtie yeeres in this infirmitie.

6 Him

*AFter * this, there was a feast day of the Iewes, and Iesus went vp to Hierusalem.*

2 And there is at Hierusalem by the sheepe ‖ market, a poole, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, hauing fiue porches:

3 In which lay a great multitude of sicke folke, of blind, halt, and withered, waiting for the mouing of the water.

4 For an Angel went downe at a certaine season into the poole, and troubled the water: Whosoeuer then first after the troubling of the water stepped in, was made whole of whatsoeuer disease he had.

5 And a certaine man was there, which had bene diseased thirtie and eight yeeres.

6 When

‖ Or, gate.

6 Him when IESVS had seene lying, and knew that he had now a long time, hee sayth to him, Wilt thou be made whole?

c multum tempus habueret.

7 The sicke man answered him, Lord, I haue no man when the water is troubled, to put me into the pond. For whiles I come, an other goeth downe before me.

8 IESVS sayth to him, Arise, take vp thy bed, and walke.

9 And foorthwith hee was made whole: and he tooke vp his bed, and walked. And it was the Sabboth that day.

10 The Iewes therefore sayd to him that was healed, It is the Sabboth, thou mayest not take vp thy bed.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, he said to mee, Take vp thy bed, and walke.

12 They asked him therefore, What is that man that sayd to thee, Take vp thy bed, and walke?

13 But he that was made whole, knewe not who it was. For IESVS shrunke aside from the multitude standing in the place.

14 Afterward IESVS findeth him in the temple, and sayd to him, Beholde, thou art made whole: ‖ sinne no more, least some worse thing chance to thee.

15 That man went his way, and tolde the Iewes that it was IESVS that made him whole.

16 Thereupon the Iewes persecuted IESVS, because he did these things on the Sabboth.

17 But IESVS answered them, My father worketh vntill now: and I doe worke.

18 Thereupon therfore the Iewes sought the more to kill him: because he did not only breake the Sabboth, but also he sayd God was his father, making himselfe æquall to God.

19 IESVS therefore answered, and sayd to them, Amen, Amen I say to you, The Sonne cannot doe any thing of him selfe, but that which hee seeth the Father doing. For what things soeuer he doth, these the Sonne also doth in like maner.

20 For the Father loueth the Sonne, and sheweth him all things that himselfe doeth, and greater workes then these will hee shew him, that you may maruell.

21 For as the Father doth raise the dead and quickeneth: so the Sonne also quickeneth whom he will.

22 For neither doth the Father iudge any man: but all iudgement he hath giuen to the Sonne, 23 That all may honour the Sonne, as they doe honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Sonne, doeth not honour the Father, who sent him.

24 Amen,

6 When Iesus sawe him lie, and knewe that hee nowe long time had bene diseased, hee sayth vnto him, Wilt thou be made whole?
